St. Laurent May Call Conference On Inflation

A ROYAL WELCOME—Some 1,400 attended the glittering state dinner which the city of Montreal gave for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh Tuesday night. The charming royal couple—the Princess wearing a regally beautiful state gown and diamond tiara and the Duke attired in formal evening dress with military decorations—are seen on their way to the ballroom of the Windsor Hotel for the affair.

2 Children Perish In Flames

Partly Blind Girl Dies Trying To Save Brother

TORONTO, Nov. 1. (CP) — Two small children, one partly blind, died today in smoke and flame as they tried to grope their way out of their downtown home.

Diane, 5, and her brother David, 2½, were found together in an upstairs bedroom when the fire subsided.

Mrs. Hector Raymond, their mother, said Diane was trying to save David but both were trapped.

A neighbor, Mrs. Courariano Pelligra, caught two smaller children dropped from a second-storey rooftop by Mrs. Raymond The other Raymond children were at school.

Father At Work

The father was at work when the blaze started.

"The whole house was in flames," said Mrs. Raymond. "Apparently Diane tried to find me, then went to help her little brother. They couldn't find their way out in the smoke."

Mrs. Pelligra said she saw Mrs. Raymond on the roof with Bobby, 4, and Brian, 17 months. She signalled for her to drop the children, and caught them as they fell.

Do Strangest Things

Animals In News Make US Headlines

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—Just like people, animals sometimes do the strangest things. And Wednesday they outdid themselves in a burst of headline happenings.

Almost everywhere you looked, animals were in the news.

An Arkansas posse sought a leopard, two black bears, a polar bear and six Rheus monkeys—escapees from a circus.

Two bull moose, locked in horn-to-horn combat, started a big air-rescue operation with elements of drama up in Alaska. The audience included a batch of wolves and ravens, with food in mind. One moose stomped off into the woods after wildlife agents separated them. The other died of a broken neck.

Ten elevated subway trains in Philadelphia ran behind schedule because a cocker spaniel took a walk for 20 blocks on the train tracks.

A fox turned up the other day in the Massachusetts state house. Wednesday they caught him.

Near Dedham, Me., a 300-pound bear and a truck collided. One of the vehicle's passengers, Amos Wilson, grabbed an axe, chased the bear and killed it.

A dog named Skippy surprised the Roger Fossen household in Morris, Minn.

Eight months ago the Fossens moved to Morris from Seattle and gave Skippy to a neighbor. Sunday there was a scratching at the front door of the Fossen home. It was skippy—1,800 miles from Seattle.

Twelve more dogs made the news in Louisville, Ky. A grocer had the dogs seized to cover Mrs. Margaret Hoagland's $239 grocery bill.

WINS $140,000 — Maj. E. F. Hersey, stationed at Camp Borden, won $140,000 when Fleeting Moment, 21-8 winner of the Cambridgeshire Stakes in England, romped home Wednesday. Major Hersey held an Irish Sweepstake ticket on the winner.

Want Wide Group Of Delegates

Protection, Relief Of High Costs Studied Carefully

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent has taken under consideration the possibility of calling a conference of various national groups to discuss ways of easing inflation.

The request for such a conference was made by the Canadian Association of Consumers, following its annual meeting here last month.

In a series of letters made public today, Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., the association's national president, suggested to Mr. St. Laurent that such a conference would help stress the gravity of inflation on the Canadian economy.

"It would also enable the major groups of our country to discuss ways in which each group could help mitigate inflationary pressures."

Wide Representation

Mrs. Walton's letter to Mr. St. Laurent, dated October 25, said the association wanted the conference to consist of representatives of industry, trade, labor, agriculture and consumers for the purpose "of examining and clarifying the responsibility of any group in today's inflationary prices."

The association would want the delegates to study means of giving protection and relief against inflation to pensioners and marginal groups. The living standards of these groups were being "rapidly forced below minimum health requirements, particularly where food and lodgings are concerned."

The request for the conference was embodied in resolutions passed by the association at its annual meeting here last month.

The Prime Minister's office disclosed Mr. St. Laurent's reply, dated October 26, in which he "carefully noted" the request and promised to give it "careful consideration."

Will Cut Spending - Abbott

MONTREAL, Nov. 1. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott promised today to continue to cut down non-defence spending, but said reductions can be made only on a fraction of the $3,700,000,000 the government plans to spend this year. Of the total expenditures budgeted for the 1951-52 fiscal year, only about $500,000,000 represented "what is generally regarded as controllable expenditures," Mr. Abbott said. "It is in this sector that we are trying to effect reductions." Even here, he said in a 5,000-word speech prepared for delivery before a joint meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers and the Advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal, the job of trying to save "appears to be a thankless task."

"Rising costs of labor and materials obscure the picture but a good deal has already been accomplished not only in restricting postponable capital projects but also in achieving economies in current administrative operations.

Not Spectacular

"At times I confess this appears to be a thankless task and results can never be spectacular but I can assure you that we will continue to do our best to increase administrative efficiency and reduce non-defence expenditure wherever practicable."

Other points made by Mr. Abbott:

1. Though Canada was in a period of inflation, a system of over-all controls would put its economy "in a strait jacket" and suppress competition at a time when it was needed most.
2. The government's pay-as-you-go policy was a policy of "honesty and common sense." If a surplus develops, it should hardly be cause for criticism. It would help reduce the public debt and counteract inflation.
3. Savings were urgently needed to finance a huge investment program now under way in Canada. This year it will claim 22 per cent of Canada's gross national output.
4. Providing no major international crisis develops, Canada can look forward to a period of increasing strength and economic stability.

Makes Prediction

He predicted that the direct investment by non-residents in Canadian industry will reach an amount this year similar to the $190,000,000 investment made in 1950. In addition, Canada had received about $200,000,000 from the issue of bonds by provinces, municipalities and corporations in the private capital market of the United States since the beginning of the year.

WILL CUT SPENDING

Worst Typhoon In 20 Years Damages 2 RCN Destroyers

ABOARD HMCS ATHABASKAN OFF KOREA, Nov. 1. (CP)—The worst typhoon to hit the Japanese area in 20 years pounded two Canadian destroyers savagely and severely and, among many other depredations, wrecked every lifeboat aboard one of them. No lives were lost but the seamen aboard this destroyer and the Sioux came through hours of violent winds of 70 miles an hour and towering seas which rolled feet-deep over the decks and battered and tossed the tough little warships as though they were toys.

The third RCN destroyer serving off Korea, the Cayuga, was outside the storm area.

Athabaskan, in company with two Royal Navy ships, originally sailed from her UN naval base in southern Japan in an attempt to escape the storm. The three warships made the navigable semi-circle which meant comparative safety. But they did not get away without a buffeting. The winds building up 40-foot waves, hurled themselves with huge green seas at the ship.

Too Hazardous

An attempt to cross the wind and escape to the west proved hazardous as the ships, particularly the smaller Canadian destroyer, rolled excessively. It was decided to heave to and see the storm out with pitching and tossing instead of rolling.

Men went about their work soaked to the skin for hours on end. For a time, traffic on the upper decks was impossible, and officers on watch on the bridge had to carry on for hours past their relief time.

At times it was necessary to lie down on the deck to avoid being hurled across the ship.

In the forward messdecks, water shot down through storm-damaged deck ventilators, soaking men and gear.

Could Have Been Worse

Damage was not as bad as expected. The starboard motor cutter had been stove in. The starboard whaler suffered similar damage and a Carley float had gone. But all in all the Athabaskan could consider herself lucky compared with the Sioux.

The Sioux, in another area, had her gun shield bashed in, while the forward bulkhead of the petty officers' mess was buckled and the bulkhead parted from the deck. Two Bofors guns were thrown out of alignment, all her boats were damaged beyond repair and most of her Carley floats were washed away. A number of depth charges broke loose and were lost over the side.

One Dead, 28 Hurt In Parade Blast

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1 (AP) — A 32-year-old woman was fatally burned Wednesday night and 28 other persons were injured by a series of gas explosions which transformed a gala neighborhood Hallowe'en celebration into a scene of terror.

Mrs. Helen Kellington died today about 12 hours after the blasts which showered flaming debris over hundreds of paraders and spectators.

The earth-shaking blasts let go in the basement of a confectionery store and dwelling house in a South Hills district where a Hallowe'en parade reached the end of its march.

Fire Chief James T. Coslett said a broken gas main in Max Davidson's confectionery store set off the explosions. They were felt four blocks away.

Coslett estimated property damage at $20,000. A roaring fire broke out after the first blast and gutted the two-storey building.

A wall caved in and pinned Mrs. McCafferty, an expectant mother, in her auto for nearly an hour. Three friends were with her.

Orchids Shut Foundry 850 Workers Laid Off

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 1. — (CP)—Orchids closed a foundry today.

All was quiet this morning at the foundry of McKinnon industries. It shut down at midnight, laying off more than 850 employees, as the result of an injunction obtained by W. W. Walker & Sons, florists. Mr. Walker charged that smoke and fumes from the foundry damaged his orchids.

There were no disturbances or agitations by those out of work. Neither side, however, offers any immediate hope of re-opening the plant.

The men thrown out of work will be absorbed as much as possible in other departments of the company. The McKinnon firm, with a total payroll of about 4,100 employees makes automotive parts and is a subsidiary of General motors.

Today the management publicly stated its stand in the dispute. In a half-page newspaper advertisement, the company acknowledged that under the judgement, Mr. Walker is entitled to recover damages and said that since 1949, it has spent more than $100,000 to control smoke and fumes.

Two Canadians Curious

Slip Behind Bamboo Curtain Note Many Bomb Shelters

VANCOUVER, Nov. 1 (CP)—Two Vancouver seamen who slipped under the Iron Curtain at Dairen, Manchuria, and slipped back out again four hours later arrived home Wednesday aboard the Canadian freighter Argovan.

Maurice Embra and Stanley Savage related that when their ship reached the Red harbor late in June they decided to go ashore despite orders from port officials that foreign crews were not allowed to leave their ships.

They said they mingled with a work party leaving the docks and got by the gate guard by flashing their seamens' identification cards. Embra continued:

"We noticed many bomb shelters scattered throughout the town and machine-gun emplacements at every corner. The windows of all buildings were crisscrossed with tape as though anticipating bombing raids.

"Displayed on every building in the port were large posters preaching hate for the US. There were posters of Uncle Sam astraddle a chest of gold and surrounded by skeletons. Posters of Uncle Sam in chains, led by victorious Chinese Communists. Posters of Uncle Sam on his knees and a Chinese Communist running a sword through his body.

"We were able to talk to a few Red Chinese soldiers but the Russian soldiers would have nothing to do with us, even to accepting a cigarette. The Chinese spoke confidently to us of 'ultimate victory' over the Western powers.

"When we tried to get past the gate at the docks we were being charged as spies.

"Next morning we were told that as we had never been there before and were apparently unfamiliar with local orders we would go unpunished."

Army Troops Face A-Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 1 (AP) —United States Army troops were exposed today to an atomic blast for the first time, and came off without casualties and with knowledge which may prove "greater than anticipated."

Official confirmation of the troops' participation in today's blast, which was so strong that it cracked store windows in this city more than 75 miles away, came from Maj.-Gen. William B. Kean, commanding the Army's Third Corps.

Another Army spokesman, declining to be quoted by name, said "this is the one test in which troops will be involved." This was taken to indicate that the Army is satisfied with what it learned.

The blast went off at 7:30 am PST and sent a giant white cloud mushrooming over the Yucca Flat test centre in the desert northwest of here.

Ottawa Enters Housing Pact

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP) — The federal government has entered into an agreement with Ontario for the construction of a total of about $3,500,000 worth of new houses for rent at Windsor and St. Thomas, the resources department announced today.

Major project will be at Windsor, where the plan is to build 325 homes at a cost of $3,100,000. These will rent at about $60 a month, depending on final costs.

The project at St. Thomas will consist of 40 homes, costing about $350,000 and renting at about $50 or $55 per month.

Work on the new housing is to begin as quickly as possible.

Allies, Communists Close To Agreement

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 1 (AP) —A United Nations' briefing officer said tonight the allies and the Communists are in "general agreement" on the eastern half of a neutral zone for a Korean armistice.

Negotiators are "nearest to agreement on a buffer zone than ever before," said Lt.-Col. L. G. Hill.

But he emphasized agreement on the zone would not end the shooting.

The buffer zone is only the first point of a proposed armistice. If the battle line changes substantially after an agreement is reached on a buffer zone, Hill said, it probably would have to be negotiated all over again.

Gov't Delays Legislation On Retail Price-Fixing Ban

OTTAWA, Nov. 1, (CP)—The government, on appeal by manufacturers and suppliers, has decided to delay legislation on proposed banning of retail price-fixing and throw open the whole question before a joint Commons-Senate committee. Justice Minister Garson gave notice on the Commons order paper today of a motion to set up a joint committee to study the recommendations by the MacQuarrie committee that resale price maintenance practices be made illegal.

The committee will have power to set up sub-committee and hear witnesses and make recommendations to parliament. That likely will mean months of study before the committee decides whether parliamentary action against price-fixing is warranted.

The government indicated it intended to take action against resale price maintenance practices in the throne speech at the opening of this session of parliament.

Make Further Study

Since then representatives of manufacturers and suppliers have conferred with Mr. Garson to have legislation delayed so another study of the MacQuarrie recommendations could be made.

Wednesday, for example the Canadian Chamber of Commerce urged the government to take no present action on its proposed legislation and urged "restraint" until the views of the Chamber's 700-member boards of trade and chambers across the country had been obtained.

In any event, the chamber suggested that no action be taken at this session of parliament.

A government official said the move to set up the parliamentary committee would delay the government's legislation but it still was possible a bill may be introduced during the current session "if the committee moves fast enough."

The official said, however, that the request of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce was a "reasonable" one and that the government preferred a "balanced view" of various groups of society.

Helicopter Attack Wipes Out Red Base

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 1 (AP) —United States Marines successfully raided a Communist Korean guerrilla stronghold behind United Nations' lines in the first true helicopter combat attack ever made, the Marines announced today.

Thirty-three volunteers made the flying Marine raid. Two helicopters carried them seven miles over jagged North Korean mountains to the guerrillas' mountain fortress.

The airborne raiders landed on a mountain top. They hid in the wild peaks and struck the next day. They charged three huts, headquarters of a band of 150 North Korean Reds operating from a mountain hideout.

In the subsequent fight, a spokesman said, the Marines "believe they broke up this stronghold."

Asks For Review Of Voters' Lists

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP)—Harry Walters, CCF candidate for Toronto Bracondale in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election, has asked Attorney-General Porter for a review of the enumeration of the voters' lists in his riding.

He made the request Wednesday night after Robert Martin, riding returning officer, announced that approximately 1,500 names had been cut from padded voting lists in the south end of the riding.

Mr. Walters complained that the entire enumeration had been carried out improperly.

Allow Doctor To Leave China

HONG KONG, Nov. 1 (Reuters) —Dr. Stuart Allen, Montreal missionary, was on a recent list of foreign nations now in Chungking who were to get exit visas from Communist China if no "claims" were made against them, it was learned here today.

The Canadian Trade Commissioner's Office in Hong Kong received this information, but did not know whether Dr. Allen has actually been granted a visa or when he is likely to leave China.

His name was on a list of applicants published in the Chungking Official Press about October 19.

The customary three days before issuing the visa were allowed for claims or complaints to be lodged against those named.

Dr. Allen, it is understood, was senior medical officer of the United Church of Canada Hospital in Chungking, which the Canadian ecclesiastical authorities recently closed down.

Royal Couple Pays Visit To Arlington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)— Princess Elizabeth today placed a wreath on the tomb of George Washington, the man who played a major role in taking the United States out of the British Empire.

It was a simple ceremony. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh took the wreath and walked alone with it into the tomb.

When they came out, Philip turned, faced the tomb and saluted.

The couple then inspected Mount Vernon, the plantation home where Washington spent his last days.

Britain's "Fairy Princess," as President Truman called her, and her handsome husband, were accompanied by Margaret Truman, the President's daughter.

Go To Cemetery

From Mt. Vernon, the procession—cars of secret service men and reporters as well as that of the Royal couple and Miss Truman—went back over the same route to Arlington national cemetery.

There, the Princess laid a wreath of yellow and bronze chysanthemums on the tomb of the unknown soldier. She paused motionless while an army bugler sounded Taps. Philip stood at her side, his hand raised in a stiff salute.

As the motorcade wound up the wooded slopes of the cemetery, an army battery rendered a 21-gun salute.

The Princess entered Arlington amphitheatre, which looks down upon the unknown soldier's tomb, with Maj.-Gen. Thomas Herren, commander of the Washington military district.

Several hundred spectators sat in the amphitheatre. Others were gathered in knots near the entrance and behind ropes near the tomb itself.

Gale Damages Resort

WASAGA BEACH, Nov. 1 (CP) —A fierce gale swept through this Georgian Bay resort area Wednesday, causing $25,000 property damage. Signs were blown down and awnings ripped. Shoreline cottages were left on miniature islands as waves swept away sand around their foundations. Charles Procter, a clerk at Wasaga Beach, said the storm was the worst in 25 years.

Cabinet Studies Churchill Plans

LONDON, Nov. 1 (Reuters)— Winston Churchill called his new cabinet together today to approve plans he has shaped to meet Britain's economic crisis.

The broad outlines of Conservative policy will be announced in the speech from the throne opening parliament next week.

This speech, drafted by the cabinet and traditionally delivered by the King, will be followed a few days later by Churchill's first major pronouncement on domestic and world policy.

The throne speech will be read to parliament by a Royal Commission of Peers. It will reveal how soon the Conservatives intend to carry out their pledge to denationalize the iron and steel industry, which the Labor government transferred to state ownership.

Churchill's plans to reorganize state-owned road transport on a regional basis will also be announced.

Quarters close to the Conservative leader expect him to make bold moves to arrest the serious financial drain.

Flames Lick Near Gasoline

18 Huddle 24 Hours On Blazing Deck

SYDNEY, NS, Nov. 1 (CP). — Eighteen survivors of an explosion-blasted tanker told today how they huddled for 24 hours on the ship's blazing deck, awaiting rescue as the flames ate slowly toward the highly-explosive cargo.

Survivors of the tanker Transept—loaded with 20,000 barrels of gasoline, 5,000 barrels of jet oil and 5,000 barrels of diesel oil—arrived here today aboard the British rescue freighter Ottinge.

No one knew of the ship's plight. Fire following the explosion spread to the radio room before the wireless officer could send out an SOS. They were only about 10 miles off shore, but the explosion had destroyed all lifeboats and rafts.

Two German members of the 20-man crew of the Panamanian vessel, Chief Engineer Ernest Lange 42, of Limburg, and oiler Josef Sveda 46, of Bremen, died in the engine room blast Monday night that left the vessel stranded and on fire at the mouth of the Bay of Chaleur. Three others were injured, two seriously, and have been taken to hospital here.

The men were left without food or shelter, most of them dressed only in their night clothes.

Lucky Break

The Ottinge was en route to England from Caraquet, NB, when she stumbled on the doomed ship Tuesday night. The survivors were quickly taken aboard.

Shipping sources at Montreal said the tanker sank after being abandoned.

Taken to hospital were Hubert Erte, 23, with both feet badly burned; Otto Schaffer, 29, seriously burned back, and Gunter Bluhem, 23, a fractured ankle, burns and bruises. Erte and Schaffer were in a severe state of shock. All are from Germany.

Capt. James Bard, of the 1,603-ton tanker, said the morale of the crew "was wonderful under the most trying conditions imaginable."

The men on watch were the only ones fully clothed. The rest of the crew was asleep when the explosion occurred.

The men searched for covering and put burlap bags around their feet and bodies. Capt. Bard ordered the men covered over with sawdust to keep them warm.

Washington Gives Royal Couple Warm Reception

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (CP)—Washington said hello to "Lilibet and Phil" Wednesday. It said it easily and gracefully. It was not a formal welcome to the heir presumptive to Britain's throne and her consort, but a great big "We're glad to have you" to a likeable young couple Washingtonians feel they have come to know. Informality prevailed from the time the plane bearing Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived from Montreal at 4 pm until late in the evening on the first day of their 45-hour stay in the capital of the United States.

President Truman started it. He practically threw away the text of his formal address of welcome.

Washington gleefully seized upon this first opportunity since 1939 to see visiting Royalty. It turned out in hundreds of thousands to greet the 25-year-old Princess and the blonde, handsome Duke of Edinburgh, who captivated the town with his own free informality.

Estimates Vary

The police estimate of the crowds that lined the seven-mile route from National Airport to Blair House, where the visitors are guests of the President, ran to 550,000. Other sources took a guess at 700,000. Newspapermen who have covered the tour from its start October 8 thought 150,000 would be closer to the actual figure.

But though the estimates of the welcoming throng differed, there was unanimity about the reception: "Terrific."

It had been expected that, as in 1939 when the King and Queen visited the late President Roosevelt, stiff protocol would prevail on this side trip to a foreign country. But the only protocol observed was in the first few minutes at the airport when the Truman Cabinet was presented to the Royal couple.

From then on, Washington took over.

Delighted With Job

The former haberdasher of Independence, Mo., who now is the President of the US, was obviously delighted with his assignment. Disregarding his formal, typewritten address, he delivered a homey little speech in which he said that to know Elizabeth was to love her.

And at night, in offering his formal toast at the Trumans' private dinner for the Royal couple in Blair House, he said:

"When I was a little boy, I read about the Fairy Princess — and there she is."

The city's greeting was big. It was friendly and good-natured. There were not, of course, the roars of loyalty that characterized the Canadian tour. In fact, there was comparatively little cheering.

But the applause was constant —almost a roar in itself—as Washington vied for a peek at Truman's "Fairy Princess."

The "G-Girls," Washington's hundreds of thousands of government workers—had part of the afternoon off for the occasion. They made the most of it.

Split Up

They saw the Princess, a shy, slight figure in red, sitting beside the President, talking to him animatedly. They saw the Prince, beside Mrs. Truman and Margaret in the second open car.

Completely at ease, he waved nonchalantly to the throngs along the roadside. The girls loved it.

The rest of the evening was informal. The Royal couple stopped in at Blair House to permit the Princess to change from her red travelling suit to a green taffeta dress and light green hat with gold sequins.

Then they hurried to the first reception of the 2½-day visit, a "do" by the Washington Press Corps in the Statler Hotel. There some 1,000 persons heard the Princess welcomed as "one of those little girls"—Elizabeth and Princess Margaret—who had been thrust upon the public stage in 1936 when their father ascended the throne.

Face Heavy Day

The Prince and Princess—"Lilibet and Philip" to Washington newspapers—are here officially as a Prince and Princess of Canada. The Canadian ambassador, Hume Wrong, said so in welcoming them at the Statler reception. The embassy officially is the host during the visit, and it is there that the Royal couple tonight tender a formal, private dinner to the Truman family.

A heavy day faces the visitors on their first full day in the capital. They drive to Mount Vernon, home and burial place of the United States' first president and Martha Washington, in the morning; then honor the country's war dead in Arlington national cemetery and attend a reception at the Canadian embassy for the diplomatic representatives of the Commonwealth.

Don't Expect Get New Jets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Prospects are dim that the United States air force will get for use in Korea new jet fighters definitely superior to the enemy's Russian-made MIG-15s, unless the war drags on a long time.

Air force experts said today they know of no radically new fighter in production which can out-perform the F-86 or other American jets. The F-86 and the MIG-15 are rated about equal.

There are in the US better planes and engines in development or approaching the production stage—as there probably are in Russia—but they aren't ready now.

Planes coming out of the factories now were designed and ordered before or early in the Korean war.

Because there is some flexibility in the design of a plane even when mass-production lines have started, certain changes made in equipment or parts may produce some degree of improvement.

Stock Market Prices Higher On Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP) — Stock market prices pushed higher today in early afternoon dealings.

Papers, utilities, agricultures, steels and miscellaneous industrials shared the lead as the market's strongest sections. Refining oils held firmly to yesterday's advances but liquors, banks, textiles and manufacturing companies turned mixed. Foods and retail stores weakened.

Western oils posted advances ranging to 50 cents.

In base metals, Consolidated Smelters Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Noranda added fractions. United Asbestos jumped 75 cents in active dealings while Barvue and Estelle climbed pennies.

Senior golds were firm. Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addisan, Lake Shore, Lamaque and Teck Hughes recorded gains to about 25 cents. Secondary issues climbed moderately.

Strike Talks Still Deadlocked

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—Marathon negotiations between warring factions of AFL longshoremen ended in deadlock early today, sending the crippling east-coast dock strike into its 18th day.

After sounding an earlier note of optimism during the 11-hour session, Merlyn S. Pitzele, chairman of the New York State mediation board, announced that the meeting had broken up.

"Extraordinary measures must be considered" to end the dispute, he said.

The strike, by dissident members of the International longshoremen's Association, has paralyzed the vast port of New York and the Boston waterfront. Only military and naval cargoes have moved with any regularity.

There are no records available of bicycle licences issued in 1948 and if anyone can claim the red man's style bicycle, Kingston police will ship it to them.

ALYSSUM BLOOMING

Only the border of white alyssum remains of the flower bed across the way from the Examiner in front of the law office of Hall and Hall. Girls of the staff tended it through the summer. Recent frosts blighted the petunias. Around town surviving salvias and marigolds, their bloom tarnished by the chill weather of late, are struggling against inevitable doom.

Has Plan To Fight High Prices

Suggests Free Trade For Canada, US

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP).—Free trade between Canada and the United States, giving Canadians the benefit of lower-priced American goods, was offered in the Commons Wednesday as the government's best weapon against high prices.

The suggestion came from a front-rank Liberal member, A. Wesley Stuart from the New Brunswick riding of Charlotte, who predicted that a three-months' experiment in suspended tariffs would knock down the cost of living in Canada by "many points."

He charged that high prices in this country are caused by "glaring" monopolies which force Canadians to pay twice as much as do Americans for goods manufactured in the two countries by, in many instances, the same companies.

He could see no reason why General Electric, for example, should be able to produce the same products in the two countries and yet charge Canadians a higher price. That also went for a long list of other manufacturing firms.

Like To Have Explanation

He would like to see officials of General Electric and other companies, appear before a Commons committee to justify the difference between Canadian and American prices.

Amid applause, he invited other Commons members to join him in seeking what could be done to "put these monopolistic organizations in their place." Meantime, the best way to fight high prices was to knock down the tariff walls.

His speech highlighting the resumed throne-speech debate, cited Canada's automotive industry as "the greatest monopoly of them all" and said that that was a "fact" which everybody knew. The industry could produce as cheaply as its American counterpart if forced to.

Quotes Examples

He mentioned soaps and soap flakes, toothpaste, electric toasters, radios, washing machines, refrigerators and other goods as examples of commodities on which Canadians paid higher prices.

He scoffed at suggestions which he said would be made, that free trade would promote unemployment. What it would do would be to give the Canadian people a chance to buy goods at prices which were not "unreasonable."

Irvin Studer (L-Maple Creek), another member whose riding is close to the US border, said he could not "sell" his constituents on the idea that Canadian prices are lower than those in the United States. The cost of living was paramount in the minds of the people.

While they realized things could not be produced as cheaply in this country as in the US, they wanted assurance they were not paying for unreasonable profits on purchases.

George Nowlon (PC-Annapolis-Kings) said the government was responsible for high prices because of its "complacency and inaction." Credit restrictions should be relaxed.

Arthur Laing (L-Vancouver South) opposed controls and subsidies because they would mean a reintroduction of rationing and an invasion of the rights of the individual.

W. D. Wylie (SC-Medicine Hat) opposed the government's plans to prohibit retail price-fixing because it would mean that the big stores could undersell small retailers and put them out of business.

Brook Seeking Aldermanic Seat

First to announce his intention of running for an aldermanic seat on city council in this year's municipal elections is George P. Brook, 166 McDonnel St.

Mr. Brook, formerly a captain in the army and with 13 years of active service behind him, is making his first bid for the post of alderman. He feels that "taxes are to high, and the city's spending can be curbed."

Rumor today had it that the wife of one of the city aldermen was going to accept a nomination as aldermanic candidate this year. The rumor was denied, but the rumored candidate said:

"I'm not running, but I think it would be a wonderful thing if some woman did."

How Brave Are You?

Four youths about 16 and 17 years of age robbed a brother and sister, 10 and 8, as they were returning home after making their rounds of neighbor's houses for their Hallowe'en candy Wednesday evening. The four youths sitting in a car at Lundy's Lane and Noble Place, got out, yanked the children's candy from their hands. And then they took the boy's new gloves his mother had bought that day and took the youngster's false faces. How brave are you?

Milk Board Price Quashed By Judge

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP).—An Ontario Milk Board order granting farmers an increase of 35 cents a hundredweight in the price they are paid for milk was ordered quashed today by consent at Osgoode Hall.

The order granting the increase was ruled out by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

The reason was that the producers and Toronto distributors now have agreed to discuss the price situation among themselves without board intervention.

Car Rolls Over Two Youths Hurt

Two youths were injured and required hospital treatment early today when their car rolled over on the River road and narrowly missed falling into the Otonabee river. Only a wire fence prevented the trio from being plunged into the river.

James Driscoll, 17, Ross St., one of two passengers injured, received a bad cut on his right palm.

John McGee, 16, Downie St., brother of the driver, received a broken wrist. His wrist was already in a cast from being broken in a rugby game. The jar of the accident dislocated the bone once again.

The driver, 17-year-old Paul McGee, Downie St., escaped unhurt.

On River Road

The accident occurred on the River road, a mile south of Lakefield. The car had just gone over a bridge and went out of control on a curve. It zig-zagged for about 400 feet and then rolled over on its side on the west shoulder of the road. Only a wire fence prevented it from falling four feet into the river.

OPP Constable Roy Feeley investigated.

Will Cut Spending

The huge foreign investment in Canada would not have been so great if there had been little confidence in the "stability of Canada's economic climate as a whole."

He reported that $170,000,000 worth of Canada savings bonds have been sold so far in the current campaign, an increase of 14 per cent over sales in the same period last year. Payroll savings plan sales totalled $119,000,000—an increase of about 10 per cent over last year.

"It is our feeling that progress is being made—although not quite as much as we had hoped to see," Mr. Abbott said.

The intense period of the campaign which normally would end Nov. 3 therefore was being continued until Nov. 15.

Concrete Block Narrowly Misses Princess

By KEN KELLY

MONTREAL, Nov. 1 —(CP)— The fall of a three-foot-square concrete block almost caused a tragedy Wednesday an hour before Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh left by plane for Washington.

The huge block tumbled two storeys, from above the entrance to the Queen Mary Veterans Hospital, landing on a spot where the Princess and the Duke had been standing not more than a minute before.

The royal couple, concluding a three-day visit to Montreal, had paid a 28-minute call at the hospital en route to Dorval airport.

There was no suggestion of sabotage. Dr. Jules Mercier, superintendent of the hospital, said the cement was loosened by wind and water. A high wind was blowing at the time.

Part of Design

The chunk of concrete formed part of a triangular ornamental design above the high doorway and part of the front of the building.

The ornamental section which fell was at the left of the triangle base as one enters the hospital.

Several hundred persons witnessed the near-tragedy in which chunks of concrete were sprayed against the sides of automobiles in the royal motorcade which was leaving the hospital.

Staff Sgt. John Morris, on guard duty at the hospital, suffered leg and arm injuries and Donat Blair, a hospital employee, suffered chest bruises when struck by small bits of concrete.

Time Cut Down

The Princess and the Duke were scheduled to pay a half-hour call with the veterans. But their motorcade was seven minutes late leaving the Windsor Hotel where 25,000 crowded into Dominion Square to wave them farewell.

The Princess wore the same red coat she had on in Ottawa, and a black hat. The Duke wore a blue coat and carried his hat in his hand.

Their car pulled away from the door less than a minute after the stone fell, scattering a group of nurses, police and hospital officials. The couple likely did not know what had happened at the time.

Pierre Lefevre To Adjudicate Canadian Drama Festivals

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP)—Pierre Lefevre, 37-year-old British actor, who has mixed dramatic war escapades with a varied and distinguished stage career, has been appointed adjudicator for the 1952 regional festivals under the sponsorship of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Appointment of the member of the famous Old Vic Theatre Company of London was announced Wednesday by Dick MacDonald, the festival's secretary-treasurer, on behalf of D. Park Jamieson, of Sarnia, honorary chairman.

The first of the 56 regional festivals will start in Vancouver Jan. 14. Dates of other regional competitions will be announced later.

Mr. Lefevre started his professional career at the Old Vic under Tyrone Guthrie. Small parts in various London west end shows followed.

He was touring England with the London village players when the Second World War broke out, carried him into a crisis that required every acting trick he knew.

He had served with the French Army in 1932-34 and was recalled in 1939. In 1940, caught in the French retreat before the Nazis, he quickly and successfully disguised himself as a Pole, joined a Polish Division and from there escaped in a British convoy.

But the war was not over for the young actor. He later trained as a BBC war correspondent, landed in Normandy 12 days after D-Day and got his first real acquaintanceship with Canadians.

Accredited to Canadian Army Headquarters, Mr. Lefevre reported the bitter fighting for Boulogne and Calais, cementing a first friendship with the Canadian fighters. Then he returned to the French army, serving in Alsace, South Germany and Austria.

With the war over, Mr. Lefevre returned to his first love — the stage—played the role of Aloysha in Alec Guiness' version of The Brothers Karamazov, and later toured the continent with the Young Vic Company.

Last year he became a member of the Old Vic Company for its first season in the rebuilt theatre in London's Waterloo Road.

Reeve Says Appointments To Revision Court Illegal

COBOURG, Nov. 1 (ENS)—Appointment of two counties council members to the counties court of revision was criticised by G. F. Jamieson of Bowmanville yesterday as being a violation of the Act. As a result of his objections, council gave only two readings to the by-law appointing the court of revision and left the third one to the January session.

"I don't see how you can legally do it. I may be wrong but we have had no legal opinion on it, so who is to say whether we can legally go ahead and name two counties council members," declared Reeve Jamieson.

"They still have to be sworn in and that will not be until next year and by then it will be known whether they are still on counties council and of course, if they are, they cannot sit on the court of revision," observed Warden Geo. Walton.

The clerk produced the Act which stipulated that a member of a council or utilities commission could not be a member of the court of revision.

"We were misled on how the members were to be appointed. We acted on the assumption that no member of council or a utilities commission could be on the court of revision and here we have two present members of council (Reeve Chapman and Reeve George) on the court of revision. I have nothing against either man but the fact remains that we are not proceeding in accordance with the Act. One might say that as far as the council members on the court of revision are concerned, if they don't make council they'll get on the court of revision," said Reeve Jamieson.

"We were under the same impression when we proposed our man for the court of revision," said Reeve Roy Dodge of Cobourg.

Sketchy Report

When a sketchy report by the Board of Management of the Counties Home was brought in, Reeve Dodge asked why it was that council never heard any more than a report on the county farm receipts and expenditures. The council should be informed on how the finances were standing and how much the counties home farm was making.

Accordingly the clerk produced from the files the report for 1949 to 1950. Before reading it, he pointed out that the department of welfare was no longer going to pay subsidies on county farms of more than 15 acres.

The report revealed that the total receipts were $31,496.36 and expenditures at the counties home were $46,038.42, leaving an operating deficit of $14,542 on which a 50 per cent subsidy was paid by the department. Farm receipts were $6,255.57 and expenditures were $3,675.73 and produce estimated at $2,140 was used by the counties home. The farm showed an operating surplus of $2,239.60.

The special county property committee recommended new lighting for Colborne registry office, new paint job for the county offices in the town hall, to be done by jail labor, and recommended a $15 increase in the cost of living bonus for jail employees which would bring the cost of living bonus to $30 per month.

The report of the Children's Aid Society showed that in the last three months, 47 new cases had been filed, for a total of 90 children. Nineteen were admitted to the shelter and 22 were discharged. There were 113 new family cases 30; unmarried mothers and 232 children registered in foster homes.

The Trenton Suburban Road Commission reported that for the period from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, a total of $10,787 had been spent in maintenance and construction on the Trenton suburban road system.

Bylaws were passed reverting to Haldimand and Hamilton townships parts of former county roads which were Highway 45 cut-offs. A bylaw appointed Harvey Brent of Cobourg as the new counties solicitor, succeeding Alan Field. A salary of $4,500 for the road engineer and superintendent was confirmed by bylaw.

Second reading was given to a bylaw which named Leslie Wilson of Cobourg, George F. Annis of Darlington township, Charles Chapman of Manvers township, Leslie Bowman of Hamilton township, and Frank George of Brighton township to the court of revision at $7.00 per day and mileage.

The report of the finance committee authorized payment of between session accounts amounting to $5,736.80 for administration of justice; maintenance of indigents, $12,349.31; registry offices, $747.11; county roads, $135,229.51; Counties' Home, $17,933.52; jail, $6,389.46; child welfare, $12,743.51; municipal government, $9,247.44.

Council approved recommendations of the finance committee to raise the salary of Mrs. Maie McGuire, secretary to Judge M. A. Miller by the amount of $300 per year.

Following yesterday's brief session, the finance committee held a meeting with the press excluded to discuss a revision of the bookkeeping system.

Hastings C of C Holds Hallowe'en Party

HASTINGS, Nov. 1—(ENS)—The town hall, Hastings, was the scene of fun Wednesday night when the local Chamber of Commerce were hosts to the children of the village.

Joseph Lynch and his committee had a well-planned program and started the evening with colored cartoons, followed by a comedy.

All the children in costume paraded across the platform and prizes were awarded to those in the best costume. Judges were R. R. Burnham, Leo Petticrew and William Hoey. Numbers were called out and those who did not contribute to the program paid a fine of 25 cents.

Mrs. J. I. Thompson played for a sing song led by A. Soper. Miss Margaret Baker and Miss Bette Ryder each sang solos. Art and Don Beamish favored with several musical numbers.

Vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, Max Humphries, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Lynch and his committee for the party.

A Woman Councillor?

Five aldermanic seats become vacant, as usual, at the end of this month. Alderman Hugh Waddell, whose two-year term is expiring, has announced his candidature for the mayoralty, so that there will be at least one new alderman on next year's Council, even should the other retiring four all be nominated and all be re-elected. It would be interesting and probably valuable to the community if a woman were elected to the Council.

In its 101 years of incorporation Peterborough has never had a woman councillor. It is time it did. The women of Peterborough are playing an increasingly important part in the civic life of the community. They have special interests, and a woman representative of those interests would have a special capacity to deal with them. Even in the general sphere of civic administration, the point of view which a woman alderman could bring to the Council and its Committees would have a valid cogency.

Nomination day is the 23rd of this month, three weeks from tomorrow. Positions becoming vacant are: the mayoralty, five aldermanic seats, five memberships on the Board of Education, one on the Utilities Commission. These are posts of important public responsibility and should be filled by the best citizens possible. We hope that the best will make themselves available, that there will be good contests for the seats, and that among the nominees for the Council will be at least one woman.

The End Of British Liberalism

Unless some astonishing and unforeseen shift of emphasis in British thinking revives it, we do not see how the Liberal Party in Britain can continue in existence. It has six members in the new Parliament, and there will be times when their support will mean much to the Government, but that will not ensure the continuance of Liberalism. It seems unlikely that the party will survive another election.

This will cause little grief among Conservatives and Labour. The Liberal Party came into existence as a reform party, and both the principal parties in Britain are convinced that they are parties of reform. The Conservatives have little of the colour of the old Tories, who believed that they were born to rule; they express beliefs now which would have seemed wildly revolutionary to a Tory in 1900; they are committed, in a large measure, to the idea of a welfare state. Labour is committed, of course, to socialism, and it is possible to regard socialism as reform. The disappearance of the middle-of-the-road reform party will not seem important to them; it will merely rid the political arena of a nuisance. Yet with the disappearance of the Liberal party British politics will lose the one element which was committed to a doctrine which we believe to be of great importance.

What did Liberalism stand for? In the words of Ramsay Muir, the political historian, it was "a belief in the value of human personality, and a conviction that the source of all progress lies in the free exercise of individual energy; it produces an eagerness to emancipate all individuals or groups so that they may freely exercise their own powers, so far as this can be done without injury to others; and it therefore involves a readiness to use the power of the State for the purpose of creating the conditions within which individual energy can thrive, of preventing all abuses of power, of affording every citizen the means of acquiring mastery of his own capacities, and of establishing a real equality of opportunity for all." This belief is not compatible with the old Toryism, and we have yet to see whether it can be reconciled to modern Conservatism; it is certainly not compatible with socialism, which gnaws at individualism and economic responsibility.

The basis of Liberalism, however, is not solely a political belief; it is something which lies deep in the thinking of great numbers of people, and it expresses itself in many ways which have no direct connection with politics. It is safe to say, therefore, that it cannot disappear. It can only lose its voice in politics. It seems tragic that this should happen at a time when individualism needs its champion. It may be answered that Mr. Churchill may be relied upon, as a great individualist himself, to further this cause; it is certainly true that Mr. Churchill's individualism took him, for a time, into the ranks of the Liberal party. But Mr. Churchill is mortal, and men like him are rarities.

It is certain that no champions or inheritors of the Liberal spirit will be found in the ranks of Labour politics. Labour lays its emphasis on the mass; Liberalism on the individual. This divergence of approach is at the root of the two beliefs, and nothing can reconcile them.

Nothing but a miracle can save the Liberal party in Britain, and miracles are even rarer in the political world than elsewhere. The disappearance of the specifically Liberal element will leave politics the poorer, but we may hope that it will make a reappearance in one of the other parties—probably the Conservative. It is a thought to make Gladstone turn in his grave.

The Wrong End Of The K.P. Tele-Scope

The prisoners of Kingston Penitentiary produce a magazine called The K.P. Tele-Scope, which is written, edited and printed by inmates of the institution; it is one of the projects by means of which penitentiary officials hope to interest prisoners in a better way of life than the pursuit of crime. For this purpose, the magazine may have some worth. But we have expressed ourself as opposed to the present policy, which seeks subscriptions and circulates this magazine outside the prison walls.

So far as we have seen, we are the only newspaper in Canada to take this stand, and some Kingstonians, within and without the walls, appear to think that we are inhumane and oppressive in so doing. But we see no reason to change our opinion; we do not see why men who have been put in prison for serious crimes should be permitted to create and circulate propaganda for themselves. Their opinions on prison management are undoubtedly of interest to prison officials, but we do not think that such opinions should be circulated to the public, in a magazine which bears, in its list of editors, the names of men who have been implicated in serious crimes against the state and against individuals.

Recently a crime film, The Lavender Hill Mob, was given its first Canadian showing in Kingston Penitentiary; this was a publicity stunt for the movie, and in permitting it we feel that somebody has made a stupid blunder. Show the film in the penitentiary, perhaps; it is good entertainment and the prisoners regularly have movies; but do not make capital of the fact outside the walls, or affront the public with an account of how much the men behind bars laughed to see the police frustrated. That is as good a way as any we can think of to make crime attractive, the police discounted, and penitentiary punishment a joke.

In particular we think that it was indefensible in newspaper accounts of this showing to name certain men who are in the penitentiary for serious crimes. Prisoners should be anonymous, as far as the public outside the prison is concerned. These men are not, as a Toronto journalist said, in prison "for the benefit of society"; they are in prison for their own benefit and for the protection of society, and it behooves society not to forget it.

We have no quarrel with the K.P. Tele-Scope as a prison project. But we object to its use as a telescope through which the public may look at men who are, for excellent reasons, removed from the world, seeing them as much larger and more consequential than they truly are. Nobody wants to revive the severity of an older penal system, but let us not go to the opposite extreme, and look upon inmates of a penitentiary as prankish lads, wonderfully amusing in their attitude toward a good crime film, and uncommonly shrewd in their appraisals of prison authorities and penal methods.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The truce talks in Korea are being held in a circus tent. Easy to fold up and cart away if the show does not pay off.

A Detroit man has been granted a divorce because his wife insisted that her mother's ghost lived in the house with them. Imagine a mother-in-law that you can't even hit with a chair!

A beauty expert says that a good way to reduce large hips is to bang them against the bedroom wall. Why not try roller skating, and bang them on the floor?

We read of a girl who is described as "a magna cum laude grad of Hollywood's school for Bosom development." Her degree is, we presume, the familiar A.B. (Ample Bosom).

A Seattle lumberjack who has celebrated his 106th birthday says "It's tobacco that keeps a man going." Hurrah for somebody who attributes his longevity to something other than early rising, hard work and not eating as much as he wants.

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

Quiet Dictator Of Portugal

By DOUGLAS HYDE

(Ed. Note: Douglas Hyde was formerly News Editor of the Daily Worker who resigned from the Communist Party in 1948.)

A LITTLE seventeen-year-old servant girl in brown frock and starched white cap and apron answered the door when, with a former Portuguese Ambassador to the Court of St. James' to act as my interpreter, I called on Dr. Salazar, Portugal's "dictator", in Lisbon recently.

The guard at the gate had been a little more obviously effective—two plainclothes men and one in uniform—but still not more than one might expect to find outside 10 Downing Street.

We had been warned that, because of another engagement, the President of the Council of Ministers might find it necessary to keep us waiting. In fact, the little girl had only just shown us into a quietly furnished sitting room when a grey-haired man, in a suit of much the same colour, walked quietly in and in an equally quiet voice made us welcome.

QUIET and grey are, I think, the two adjectives most likely to occur to anyone attempting to give an impression of the 63-year-old former economics professor who has led Portugal's authoritarian regime since he introduced it in 1928.

I had thought that the man I had in my Communist past described as the "bloody dictator of a police State" might fall into one of three categories. He might be an aggressive, conceited little Mussolini. He might be a fanatical, messianic little Hitler. More probably, he might be the perhaps equally dangerous type of authoritarian who believes that because he is a daily-Mass-going man, his every act as a politician is as a consequence an Act of God and is, therefore, infallible.

Salazar fits none of those categories. Nor is he the cheery "father-knows-best" sort of dictator.

RATHER, I would say, in so far as his appearance and manner convey his authoritarianism, it is that of a professor who has walked into a noisy lecture room filled with undisciplined students, has restored order by force of personality, and is unobstrusively maintaining it by dint of superior knowledge. As a well-disposed mentor he is there to instruct and guide—but not to be argued with. That strength of personality and intellect was soon revealed as we sat in a softly-lit corner of the large room. I had come with a host of questions on the most diverse subjects of which he had had no warning. But he understands some English and his answers tended to come almost before I had finished asking them yet, far from being superficial, many of his replies revealed deeper shades of meaning when I studied them later.

MY questions on political, social and industrial matters were asked with a view to revealing the direction in which his regime, in this strategically important fringe of West Europe, is travelling rather than to provoking arguments about its undemocratic character which have been sufficiently debated already.

"Does your regime assume that political democracy is entirely unsuited to the Portuguese temperament," I asked, "or are you working towards greater freedom?"

He replied: "If you limit your interpretation of democracy to the English variety than I do not think it is adaptable to Portugal today both on account of the level of education of our people and the temperament of the Portuguese."

He smiled when I told him that many English people genuinely believed his to be a police State. "That is an absurdity," he said. "Public liberties are dependent on the will of the people. The life and activities of our people are not regulated by the police."

He threw some light on what he meant when I asked him whether his aim was to move towards the establishment of free institutions.

"Certainly," he said. "We are developing them already. Political liberty is a healthy manifestation, a sign of social health. Portugal was politically and socially sick when I took over. As social health improves so liberty will be increased."

He went on to remind me of his country's almost farcical attempt to practice democracy under the Republic which had led to a revolution every few months over a period of years.

I PASSED him a copy of the Cominform journal (probably one of the very few to be taken openly into his country) and drew his attention to an item which claimed that 40,000 people in various towns of Portugal had recently signed the Communist "peace" petition for a five-power pact.

He was, he said, aware that this had happened and thought it quite possible that the number stated was correct. Nowhere did people feel more strongly for peace than in Portugal, the more so because he had followed a policy of neutrality in the last war. So when the peace petition appeared the people signed it because they wanted peace.

Then the Government discovered what was happening, warning the people through the papers that this was a Communist petition. Because of the deep hostility to Communism they at once stopped signing when they understood the character of the campaign. No further action was required. "There", he said "is an example of the growing liberty based on understanding which I have mentioned".

TO give him an opportunity further to clarify his views on the role of the State, I asked if he agreed that, where possible, the emphasis in responsibility should be away from the State and towards the individual. He replied that the State should intervene only when people themselves were incapable of organizing satisfactorily among themselves. "Personal happiness cannot be created by the State, it is a private thing. But the State can help to create a situation in which it becomes possible—and that is what we are trying to do".

Turning to international affairs, I asked him whether he considered that Portugal has any distinctive role to play in the defence of the West.

"We are members of the various Western defence bodies", he said, "and we know what we have gone in for and will put our pledges into practice. We are conscious of our responsibilities and of the importance of our geographical position for defence. By virtue of that geographical position and also because we long ago recognized the true character of the enemy and dealt with him effectively here, we have our own important contribution to make".

The Portuguese claim to have ideal relations with the people in their colonies both in Asia and in Africa. Certainly there is abundant evidence in Lisbon itself of the total absence of any colour bar and of a feeling of genuine equality on the part of coloured people there.

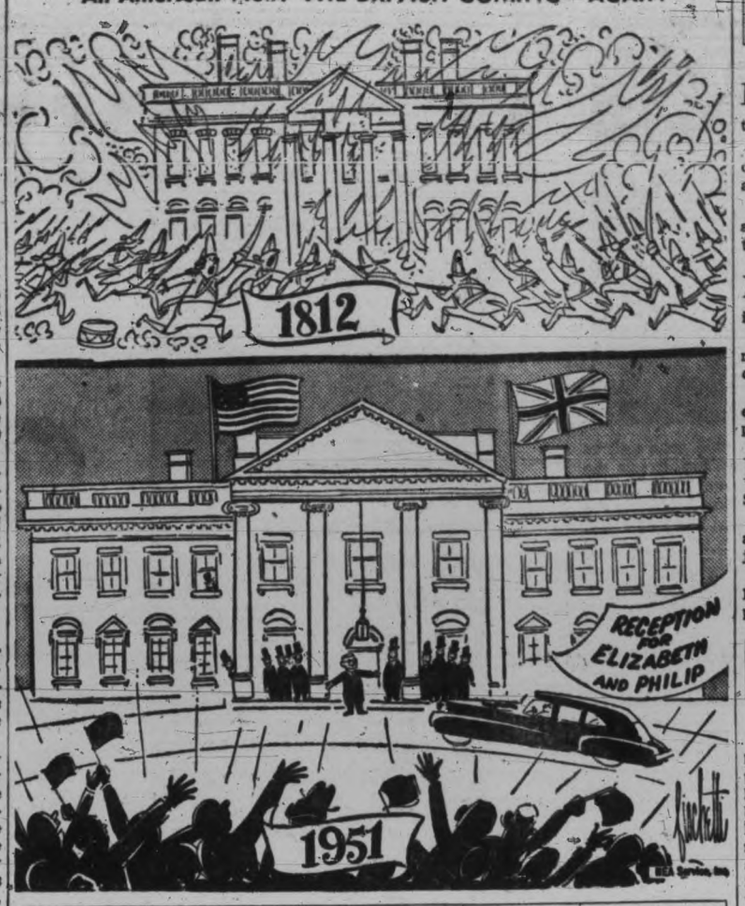
I TOLD him that never at any time anywhere, in England or elsewhere in Europe had I seen so much new building as there is in Lisbon today. He replied that they had had to begin where the problem was biggest and most urgent, but that they were now attempting the same thing on a reduced scale in the rural areas.



At Bairroda Quinta da Covialeira, in what remains of old Lisbon, and which I visited with an independent social welfare worker, one can see slums in which live 1,050 people. They are as bad as could be found anywhere, but they are the last of that sort left in the capital.

Hundreds of enormous blocks of flats and the new suburbs built on the community principle, with avenues of villas leading from centres composed of schools, creche, recreation ground, wash-houses, welfare centre and church, bear testimony to the quality and quantity of the work of reconstruction.

Under its benevolent dictator, Portugal is rebuilding and developing. There is nothing static about his regime, which undoubtedly has the support of the overwhelming majority of his people.

An American View: THE BRITISH COMING—AGAIN

Press Opinion On U.K. Elections

NEW YORK TIMES

Churchill is another veteran for British history, one whose figure will forever dominate the first half of the twentieth century, as Gladstone's did the previous half century.

This time there is no glamorous, dashing Disraeli to share the honors, only the fine and worthy spirit of Clement Attlee. Now that the quiet and able Attlee crosses the floor of the House of Commons to the Opposition benches, it would be niggardly to deny him, too, his tribute of greatness. He will rank high in the list of British Prime Ministers, with an especially shining mark for the independence of India. We will still be hearing from Clement Attlee, but the homely voice of "Ernie" Bevin is gone, and gone, too, is the gaunt, Puritanical figure of Stafford Cripps, too ill to resume politics. They served their country well in six trying years.

How strange it is, and how poignant, that those two "grand old men," Gladstone and Churchill, should link their hands across the pages of British history! It was Gladstone's last Liberal Government of 1800-85 that plunged deeply into the Egyptian morass and paved the way for British dominance. It was Churchill who, in 1898, the year of Gladstone's death, rode in the famous charge of the Twenty-first Lancers at Omdurman in the Sudan, breaking the tryanny of the Dervishes and clearing the way for the Anglo-Egyptian condominium. It is Winston Churchill, fifty-three years later, His Majesty's Prime Minister, who must grapple with the consequences of those imperialist days and face an embattled and embittered Egypt.

From then until now the majestic roll of twentieth century history has unfolded before his eyes. He lived it; he made it, and at 77 the firm old hand has picked up the pen again to add new lines to British history. We Americans, who hung upon his words in the dark days of "blood, toil, tears and sweat," who fought by his side in the glorious tide of victory, who felt a pang when the British electorate unceremoniously drove him from power in 1945, today join heartily in the chorus of congratulations. The victory was well won and well deserved.

WINDSOR STAR

If there was a surprise in yesterday's vote, it was how the people stuck to Labour despite the deprivations they endured under its rule. Labour held its strongholds. The seats it lost by relatively small margins, and appear accounted for partly by the Liberal vote going Conservative.

Labour still is a powerful force. In opposition it will have time to regain its strength, to threaten again at the next elections. It will be beset by internal disputes, between the moderate element led by Rt. Hon. Clement R. Attlee and the extreme wing under Mr. Bevan. It will be noted Mr. Bevan and his supporters secured re-election. If he wins the leadership, and the Conservatives fail to bring Britain out of its troubles, socialism may become more rampant than ever before. The British people have won a reprieve from socialism. They haven't destroyed its basic strength.

MONTREAL GAZETTE

Many massive troubles underlie Britain's position, no matter who is in power. Mr. Churchill himself would be the first to admit it. But he has drawn on the deeper wisdom that this troublous world is not an inconvenient accident of the 20th century. It is the condition of life itself. As he has said, "life is a test and this world a place of trial. Always the problems, or it may be the same problem, will be presented to every generation in different forms."

But it is the very heart of the Churchillian philosophy that this fact should not lead to despair, nor flight, nor to the easy trick of bearing false witness against one's neighbor. There is an even deeper truth—that character is fate.

KITCHENER-WATERLOO RECORD

The margin of seats won by Churchill's supporters is too slim to risk much interference with nationalization set-ups and other programs introduced by the Socialists during their rule. Apparently Mr. Churchill doesn't intend to unscramble the omelet. However, the Conservatives promised to return the steel industry to private ownership and call a halt to further state ownership.

The defeat of the Attlee administration was by no means devastating. The members of his cabinet were re-elected and Labour polled a slightly higher popular vote than the Conservatives. It was the floating vote that defeated Attlee with the Liberals contesting comparatively few seats. An analysis of the election figures indicate about two out of every three Liberals voted for Churchill's party.

MONTREAL STAR

Demands will be made on Mr. Churchill's statesmanship of a new and onerous kind. He has been used in power to speak with a vast majority behind him. It was this which lent such weight to his war leadership. He was in very truth the spokesman of the nation. Tomorrow's task is to achieve the same vital role in circumstances of extraordinary political balance at home. If any man can do it, it is he.

✧ ✧ ✧

ST. CATHARINES STANDARD

Looking back through British electoral history, this majority is seen to be one of the slimmest. The last Labour government, of course, had a scant majority of six votes, while the record is taken by a Whig government in 1847 which had a majority of one vote. It still managed to stay in power for five years. Twice in history, in 1923 and 1929, there was a Labour government with no overall majority but which managed to stay in power with Liberal support. Greatest majority was that of the National government formed in 1931, which had a 425-seat margin.

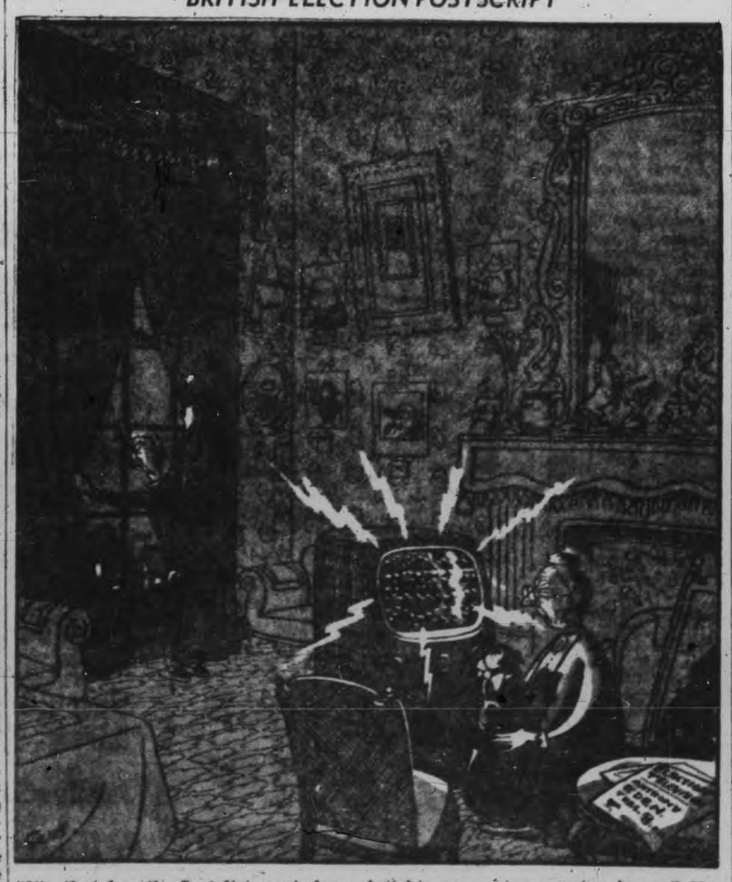
TORONTO STAR



The Conversatives have evidently won a victory in the British elections, not so much because of a falling away in Labour support, but by reason of the absence of Liberal candidates in most constituencies, with a consequent transfer of Liberal votes to the Conservatives; though why Liberals should prefer a Conservative regime to a Labour one is not clear.

BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR

The hope is that the new Government will be able to unite and inspire the great majority of the people, party stripes altogether aside, as was done in the days of the Second World War. For a war is assuredly on now, and only the firmest resolution and the most masterly statesmanship can prevent it from flaming into global proportions. To prevent such a tragedy is, beyond question, the desire of Conservatives, Socialists and Liberals alike. While in Opposition, the Conservatives, though critical of method, were scrupulously careful not to unduly embarrass the Socialists, much less imperil the nation, by causing divisions on foreign policy. It can be expected that, now the parts are reversed, the Socialsist will show similarly wise restraint. Even with these provisions, however, the road ahead will not be an easy one to travel.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well; whose branches run over the wall: the archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him, but his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob; (from thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel:) . . . The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the utmost bound of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren. (Gen. 49: 22-24, 26.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies. (Ps. 27: 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Draw me not away with the wicked, and with the workers of iniquity, which speak peace to their neighbours, but mischief is in their hearts. . . .

Blessed be the Lord, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications. The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him. . . .

Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: feed them also, and lift them up for ever. (Ps. 28: 3, 6, 7, 9.)

Criticize War Office

LONDON, Nov. 1—(Reuters)—A shoemakers' trade paper Wednesday blasted the War Office for issuing British troops in Korea with 11-year-old winter boots which "fell to pieces" after a few weeks in action last year. CWL Buys P.A System For Marmora Church

MARMORA, Nov. 1—(ENS)—October meeting of the Catholic Women's League took the form of a quilting and pot luck dinner in Sacred Heart hall on Tuesday, with the president, Mrs. Charles Cook, presiding.

Following the correspondence read by the secretary, Mrs. Ed. Warren, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. J. O'Neil.

The president advised that the p.a. system in the church and hall and the stage curtains for the hall had been paid for, totalling $572.

Mrs. Hugh Brady and Mrs. J. A. Shannon volunteered to visit the sick and shut-ins for the months of November. Group 7 was asked to provide the lunch for the November meeting. The members were asked to bring articles for packing a box to be sent to our lady missionaries and also used cotton goods for bandages for the leper colony.

The president advised that gifts had been sent to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shannon and Mr. and Mrs. S. Bertrand on the occasions of their golden wedding anniversary. The president thanked the members for their contribution of aprons, plants, and other articles to the fancy goods booth at the bazaar, and also for their assistance and cooperation during the bazaar.

A discussion was held and it was decided the objective for the coming year would be to pay for 100 chairs for the new parish hall.

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill then addressed the meeting thanking the ladies for their efforts and assistance during the past year and asked them to undertake the drive again this year for subscriptions to the Canadian Register. Lists of subscribers were handed to group leaders for canvassing. Father O'Neill commended the League for the resolutions passed at the National Convention in Ottawa, regarding some radio broadcasts, on religious subjects.

Mrs. Hugh Brady sang "Our Lady of Fatima" and "Mother, At Thy Feet is Kneeling", with Mrs. J. Black at the piano.

Mrs. J. Black gave a humorous reading entitled "Case of the missing Salads".

After a few games were played, lunch was served by the leader of Group 8.

Work On Basic French

PARIS, Nov. 1—(AP)—Education Minister Andre Marie Wednesday made available funds for language experts to work on a 1,000-word vocabulary of basic French, similar to the already existing basic English. SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Like the fictional Sam McGee from Tennessee, husky Toar Morgan of that state left his home in the south to roam — and he has finally decided to settle in Lindsay. The big pro grappler left there last spring to return to Tennessee to live, but he's back again. Told us the other eve that he'd tried them all, from the deep South to Alaska, with short residential stays in California and Vancouver. "But I like it best up in this district," Morgan said. The fact that his wife hails from Lindsay may be a contributing factor, too. He was arena manager in Lindsay last year for a time and he loves his hockey. Gets all worked up at a junior, intermediate or senior "B" OHA tilt around these parts.

* * * * * *

Four bantam clubs are in the PMHA: M. Doherty's SPS squad, George Heron's Otonabee Wolves, Empress Rangers coached by Arnold Olmstead, and Trojans, sponsored by D. A. McGillis and handled by Jack Byers. In midget are: Martin-Hewitt with Angus Bradley manager and Joe Rochetta coach, Al Watkins' Marines, Ed. Woodcock's Trojans and Matt Doherty's St. Peter's. Four juves, also: Lakefield Lions under Wes Graham, IOOF under Manager Jim Foskett and Coach Jim Munroe, F. Lundy's crew of Ashby-Trojans, and Outboard Marines handled by Al Watkins. Likely four peewees soon, as well. Other applications are held up since ice time does not appear available for all.

Down On Quinte's Shores

Not much line yet on the two Kingston entries in our OHA senior "B" setup. Coach Red Doran of the senior and junior clubs in Bella Villa is working his charges hard. Don Dougall of Kingston, formerly of the Scottish League, has been working out in the Hawks' net. He once was with St. Mike's and later played for Troy, Mich. Incidentally, Joe Nolan is with Toledo now. Vern Goyer, Keith MacDonald and Jerry Moher make up one Quinte line; Junior Barrett, Jerry Desjardins and Pete Jones another; Doran, Doug Day and Jack Wardhaugh comprising the third. Bastedo, Graham, Schreider and Semark are on defence. Belleville lost out to Nylons in group finals last semester.

* * * * * *

As for the Belleville Rockets, who play in our junior "B" group Doran has some promising talent. Four lines to pick from at present, with DeGray (late of Oshawa), Therrien and Gilmour on one; Mason, Carey and Duke Doran another; Hec Lalonde, Strahan and Jacklin a third; and Hulle, Hunter and Hull make an "H" line for the fourth. Six husky defencemen so far: Wilson, Munroe, Pete and Harry Green, Stevens and Jerry Goyer. Good Quinte monickers, Goyers and Greens. Chicago Hawks take more than a passing interest in this club — same as Bruins with the Oddfellows — so some of these youngsters are likely pro prospects. The Rockets are planning an exhibition tilt with a Toronto team ere the schedule commences.

Eagles Getting Lined Up

Coach Ned Vitarelli of the Eagles is still carrying about two dozen prospective players until this weekend. They drill at 7.15 Friday eve and at seven p.m. Nov. 4. Team definitely picked then. All of last year's players are signed again except Coombs and Burns of Lindsay, and Parnall and Godfrey, who have retired as players. Three of their four imports are: Buck Legrow, with Port Hope last semester; George Brabin, former Oshawa junior star—who played ball here last summer; and Jim Milne, one-time junior goalie from the Motor City and later a player in Western Canada. He and Ross Nicholls are the club's net-minders. Several prospects are battling for that other import berth. Andy Milne is still on the Eagles' list. They await word, too, on a Petes' release for Honey Tompkins. But more again.

* * * * * *

Downing Ryerson Tech 34-6 the other day in Oshawa, the Red Raiders climbed into first place in their ORFU grid standing o'er Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts. 'Twas a four-pointer. Ghosts play Orillia Terriers in the lakeshore town Saturday and a win for the homesters would sew up the race and force Cobourg and Oshawa to settle it with that postponed clash betwixt these teams in Oshawa next Tuesday. Winner goes into provincial "A" playdowns while the loser takes the "B" trail. Eastern "A" champs meet Hamilton Panthers for the right to enter Canadian playdowns. Local Orfuns, out of the running now, have agreed to a weekend benefit game in Hamilton against these Panthers for the family of the late Angelo Cicero, young player who died of injuries after a match earlier in the season.

Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., winner of the Boston marathon, came from behind to win the annual 19-mile round-the-bay road race at Hamilton 10 years ago today. Cote nipped Ab Morton of Galt at the wire to win by a few seconds, covering the distance in one hour, 52 minutes, 20 seconds.

Roy Campanella Named Best Player

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP). — Roy Campanella will always remember 1951.

Throughout the year the husky, hard-hitting catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers was hampered by injuries, but now Campanella has reaped the fruits of his labors. He was named Wednesday as the National League's most valuable player for the past season by a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The 29-year-old Dodger star collected 243 points out of a possible 336 to win in a breeze. Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, winning his fifth batting title with a .355 average finished second with 191 points. Points were awarded on 14 for first place vote, nine for second and so on down to one for tenth.

Campanella, reached in Houston where his all-star exhibition team is stopping, was surprised when informed that he had won the award.

"I had forgotten all about that award," he said. "After we were beaten in the playoff by the New York Giants, I just didn't think about it any more."

Happy at News

"I surely am happy about it now. I gave my best and I surely am grateful to the Baseball Writers' Association for voting me in."

Campanella, informed that he probably would receive the award at a banquet said, "Gosh, that means I probably will have to wear a Tuxedo and I don't own one."

The well-liked receiver's injury string began last January when an oil-burner in his home exploded and nearly blinded him. Campanella suffered a slight fracture of his right thumb during spring training.

During the season he was spiked on the hand, had arm trouble and was hit on the head by a pitched ball by Chicago's Turk Lown. On the final day of the regular season Campanella pulled a muscle in his left thigh and caught only the first of the three playoff games against the Giants.

Despite these injuries Campanella played in 140 games. He batted .325, fourth highest in the league, drove in 108 runs and poled 33 home runs.

2 Strong Teams For Lindsay Fans

LINDSAY, Nov. 1—Two strong hockey clubs will be vying for fan attention in this town this winter.

Former Chicago Black Hawk, William (Red) Mitchell is again guiding the Kin Juniors, pennant contenders of the strong Central Ontario "B" league, while former Peterborough senior, Al Burns, is the new playing coach of the revitalized intermediate "A" Muskies.

The Bertlett-Jackson-sponsored Muskies have been drawing most of the comments since their opening exhibition win over the senior Peterborough Petes.

Heading the new deal Muskies is their new line of Sixty Coombs, from Peterborough Eagles, and two youngsters from Omemee's ORHA intermediate champions, centre Bill Parker and left winger Orlie Crawford. Joining 13 other former juniors are Vic Corley, Herb Baker and Grant Green from the Kinsmen. Back from last year are Bob Lewis, Mike Burns, Guffer Abercombie, goalie Mucker O'Connell, Lou Hennessy, Jumbo Jenkins, Mac Ellis and Murray Davis. Newcomers include netminder Jim Naylor, just out of the RCN; defenceman Stu Hicks, from Little Britain; Cal Blake, Port Hope, and Slim Donahue, Peterborough. The club will play a home-and-home series with Stouffville next week.

The Doug Powell-Ken Schinkel-Murray MacDonald line is expected to carry the mail for Mitchell's Kin Kids. MacDonald is one of the new players, along with Al Smith, also of Newmarket, and Hugh Cameron of Woodville.

Returnees include Dave Lucas, Downeyville; Wally Shervington, Toronto; Norm Dysart, Ceasarea; Gary Vasey, Minden; Bruce Hall, Hamilton; Perk Foshay, Lindsay. Up from last year's Ontario midget "B" champs are promising goalkeeper Reg Truax, Bill Burns, Conny O'Neill and Bill Williams. The team will test its strength against Unionville junior "B" Jets here Saturday, and hope to have at least two more imports to strengthen the defence corps.

AMERICAN SWIMMING CHAMPIONS, Ellen Richard and Connie Todoroff (left to right), United States duet champions in the 1951 synchronized swimming, will be performing Saturday night at the YMCA. Members of the US team champions and winners of the Quebec provincial championship, the Detroit swimmers will be part of a program of international swimming at the international synchronized swimming conference in Peterborough this weekend.

Top Swimmers Coming For Conference

Synchronized swimming clubs from the United States and Canada will be attending an international synchronized swimming conference this weekend in the public library, the YMCA and the YWCA. After the conference in Peterborough two years ago, the American and Canadian clubs requested it again in the city this year.

Swimmers, champions from both countries including Olympic representatives, will be attending from Detroit, Cleveland, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Toronto, Montreal, London and other centres. In co-operation with the Dominion Amateur Swimming Association and the American Amateur Athletic Union, the Peterborough synchronized swimming club is sponsoring the conference.

Opens Saturday

The conference will open Saturday morning at nine when Mayor M. J. Swanston and James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will welcome the swimmers to Peterborough.

After the reception at the public library, chairmen from both countries, Mary Derosier, of synchronized swimming for the AAU, and Mrs. C. R. Seller, Montreal, of the Dominion association, will lead a discussion in rules and regulations. New rules and figures will be introduced.

From one pm until 2:30 at the YWCA, the swimmers will actually see the new figures performed by United States and Canadian champions.

Moves To YMCA

The conference will then be held at the YMCA where Jane Houghton, Detroit, vice-chairman of the US committee, will speak on "Showmanship" and Beulah Gundling, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on "How to Put Routines Together".

Peterborough club members will serve supper at the YMCA at five pm, arranging also special entertainment by city talent.

After a demonstration of strokes and figures, the conference will be opened to the public at eight pm in the YMCA pool where the international champions will perform.

These will include routines by Beulah Gundling, the US national outdoor champion, Joan Orser, Montreal, Canadian champion, and by Connie and Ellen Richard, Detroit, US duet champions in both indoor and outdoor swimming this year.

SPS Seniors Beat Whitby For Fourth Win In a Row

Johnny Lynch's St. Peter's senior Saints romped easily through Whitby High 31-5 in the lakeshore city Wednesday for their fourth straight exhibition win this season.

This game was in preparation for the challenge game with St. Michael's College this Sunday in Toronto in a best-of-three affair with the Saints one up.

Against Whitby, the Saints featured the plunging of Carl Brioux, the passing of Jack Richardson and the receiving of Frank Farley. Some junior Saints helped round out the team and matched the senior "B" crew of Whitby throughout the game.

Brioux was on top of Whitby with his driving dashes into the line and probably turned in his best game in the four starts although he has starred in each previously. He easily outmarched Whitby's Beckman and Irwin.

Good Passing

Jack Richardson began to take to the air and was successful for the whole 60 minutes. An example of his air power over Whitby were two passes to Frank Farley for 35 yards and another for 40.

Early in the first Richardson opened with his first 35-yard toss but the drive fell short. Before the quarter ended, he unwrapped a second 35-yarder to Farley which placed the ball on the one-yard line. Brioux plunged across and the extra point attempt was good.

From that kickoff John Jones gathered in the ball and ran it back for 20 yards. On the next play he dashed 50 yards for the second touchdown which went unconverted.

Here Whitby took over on the strength of Irwin's plunging until finally he crossed over for the major score. On the last play of the first quarter Tom Cavanagh scooped up a Whitby fumble for the touchdown.

Held Better

Whitby began to hold in the second quarter with Beckman, the quarterback, running, and Archibald kicking. Sullivan, Clarke, Hickson and Taylor were standouts along the line with Brioux and Richardson well on the offensive and Laverne, Jones and John Armstrong strong on the defence.

Whitby continued to hold until the final three minutes of the third quarter when the Saints' line outbattled Whitby, making holes for the Brioux plunging. Brioux scored again to make it read 22-5.

Whitby collapsed early in the fourth quarter after Richardson jogged 30 yards on a quarterback sneak. He promptly passed to Cavanagh, followed up by an end run by Bob O'Rourke and plunges by Brioux. Again Brioux scored and the extra point was good for 28-5 score. With slightly more than a minute to go Richardson topped off a good afternoon of kicking with a field goal for three points.

J. D. Fitzpatrick Elected Lawn Bowling Prexy With Don Anderson VP

By HERB MARTIN

J. D. Fitzpatrick was elected president of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club at the first meeting of the new board of directors held on Tuesday evening. Don Anderson is vice-president and F. H. Dearaborn again secretary-treasurer.

In choosing "JD" for president, the board picked a man who has had an abundance of experience over a great number of years. Over 25 years ago he joined the club, at that time situated at the corner of Aylmer and Brock Sts. He, with others was instrumental in building the present clubhouse and greens. In 1931 he was first elected president and then again in 1932 the same honor was bestowed upon him. Now after 10 years he has once again been called upon to fill that important post.

Widely Known

Not only is "Fitz" well and favorably known locally but he is well known all over the province, having taken part in tournaments from London to Ottawa. He is a capable executive and he knows all the answers when it comes to lawn bowling. Evidence of this is in the clubhouse where one may see his name engraved on many trophies.

A few years ago he supervised the converting of the old tennis court into what is now known as green No. 3.

He holds an honorary life membership in the club.

His Second Year

Don Anderson as vice-president is serving his second year as a member of the board, but has already shown that he is willing to do his share. Last year he was co-chairman of the games committee.

The secretary-treasurer, F. H. Dearborn, has held this office for several years and was the choice of the board again. He is a hard-working official and popular with all members.

The new board will meet from time to time during the winter months to study the ways and means to keep this sport successful and flourishing.

The matter of choosing committee chairmen was left over until the next meeting.

Chide Deer Hunters For Being Gentlemen Should Shoot Does Federation Declares

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) —Deer hunters are gentlemen, they won't shoot a lady deer, and that's bad, says the National Wildlife Federation.

The idea that it's not the thing to shoot a doe has "resulted in more waste venison and over-browsed forests than any other factor in big game management," the Federation said in a statement today.

The don't-do-in-a-doe idea is a "deeply ingrained idea, amounting almost to a superstition," the Federation continued, taking a dim view of the misguided chivalry.

The National Federation, a non-governmental group, claims a membership of 4,000,000 sportsmen and conservationists and is affiliated with 42 state wildlife federations.

"In Wisconsin for example," said the Federation, "teeming herds of whitetails did almost irreparable damage to the range year after year while sportsmen shouted down all suggestions that they must start shooting females in order to check the increase. They thinned out the bucks every fall but the does kept on having fawns."

The buck law—shooting only male deer — is all right for starting small herds, but continued too long is wasteful and biologically unsound, the conservation group contends.

Richard Villain As Leafs Whip Habs 1-0 In Bitterly-Fought Game

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

There were no spirits or men with funny faces dashing up and down Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens ice Wednesday night. But there was a real Hallowe'en hassle between Montreal Canadiens' long-suffering Maurice Richard and most of the 13,175 paying customers.

Probably 99 per cent of the crowd went to the Gardens prepared to give the Rocket a big cheer if he scored his 300th National Hockey League goal, but instead he drew the boos as the Leafs out-skated — but didn't outfight — the Habitants from Montreal by a 1-0 count. Richard stood out like a pall-bearer wearing a crimson tie.

It was the only NHL game on the schedule and the two teams get another crack at each other in Montreal tonight in what promises to be the best on the three-game card with the Rangers-Chicago and Boston-Detroit contests merely preliminaries.

Defenceman Hugh Bolton's first goal of the season at 14:46 of the opening period was incidental to the proceedings. But it was enough to win the game and send Leafs ahead of Chicago into third place, just one point behind the Canadiens.

It was the Rocket's night, sparked by a rail-seat fan who quipped out loud as Maurice skated past: "Haw, haw, the great Richard." Richard brought his stick down on the boards in front of the spectator, threatened to do it again his next time out and made threatening gestures with his stick at the same spot after the final whistle.

Spark To Dynamite

As usual, the classy right-winger was shadowed most of the night by guys in Leaf uniforms and this, with the spectator's sarcastic remark, was akin to waving a red flag in front of a bull.

The game was one of those slam-bang affairs. Twelve penalties were called—seven to Canadiens, including a major to Ross Lowe for high-sticking—but the high sticks, mixed in with a few elbows and knees and hard-thumping body checks were flying most of the time.

Richard, who now has scored 299 goals since he came to the big time in 1942-43, hadn't much chance Wednesday night to join Poison Neis Stewart as the only player to hit the 300-mark in the 24-year history of the NHL. Stewart scored his over a 15-year stretch long before the schedule ballooned to the 50 and 60 game season.

The Rocket had two good chances early in the game but the shackles were put on him by close-checking Leafs and he wasn't able to break loose after that for clear shots at goalkeeper Al Rollins.

The Leafs, who have shown a decided goal-getting weakness this season compared to their performance in 1950-51, were turned back by goalie Gerry McNeil in the Montreal nets, a star of the night. He was particularly brilliant in the second period during the five minutes Lowe was off as Toronto power plays kept the puck in Canadien territory.

Flyers Score Hat Trick Again

By The Associated Press.

The three-goal "hat trick" supposedly a rarity, is being performed frequently in the American Hockey League this year.

Glen Sonmor of St. Louis Flyers, turned the trick for the 10th time as the Flyers beat the Syracuse Warriors, 5-1, Wednesday night. Last year at this stage the feat had been performed only four times.

Sonmor tallied once in the opening period and twice in the second when the Flyers wrapped it up with four goals. Armand Lemieux spoiled goalie Red Almas' shutout bid with a third-period goal.

In other games, the Hershey Bears downed the Providence Reds 4-1 and the Cincinnati Mohawks defeated Indianapolis 2-0.

Rookies Real Chevrefils and Leo Labine scored two goals each to lead Hershey to victory. Ken Davies scored the lone Red goal.

Emil (The Cat) Francis made 27 saves in blanking Indianapolis. Ian MacKintosh and rookie Herb Dickenson scored for the Mohawks.

GEOFF CRAIN, McGill's triple-threat ace, shown in punting pose, has been playing an outstanding role in McGill's senior football action this season. The starry quarterback, who also is quite a passer, is rated the steadiest booter in the circuit on his showing so far and also boasts a good record for running back kicks. He'll be calling the plays in Montreal this Saturday against Queen's.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Ivor Wynne, athletic director of McMaster University, said on Wednesday at Hamilton he thinks the chances of his Marauders football were enhanced by the team's showing in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior loop this year.

He denied that his team had talked of withdrawing from the ORFU.

"If we are turned down in our bid for admittance to the intercollegiate loop then we may be very happy to continue in the ORFU," he said. "It will have to be discussed by the athletic board of directors."

Wynne said he was convinced that a five-team intercollegiate league would be workable although other teams in the league "might have to put up with some inconveniences."

At Montreal, Jack Gelineau, deposed goalkeeper of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, said in an interview on Wednesday night he expects to return to hockey on a part-time basis with Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

The 27-year-old net-minder won the Calder Trophy in 1949-50 is the outstanding rookie in the NHL. Belineau was dropped by the Bruins this season. He attended training camp at Hershey but returned to his Montreal home after refusing to sign a contract following salary differences.

Edmonton Eskimos, working just hard enough to keep their "edge," will be ready with some new plays for their western Canada football final against quarterback Glenn Hobbs and the rest of the Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday night.

The new plays could be what the Eskimos need to beat the highly-touted Riders. They didn't use them in beating Winnipeg Blue Bombers 4-1 in the sudden-death semi-final last Saturday.

"We had them for Winnipeg—but didn't use them—why I don't know," says Stukus.

The weather outlook indicates Saturday night's game will be played in clear weather and on a dry field. Edmonton's high yesterway was 15 above.

At Montreal, Myer Insky, president of the Canadian Rugby Union announced Wednesday that five officials will be in uniform for the Grey Cup game at Toronto Nov. 24.

Insky said rule changes and the growing importance of the 10-yard blocking plays had increased the load of the officiating staff to the point it was decided five instead of the usual four should be on duty in the Dominion title game. Insky said a sixth official would also be dressed in case of extra duties along the touchlines.

Rumors of a rebirth of baseball in Newark were brought to a head Wednesday after a visit by Louis Baselice, former minor league operator in New York State. Baselice Tuesday looked over Ruppert Stadium, home of the International League Bears until two years ago. He was accompanied by Frank J. Shaughnessy, president of the IL, and Wilbur Crelin, onetime business manager of the Bears.

Baselice said he has been dickering with New York Giants for its Ottawa franchise with the idea of moving the club back to Newark as an independent IL entry.

E. Downer Rolls 392

E. Downer led the way this week in the Major Bowling League at Playfair with a high single of 392 and top trio of 848. UEW led teams with pinnage of 3433 as Bickell's rolled best single game of 1261. Six points each were taken by Bickell's, Odeon, Herb's, Stude Champs and UEW over Clapper's, Examiner, Wonder, Brewers and B & E in that order. Others were 4-2 wins for Crowley, Darling's, Selkirk, Campbell, Lillian's, Mowry, Kawartha, Wood and Kingsmen.

Good scores included: T. Collins 827, R. Bennett Jr. (321) 791, H. Correll 782, G. Walton (308) 782, L. Holden (334) 780, C. Signoretti 756, A. Whiteside 754, A. Pilling 750, A. McPhee 749, A. Basciano 735, A. Woodcock 728, Jake Wade 722, B. Corrigan 720, J. Barnes 718, A. Hunter 705. V. Ferguson 703 and H. Legrow a single of 322.

Planning Floodlights

LINDSAY, Nov. 1 — A committee, headed by recently-elected president Bob Chapman, to promote floodlights for the local baseball stadium was set up at the annual meeting of the Lindsay Baseball Stadium.

Backing up president Chapman the 1951-52 executive is honorary president Col. R. I. Moore; past president Lou Walker; first vice-president Andy Widdis; second vice-president Herb McFadden; secretary-treasurer Lloyd Burrows; finance chairman Orland McGill.

Appointed to the executive committee were Clarke Endicott, Rod McEachern, Bob Henry, Les Hart, Hank Debois, Jim McTaggart, Norm Mark, Father C. R. Kav and Dr. W. R. Crowe.

The association officially indicated that they hope to obtain floodlights for night ball for 1952 or 1953. Reports showed that during the past season $3,248 was spent on improving the stadium where some 11,888 fans attended 47 events.

Prepare New System For Ticket Repeaters

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Police here are preparing a new system of traffic tickets aimed at dealing sternly with "repeaters."

Traffic Engineer Robert Burton told the civic works committee Wednesday night that the plan calls for the police to keep close track of all traffic tickets, including parking tickets which generally cost errant motorists $2 to $5. Repeaters will be liable to higher fines than first offenders.

However, the committee rejected for the time being a suggestion that maximum fines for infractions of the traffic bylaw be raised to $25 for the first offence and $50 for each subsequent infraction.

LONDON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Britain's ambassador to Iran arrived home Wednesday night to talk things over with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. A settlement of the Iranian oil dispute now depends on events in Washington, Sir Francis Shepperd told reporters at London airport.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 1 — (AP)—President Laureano Gomez notified the senate Wednesday night that he is temporarily leaving the presidency because of ill health.

Me Or I Becomes International Problem Ottawa Version Wrong In Princess' Speech

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP). —The difference between "me" and "I" became a matter of international concern because the words were put down for a Princess to address to a President.

The first sentence of a prepared text of a greeting of Princess Elizabeth to President Truman read, as originally released:

"It is a great pleasure, Mr. President, for my husband and I to be visiting you here in Washington."

Upon receiving the text, reporters asked the Canadian Embassy press officer who had handled the release whether it should not read "for my husband and me."

The greeting supplied to the embassy from Ottawa had already been questioned by embassy press officers regarding its correctness and it had been confirmed.

Further inquiry by reporters, however, focused so much attention on the grammar that finally the embassy decided to correct the phrase to "for my husband and me." And that's the way the Princess said it.

Press Officer Robert Dunn said: "I'm sure the Princess would have used the correct word, anyway."

Ratifies Plan

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Nov. 1—(AP)—Holland has become the first country to ratify the Schuman Plan for pooling West Europe's coal and steel resources. Parliament's lower house voted approval 62 to 6 Wednesday night.

Study Coal Seams

GLACE BAY, N. S., — (CP)— Continuing study is being conducted into the compostion of coal seams in the historic Cape Breton mining area, said Dr. P. A. Hacquebard of Sydney, speaker at a local meeting. The Federal and Provincial governments jointly conduct the geological surveys.

Indians Scalp Dutchmen 6-2; Toronto Marlies Wallop Spitfires 11-1

By The Canadian Press.

Opportunist. That is about as good a word as any for Jack Thaler of the Stratford Indians.

The speedy right winger scored four goals for the Indians as they scalped the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 6-2 in the lone Ontario Association Senior A league tilt played Wednesday night.

Reg Hamilton's Toronto Marlboros, yet to be beaten in OHA Junior A league play, put on an impressive display by trouncing the basement-ridden Windsor Spitfires 11-11 in Windsor.

The win placed Marlies in a first-place tie with Guelph Biltmores. Spits maintain their tenacious hold on last place.

In the only other action in the junior circuit Wednesday night, Barrie Flyers, sparked by goalie Lorne Howes, blanked fifth-place Toronto St. Michael's 4-0. Flyers' triumph moved them into a sixth-place tie with St. Catharines Teepees.

Penalties Costly

Penalties, as well as Thaler, proved to be the Dutchmen's downfall. Three of the Indians' goals were scored with the opposition shorthanded.

Don Heinbuch and George Aitken fired the other Stratford tallies with Maurice Levesque and Jack Wallis scoring for Kitchener.

Stratford moved into a three-way tie for top place in the Senior A standings by virtue of their win.

Four Marlboros fattened their scoring averages Wednesday night at the expense of Windsor goalie Riggin: Jack Lumley, three goals, one assist; Dan Poland, two goals and four assists; Eric Nesterenko, two goals and three assists; and Parker MacDonald with two goals and an assist.

Ron Stewart and Bill MacFarland passed the others. Rod Mc-Elroy spoiled Don Head's bid for a shutout, converting a relay from Larry Thibeault and Bob Brown.

Johnny Martan, rookie centre, and McKenny each scored two goals for Hap Emms' Flyers. Howes, in gaining his first shutout of the season, stopped 20 shots.

The revamped St. Catharines team will take on the slipping Greenshirts in Kitchener; Windsor will be at Barrie and Oshawa will play at Guelph in junior games Friday.

Senior action the same night will see Hamilton at Brantford, Kitchener at Sarnia Sailors and Owen Sound Mercurys at Stratford.

Won't Report Rough Games

SASKATOON, Nov. 1 (CP).—The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix said Wednesday in a newspage story that in future it will not report on excessively-rough games of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, beyond giving the result.

The story was prompted by Tuesday night's PCHL game between Saskatoon Quakers and Edmonton Flyers. During the game 24 penalties were handed out, including four majors for fighting, a 10-minute misconduct and a match misconduct.

The paper says another 24 penalties could also have been called without stretching the rules.

The story continues:

"The Star-Phoenix today received numerous complaints about the rough-house affair at the Arena Tuesday night and among those who saw the match was general agreement that 'whatever else it was it certainly was not hockey.'

"This, also, was the opinion of experienced sports editors. In future, the Star-Phoenix will not report games of this nature, beyond giving the result."

In Service For Men Women Who Served

Comrades:

At a recent meeting of the poppy fund committee under the chairmanship of Albert Mason, last minute plans were completed to insure that this year will be one of the best, if not the most successful year, the poppy committee has ever had. There were representatives from Branch 52, Branch 452, Ladies' Auxiliary and the different service clubs within the Legion. From the interest shown it is safe to assume that the fund will go over the top as it has never done before. Any merchant or citizen who may be interested in securing a wreath to be placed on the war memorial or displayed in a window is urged to contact the Canadian Legion at the earliest possible date.

Sunday, Nov. 4, is the annual church parade of the Legion. All veterans please remember this date and come out to remember for a short while those who failed to return. The parade will fall in at 10.30 hrs. in front of the Legion hall and from there parade to George Street United Church where we have been invited to attend the service this year. Once again veterans —remember your obligations to those who failed to return and plan to come out and share in this parade.

Remembrance Day once again is creeping up on us and as usual it finds the Canadian Legion prepared to give it the reception that it deserves. The plans for the Remembrance Day dinner have been drawn and the tickets are now on sale to veterans. The dinner this year will be held at 12.00 noon on November 11, and the speaker will be the mayor of Cobourg who also is the Commander for this district of the Canadian Legion. We are sure that you will find this dinner well worth attending and any further information can be obtained by phoning the secretary at the Legion.

Shuffle-board, darts, carpetball and billiards still hold the limelight for entertainment here at the Legion hall and all four as far as your correspondent can see are enjoying a very good year. The shuffle-board league reports however that they could use about eight men to fill out the tournament. Any of you fellows that might be interested in this please contact George Gimblet at the Legion: This column will keep the players of these different leagues up to date on their respective standings from time to time and any news on these standings would be appreciated.

The Legion at this time would like to offer their congratulations to the evecutive and members of the 4th Anti-Tank for the splendid reunion that they held over the last weekend. It is comradeship like was shown over the weekend that helps to keep alive the very ideals that the Canadian Legion stands for. Once again fellows congratulations and all the best to your fine outfit in the future.

The Red Patch club are holding their annual Ortona dinner on November 10 on the centre floor of the Canadian Legion and all veterans are invited to attend this First Division night. Any Red Patch member can give you full details and it promises to be one of their best. Pictures will be shown of the convalescent home they have nearly completed and the guest of the evening is expected to be Padre Goforth. Padre Goforth will show films on his recent visit to the ground covered by the First Division in the last war.

The Duffy Club (HPE) will hold their monthly meeting on the second Tuesday in November and this meeting should be of interest to all members as at this time they will hold their annual election of officers.

The Navy club's monthly meeting will be held on the first Tuesday in November and all Navy vets are invited to attend.

Once again Poppy Day is on November 10—Buy A Poppy and help us help a Veteran.

PEACE IN THE MIDST OF WAR—The surrounding landscape is serene in its pastoral panorama of flowers and grass, gently waving in the late afternoon breeze. But depicted in the focal point of this striking photograph is the shattering impact of war as Canadian stretcher bearers move a wounded comrade along the Korean trail to a medical centre. In the background, from which they have come, a Canadian patrol has been engaged in a brief but savage clash with enemy troops. Stretcher bearer at left front is Cpl. J. Dunberry of Montreal, Que. At right front is Pte. Wilfred Girard of Thurso, Que. Others are unidentified.

Minding Own Business Pair Hurt

MANSFIELD, Nov. 1—(CP)—A young couple suffered minor injuries Wednesday night when, police said, a farmer who had been annoyed earlier by Hallowe'en pranksters fired a shotgun at an automobile.

Gerald Kerr, 20, required hospital treatment to remove shotgun pellets from his right hand. Evelyn Knowlton, 17, with him in the car, suffered slight facial cuts from shattered glass. Both are from Mansfield, about 35 miles southwest of Barrie.

Police said early today they were considering laying charges against the middle-aged farmer. They said the farm has been a target of district pranksters on previous hallowe'ens and that he lost his temper Wednesday night when mischief-makers overturned a privy and removed farm gates.

Investigators said the couple had nothing to do with the pranks at the farm.

Level Crossing Danger Reported Increasing

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP)—Kells Hall, director of engineering of the Board of Transport Commissioners, today said that level crossing hazards are increasing and "expenditures on protection and elimination of crossing are not keeping pace with the situation."

He reviewed the history of the railway grade crossing fund in a speech prepared for delivery before the 32nd anual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association which opened today. The fund was set up in 1909 to help pay for safety measures at road-railway crossings.

Mr. Hall said that the familiar wig-wag signals at crossings will gradually disappear from use. Major signal companies no longer manufacture the wig-wags because flashing lights have been found more effective.

He said there are 32,000 crossings in Canada and only ten per cent of them are protected.

Mr. Perrault is president of the automobile firm of Cumming-Perrault, Ltd.

C. A. Pollock, of Kitchener, was named Ontario vice-president.

MADE PRESIDENT — Rene B. Perrault, Montreal, prominent in business circles in Eastern Canada, and president of the automobile firm of Cumming-Perrault, Ltd., Montreal, was elected president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. Active in association, community and welfare work, Mr. Perrault has served on the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and on several Chamber committees.

SO THIS IS PEACE?—Rage erupts to the point of chair-throwing during the Japanese Socialist Party convention at Asakusa public hall in Tokyo. Right and left factions of the party were discussing peace and security treaties when disagreement reared its violent head. Peace, it seems, is a very stormy subject.

Jaycees' Information Booth Helps Out 5,088 Tourists

Accommodation and information statistics compiled by the Junior Chamber of Commerce indicates that 5,088 persons received information at their Tourist Information Bureau during 82 days of operation.

In a breakdown of the figures, 1,567 parties were directed to accommodation and 2,979 received information about the Kawartha lakes tourist district. The total is some 1,400 lower than last year.

During the operation of the tourist bureau, Bill Duignan, a salaried operator, and 24 members of the Junior Chamber were on duty.

Indicating the type of accommodation filled, the following groups show the volume of tourists: tourist homes, 187, hotels, 105, motels, 246, cabins (overnight), 393, lodges, 297 and cottages, 339.

Opened June 13th, the information bureau was closed September 7th, following Labor Day.

Distribution of promotion material to tourists resulted in circulation of 3,252 maps, brochures and other informative booklets. Provided by the Chamber of Commerce the Jaycees issued 725 Kawartha brochures, and 600 copies of the Pilon Marine district map were distributed. Other material included 500 road maps, 700 fishing regulation booklets, 700 resort and lodge brochures and 27 miscellaneous pieces.

Fishing

Information on fishing in the categories of regulations, license and locality was given to 308 tourists, camping sites were found for 66 tourist parties who arrived in the district with trailer and tenting facilities.

Assisting tourists in becoming familiar with the Kawartha lakes district the Jaycees directed 832 to city locations, 974 received district information, 258 enquired about road conditions and 148 for mileage figures. An increase in the number of enquiries for the Lift Lock indicated 275 in 1950 and 426 in 1951, and 63 tourists were routed over the Scenic Drive. Liquor outlets were enquired after by 279 tourists.

Resaurant and hotel dining accommodation was arranged for 114 parties, 39 were directed to specific shopping points and 27 enquired about motor vehicle fueling and servicing establishments.

Say Thanks

Tourists not only apply to the information bureau for assistance but on their return to the United States and other points have stopped at the bureau to express their satisfaction with the Kawartha lakes district. Many indicate that they plan to return to the Peterborough area in 1952.

An indication that the information bureau is becoming known to visiting tourists is found in the number of long distance telephone calls from Americans enquiring for accommodation in the Kawartha lakes district. Many tourists who first sought information at the bureau in former years returned to the bureau in 1951.

Since the information bureau is an important project in the Junior Chamber, the bulk of the work was carried by its membership, but they were assisted in many ways by other organizations.

Through the Chamber of Commerce the Kawartha brochure was issued, various tourist associations supplied material and resort operators and persons engaged in other tourist trade interests made periodic trips to the bureau reporting on accommodation and providing brochures and promotion material.

A total of 1,000 and a half man-hours were spent by the Junior Chamber of Commerce on its Tourist bureau project in action.

In the accumulative figure for the years during which the bureau has operated, 18,567 tourists were received by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The annual figures were: 1948, 3800; 1949, 3,239; 1950, 6,440 and 1951, 5,088.

Costumes Of 90s Mark Hallowe'en Party

HAVELOCK, Nov. 1 (ENS)—The home of Mrs. Robert Sayers presented a picturesque scene Monday night when the members of the Young Women's Association of Knox Presbyterian church gathered for their annual Hallowe'en party. The various costumes were in the forms of old-fashioned ladies of the gay '90's, cats, Aunt Jemina, a cowboy, a peasant girl and even an organ grinder and monkey.

The evening commenced with a grand march with Mrs. Harry Pollock as pianist. The costume prizes were awarded to Mrs. B. A. Curtis and Mrs. Derwood Scott for their impersonation of the organ grinder and monkey and to Mrs. Harry Anderson for the most original style from the gay '90's.

The judges were Mrs. H. Pollock and Mrs. John McQuigge. Prizes for the best drawing of a ghost and a witch went to Mrs. R. Sayers and Mrs. Fred Bennett respectively. The contest of naming the people in the various costumes was won by Mrs. James Scott and a relay race with raisins was won by Mrs. Harry Anderson's group. Mrs. Reginald McQuigge of Peterborough and Mrs. James Scott won the singing contest. Program conveners were Mrs. Fred Rutherford and Miss Violet Scott, and lunch conveners were Mrs. G. McNabb and Mrs. H. Anderson. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Grenville Rutherford.

Report 100,000 Casualties For UN Troops

UNITED NATIONS, NY, Nov. 1 (AP)—The total of casualties suffered by United Nations members fighting in Korea has passed the 100,000 mark, with the United States suffering about 95 per cent of the casualties so far announced.

The Defence Department in Washington said Wednesday US casualties had reached 95,952 since the war began June 25, 1950. The total of all other UN members as announced since the start of the war is 5,575.

Some of the figures for the United States' allies are admittedly out of date, but they are the latest available here.

The Republic of Korea figures swell the total immensely, however.

The South Koreans—they are not UN members—total in June was 212,544.

For all units fighting under the UN flag in Korea, the unofficial total is 313,721.

A pentagon estimate said that up to Oct. 13, the Chinese Communist and North Korean Communist losses were 1,402,504.

Canada, as of Oct. 25, had 380 causualties; 84 dead, 262 wounded, 32 missing.

HUGE EXPANSION PLAN—Capacity of the already huge factory of Ford Motor Company of Canada at Windsor, Ont., is to be increased as part of a multi-million dollar expansion program announced by the company Wednesday. The air view shows most of the 240-acre site of the Windsor factory with the Detroit river and the city of Detroit in the top background. The 13-acre assembly plant (in the foreground) will be enlarged as will be 18-acre machine shop (centre) and the adjoining foundry. Assembly of all vehicles will be transferred from Windsor to a new plant near Oakville, Ont., which will take at least two years to build.

Agree To Arbitration On Unsettled Strikes

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—The CIO executive board Wednesday unanimously accepted a proposal of its leaders to submit all future unsettled jurisdictional squabbles between unions to an arbitrator.

The action was intended as a giant step toward wiping out a source of future strikes.

The move was described by CIO president Philip Murray as being "unprecedented in the history of labor unions in this country."

Thirty-four of the CIO's 41 unions signed the agreement on the spot and Murray said the other seven would do so as soon as their executive boards on conventions could ratify the proposal.

Teach Temperance

EAST LONDON, South Africa —(Reuters)—Next year South African children in grades three to five will have lessons on the effects of alcohol, the Women's Christain Temperance Union was told here. In higher grades there will be an optional lesson, but in 1953 the lessons will become compulsory.

Commit Swartz In Racing Fix, Counsel Protests

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 1—(CP)—Magistrate T. George Street Wednesday committed Harry Swartz of Toronto for trial on two charges of conspiring to defraud in connection with horse races at Fort Erie and other Ontario tracks. Evidence was taken from two jockeys suspended for life from Ontario tracks.

Suspended Jockey Robert Wankmueller of Buffalo, NY, testified he received sums of money from Swartz and John Perron of Toronto for pulling horses. He said he received $800 July 4 to be distributed to other jockeys and that he gave $300 to John Bromby and $200 to Gil Robillard.

Wankmueller said Jockey Eric Barber refused to accept $200. The jockeys were told to prevent their horse from finishing first or second. Wankmueller said he subsequently recieved $1,500 to be split among jockeys in on the deal.

Jockey John Bromby of Toronto, also suspended, corroborated some of Wankmueller's evidence. But he said he had not been approached in connection with his mount, North Driver, winner on July 25.

Earlier Denials

Both men admitted under cross-examination by C. L. Dubin, counsel for Swartz, that they had denied all complicity in race-fixing when they testified before the Ontario Jockey Club's investigation.

Mr. Dubin, in asking that Wankmueller's evidence be disregarded, said Wankmeller was an admitted perjurer and that the court had heard the most shocking type of evidence from a "liar and a cheat."

Mr. Dubin said it would be shameful for Swartz to stand trial on such evidence.

Swartz is charged with conspiring to commit an indictable offence under the Canadian criminal code—"by deceit or falsehood or other fraudulent means to defraud such members of the public as would bet or wager money on the results of certain running races to be run at Fort Erie race course and elsewhere in the province."

He is also charged with conspiracy "to affect the result of running races...by giving or offering to give money to jockeys engaged to ride horses in such races to induce such jockeys to interfere with the true running in such races, so that the results of such races would be predetermined and thereby to cheat such members of the public as would bet or wager money on the results of such races."

Have $3,000,000 Unclaimed Savings

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP)—Attention 66,313 Canadians — the federal government has $3,176,334 which belongs to you. The money represents the refundable savings tax paid in 1942, 1943 and 1944.

Revenue Minister McCann said Wednesday in a return tabled in the Commons that cheques were mailed, but were returned as undeliverable. Anybody still with money coming should apply to the district tax office where returns were filed during the war.

Allow Vets To Continue Medical Care

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Medical treatment benefits now available to recipients of war veterans' allowances will be continued for those men even if they stop taking the allowances to take the new universal old age pension instead, Veterans Minister Lapointe said Wednesday.

At the same time, he reaffirmed in a statement that any veteran drawing the WVA would have to count any old age pension he draws as outside income. This meant, he said, that veterans can draw the full old age pension plus enough WVA to make a total of $610 a year for a single recipient, $1,100 for a married recipient

A single veteran now in receipt of $40.41 a month under the War Veterans Allowance Act, and with no other income, could receive $40 a month in old age pension and $10.83 a month from WVA. Similarly, a married veteran in receipt of $70.83 a month in allowance, and with no other income, could receive $40 a month from old age pension and $51.56 veterans allowance. In cases where both husband and wife are eligible for the old age pension, they could receive $80 a month by way of pension and $11.66 a month from veterans allowance, if they have no other income.

"All veterans and their wives who have reached or will reach the age of 70 by Jan. 1 and who have not already done so, should file applications for the new pension at once," Mr. Lapointe said.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 1—(CP)—Mrs. Vivien Deschaine, 28, of Windsor, died Wednesday night in hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident early Tuesday. Three men, companions in the auto, remain in hospital.

Need More Planes

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Nov. 1—(CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Wednesday night it should be of real concern to every Canadian that at this critical time Canada is not producing a single transport type of plane for civil or military requirements. He told a dinner meeting of the Air Industries and Transport Association convention in a speech prepared for delivery that it was one organization which could bring this fact to the attention of Canadians.

Philip Takes Washington By Storm Out Sinatra'd Frankie During Long Drive

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (CP) —Prince Philip came to Washington Wednesday. The Princess was with him.

The tall, handsome Duke, as debonair as always, out-Sinatra'd Frankie in his effect on Washington's government gals. They didn't quite swoon but it was one long "Ooh" and a sighing "Aah" throughout the seven miles from National Airport into town.

It was roughly four women—of all ages—to one man along the parade route. For most offices in this home of the United States government let their staffs out early to see the show and the gals made the most of it.

It was "There he is" and "Isn't he cute" as he passed in a convertible with Mrs. Harry Truman and Margaret Truman.

The Princess wasn't neglected —but she rode with President Truman in the car ahead and couldn't be seen as easily as the Prince who waved steadily throughout and obviously loved the show.

Better Pictures Only Way To Revive Movie Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (AP) — Joel McCrea says goodwill tours won't revive the movie business. Only better pictures can do the trick.

McCrea has been a movietown resident since 1914. He is one of Hollywood's most respected citizens.

Here is his analysis of the film industry's ills:

Buyers' Market

"We're in the same position as an auto manufacturer who had turned out inferior cars during a wartime boom. Sure, he sold his product during the war, because people were eager to buy something. But when cars are no longer scarce, people start to say, 'I think twice before I'll buy that car again; look how I got stung before.'

"And so it is with the movies. People got tired of poor entertainment. And so they started shopping for others forms of amusement.

"Sending Hollywood people out on tours may help our public relations. But—I may get shot for saying this—it can't help the movie business. The only thing that can do that is better pictures."

How do you do that?

"I'll tell you one way," he said. "Stop trying to see how many pictures you can turn out. The major studios brag that they will produce 52 pictures or some other amount during the year.

They should stop trying to make enough pictures to meet schedules. Instead, take a little more care with the ones that are made."

$300,000 Blaze

MONTREAL, Nov. 1—(CP)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed a four-storey fur-dyeing plant at nearby Pointe-Aux-Trembles Wednesday night, causing damage estimated at $300,000. The fire, believed to have resulted from an explosion, destroyed the plant of Z. Sable and left more than 50 employees without work.

Convicted of Stealing

TORONTO, Nov. 1—(CP)—Michael Manos, 28, Wednesday was convicted of stealing $38,000 from a Toronto law firm. The one-time private detective will be sentenced Nov. 14. It was Manos' second conviction on the charge. He was sentenced last March to six months but on appeal won a new trial.

The Princess had moved from the spot about a minute before the masonry fell.

Asks British Tourists Be Given Dollars

LONDON, Nov. 1 (Reuters)—Sir Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London, said today it might prove "a very profitable investment" for Britain to let tourists buy dollars to visit North America.

"Unless he can visit the dollar lands as a tourist and get to know them, to understand their mental picture and their way of life, it is obviously very difficult for him to invest successfully, even if the opportunity should come," Lowson told members of the American Chamber of Commerce here.

Government regulations prohibit any dollar allowances for Britons wishing to visit the United States and Canada as tourists.

In a brief reference to Canada, Lowson said "There is no question that American capital is flowing into Canada. That must be a sadness for us in England, because we did much to develop and create the Canadian economy."

Campaign Thieves

OTTAWA, Nov. 1—(CP)—Payroll savings sales are pacing the Canada Savings Bond drive, officials said Wednesday. Midway through the third week of the campaign they total $120,000,000, an increase of $11,000,000 over the same period last year. Combined bond sales after two weeks stood at $170,778,150, topping comparable reports last year by 14 per cent.

Cause of Delay

EDMONTON (CP)—City commissioner Blair Menzies noted in a report to council that Edmonton transit drivers often stay too long at the end of their runs to indulge in a cigarette, which results in speeding along bus routes to make up the lost time.

Mosher Denies CCL Division

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP).—The Canadian Congress of Labor completed a two-day executive meeting Wednesday with a statement by its president that it is as strong and as harmonious as ever.

A. R. Mosher, head of the 200,000-strong central labor body, which had a stormy annual convention at Vancouver this year, said the harmony prevailing among the executive, was a complete denial of newspapers' reports suggesting an internal split.

"At no time in the history of the congress has the executive shown more harmony and determination to co-operation in the interests of the congress and of the Canadian labor movement," said the president.

"The fact that, apart from minor differences of opinion on some incidental matters, there was complete unanimity in the meetings is a clear indication of the continued strength of the congress."

The executive meeting considered a number of resolutions forwarded by the Vancouver convention in September.

The Congress has invited back Pat Conroy who resigned as secretary-treasurer in September. The letter has not been made public and the congress executive has tabled the matter for two weeks.

Windsor Man Fined $500 For Giving False LLCB Data

WINDSOR, Nov. 1. (CP)—A Windsor man was fined $500 Wednesday for giving false information to the Liquor Licence Control Board and solicitors were warned "their gowns might easily become sullied from such contacts." In the first case of its type in Ontario, 60-year-old John Ferlecki, proprietor of the Royal York House, was convicted after a three-hour trial Tuesday. Ferlecki was defended by Robert H. Wilson, KC.

Assistant Crown Attorney Eugene A. Duchesne presented evidence to show Ferlecki was not the sole owner of the premises. He said he was in an application to the board.

Magistrate J. Arthur Hanrahan said that strict control of the marketing of liquor was necessary to avoid disorder in the community.

"The LLCB has a heavy responsibility in granting licenses to screen applicants o obtain those of such character as not to view lightly the general responsibility to the province and the community."

Too Much Connivance

The magistrate said "the Crown reports this board meets a growing tendency to furtive connivance on the part of the applicants. This is a matter for general concern.

"It should be of particular concern to members of the bar who act in these matters. Their gowns might easily become sullied from such contacts," the magistrate said.

Following the magistrate's remarks, Mr. Wilson asked if the address was directed at himself and was told that the magistrate had referred to the solicitors involved at the time of the application.

At Tuesday's trial, Dan Fedircec, Kirkland Lake meat and grocery dealer, said that in November, 1949, he became a partner when he bought a lot for $4,000 and gave Ferlecki $11,200 in cash.

"It was a 50-50 deal," the witness said. 'He was to put up $5,000 and the license and I was to put up $15,000."

He said the house opened in September, 1950, and that he left in February, 1951, because Ferlecki "didn't want a partner any more. He claimed I did not pay enough."

Officer Loses Certificate Ate On Despite Fog Signals

VANCOUVER, Nov. 1.—Breakfast on the morning of Aug. 30 Wednesday cost third officer Frederick George Wilkins of the CNSS Prince Rupert his means of livelihood for three months.

His mariner's certificate was suspended because he continued with his breakfast after he heard fog signals just before the Prince Rupert was in collision with BCSS Princess Kathleen in US waters off Northern BC Aug. 30.

The second officers in charge of the two tourist excursion vessels also lost their certificates for three months after a Department of Transport probe was concluded Wednesday by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith. The two are John Bryant, who was on the Prince Rupert's bridge, and Pendry Harris on Princess Kathleen's bridge.

Both the CNR and CPR vessels were proceeding too fast in dense fog, it was found by Mr. Justice Smith.

Mr. Justice Smith censured Capt. W. E. Eccles of the Rupert and Capt. G. O. Hughes of the Kathleen for the way they kept their night order books.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When sorry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Walter C. Thomson Pledges 10 Per Cent Cut In Costs

By The Canadian Press

Walter C. Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, says he will grant a one-cent-a-quart provincial subsidy to reduce the retail milk price if his party wins the provincial general election Nov. 22. He also plans to cut government costs by 10 per cent and to reduce the number of cabinet ministers from 18 to 12.

He spoke to an election campaign meeting in the Southwestern Ontario farming constituency of Middlesex North Wednesday afternoon, made a half-hour broadcast at night and later spoke to an Elgin riding gathering in St. Thomas.

Meantime, both Premier Frost and E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, were campaigning in Northwestern Ontario. The Premier attended a dinner in Port Arthur and addressed a rally in Fort William. Mr. Jolliffe made a speech in Kenora.

Mr. Thomson in his speech over a CBC Ontario network in a free-time broadcast promised efforts to reduce the municipal tax burden, resumption of subsidies to farmers on hog and cheese production and their extension to beef cattle, establishment of a scheme of liability insurance to compensate workmen injured away from their jobs, and a cut in the gasoline tax from 11 to eight cents a gallon. He repeated his pledge of a hospital insurance plan financed jointly by individual contributions and public funds.

Gives Variety

In his Lucan speech he spoke on his plan to reduce the gasoline tax. He talked in St. Thomas about reducing the cabinet and said:

"A less ponderous government makes for more efficient government. That is why we must eliminate the unneedful. We will weed out six department heads and send them bag and baggage on their way. We will lower the cost of government by at least 10 per cent."

Mr. Jolliffe returned to his criticism of government handling of the legislative crime committee, disbanded when the legislature was dissolved Oct. 4. He accused Premier Frost of ending the committee's life just as it was about to inquire into "the real sources" of racketeering in Ontario and was about to issue a summons to "the biggest stockateer in the country."

As a member of the crime committee, appointed last spring to investigate law enforcement methods, he had found the attorney-general's department administered with "incredible laxity." Crown attorneys were not required to make reports. If a crown attorney fell down on the job, the department heard nothing of it until someone complained.

He had found the Ontario Provincial Police grossly underpaid. Their pay was lower than that of officers on many citiy police forces. The number of resignations from the provincial force during the last three years had constituted a scandal.

Fights For Pipeline

Premier Frost, speaking at Fort William in support of candidate Clare Mapledoram, promised to fight for all-Canadian piplines to bring western natural gas and oil to Ontario by way of the Lakehead. He said such a development would change the face of the north country, as well as assisting the industrial south.

"Ontario has no coal. Our natural gas resources are very much depleted and manufactured gas must come from by-products of gas and oil, neither of which we have. Northern Ontario is even more lacking in fuel, except for wood, than Southern Ontario, because of the longer haul from the mines and oil wells."

Western gas and oil would provide fuel and power necessary for development of an iron and steel industry at the Lakehead, already a producer of high-grade ore.

Tonight the premier speaks in Galt. Mr. Jolliffe will be at Sioux Lookout in Northewestern Ontario. Mr. Thomson has addresses scheduled in Middlesex South in the afternoon and in Kitchener at night.

Candy Sales Surpass 5-Ton Mark

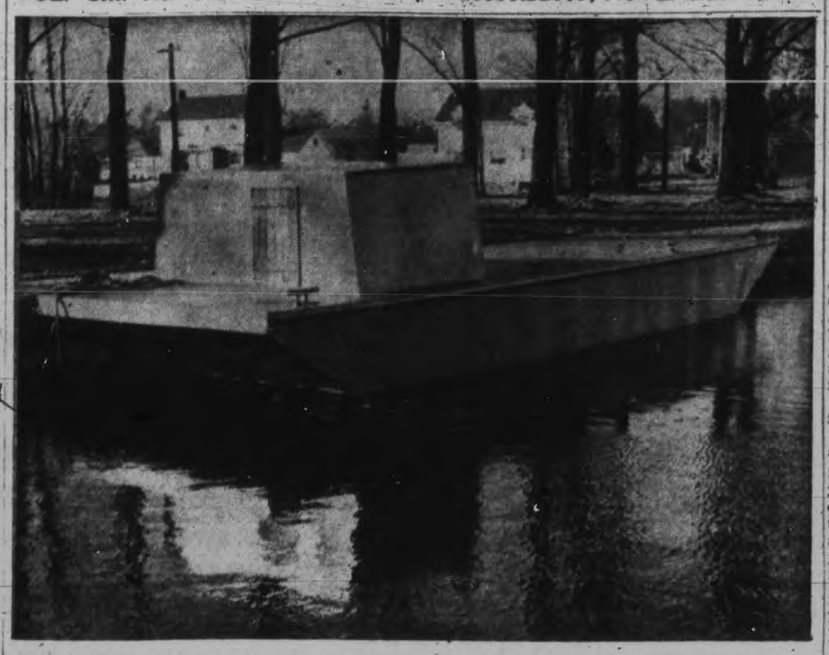
More Apples, Peanuts Said Bought As People Shell Out

Candy is handy, when Hallowe'en's here.

Hosts of ravenous spirits disguised as small boys and girls toured the city from door to door Wednesday night, howling "shell out" and "trick or treat."

To pay tribute to the roving goblins, witches and elves, Peterborough housekeepers bought nearly six tons of candy, an unestimated amount of peanuts and several hundred baskets of apples

At that, say wholesalers and retailers, the demand for candy was down from last year's Hallowe'en sales. One wholesaler, whose sales passed well over the ton mark, reported that this firm sold only half of what they sold in 1950.



Mostly Kisses

Most of the five-plus tons of candy was made up of molasses kisses, the light brown candies that are the perennial favorites for All Hallows' Eve.

The rest probably about a ton of the total, was in gum drops and jelly beans, marshmallow pumpkins and other grotesque sweets sold only around October 31.

Greatest volume of sales by a single firm was chalked up by a wholesaler who disposed of more than a ton and a half of candies, mostly kisses. Other wholesalers reported sales varying from "almost nil" to 500, 1,000 and 1,500 pounds.

To give an idea of the ratio of sales of kisses, other kinds of candy, here are the figures from two retailers: three-quarters of a ton of kisses, 400 pounds of other kinds; more than a ton of kisses, and "several hundred pounds" of others.

A NEW STEEL BARGE was launched recently at the canal by the engineering department of the Trent system. It will be used to do some of the work of the former "Bessie Butler," maintaining buoys and lights in navigation channels. The 40 by 12-foot craft, with draught of 12-18 inches, will house four workmen and be equipped with a 360-degree swing crane of 250-pound capacity, which is yet to be mounted this winter. A 25-horsepower motor will drive the barge; it was built in an Owen Sound shipyard. — (Examiner Staff Photo)

Revision Court Cuts $5.50 Off City Revenue

Net effect of the Court of Revision on the city treasury last night was a reverse of $5.50.

Reduction of $100 in the assessment of the house and lot of Edward Boote, 553 Steele Ave., becomes an advantage of $5.50 to the owner on the basis of a tax rate of 55 mills, as a matter of example.

The Court confirmed twenty valuations which were questioned by property owners, an indication of the record of the department of Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis as it is emerging in the assessment of the city for 1952 tax purposes.

One of the appeals that was dismissed was that of George and Jane Simpson, on the property at 47 Conger St.

The assessment of $1900 on the building and $200 on the land had not been changed since 1948, according to the evidence. It was also brought out that last year two tenants were paying $60 and $40 rent; that the outgoing of one tenant leaves only $40 a month income; and it was suggested that this change should be considered by the Court in the appeal for a reduction in the assessment.

Members of Court

The members of the Court are John A. Harstone, chairman, Fred Finnie and T. C. Ephgrave; with City Clerk Outram as secretary, and City Solicitor Huycke representing the municipality.

Hearing of the joint appeal of 52 home owners on Arndon Ave., in the new south end, west of Park St., was begun by their solicitor, Robert Carley, but the presentation of evidence was postponed until this evening.

The east end of Arndon Ave. is shown on the map, Mr. Carley said, but it has not actually been opened up for traffic although at one part there has been some gravelling done. It is being used extensively, but, lacking hard surface, it is most unsatisfactory. The road at St. Catharines St. corner has not been drained properly and water lies there.

Fire Protection

Sidewalks lack connecting ends and "lead nowhere"; the council has continued to neglect the providing of adequate fire protection of that new area of the south which feels uneasy behind the hazards of a long run from the fire station and the series of railway crossings.

Mr. Carley declared that some of the Arndon assessments were higher than the valuation of corresponding properties.

Police Kept Busy Checking Minor Rash Of Destruction

For most youngsters, Hallowe'en is an evening of good fun. They can dress up in outlandish costumes and go about the neighbourhood ringing doorbells and collecting apples, candies or whatever the lady of the house happens to be shelling out. For others, it is a chance to have one whale of a time [illegible] down fences, smash windows, and wrecking anything that happens to be handy.

These are the ones who make Hallowe'en an annual headache for property owners and a lot of extra work for the police department.

A double shift of policemen, two special constables and two police cruisers and the police truck were kept busy Wednesday evening answering complaints and tracking down gangs of teenage marauders. The fire department reported no false alarms were turned in.

At the police station, Sgt. Gordon Puffer, and Identification Officer, Sgt. Bill Aggas handled phone calls and relayed messages to the cruising police cars. It was Sergeant Puffer's 30th extra stint of Hallowe'en duty, and Sgt. Aggas' seventh.

20 Calls

The first call came in about 7.20 and between then and 11 o'clock, 20 calls were received, dealing with Hallowe'en vandalism.

About 7.30, somebody tore up a sidewalk grating and threw it on the east end of the Parkhill Rd., bridge. D. Crowder, 61 Edgewater Blvd., was unable to stop his car before striking the grate and damaged the front wheel.

Later in the evening, one of the smaller plate glass windows of Walker's Stores Limited was broken.

The usual minor pranks of wrecking picket fences, letting air out of tires and soaping windows were among the complaints phoned in as well as a few that were more serious.

A group of older boys tried to tear down the bridge behind the Normal School. One man phoned in to say he had parked his car downtown and when he arrived home he found the bulbs in both of his tail lights missing. The man said he had noticed two police officers looking at his car as he drove by and he was afraid he would get a ticket.

Rope Across Road

Dr. A. H. Ball, 563 Weller St., reported he drove into a rope strung across the street at windshield height on Weller St., at Belmont.

A young woman in costume who got out of a car in front of the YMCA was peppered with B.B. shots by youths who drove off in an old model car.

A car in the CGE parking lot was found with all four wheels jacked up on blocks. Police arrived before the wheels had been removed.

On Weller St., where workmen are installing an underground telephone system, pranksters had a field day rolling boulders back into the ditch from which they had been removed and rolled a large one into the centre of the street.

Doubtless, countless other residents are still looking for miscellaneous articles and bric-a-brac they neglected to move indoors before the onslaught of Hallowe'en pack rats arrived to carry them goodness knows where.

Sergeant Puffer summed up the situation when he said "Most of the youngsters just go out and have a good time but there's always a bunch in every district that cause trouble."

On the whole, Sergeant Puffer said the amount of calls received this year was about the same as last year.

As store owners and householders—and car drivers scrubbed soap smudges from their windows today, they could perhaps take some consolation in the fact that it's all over for another year.

Driver Falls From Car Cracks Skull

Companion Faces Two Charges; Says Fell Out Too

Found lying injured and unconscious on Lake St., near George St., at midnight Wednesday, Roy Bryan, 31, of 253 Dalhousie St., is in hospital suffering from a fractured skull, concussion and lacerations to his lip and forehead.

His condition is described as fair this morning.

Shortly after police found Bryan lying on the roadway, a 25-year-old hospital orderly phoned the police station and said, "I have just killed a man." The man gave his name as Alvin Johnson, 265 Hunter St. west, and today Johnson appeared in police court charged with driving while his ability to drive was impaired by alcohol and leaving the scene of an accident.

Roy Bryan

After pleading guilty to the charge of driving while impaired, Johnson pleaded not guilty to the second charge and with assistant crown attorney Walter Howell consenting, Magistrate W. R. Philp granted Johnson's request for an adjournment of one week.

To allow the man to go free, Magistrate Philp entered a plea of not guilty for Johnson on the impaired charge. If a plea of guilty had been recorded, Johnson would have had to remain in custody. Both charges will be heard November 8.

Crashed Year Ago

About one year ago, Bryan received a fractured skull, broken jaw and lost one eye, when the steering gear of his car broke and the car went out of control, crashing into a hydro pole a mile north of Port Hope on Highway 28.

Bryan was driving south on George St., when Johnson said he asked him the time. Johnson said he told Bryan he would be late for work at the hospital where he works. Johnson is said to have told police that Bryan replied "Oh a couple of hours won't matter" and then Johnson said Bryan started to swing the car east on Lake St.

Door Swung Open

At this point, Johnson told police, the right door of the car swung open throwing him and Johnson into the street. In his report, Acting Sergeant Mesley reported Johnson said he walked over to Bryan, felt for his pulse,

GEORGE MACDONALD

G. A. Macdonald Seeks Old Seat On Utilities

After a meeting of the Utilities Commission Wednesday afternoon George A. Macdonald told the Examiner that he would accept renomination and would be a candidate for election. Commission terms of office are three years. The two other members are, Gordon S. Matthews, chairman, and Fred Hills.

The meeting of the Commission discussed an unfinished matter relating to wholesale business in propane gas which has been developing in the last year.

Mr. Macdonald said he had supported the expanding programs of the Commission in these recent years.

Substations

"In our electrical department we have been setting up auxiliary power substations. The last of them is nearing completion near the south end of High Street. That is the fourth we have had to construct to relieve the load on the central station on Aylmer St. This is largely for the accommodation of our industrial customers. We have also been extending our domestic power lines on new streets, also providing new street lighting.

Further development is continuing at the waterworks, not only in pumping capacity but also in the planning for enlargement of the filtration beds.

I have supported the Commission's policy of giving first service to the people who live within the city boundaries. I think that is only common sense. If any township residents want water connections, for example, we say that they have to arrange for the financing of these lines into townships through the township councils. I believe our ratepayers will endorse that attitude.

We have had a serious problem on our hands in deciding what to do with the gas department. We switched from the old gas plant to the use of propane, and from the increasing sale of it we feel that the business will be much larger in the coming year."

Mr. Macdonald said the Commission had approved plans for further increase of pressure in Ashburnham, and that they would be completed in 1952.

Gladys Long Tells Court Believed Hit Road Sign, Didn't See Boys On Hill

Didn't Bother To Return To Investigate; Had Eyes Focussed On Approaching Car Felt Bump, Heard Noise At Scene Of Fatality

Gladys Long, 43, Montreal, testified in court today that she did not know her car struck and killed 10-year-old David Sanderson on June 9. She said she thought she had clipped off a road sign and didn't bother to go back and investigate. Miss Long, dressed in a brown suit and wide-brimmed brown hat, entered the witness box early today to testify on her own behalf as her manslaughter trial entered its third day. She is also charged with dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Showing only slight signs of nervousness Miss Long told the court in a clear voice what happened that Saturday afternoon.

She said she was driving along Highway 7 at a speed of about 45 miles an hour. After passing Miss Esther Deyell's northbound car she got back into the right lane of traffic and met one car coming south down the hill.

Then, Miss Long said, she saw a second southbound car break over the hill. The left wheels were a foot over the centre line.

Felt Bump

"I moved over to the right of the road a little further," she said. "And as I met the car I felt a bump and heard a noise. I drove on over the hill and heard a flapping sound. So I began to brake the car and look for a place to stop."

She said she finally came to a halt beside the mailboxes, 476 feet north of where the boy's body was found lying on some rocks.

"Why didn't you stop as soon as you got over the crest of the hill?" asked T. J. Carley, KC, defence counsel.

"I couldn't very well stop on the north slope of the hill or I'd have created a traffic hazard," replied Miss Long. "So I drove on to the mailboxes."

Miss Long said she didn't see the two boys who were pushing their bicycles up the hill.

"When that second car came over the hill my eyes focussed on it," she said. "That's all I saw."

Inspected Damage

When she got out of the car at the mail boxes she inspected the damage: a broken right front headlight with some of the glass missing; a dented fender, and a chrome strip loosened from the side of the vehicle.

She said she put the chrome strip in the car and drove on.

"Why didn't you stop and return to the place you felt the bump and heard the noise?" asked Mr. Carley.

"I thought I'd hit a road sign or construction sign. As I came in from Ottawa I noticed they were doing a lot of construction work on the highway.

Wets Triumph In Record Vote In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 1 — (ENS) — Campbellford went wet Wednesday when a record 90 per cent of the voters turned out to decide in favour of a brewer's warehouse and retail liquor store in the town. The vote ended a 43-year dry spell.

About 62.6 per cent of the ballots cast favored the liquor store and about 62.3 per cent the beer warehouse.

Campaigning on both sides, was active, especially as the time for the closing of the polls drew near. Cars operated by both sides made many out-of-town trips to bring eligible voters to the polls. A number of trips were made to Toronto, Picton, Belleville, Peterborough and many other closer points to pick up and deliver voters.

Hotly Contested.

The question was one of the most hotly contested ever to come before Campbellford voters. In a similar vote in 1948, the 'wets' lost the vote by the smallest of majorities. Two-fifths of a single vote defeated the beer warehouse, and five votes defeated the establishmen of government liquor stores.

Following are the results of the town's four wards.

Liquor Store.	For	Against
Ward 1	309	187
Ward 2	308	133
Ward 3	296	217
Ward 4	246	154
Totals	1159	691

Brewers Warehouse	For	Against
Ward 1	312	184
Ward 2	302	137
Ward 3	295	217
Ward 4	243	159
Totals	1152	697

The town has been dry for the past 43 years, and during that time two attempts to establish government stores have been defeated at the polls. Wednesday's plebiscite was the third and finally successful attempt for the 'wets'.

Dr. F. H. Cosgrave Suggests Continuing Reunion Talks

Talks to discuss reunion of the Anglican, United, Presbyterian and Baptist churches should be continued, Dr. F. H. Cosgrave, former provost of Trinity College, Toronto, said Wednesday.

Dr. Cosgrave led the morning session of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough conference at St. John's Anglican Church. Wednesday's sessions brought the two-day conference to a close.

The topic of Dr. Cosgrave's talk was, "Reunion and Some of Its Problems." He deplored the discord present in the Christian church. "It is a sin, because it is certainly not according to the mind of Christ," he said.

He explained that the guilt of schism does not lie entirely with those who have separated themselves from the historic church, because it has been partly caused by defects within the church.

Bonne Agreement

He referred to the agreement reached at Bonne in 1931 between the old Catholic church and certain churches of the Anglican communion. It was agreed that each recognize the Catholicity of the other and each admit the other to its sacraments, without requiring an acceptance of all doctrinal teaching of the other.

He further explained that when an invitation was sent out by the Anglican Church to discuss union, only three churches sent representatives to the talks— United, Presbyterian, Baptist. At these talks it was found that many differences concerning the Episcopate and doctrine would have to be overcome.

"Although little progress has been made until now," Dr. Cosgrave concluded, "it is certainly to the best interests of all concerned that the talks continue."

The afternoon session was given over to an address by the Rev. H. Peasgood, rector of Norwood. His topic, "The Church and the Sects," was closely allied with the morning's discussion. The speaker made a distinction between a sect, which is a voluntary association, and a church, which is a natural social group akin to the family and the nation. One joins a sect, but one is born into the church. By going back to early Christian days, Mr. Peasgood showed that even then sects appeared; but the church Catholic was extremely vigorous, and as a result the sects soon disappeared—not so much from pressure, but because the church fulfilled all the spiritual needs of man, and there was no need for various sects.

The 14th and 15th centuries saw sects strong enough to fight the church, for the simple reason that the church was weakened by slackness. It was at this time that the sects began to gain strength. This was also a period of class consciousness, and it was found that the growth of the democratic idea fostered the sects.

In the early days of Canada, the established church had a tendency to cater to the upper classes, but itinerant Methodist preachers went into the back country and held services in homes. This appealed greatly to the rough-and-ready farmers, who wanted a faith that would match their work. In the course of time, as the congregations began to rise financially, there was a desire among the Methodists to build fine churches. There were those who deplored this materialism, and a group broke away from the Methodists to form another sect. Thus the cycle was completed, and the pattern started all over again. "The church," said Mr. Peasgood, "must face the fact of the disappearance of the youth to the sects. This can be overcome by increasing the number of clergy, making better use of the laymen, making our church into more than a one-day-a-week business for the young people, and by strengthening our teaching."

Overnight Lodgers

Two Montreal youths were "registered" at 8 o'clock Wednesday night and became the first overnight lodgers on the new city jail's opening night.

Running them to a close second, a middle-aged Scotchman who must have thought the event was worth celebrating, sauntered in and was quite niffed when he learned he was not the first to request accommodation in the new cells.

"Oi could just as well of been here a bit orlier," he said regretfully as he was shown to his room in the cell block.

Millions Of Adults Return To School To Learn Russian

By DON DALLAS

LONDON, Nov. 1. (Reuters)—Millions of adults behind the Iron Curtain have gone back to school—to learn Russian in mass courses organized in Soviet satellite states. In Communist China, too, a learn-Russian campaign has been launched. The ambitious work behind the Iron Curtain today, whether in mine, factory or farm, has a shrewd hunch that learning Russian may pay off in the form of a better job, more wages. And where the party factory chiefs "encourage" workers to learn, it's wise—and safer, too—to take the hint.

There's a sound reason for the organization of mass Russian-language courses. Russian scientific and technical methods predominate as the Communist-ruled east European states are increasingly geared to the Kremlin industrial machine.

For example, experts planning food production need to be acquainted with the "classics" of Soviet agricultural policy and with the Stalin-approved biological theories based on the methods of Michurin and Lysenko. That knowledge has to be passed down to the peasants.

Soviet Success

Bulgaria has just proudly proclaimed its good corn crop this year was due to the application of "the Soviet method of burning straw on the fields before starting with the actual sowing."

The official Bulgarian agency explained that fields were then plowed two or three times and sowing, done early, was carried out "in accordance with Lysenko instructions, planting the seed deeply in the ground."

The straw-burning was an ancient Russian method of fertilization, now claimed as a Soviet achievement to suit current ideology.

Technical and industrial experts and production planners similarly need to know all about Russian methods.

Writers, playwrights, journalists in the satellite countries need to be well versed in the anti-western works of modern Soviet writers which laud "the hero of our times—the Soviet man." While translations of the main works are churned out in all the tongues of Eastern Europe, it is nevertheless valuable for the Iron Curtain intellectual to have read the original Russian. And to get up to date in ideology, a perusal of Moscow's Pravda is necessary.

Russian-language courses now are being organized all over the satellite states.

The former free western-style republic of Czechoslovakia, under Communist rule since 1948, has switched the main emphasis in language teaching from English to Russian, now a compulsory subject in the secondary schools.

Poland In Line

In Poland 10,000 Russian-language courses were organized this year, the official Bulgarian agency reports a "mass drive" for teaching Russian and courses have been opened at all universities and higher educational institutes in the Soviet zone of Germany.

The new China News Agency reports that night schools and supplementary schools to teach Russian have been set up on a nation-wide scale to "facilitate cultural exchanges with the Soviet Union and to study Soviet experience."

Meanwhile, the Russian boy who wants to make good must still learn English—with a liberal dose of Shakespeare, Mark Twain and some other non-Communist classics.

BRAINS AT WORK—A common sight during noon recess at Swedish schools is groups of students like these Stockholm youngsters, some playing chess, others kibitzing. Mystery is how, with only an hour and a half for lunch and recreation, they manage to finish a game.

Wright Estate Seven Million

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP)—W. H. Wright, mining executive and founder of the Globe and Mail, left an estate estimated at more than $7,000,000.

That was the preliminary valuation placed on the estate when the will was filed Wednesday for probate. Executors said they would file a revaluation of the assets later.

An inventory showed assets, including stocks, of about $4,000,000 and life insurance of about $1,300,000. It was reported Mr. Wright held interests in private companies in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, but no valuation was placed on his interests in The Globe and Mail, which he founded in 1936.

Beneficiaries were Mr. Wright's sister, Frances E. Hargreaves; three of her children, Joan Craig, Francis D. Hargreaves and Nancy Quarrington, and their children born before the estate is distributed.

Spectators Aid Reporter In Tough Spot

MONTREAL, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Sometimes you can bank on the public to help newspaper men cover the royal tour—sometimes not.

Reporter Ken Kelly of The Canadian Press was in the royal motorcade when a 100-pound piece of concrete broke off from the portico of the Queen Mary Veterans Hospital. It fell on the spot where Princess Elizabeth had been standing a minute before.

Tour regulations would not permit Kelly to leave the reporters' car as the motorcade moved off from the hospital. He scribbled a brief bulletin on the near accident, with a notation of the phone number of his office and thrust it into the hands of a spectator.

He wrote three more of the same bulletins "as insurance" and handed them to different persons as the car moved on.

Calls Come In

To The Canadian Press bureau downtown came a telephone call. The caller, asking if Kelly were a staff member, said he had a note about a near-accident but wanted nothing to do with "this dramatic writing"—and gave no details.

A few seconds later, another caller sought confirmation of Kelly's status, then said he "must be a bum" to report such things. He didn't say what was in Kelly's note.

A third call followed immediately. The caller, out of breath, identified himself as an employee of the Bell Telephone Company and promptly read Kelly's bulletin. A fourth caller, unidentified, did the same.

This story is by way of thanks to those fellows who helped a reporter in a tough spot.

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Robert Martin, returning officer for Toronto Bracondale in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election, said yesterday that careful scrutiny of the riding voters' lists has revealed close to 1,500 names padded onto the lists in the south end of the riding. He said the lists now show 27,000 eligible voters in the riding, approximately 3,000 fewer than in the 1948 election.

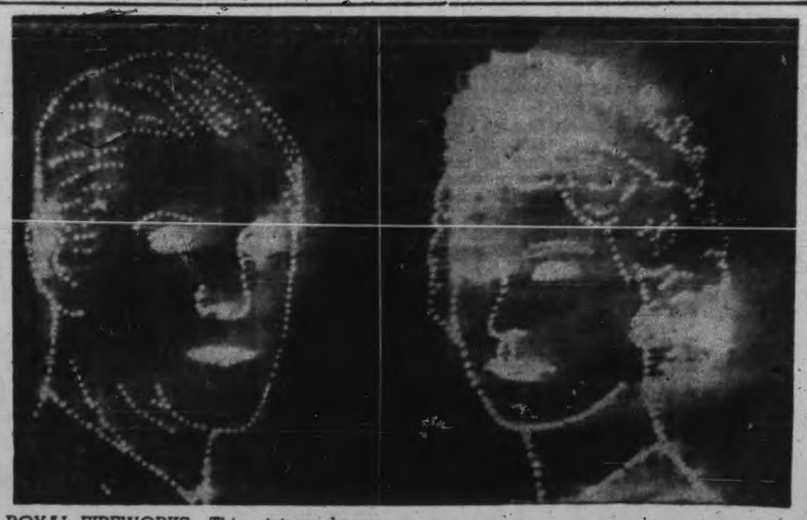
Hospital Costs Vary Too Much

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP) — C. J. Telfer, director of the public and private hospitals division of the Ontario Health Department, today expressed "concern" over extreme differences in reported hospital costs.

Speaking at the Ontario Hospital Association's convention, he used as an example 12 hospitals in group A during 1950. They reported the daily cost of maintaining a patient as from $7.50 to $14.52. Other groups reported even more extreme differences from hospital to hospital.

"Personally," said Mr. Telfer, "I have no hesitation in saying that I don't believe these wide differences exist, notwithstanding financial statements certified by hospital auditors or so-called auditors."



He urged the hospitals to ensure the reports were accurate, and to seek help from the association if they could not issue accurate reports themselves. He said the government did not have adequate staff to help each hospital.

"I am inclined to the view that you would be well advised not to encourage too much supervision at any level of government as long as you have your own association to call on."

Hallowe'en Party At Alderville School

BONARLAW, Nov. 1 (ENS).—St. Mark's Sunday School held a Hallowe'en party in the basement of the church on Monday night, with an attendance of nearly 100, with 73 in costume. Charles Wellman acted as chairman and Mrs. J. Eggit, Mrs. George Wellman, and Everitt Heath as judges.

Prizes were given for best couple, best actor, most original, best comic, and several others after the parade, a program following, with speeches, songs, readings, contests, and games. Mrs. Neal, on behalf of the Sunday School, thanked all present. Each child was presented with a bag of candy.

Make Study Of High Hospital Costs

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP) — Money matters—the high cost of hospital care and variations between hospitals—occupied delegates to the Ontario Hospitals Association convention Wednesday. They also elected a new slate of officers.

D. J. B. Neilson, superintendent of Hamilton general hospital, had blunt words to say about costs:

"If hospital costs are not cut down, you are going to lose your hospitals."

He said prepaid hospital plans were the only reasonable method of "taking the financial bite out of hospital illness," but if costs continue to rise, premiums would become too high for most Ontario citizens.

If this happened, he said, the government would take over the hospitals and operate them.

The association passed a resolution asking the government for extended supplementary grants to take care of indigent patients, a grant to nursing schools and increased grants for hospital construction to take care of rising construction costs.

R. J. Weatherill of St. Catharines was elected president of the association and C. N. Weber of Kitchener, president-elect. W. M. Gray of Chatham was named first vice-president.

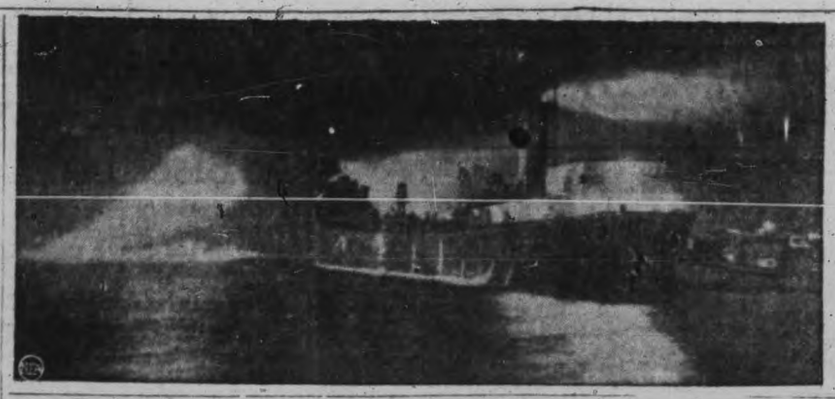
Dog Trudges 1,800 Miles To Find His Old Owners

MORRIS, Minn., Nov. 1 (AP) —Skippy's feet are swollen and raw. He's awfully tired. And he has several long cuts on his underside.

The mongrel dog deserted his new master and trudged a weary 1,800 miles. But somehow he managed to find his old owners in their new home in Morris, a community far from the pet's familiar surroundings.

"It's just unbelievable," said Mrs. Roger Fossen as she nursed Skippy's sores today.

Skippy's return to the Fossen's came just eight months after they had moved here from Seattle.



Sunday night, Fossen heard a noise at the door. He investigated and returned to bed, telling his wife, "It's just a dog."

The scratching and whining persisted. An hour later, Mrs. Fossen got up, went to the door and turned on the porch light.

"Gee, it looks like Skippy," she called to her husband.

At the word "Skippy," the dog got so excited he just about knocked the woman down.

Then the Fossens realized it was Skippy.

FIERY COLLISION—Flames shoot skyward from the oil barge Morania (left) and the freighter Penobscot, after they collided in Buffalo, N.Y., harbor. The Coast Guard said 17 men were dead or missing in the worst marine disaster in Buffalo waterfront history. Fire swept the barge, the freighter and the tug Dauntless which was pushing the Morania.

Planned Invasion

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 1—(AP)—Iranian police have seized Communist orders showing that Russia planned a lightning invasion of northern Iran if Britain landed troops at the oil refinery town of Abadan in the south, it was reported Wednesday. A high authority who refused to be named said detailed plans for a swift Communist coup with Soviet military support were among documents found in a police raid on underground Tudeh (Communist) party headquarters here last Saturday.

A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, Nov. 1st — I could hardly believe that those snow-white hands were mine! I'd grown so used to seeing them rough and red after dishwashing and housecleaning. (Those new detergents are grand for cleaning — but not so good for hands!) Then I discovered that my favourite JERGENS LOTION was the very thing to smoo-oth 'n' soothe detergent-dry hands! Because Jergens is liquid it quickly supplies the softening, smoothing moisture that dry, thirsty skin needs. When you use Jergens after every watery chore, your hands will stay soft and smooth as rose petals. Yes, truly! Do try it. Keep a bottle handy in both kitchen and bathroom. Just 15c, 37c, 65c and $1.15.

Even The Humble Potato is glamourous — flavoured with the beefy-goodness of BOVRIL (m-mmm! — taste that same savoury flavour you get in a cup of Bovril!) — in this recipe for Potatoes au Gratin—

2 cubes or 2 tsp. Bovril
2 c. diced potatoes
1/2 c. grated American cheese
1 1/2 c. white sauce
Salt and pepper
Buttered crumbs
1 onion, diced

Boil the potatoes and onion five minutes in water to which 1 tsp. or cube of Bovril has been added. Drain, cover with white sauce (in which the other cube or tsp. of Bovril has been dissolved) and add salt and pepper to taste. Turn into a buttered casserole and cover with buttered crumbs and grated cheese. Bake 45 min. in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.). Serves 4 to 6.

Delicious! Yes, you'll find as I have that whatever you make — Bovril makes it better! Buy Bovril from your grocer today.

I Refuse To Get Low about sky-high food prices when there are so many good ways to save money. One of my favourite money-savers is delicious, country fresh BLUE BONNET margarine. You're in for a very pleasant surprise . . . and so is your budget! Yes, you get your money's worth of goodness when you buy Blue Bonnet. And, by the way, Blue Bonnet's famous YELLOW QUIK bag is now even stronger than ever. I know of no easier or faster way to colour margarine!

Baby Measures Up to your expectations — when he grows strong and happy on a baby-wise diet. That's why so many mothers insist on foods made specially for baby . . . wholesome, nourishing foods like those good Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals — and, a little later — HEINZ STRAINED BABY FOODS. Meat products, soups, vegetables and desserts — they're all expertly blended to give baby extra nourishment—all cooked to baby-ready digestibility. All you do is take them from the tin—warm them up and serve. And, mother — when baby is a little older—he'll need HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS to help build strong bones and a sturdy little body. Ask your dealer for Heinz Baby and Junior Foods! You know they're good because they're Heinz.

Hinting Season Is Here. Now is the time to start making it known that your heart's desire for Christmas is a new FRIGIDAIRE REFRIGERATOR. Next time your "better half" struggles to chip and pry ice cubes out of your old refrigerator, tell him how Frigidaire's Double-Easy Quickube Trays release tray and cubes at a finger touch . . . next time he complains about the refrigerator being too crowded, tell him how Frigidaire's super-storage design gives more food storage space — more frozen storage — more shelf space — in short, more of everything you want. I think he'll be convinced — particularly if you head him into your nearby Frigidaire dealer's. As a businessman, he'll appreciate the wonderful trade-in deal he can make . . . not to mention the budget payment terms.

There's The Rub! With winter about to snow and blow colds in on us again, there's one sure way to get quick relief from chest cold misery — just rub in BEN-GAY (Baume Bengué) and rub out "Peter Pain"! I find that whether "Peter Pain" strikes in a cold or headache, this rub-in breaks up congestion and gives happy relief, along with a soothing, nice warm feeling. It does the trick too, in chasing away muscular aches and strains. Ben-Gay is easy to apply . . . just rub it on the aching areas — yes, it's kind, even to a child's tender skin — and see how quickly you feel better. Always keep Ben-Gay on hand — the generous tube costs just 75c at your druggist's.

There's Lots Of Z-s-ip to this Season's popular Skirt - and - Blouse Fashion! Particularly when your blouse-and-skirt "twosomes" are zippered with LIGHTNING SLIDE FASTENERS! So here's a tip when you're buying . . . the handsome new, snug-fitting blouse designs require Lightning Style No. 702 for becoming fit. If your skirt is lightweight, Style 702 will be just right for it, too. If it's heavyweight, better buy Lightning Style No. 805. Never before have zippers played such an important part in fashion . . . blouse sleeves and those new turtle-neck-lines need them . . . and, for skirts, full or sleek — they're a must. But be sure your zipper is a Lightning! It's flexible. It's durable — and it has that "one-and-only" self-locking automatic slider that never, never slips!

Exciting — Gorgeous — Completely Delicious . . . is that the way you like your desserts? Then here's a dessert recipe you'll love. London Sees Styles Smart, Modestly Priced

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON (CP). — Suits and dresses with a fashion-plate look, at prices most working girls can afford, were shown to a large audience of women in London's Coliseum, well-known theatre in St. Martin's Lane.

Sponsored by a popular woman's magazine, the show was aimed to give women, rather than buyers, some idea of the wealth of up-to-date styles and colors obtainable at prices suited to every pocket.

Costing as low as £3 and fashioned to suit all tastes, styles ranged from the classic button-through dress with its easy pleating to tight-skirted Paris fashions with peg-top skirts, hip draping and balloon sleeves.

For 5£ to £8 there were clothes even the fastidious might find suitable for "that special date." Much of the lure, however, lies in the choice of clever accessories.

Black suits and dresses with stark simplicity of line were highlighted by such contrasts as jade-green hat and gloves. The new charcoal greys might be teamed with leopard muff and fur-trimmed hat.

"Lady In Black"

A sophisticated "lady in black" outfit worn with black accessories and priced at £7 10s. had a flowing line to the wide, waist-deep grosgrain revers that matched a grosgrain over-flap to the apron front. The only touch of color to this dolman-sleeved dress with its wing-cuff, three-quarter sleeve was a metallic spot in gold throughout.

For the more conservative there were classic styles in unobtrusive checks such as the straight-skirted dress with big flap pockets, double-breasted shirt-top and three-quarter cuffed sleeves priced at £6 12s.

Three-piece outfits with small slim-skirted suits under box swagger coats cost 19 guineas and could be found in different styles and colors. A sportswear three-piece had classic oatmeal suit topped by a yellow-and-brown swagger coat in birdseye check.

An up-to-the-minute garment with a utility price was the black wool cloak with soft shoulderline, tiny pointed collar and red lining. Worn with black accessories over a slim black suit, it had the somewhat sinister look reminiscent of Victorian melodrama. It may also be used as a reversible evening wrap.

Afternoon and evening wear, included housecoats, cocktail two-pieces and evening dresses, all at moderate prices. A lovely housecoat in black gold-trimmed angora cost £7 10s.

Of Interest to Women

IT'S DETACHABLE — the collar, that is. A new accessory for simple off-the-shoulder cocktail gowns is the detachable collar. Janet Leigh, RKO star, shows the way in a new trend of gay changes in your winter wardrobe. Men have had them for years.

Fluffy Hair, Flowing On Black List

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS, Nov. 1—(Reuters)—Fluffy hair and flowing manes are on the black list in Paris this season.

For general wear, short or medium-length bobs are most popular. But whatever the individual style adopted, a small, neatly-shaped head is the main requisite.

Hair styles generally this winter will show a trend toward directoire coiffures. Lavish sculptured effects are featured for evening wear by leading hairdressers.

The hair is often parted in the centre or high on one side, and swept back in loose waves into a high chignon draped with jewelled combs, tiaras or velvet head bands. Front hair is often fringed forward on the cheeks and forehead in bangs or "beaux catchers."

Directoire effects are also stressed for short hair, or may be achieved with the addition of a false switch.

With the brilliant jewelled colors being worn this winter, beauty experts favor the true red shades for lipstick, rouge and nail polish. All the pale pink and blue red tones have stepped aside to make way for clear, bright reds.

One firm here features waterproof mascara. One may cry or swim without spoiling it.

New treatments introduced include "electro-peeling" which removes slack outer layers of facial skin. It also helps to firm muscles and correct double chins.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cookies By Hundreds For Bridge Party

Being the social convener of a bridge party for two hundred people is stretching my capacities. Through a variety of circumstances and because I offered to do so, I am making all of the sandwiches and about two-thirds of the cookies for the event.

Besides having to attend to the little matter of cooking three meals a day, typing a daily column plus some weekly and special newspaper assignments thrown in for good measure, and being a general housekeeper—as I say my capacities are stretched this week.

So nobody is in a much better position than I am to answer this letter from Mrs. G. Smith:

"Dear Mary Moore: For some time I have looked for a cookie recipe, a soft, spiced sugar cookie. I had these cookies years ago, and I would appreciate having a recipe for them again if you could help me. I do enjoy your column so much.—Mrs. G. Smith."

Could I help her. There are seven hundred various kinds of cookies hidden in my cold cellar this very minute. If Pete only knew!

Next week I will give you careful description of the amounts of fillings and types of fillings and numbers of sandwiches needed for two hundred people).

Aunt Rachel's Sour Cream Cookies

One-half cup butter (or margarine or other cake shortening), 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 4½ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each soda and vanilla, 1 cup sour cream, ¼ cup sugar-cinnamon mixture.

Cream the shortening and sugar together until they are light, beat in the vanilla and eggs. Sift the flour and measure it, then sift it with the salt and soda. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the sour cream, mixing well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on to greased baking sheet, spaced 3 inches apart, as these spread. Sprinkle with a cinnamon-sugar mixture of 1 tablespoon cinnamon and 3 tablespoons sugar. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 12 or 15 minutes.

Date Pinwheels

NOTE: The batter for this, without the dates, may be rolled out and used for soft spice cookies like Mrs. Smith wants.

One cup margarine (or other hard-setting shortening), 2 cups brown sugar, ½ cup granulated sugar, 3 eggs, 4 to 4½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon each salt, soda and cinnamon. Cream the shortening and sugar until fluffy then beat in the eggs. Sift the flour and measure it, then sift it again with the salt, soda and cinnamon. Beat it into the creamed mixture. Chill overnight. Divide into 3 parts to roll out for spreading with date filling. (It must be divided for it is soft to handle.) Spread with cold date filling: 1½ cups chopped dates, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup water, ½ cup chopped walnuts. Mix together and cook until fairly thick, stirring frequently. Cool and add nuts. Chill. When filling is spread on dough, roll it up, wrap it in wax paper, and chill or almost freeze. Cut with razor-sharp knife into pinwheels ⅛ inch thick. Bake at 375 deg. fahr. about 10 minutes.

Quick Macaroons

Mix in rder given, ½ cup each sugar, brown sugar, melted shortening, coacoanut, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon each salt and soda, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 mashed banana, 1 cup sifted flour, 1¾ cups quick Quaker oats, ¼ cup cream of wheat (dry cream of wheat). Drop from small spoon in drops about 1 inch in diameter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes.

Write me if you want recipe for brownies and hermits.

CYO Stages Gay Masquerade

One of the most sparkling of Hallowe'en festivities to take place this year was when more than 100 Catholic young people made merry in their various roles of ghosts, witches, clowns, gypsies, etc., at the St. Peter's CYO party Tuesday evening in the Knights of Columbus hall. Mr. Jim Byrnes and his orchestra serenaded the guests and he then conducted the ceremonies. Novelty dances were a feature of the evening and those receiving prizes were Miss Marie Sullivan and Mr. Pat Peel, Miss Margaret Gorman, Mr. Al Beavis, Miss Kay Lucas, Mr. Jerry Armstrong. A pie-eating contest was a source of merriment and Mr. Al Beavis took top honors in this, while Mr. Peter Chown proved most capable in the act of ducking for apples. During course of the evening lunch was served. Dancing continued until midnight.

Chapter News

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

An objective of 50,000 members in Canada by the end of the year has been set by the IODE, and membership conveners were asked to do a full share in this great effort by Mrs. J. Murray Campbell of Chatham, organizing secretary, told delegates at the semi-annual meeting of Provincial Chapter, IODE in Niagara Falls.

Today there are 32,000 members in 930 chapters from coast to coast dedicated to patriotic service to King, country and humanity and to promote better understanding between the people of the Commonwealth.

At the monthly meeing of Peterborough Municipal Chapter, IODE, held at the YWCA, with the regent, Miss Mary Medd, presiding. Reports were heard from three Municipal members who attended the two-day semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter, IODE.

From Peterborough eleven representatives from the six primary, one junior chapter and the Municipal Chapter attended the convention.

Mrs. C. L. Upper, Municipal educational secretary, discussed educational matters and advised that provincial scholarships and art and short story awards provided by the Lucy Morrison memorial fund will be continued and that application must be made through the chapters of the order.

Particular attention was drawn to the Commonwealth package, a concise store of information, map and attractive pictures of the Commonwealth, indispensable for use in Empire study, and recommended to pass on to the adopted schools.

She stressed that Empire building is in the schools and any contact with the youth of the country must not be overlooked. Further, it is the aim to place IODE calenders and flags in every classroom in every school and encourage saluting the flag.

Chapters are urged to budget 30 percent of their year's money to educational work. Give wholehearted support to Provincial and Municipal Bursaries already instituted. Notices of bursaries and and scholarships should be posted in Libraries and High Schools.

Chapters should concentrate on their adopted schools, send subscriptions of good magazines such as Canadian Geographic, National Georaphic and "The Echoes". Libraries should be started in these schools.

Mrs. C. E. Newman reporting on immigration and Canadianization gave a vivid picture of the semi-annual meeting a most colorful ceremony opened to the strains of traditional "Land of Hope and Glory." National and provincial standard bearers led the way into the crystal ballroom in a processional that for stately impressiveness will long be remembered.

In her report Mrs. Newman stated that "Now is the Time for all freedom-loving people to act. No one dare take this world revolution and clash of ideologics passively and trust to its blind violence to work out constructive answers acceptable to freedom-loving people."

"We seem too comfortable to be alarmed. It is well to remind ourselves continually we dare not gamble with our freedom. Democracy in the world to-day is a frail craft launched into the whirlpool of conflicting and destructive forces that may well cause it to disintegrate unless we continually recognize its weakness and rebuild its strength."

Miss Mary Medd, Municipal Regent, gave a general report of the convention. She spoke of child and family welfare, its important projects covering a vast field. Ten percent of all earnings is alloted to this work. The money to be spent carefully, stressing the expenditure of personal service, visiting patients in hospitals, reading to children hospitalized, assisting at Well Baby Clinics and blood banks, taking semi-invalids for drives, sending cards and remembrances to old people's home and assisting Institues for the Blind in purchasing of records of stories or plays and Braille books.

Miss Medd gave a graphic outline of the work of Ex- Service Personnel dealing with all phases of veteran's affairs. Chapters were asked to adopt a hospital bed for veteran's. Names of veterns in hospitals or sanitoriums and their needs would be supplied and chapters are urged to work for the needs and comforts of these men and women.

Speaking of Commonwealth and Empire Affairs, apoeals are made for funds for the Christian Nurse's Association in mid-India, which is used to have text-books translated into Hindi, the Indian language which the new government is trying to make the universal language for the whole of India.

Miss Medd impressed upon members the importance of continuing with Post-War Services and expressed the hope that Chapters would keep interest alive in this much needed enterprise.

Press and publicity conveners are reminded they are a liaison officer, and a channel through which news goes out to the public. They are asked to be brief, and colorful. She urged press conveners get over to the public the importance of the Chapter and its work in the community. It is strongly recommended to keep Chapter scrapbooks, which are invaluable records and a source of knowledge.

Miss Medd's closing remarks challenged every member to make their in fluence felt, for the principals that ensure, guard and perpetuate democracy.

Municipal Reports

Educational Secretary Mrs. C. L. Upper announced she has I. O. D. E. calenders for each Chapter and asked regents to take calenders required. She urged Chapters to give year's subscription to "Echoes" to any student receiving a scholarship or bursary or assistance from a Chapter, therefore familiarizing each student with the work of the Order.

June Fraser, film convener asked each Chapter to arrange a film night and use films as a means toward discussion of various branches of IODE work.

Mrs. W. Gordon Hall has offered support to enable the continuance of the Mary K. Birdsall Chapter with Wanda Deyell as Regent.

Arrangements were made for the placing of a wreath on the cenotaph on Armistice Day. In the absence of the regent, Mrs. George Barns will perform this honor for the Municipal Chapter.

Yearly Check-Ups If Over 40 To Detect Cancer

HAMILTON, Oct. 31 — (CP) — More than 600 delegates and members from local Women's Institute branches, meeting in the second and final day of the Hamilton area convention, were told today that every woman over 40 should have a complete check-up once a year as a safeguard against cancer.

Dr. Dorothy Mann, noted gynaecologist, said that the disease could be conquered if it was discovered soon enough. Regular check-ups would insure detecting cancer in its early stages.

Dr. Mann is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan B. Mann of Smith Township.

PARIS GOWN—White Chantilly lace, embroidered all over with angora wool is used for this evening shirtwaist dress. The collar and belt are of stitched white satin.

New Woman Doctor Has Many Friends In North

WINNIPEG —(CP)— A telegram of good wishes from some 3,000 persons in the north was a great inspiration to Dr. Hanna Kratz, taking an examination here to qualify for a permanent practice in Canada.

The message was sent on behalf of 1,200 Indians, 1,000 half-breeds and 800 whites in the community of Fort Vermilion, Alta., 600 miles north of Edmonton. Dr. Kratz and her husband, Dr. Julius Kratz, arrived at Fort Vermilion in 1949 to take over the medical care of the community.

Fort Vermilion, subject to severe winters, had had no doctor before the Kratz couple arrived after years of wandering as political refugees.

Julius and Hanna graduated in 1932 from a school of medicine at Frankfurst, Germany. Hanna, an anti-Nazi, fled to England when Hitler came to power and Julius fled to escape concentration camp. They were married in London and then went to Palestine.

Worked In Quebec

For 14 years they practised together in Jerusalem, where their two children were born. Then the war between the Jews and Arabs forced them out. They reached Canada in 1948 and worked for a year in Quebec as internes. With a licence as interim practitioners they went to Fort Vermilion.

Dr. Hanna Kratz took the final stages of her Medical Council of Canada examinations here this month. Dr. Julius passed the examination last year. He is coroner and medical health officer at Fort Vermilion.

"We shall never be rich," Dr. Hanna confessed, "but we love the people and the life at Fort Vermilion. We find it cold after the heat in Palestine. Last winter the temperature went down to 65 below and stayed there for six weeks.

"Our patients come to us by horse sleigh and dog sleigh when the roads are too bad for travelling by car. But we have a hospital and my parents are with us. And thanks to the oil companies, we have some good roads. We do not want to leave."

"Stardust Ball" Comes This Week

Most anticipated event for "The 325" of Peterborough, (those who have tickets to the Stardust Ball) is the annual dance of the Col. Agnes Neil Chapter, IODE, coming this Friday evening at the Club Aragon. This dance is the "most anticipated" because it is the one at which "it is the woman who pays"—she buys the ticket.

For this one dance the lady must also provide herself with a corsage and she usually provides a boutonniere for her escort, in spite of the fact that he seldom gets one for himself when he is taking her to a dance. And some of these escorts will insist that she pay the taxi and buy them something to eat after the dance.

The girls make it among the loveliest of dances by decorating extensively and most of the Chapter members take part in this work. The dance arrangements are in charge of social convener Mrs. R. Beck and her assistant, Miss Eleanor Jobbitt, and their committee includes Misses Dorothy Allan, Marjorie Benson, Eleanor Cameron and Eleanor Taylor and Mrs. J. Cranfield, Mrs. R. Huffman, Mrs. W. Loomis, Mrs. L. Routley and Mrs. C. Wark.

In the receiving line will be the regent, Mrs. H. G. Shaw and Mr. Shaw, the vice-regent, Miss Marjorie Benson and Mrs. W. C. Durant, Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter, Alderman Douglas Miller and Mrs. Miller, and the Hon. Harold R. Scott and Mrs. Scott.

19-Year-Old Girl British Pilot

LONDON—(CP)—One of the newest recruits, the youngest pilot in the Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve is 19-year-old Barbara Pickett of London, who saved hard to earn the money for flying lessons.

Barbara decided she wanted to be a pilot a few years ago but she was not earning much money as a typist and needed £120 to pay forf lying lessons. She cycled to work to save train fare, went without new clothes and took holiday jobs to earn more money.

Eventually the day came when she had enough to pay for a flying course. That was 15 months ago, and from civil aircraft to the Royal Air Force was a logical step. When the Air Ministry ruled that persons with flying licences might join the volunteer reserve, Barbara was among the first to apply.

She has just flown an RAF Tiger Mother for the first time, after 40 hours flying.

PAUDASH SCHOOL

The new three-room modern school which is the pride of Paudash community was open for a meeting of parents from various parts of this large school area for the purpose of organizing a Home and School club. There were about 45 parents in attendance from the scattered area.

Mr. Robert Watson, principal of the school, called the meeting to order and all joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer. Mr. Watson then introduced Mrs. A. W. Nelson of the Federation of Home and School, from Peterborough whose purpose it was to give to the gathering the policy and aims of the Home and School Association. These added up to promoting a closer relationship between parent and teacher.

Meeting together to discuss their problems, parents receive a better understanding of school affairs and so could co-operate with the teacher for the benefit of child, parent and teacher. Mrs. Nelson explained that Home and School meetings were not a means of entertainment. Home and School affairs would come first. With full and free discussions of all problems at meetings a better understanding could be brought about and discipline in the school made easier by the understanding between parents and teacher.

Suggesting that with the co-operation of all the inspector, school board, principal, teacher and parents work together as a team, thus would home, school and community be working together for the betterment of all.

At this point Mrs. Nelson introduced Mrs. V. Reynolds of Peterborough, leadership training convener, who read the Home and School Creed and gave explanations of the hand book.

On behalf of the school and community Mr. Graham thanked the ladies for outlining Home and School activities. Mrs. Nelson responded to the thanks and closed by giving the quality that would constitute a good member as "one willing to take an active part when asked."

Mr. A. W. Smith, BA recently appointed school inspector spoke briefly, expressing pleasure that the community favoured the organization of a Home and School group and offering his co-operation in the activities. An enjoyable lunch was served by a committee of local ladies bringing to a close a pleasant and informative evening.

Middle-Aged Loneliness Take Care In Sharing Home

Of Interest to Women

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother died a few months ago, leaving me alone at 54. About the same time, a man I know was widowed. His wife and I had been friends many years. I invited George to my house for dinner a few times, and offered him a home just to stay in the house at night. I am terribly frightened alone. The idea seemed to appeal to him but I haven't heard from him for several weeks. He never calls me up. Should I continue to telephone him or forget it? He really does need someone to look after him, and I will do most anything to keep from living alone. I own property and have a good living at my profession, so I need no financial aid.

ANSWER: Still grieving over the loss of your mother, and bewildered at facing the world alone for the first time in your life, you are in no position to make a rational decision concerning your future. Don't make a hasty decision and don't be in too much of a hurry to open your home to anyone just to assuage your solitude. It's hard to believe, I know, but time does heal all wounds. With your profession, which is an exacting one, friends, and an outside hobby to pursue, you will adapt yourself soon to a new life and, most important, will lose the terrible feeling of loneliness which now besets you.

He's Not Interested

Since George failed to follow up your offer of a home I take it he's not interested and perhaps it is better that way. Having a man share your house would only lead to gossip, which could easily hurt you considerably in your work. If you feel you must have someone in the house why not another woman your own age, or a young couple who would sincerely appreciate a home? Whatever steps you decide to take, think them over carefully. It's very easy to get people into your house; getting them out should they prove undesirable is another matter entirely. Perhaps the pastor of your church could recommend some congenial lady to you; don't take anyone in who isn't recommended through a trustworthy source.

DEAR MISS DIX: When I was a girl going to school, for some reason I couldn't learn. I studied hard but just couldn't understand or remember what I studied. My only good marks were A's in Home Economics. I have a bad inferiority complex because of my ignorance. Now I am 28, married and have three little girls. More than ever I want to learn something for I wonder what would happen if I had to support my family. What could I study as a trade?

RAM

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly do have an inferiority complex and there's no reason for it. You're not nearly as stupid as you seem to think. Your letter is well written. As for a trade, you have the best one a woman could have. You're a good housekeeper and a fine mother. If you ever had to support your family, that is the trade for you. If you want to continue studying why not do so in the field of home economics? Books on the subject are readily available from any library, and your librarian will gladly give you any assistance you want in choosing them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My nephew has been going with a girl for about five years. He is 19 and she is about the same age. They are planning to marry soon and the girl is urging him to make it an early wedding since she does not get along with her sister. The boy does not make much money and has nothing saved. Don't you think it would be better if they waited a year or so?

CR

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your nephew's girl has about the flimsiest excuse for rushing a wedding I ever heard of. The young man should have some financial standing before undertaking the support of a wife.

See Lakehead As Hub Of Big Industry

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Fort William and Port Arthur Wednesday night were seen as the hub of a giant iron and steel industry, a large oil refinery, and harbors for ocean-going vessels from all over the world.

Premier Frost painted this picture of the Lakehead cities in an address in the city hall auditorium.

With "Northern development" the keynote of his address, the premier asked the Lakehead for full support of these government convictions, which he said were "a logical and feasible step in the development of Canada."

Lands and Forest Minister Scott also address the political rally in support of Clare Mapledoram, Fort William Progressive Conservative candidate.

Defends Policies.

Mr. Scott defended the forest management policies of the Ontario government. He said it was correcting the forest management errors made by governments of the last 100 years.

Premier Frost said that gas and oil from Alberta could be refined at the Lakehead and that the availability of Alberta fuel would help create a diversified industry here. This could be the beginning of a substantial iron and steel industry.

He also promised that paving of Highway 61 from Pigeon River to the Lakehead would be completed "by this time next year."

Fort William and Port Arthur, he added, hold the envisable position of being "the doorstep of the world."

Improper Blasting Killed 12 Miners

KAYFORD, W.Va., Nov. 1 (AP) —The coal-mine explosion which killed 12 men Wednesday was caused by improper blasting by the crew, the West Virginnia Mines Department reported today.

A department spokesman said the crew apparently placed several dynamite "shots" under some overhanging slate to loosen it, and the resulting blast ignited the coal dust in the air.

He said the manner in which it was done is forbidden.

Seven bodies were removed during the afternoon and the last five just before dark.

The mine owned by the Traux-Traer Coal Co., is located about 35 miles southwest of Charleston.

Albert College Beaten 7-6 By Campbellford

Campbellford High School sewed up the Bay of Quinte senior "B" football league Wednesday with a slim 7-6 victory over the first place Albert College in Belleville. This win gives Campbellford a record of six wins in seven games and ties them with Albert College who were unbeaten until Wednesday's game.

Both the teams have one more game to play, not against each other They have agreed to play a sudden-death game if there is a tie for first The winner will likely play either Whitby or Bowmanville, the only senior "B" teams in the Lake Ontario district.

The clash between the two districts will be a COSSA semi-final, the winner advancing into the finals either in the Georgian Bay or Niagara districts. This will be the first time that a "B" COSSA final has been held.

The win for Campbellford was just eked out as the college gridders pounded down to the Campbellford one-yard line on the last few plays of the game. Albert College carried to the three, where a quarterback sneak carried to the one-yard line. There the Campbellford line held twice as Albert College tried for a major instead of a kick to deadline to tie the game.

Campbellford had led up to the three-quarter mark 7-0 on a scoring play featuring a pass from Paul Bennett to Jim Jeffs. Jeffs added the extra point. Later Ross kicked the game-winning point.

Albert College's score came on the second play of the fourth fourth quarter after a pressing attack forced Campbellford back.

Eccles Named Works Minister

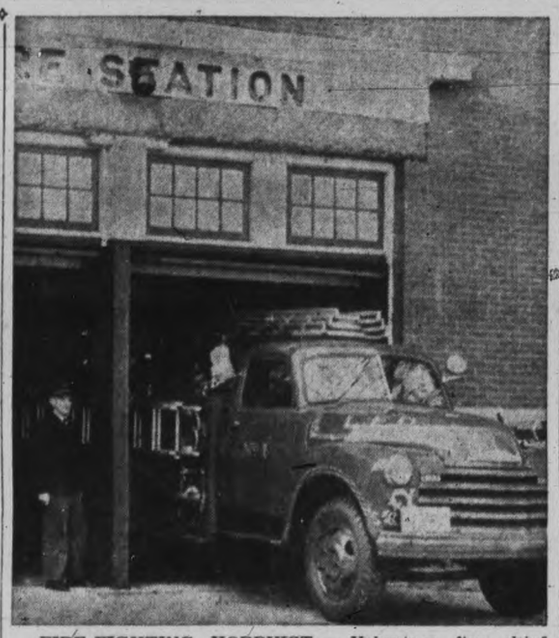
LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill chose economist David Eccles today to be Minister of Works.

Eccles, 47, is one of the most outspoken leaders of the young progressive group in the Conservative party. His new job is one of the lesser ministerial posts. The ministry supervises construction and maintenance of public buildings.

During the war Eccles worked in the ministries of production and economic warfare, and was economic adviser to the British Ambassadors to Madrid and Lisbon. Since the war he has been a member of the British delegation to the Council of Europe.

Eccles also was named to the Privy Council.

His appointment as a minister was the 35th by Churchill since he took office last Friday.



Two Vehicles Damaged

Both vehicles were damaged slightly in an accident at the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke Sts., at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

John J. Stocker, River Road, Campbellford, was driving north on Aylmer St., when he slowed down to make a right turn on to Sherbrooke St.

A truck travelling behind Mr. Stocker driven by Wesley M. McClure, RR 2, Hastings, was unable to stop before crunching into the rear of the Stocker car.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

FIRE-FIGHTING HOBBYIST — Volunteer fire chief Allan Clark of Lakefield is now in his 26th year of his favorite hobby, fighting fires. Since his first experiences at fire-fighting he has seen the change from steam fire engines and horse-drawn wagons to the up-to-date fire trucks. Chief Clark (at left, top) discusses the future with Ken Morris, village councillor, before regulation charts. Mr. Clark (at right, middle) points out work for work clerk, Mrs. Madge Varty, in the grocery store which he manages in Peterborough. Proudly Mr. Clark (lower photo) stands in front of the small village station as his newest truck moves out for inspection.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Firefighting Just a Hobby For Lakefield Fire Chief, Served 26 Years On Force

From steam and horse-drawn fire wagons to the modern up-to-date fire trucks, Fire Chief Allan Clark, Lakefield, has followed his favorite hobby, fire-fighting. And for a man who chose this unusual offtime work 26 years ago, Mr. Clark has gone a long way in that field.

Chief Clark's first introduction to his fire-fighting hobby was in 1914 when he was assistant chief in Lakefield. Those were the days of the now ancient steam fire engine.

But his fire-fighting experience then was cut short by actual combat fighting when he joined the 93rd battalion, CEF in 1915. After his return from overseas he worked for a time in Timmins, then returned to Lakefield where he entered the grocery business.

Appointed Chief

Once more in Lakefield his interest in fire-fighting as a hobby began in earnest. In 1925 he was appointed chief of the Lakefield fire department and he is still holding down that position on a volunteer basis.

He took over the chief's duties from W. L. Webster and for one year worked with only the old-fashioned horse-drawn equipment. Then the volunteer department became motorized with its first truck.

Chief Clark said today "Right now we're up with the Joneses as far as equipment is concerned."

Proudly he pointed out the newest of the two-truck brigade. It was bought in 1947 and is as modern as any equipment in the Peterborough department. The second truck, bought in 1930, was remodelled in 1947 to bring the volunteer brigade's equipment up to present day standards.

Store Manager

A grocery store manager in Peterborough during the daytime Chief Clark has a varied group of men to work with. Many of the 25 volunteers work in Peterborough factories but the others are merchants, garage men and other workers in the village.

His staff is well trained in fire-fighting. Once a month an instructional period is conducted by Chief Clark on various phases of fighting fires such as working on the hose and ladders, first aid, rescue work, gas and salvage operations.

Two of his instructors, Ray Jackman and Carson Webster, have had a week's instruction with the Toronto Fire Department while the chief has taken numerous courses in all phases.

Average 40 Calls

During his 26 years as chief, Mr. Clark has fought several serious fires including the Midland House fire, the $15,000 fire at Erskine hardware store six years ago and more recently the Wannamaker restaurant fire. The department has averaged 40 calls a year.

His hobby and grocery work do not take all his time. Since his return to Lakefield in 1925 he has been secretary-treasurer of the Lakefield band, served a term on the village council, five years on the high school board and two years on the Lakefield district high school board.

His hobby has taken on a national aspect. One year after he became chief in Lakefield he joined the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, becoming assistant secretary-treasurer in 1939 and then secretary-treasurer in 1945. This work takes him from one end of the country to the other.

Before he retires, Chief Clark would like to se a new department building and further equipment to meet the needs of the growing community.

HANDY MEASURE

The cubit, ancient measure of distance, was the length of a man's forearm from elbow to the end of the middle finger.

Plan Comparison Of Costs In Big Cities

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP)—Government statisticians early next year hope to start compiling a complete analytical comparison of living costs among major cities in Canada.

The aim of the Bureau of Statistics is to be able to say whether, for example, it costs more to live in Toronto or Montreal, Halifax or Vancouver, or other large regional communities.

Currently, the bureau publishes retail price lists for 35 cities on a monthly basis, but the listings include only foodstuffs and coal.

The monthly Labor Gazette can tell you, for instance, that in July the cost of sirloin steak was $1.33 a pound at Chicoutimi, Que., and only 95 cents a pound as Saskatoon.

Milk sold for 16 cents a quart at Charlottetown and 29 cents a quart at St. Johns, Nfld., and coal $24.65 a ton at Toronto and $29 a ton at Timmins, Ont.

Difficult Problem

But the bureau finds it difficult to say whether for example a bedroom suite costs more at Vancouver than at Halifax, or whether a suit of clothes is more expensive at Regina than at Ottawa.

It gathers figures which it uses to compile monthly point changes in regional cost-of-living indexes, but these are not considered sufficiently refined for public use on a comparative basis.

Next year the bureau hopes to get statisticians and legmen on the job of making a detailed cost-of-living comparison, principally to help many business men answer such questions as to whether they should pay branch employees more at Vancouver than Montreal, because of cost-of-living trends.

Meanwhile, the bureau's attention is focussed on the more immediate job of preparing the general cost-of-living index for September.

The index, in August, stood at a peak 189.8, after increasing 0.9 points from 188.9. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

The index increase was the smallest since last April and gave rise to reports that at last a period of economic stability had been reached.

Skull Fractured

then went over to the car which according to Johnson had stopped in the middle of the street. Then Johnson said he drove the car to his home at 265 Hunter St., West, and phoned the police.

Dominic Miao, who lives at 149 Lake St., told constables Jack Wilson and Ed. Patterson who found Bryan lying half on the sidewalk and half on street that he had seen a man go over and feel the pulse of the man lying in the street, then jump in his car and drive away. Mr. Maio said he did not get the car's licence number.

Police reported there were skid marks on the pavement, indicating that the car had skidded about 58 feet before colliding with a post. Part of a door handle and broken glass were imbedded in the post.

Acting Sergeant Mesley reported that Johnson was under the influence of alcohol when he was brought to the police station at 12:05 am and charged with driving while impaired and leaving the scene of an accident.

Gladys Long

"Well, even if it was a road sign, why didn't you get back?" continued Mr. Carley.

"I didn't think it was necessary," said Miss Long. "It was just a road sign."

Miss Long swore that she had consumed no alcohol that day. In fact, she had taken none since she started on her trip from Montreal to Lindsay, some 30 hours before.

(Crown witnesses Clem Galvin, assistant manager of the Empress, and Mrs. Lilian Buss, desk clerk, both testified that they could smell alcohol on Miss Long's breath.

(And Mrs. Buss said the accused woman walked unsteadily and she had to take the money, crumpled in Miss Long's hand, out of her hand to pay for the hotel bill. Twice Miss Long leaned on something for support, said Mrs. Buss, and she looked tired and ill.)

Severe Toothache

Miss Long said she checked into the hotel the night before after her drive from Montreal. She had a severe toothache and could get little if any sleep during the night.

To kill the pain she took aspirin and "oil of smoke" (tooth drops). Perhaps it was this "oil of smoke" that the hotel witnesses smelled, she said.

Miss Long said that she arrived in Lindsay about 4:30 pm, showed her mother the damage to her car, and then went shopping. When she telephoned home to check on the grocery list her mother told her that the Provincial Police were looking for her.

She went to I. E. Weldon, Lindsay lawyer, and presented herself at the police station at 9 pm.

Altogether Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, called 20 witnesses to make his case against Miss Long.

Some of the testimony given by witnesses Edward Blackwell, 64 Aylmer St., and John Bransom, 300 McGill St., at the preliminary hearing was ruled inadmissible by Justice W. F. Spence.

As a result of this Crown Attorney Bradshaw did not call Mr. Bransom at all and Mr. Blackwell was limited to describing Miss Long's actions when she got out of the car on Murray St.

Blackwell told the court he was sitting in his car, parked on the south side of Murray St., when he saw Miss Long get out of her car some 175 feet away.

Held Onto Car

"She walked around the back of the car to the right-hand side where she opened the door," said Mr. Blackwell. "As she walked around she was holding onto the car with both hands."

He thought she swept something from the floorboards and then she walked back around the car, this time holding onto the vehicle with one hand.

He said the accused woman got into the car, sat there for a little while, lit a cigarette, and drove away toward Aylmer St.

As the car passed Mr. Blackwell said he observed that Miss Long's hair was dishevelled and she looked tired.

Roy Sanderson, father of the fatally-injured boy, said the last he saw of David was when he was riding along the highway on his bicycle, together with his chum Peter Newmaster. David was in perfect health, he said.

Mr. Sanderson confirmed the testimony of Charles Touchburn that the marks of two bicycles could be seen in the sand at the east edge of the highway.

HERE ARE KEY MINISTERS in the new British Conservative cabinet of Winston Churchill. Churchill himself serves in the dual role of prime minister and defence minister. Number two man is Anthony Eden (Upper Right), serving as foreign secretary. Third-ranking man is Richard A. Butler (Upper Left), who as chancellor of the exchequer, must tackle Britain's grave economic problems. War-time food minister Lord Woolton (Lower Right) becomes lord president of the council with supervision over food and agriculture. The Marquis of Salisbury (Lower Left) as the lord privy seal, will be Churchill's trouble-shooter and leader in the House of Lords.

Puzzled US Schooling Produces Dynamic Men

LONDON, Nov. 1 (Reuters). — Two British exchange teams recently returned from a United States visit Wednesday confessed themselves both puzzled and impressed about two aspects of American life.

Twelve British industrial educationalists, members of an Anglo-American council of productivity team, said they could not understand how the casual atmosphere of American schools produced dynamic and able men in industry.

In their report published Wednesday they said they found hard work, perseverance, thoroughness, enterprise and efficiency in American industry.

But in the schools the team felt that the level of attainment was not high. There was a lack of self-defined standards and a casual approach to their work by teachers and pupils.

"How this produces the dynamic, able men of industry is the parody of American education," they concluded.

A British footwear productivity team also issued a report Wednesday. They were impressed by the tendency among all grades of workers in the United States to shed their coats while working.

Quick On Uptake

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — (CP)—Prince Philip is quick on the uptake. He showed it Wednesday night at a press reception when a Texas reporter said to him: "I'm sorry you can't get to Texas." Said the Prince: "We're sorry, too. But Calgary is the next thing to it."

Ask Government Not To Act On Resale Prices

By FORBES RHUDE.

QUEBEC, Nov. 1 — (CP). — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce Wednesday asked the government to take no present action on its proposed legislation concerning resale price maintenance.

It urged that the government "exercise restraint" until the chamber can obtain the views of its 700 member Boards of Trade and Chambers across the country; and that, in any event, no action be taken at this session of Parliament.

The resolution brought the most prolonged debate of the current three-day annual meeting, in an afternoon session which saw the chamber pass a large number of other resolutions and policy declarations.

The proposed legislation would bar manufacturers from naming the price at which their products should be sold by retail stores, a practice which is estimated to affect about 15 per cent of Canadian retail trade, including such products as electrical appliances and drug store items.

Public Confused

Several speakers said the public confuses the idea of a producer naming the price at which his own particular product should be sold, with the idea of a group of producers "combining" to fix prices. They said competition among producers prevented any of them from fixing an unduly high price.

S. C. Atkinson of Regina said "nothing could be further from the truth" than the statement that resale price maintenance by individual producers is a "monopolistic practice." He said well-known "brand names" assure quality, and that the better known a product is, the more likely it is to be "squeezed" on its profit margin.

R. J. Keelan of Sarnia said consumers think the proposed legislation is in their interests, whereas "it could work against the consumer. It would lower retail efficiency and ethics, and might lead to flim-flamming of the public, which the retailer can do if he is forced to do it to make a profit."

Indian-Made Gifts For Royal Children

The presentation was made by Josephine Ripley, of the Women's National Press Club at a special press reception for the Prince and Princess.

The headdress of 18 American eagle feathers tipped with smaller blue feathers was designed especially to fit Charles' head. A band of red, white and blue beads circles the front of the headdress.

About 900 newspapermen and women attended the reception.

HANNOVER, Germany, Nov. 1 (CP)—An advance unit of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade comprising 340 officers and men arrived here Wednesday night by train from Rotterdam, the Netherlands, where they had disembarked by boat.

Officers said the brigade, first to be sent to Europe since the Second World War, will have completed its transfer by the end of the year.

The advance unit was headed by Maj. M. F. Drew, of Toronto, who was welcomed at the station by Lt.-Col. H. A Phillips, who will temporarily take over command of Canadian forces in Germany.

Also present was Col. L. H. Spicer, commander of the Hannover area, British Army of the Rhine.

The entire brigade will be stationed at a British army camp at Hannover.

Speeded Up To Miss Ship

BUFFALO, NY, Nov. 1 (AP)—The skipper of the tug Dauntless testified Wednesday that he ordered full speed ahead just before the collision of lakes freighter and the barge the tug was pushing Monday night.

Capt. Thomas S. Sorenson testified before a Coast Guard board of inquiry seeking the cause of the collision that resulted in an explosion and fire that left 10 seamen apparently dead.

"I thought I could get by on the starboard side without trouble," the 48-year-old tug captain said.

The Dauntless was pushing the barge Morania-130 when the gasoline-carrying barge was rammed by the lakes freighter Penobscot.

Sorenson added his opinion that if the Penobscot had not swung to starboard seconds before the collision the tug and barge "would have got by the steamer's bow."

Sorenson told the board he has held a master's licence since 1936 but added that his papers do not permit him to operate a Coast Guard-inspected vessel on the Great Lakes. The Dauntless is not an inspected vessel.

Parkhill Stays Dry

PARKHILL, Ont., Nov. 1 (CP)—By a scant margin of 20 votes, Parkhill residents Wednesday rejected the licensing of beverage rooms in the village and decided to remain "dry" under local option in force for two decades. On the issue of men's beverage rooms 340 residents cast votes in favor while only 262 opposed their opening. This gave the affirmatives a little more than 56 per cent of the total votes. A percentage of 60 per cent was necessary to change the legislation.

70 mph Gale Topples Trees At Massena

MASSENA, NY, Nov. 1 (AP)—A gale, whipping up to 70 miles an hour, roared through this Canadian border town Wednesday, blowing over trees, knocking down power lines and damaging property.

Seventy-four lines serving 222 telephones were put out of order at Massena, and electricity was cut off along Main Street.

At Malone, a big limb struck a truck in which Milo Blanchard was eating his lunch. He escaped injury.

At Watertown, the wind broke off tree limbs and blew in plate glass windows in some stores.

Pearson In Paris For UN Assembly; Won't Be Candidate

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Nov. 2. (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, arrived by air today to head the Canadian delegation to the United Nations sixth general assembly. Informed sources said Pearson is the top dark horse candidate for the presidency of the UN, but he countered the reports by saying he is "not a candidate." The RCAF plane carrying Pearson from London also brought Charles Spofford, a US delegate to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and three Canadian advisers. He was met by General George Vanier, Canadian ambassador to France.

Remainder of the Canadian delegation, which totals 58 including clerks, arrives Saturday.

Reports that Pearson might be a favorite for the UN presidency developed when it was learned that the Latin-American countries were deadlocked over Victor Belaunde of Peru and Padilla Nervo of Mexico.

The sources said there may be an attempt to draft Pearson if the Latin-Americans choose Belaunde at a caucus Monday because some European countries oppose the Peruvian.

Will Preside

Pearson, as chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council will preside Saturday at a meeting of the committee studying all non-military possibilities og NATO co-operation.

The five-nation ministerial committee was set up in September to promote foreign policy co-operation among the 12 Atlantic Pact partners.

Belgian, Dutch, Norwegian and Italian delegates will attend the ministerial committee meeting Pearson has called.

The committee will work with the 12-nation arms co-ordinating committee and the three-member executive.

Set up at the North Atlantic council's September meeting in Ottawa, it was charged with:

1—Co-ordination of and frequent consultation on foreign policy.

2—Closer economic, financial, and social co-operation to promote and ensure "conditions of economic stability and well-being during and after the present period of defence effort."

3—Collaboration in culture and public information.

Pearson said he would be unable to stay for the complete UN Assembly session as he would represent Canada at the Atlantic Pact council which meets in Rome later this month.

Varsity Group Develops Test For Cancer

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (CP)—The Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society said today a University of Toronto research group may have found a blood-test method of diagnosing cancer.

The test would involve a study of the amount of glumatic acid in the blood. Glumatic acid is one of the elements which help form body protein.

The division said Dr. E. W. McHenry and his co-workers at the university have established that the amount of glumatic acid in the blood is higher in patients with malignant tumors.

There is an overlap in the glumatic-acid range. Dr. McHenry's investigations show that the range among malignant-tumor cases is 1.3 to 11.8, in normal persons .5 to 2.

"This does not affect the value of Dr. McHenry's findings as a possible diagnostic method in a large number of cases," said a press statement from the Ontario division.

May Help Early Cases

It said that small, superficial cancers react on the glumatic-acid level to the same degree as large, deep-seated cancers.

"In other words, the glumatic-acid test may prove especially valuable in detecting small, early cancers at a stage when the disease may be treated most effectively. . . ."

Until now, the only test for cancer has been pathological examination of the cancers themselves.

The Ontario division said the value of Dr. McHenry's work is not yet known exactly. Additional grants from the National Cancer Institute of Canada are being provided to widen the research project's investigation in two fields.

One study will be into the mechanism by which cancer raises the glumatic-acid level among persons suffering from other diseases.

"If it is found that other diseases also raise the level of this enzyme to approximately the same range as does cancer, the test will still have value as a non-specific indication of the presence of disease.

"But the blood content of glumatic acid is increased significantly only by cancer, then a long-sought specific test, fairly easy to carry out, for the presence of cancer may have been added to man's armament against this dread disease."

Naval Surgeon Flown Home

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP).—The naval officer who says he is Joseph Cyr is being flown home from Korea to face allegations that he isn't Cyr at all.

Another medical officer, Surgeon Lieutenant David Willoughby of Toronto, is flying out to Korea to take over medical duties aboard the destroyer Cayuga.

A report from Cayuga Skipper Cmdr. James Plomer of Saint John, NB, and Winnipeg, has reached naval headquarters after a preliminary questioning of the man being investigated on the possibility that he impersonated a New Brunswick doctor in joining the navy in March.

Dr. Joseph Cyr of Grand Falls, NB, says the man in Korea may be Cecil Hamann.

The officer will come home under escort but not under arrest and will go before a court of inquiry, probably here. If found guilty of enlisting under false pretences, he would at least be discharged and might face charges in civilian court as well.

Accuse Former MPP Of Stealing Fur Coat

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Police Thursday night accused James McCausland, 77, former member of the Ontario Legislature, of stealing a $1,400 fur coat to give to a woman friend.

The friend was located, the coat seized, and a charge of theft laid against McCausland.

Police said the coat, owned by a Brantford woman, was stolen two weeks ago from a downtown club.

Police said that a year ago McCausland received $60,000 from his wife's estate. Now, they said, most of the money is gone.

WINTER WARNING — Unmistakable proof winter is on the way came from Minnesota, where as much as 9½ inches of snow fell in some parts of the state. Here, in St. Cloud, snow-covered cars line the street after the season's first heavy snowfall blanketed the upper midwest.

Rescue Salesman Lost In Bush For Six Days

NORTH BAY, Nov. 2 (CP)—Robert Vannier, 27, figures he owes his life to two chocolate bars and an apple.

They kept him alive during the six days he was lost in the Northern Ontario bush 65 miles northwest of here.

The insurance salesman from nearby Sturgeon Falls, rescued late Thursday, was taken to his home Thursday night for a brief reunion with his pretty dark-haired wife and their children. Then he went to Sturgeon Falls hospital to spend the night.

Doctors who examined him said he was in good general condition after his ordeal in the cold, rain-soaked bushland. But he had lost 20 pounds and was extremely weak when an aerial searcher spotted him.

Icing in the carburetor forced down a rented plane he was flying on a business trip to district bush camps. He landed on tiny Yorkton Lake and decided to stay by the plane and wait until he was found.

Tries To Walk

But after waiting through six days of bad weather, during which a helicopter crashed killing one of the men searching for him, he left the log lean-to he had fashioned on a small island in the lake, paddled ashore on a raft and struck out on foot for home.

He was struggling through the woods when searchers found him.

Two hours earlier a plane sighted his overturned aircraft on the lake. Leo Riopelle and Cpl. H. J. Morel of Timagami landed and found a note pinned to Vannier's shelter saying he was "very weak" but walking home.

Supplies were dropped to the pilot. As soon as he was sighted the good news was radioed back to North Bay.

Veteran pilots and bushmen said it was a miracle that Vannier survived his experience. He is believed to have had no food with him and temperatures dropped to 10 degrees above zero Wednesday night.

The pilot's father, Rod Vannier of Sturgeon Falls, had posted a $1,000 reward for his return. He said Thursday he would decide next week who would share the reward money.

UN Airmen Down One Communist Jet

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 2 (AP)—Allied airmen shot down one Communist jet and damaged four in nine separate dog fights today—a record number of air battles for a single day in the Korean war.

The fifth air force said all United Nations' planes "involved in these encounters returned safely to their bases."

The blazing air war contrasted with cold quiet on the snow-covered ground fronts.

Airmen from three United Nations were involved in Friday's fights, ranging over northwest Korea as much as 100 miles from the Manchurian border.

Six-Man Delegation

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP).—Canada is sending a six-man delegation to the forthcoming food and agriculture organization conference in Rome, probably headed by Agriculture Minister Gardiner if his parliamentary duties permit him to attend the meeting opening Nov. 19. Dr. G. S. H. Barton, special assistant to Mr. Gardiner will attend as alternate head of the delegation.

British Commandos Work Far Behind Red Lines

OFF WONSAN, Korea, Nov. 2 —(AP). — Far behind the battle line a Communist supply dump blows up or a Red convoy truck explodes on a mined road. The British Commandos are at work.

The British Royal Marine Commandos are ready to raid at any time to keep the Communists nervous and frustrated.

The Commandos have struck in more than a dozen raids. Some were made by several hundred men; others by just a few Marines slipping through Communist territory.

"Nothing erally big," explains their commander, Maj. Dennis Aldridge of London, whose raiding experience extends back 14 years in the Marines.

When the raids are over the Commandos rest up within easy artillery range of Red batteries and wait to go again.

The Communists have diverted troops from the front to guard the area raided periodically by the British forces.

"We've forced them to do that," Aldridge said, "but it has made it more difficult for us."

The Commandos also have primed Red fears of possible Allied amphibious landings on either coast.

It is believed the Reds have been working feverishly on their coastal defences recently, making the shores around Wonsan into an Oriental Normandy beach—honeycombed with trenches and gun emplacements.

To penetrate the Communist screen, the Commandos move in stealthily with their highest trained scouts leading the way.

The infantry-trained scouts also are experts in underwater demolition and parachute jumps.

Soldiers Will Describe Feelings In Atomic Blast

By BILL BECKER

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 2. (AP)—Radio-Active Joe, America's first atomic foot soldier, brushed himself off, gritted his chattering teeth and cracked: "H—H—Hell, Mac. Maybe this thing ain't so bad after all." That—if United States spokesmen are correct—might be the consensus of the pioneer nuclear shock troops jolted in Exercise Desert Rock Thursday.

Joe's own story of life with the A-bomb is slated to be told in part at a press conference today. A dozen or more front-line soldiers will tell what it was like to be within 10 miles of the powerful blast, which broke store windows 75 miles away.

Today four Congressmen who witnessed the historic manoeuvre issued a statement saying tactical atomic weapons, if delivered accurately and used in sufficient numbers, can give troops a sledge-hammer advantage.

Need Mass Firepower

Representatives Melvin Price (Dem. Ill.), Charles Elston (Rep. Ohio), Carl Hinshaw (Rep. Calif.) and Chet Holifield (Dem. Calif.), members of the Atomic Energy Committee, said:

"We were impressed by the finite (limited) nature of a single atomic blast. The explosion Thursday morning could not by itself have performed military miracles. To attain decisive results on the battlefield we would need massed atomic firepower, just as we have always needed massed conventional firepower.

"In talking to the troops about their reaction, we gained the impression that they developed both a healthy respect for the power of atomic force and a sense of confidence that they can use it effectively against an enemy and combat its use against themselves."

Terrific Blast

There is little doubt that radio-active Joe "had it" Thursday. Although he was well protected, hunched low in scientific observation areas in the hills surrounding the Yucca test site, you can imagine what the blast wave was like in his position. Reporters 30 miles away said their clothing was whipped by the blast.

This fourth detonation in the AEC's test series was stronger but less spectacular than the third one Tuesday. Plane-dropped, it burst at less than 1,000 feet.

The AEC reported above-normal radiation in the area, but said it was far below the level considered harmful to humans, animals, crops or water supplies.

Barilko Search Costs $285,000 RCAF Says

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP)—The search and rescue arm of the RCAF, a country-wide network of planes and paratroopers trained in rescue work, may exceed a $3,900,000 budget this year.

The reason, RCAF spokesmen said Thursday, is search for civilians missing mostly on plane trips into the northern wilds.

Most costly search this year has been the fruitless, two-month hunt for Bill Barilko, Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, and his fishing companion, Dr. Henry Hudson of Timmins.

They vanished early this fall in Northern Ontario. At one time search and rescue had as many as 11 planes in the hunt at once. The planes flew 1,345 flying hours and some $285,000 was spent.

Snow Blankets Many States

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP)—Snow and cold hit wide areas of the United States today, snapping a spell of mid-autumn mildness.

There was lots of snow—in the northeast, the midwest, the Rocky Mountain region and in Texas. Falls in some areas were the heaviest on record for so early in the season.

The cold weather was extensive—from the Rockies to the New England States and south into Texas. Not much warming was in prospect.

A snow storm which moved across the border from Canada left six inches of light snow at Denver. The blanket of white spread as far east as Dodge City, Kas., which reported a fall of three inches.

There were sub-zero readings in midwest regions—the Dakotas and Minnesota. Readings were 10-15 above zero during the day near the Canadian border and in the 20s and low 30s in the central plains states.

The coldest spot was in Montana. The weather bureau at Helena said thermometers dipped to 29 below at Summit in Glacier National Park. The snow measured 35 inches.

Postpone Hearings On New Freight Rate

OTTAWA, Nov. 2—(CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners has postponed until further notice hearings on the railways' application for increased freight rates, it was announced today.

The hearings were said to have opened here Nov. 12.

The Board's announcement said the postponement was being made in view of the fact that the newly-appointed chief commissioner, Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney, is expected to assume office shortly, replacing Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald.

The railways' application will call for increases of approximately 10 per cent over existing rates.

Newfoundland Calls Election

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 2 — (CP)—Premier Smallwood said today Newfoundland will hold a general election Nov. 26.

The Liberal premier told the Legislature today that the House will be dissolved Saturday and the election proclamation issued.

The premier, who announced the election in the House Thursday but did not set the date, said he was going to the polls to seek "a mandate for the government's development program."

The government's legal term extends to 1954, but the premier said he will call the election "without delay" for support of the government's policy of aiding European and mainland North American groups with dollar loans to get new industries under way.

Stay-Home Pension Rule Under Fire

Opposition Fails To Kill Clause Limiting Residence

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. (CP)—Opposition members fought unsuccessfully in the Commons Thursday night against a stay-at-home requirement in Canada's new $40-a-month old-age pension scheme.

They tackled a provision of the government's old-age security bill which would suspend the pension after the recipient has been away from Canada for more than three months in a year.

Health Minister Martin, piloting the legislation indicated the chief reason for the provision is that those who get the new universal pension when it becomes effective Jan. 1 next will have contributed nothing towards it. The requirement may be altered in a few years.

Moves Slowly

The pensions dispute arose as the legislation, generally endorsed by all parties moved slowly through clause-by-clause study in committee stage. Earlier, its principle had been approved on second reading.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, moved that the suspension feature be struck out, but his motion was ruled out of order on the grounds it would increase government spending—a power vested only with members of the federal cabinet.

Winning support from other opposition members, he suggested that an individual, once he had contributed to the pension, should be entitled to it regardless of where he lived.

The provision finally was approved.

Like It Higher

As opposition members — and some Liberal supporters — urged that the pension be increased beyond $40, Mr. Martin cited pension figures in other countries to support his contention that Canada's scheme was the most generous in the world.

Egyptian Crisis Brings Parley

CAIRO, Nov. 2 (CP)—Foreign Minister Salah El Din Pasha will meet Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain in Paris soon to discuss the Anglo-Egyptian crisis, a foreign-ministry spokesman said today.

He said "no negotiations proper will take place there," but added that Salah El Din will tell Eden what Egypt's attitude will be "after the cancellation of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty."

Diplomatic sources here believed that a Pakistanian offer to help mediate the dispute might be taken a step farther in Paris.

Foreign Minister Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan Thursday offered his services in the dispute, which arose out of Egypt's cancellation of an Anglo-Egyptian treaty allowing Britain to station forces along the Suez canal and another accord giving Britain joint control of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Jury Frees Woman Of Manslaughter, Out Over 6 Hours

After deliberating six and a quarter hours, a Peterborough county jury early today found Gladys Long, 43, Montreal, not guilty of motor manslaughter in the death last June 9 of 10-year-old David Sanderson, Smith township. But on two other counts—dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident—she was found guilty. Miss Long will be sentenced Tuesday, 10 am, the second week of the criminal assizes for Peterborough county.

Justice W. F. Spence, the presiding judge, would only comment: "I concur in every way."

The verdict was returned at 2:15 am after the jury had been out six and a quarter hours. Justice Spence finished his hour-long charge to the jury shortly after 6 pm Wednesday.

Few Spectators Left

And after being recharged on several points on the submission of defence counsel T. J. Carley, KC, the jury went to supper.

By the time the verdict was returned the courtroom contained only 10 spectators, most of them friends of the Sandersons.

Miss Long accepted the verdict with no sign of emotion and consulted briefly with Mr. Carley on whether to get immediate sentence or wait till Tuesday. Then she was taken down to the women's cells.

The three charges arose out of a fatal accident shortly after 3 pm, June 9, on Highway 7, slightly more than a mile and a half west of Peterborough.

Dies On Stones

David Sanderson who was pushing a bicycle up a hill was knocked 77 feet by a northbound car and died on a pile of stones, 21 feet east of the highway. Peter Newmaster, 9, was also pushing a bicycle some distance behind David.

He was either brushed to the ground or fell and did not see the car strike his companion.

There were no eyewitnesses to the accident.

Several witnesses testified they saw Miss Long get out of her car, just over the crest of the hill and 476 feet north of the body, and inspect damage to her vehicle. She then drove on to the family home, 8 Adelaide St., Lindsay, and she was arrested at the police station six hours after the accident.

Walked Unsteadily

The Crown called other witnesses to testify as to Miss Long's sobriety. Clem Galvin and Mrs. Lillian Buss, Empress hotel, said Miss Long smelled of alcohol and she looked tired and ill. Mrs. Buss said the accused woman walked unsteadily.

Near-Collision

Miss Esther Deyell and Miss Eleanor Robinson said they thought it was Miss Long who passed them on the highway that Saturday afternoon. Miss Deyell had to slow her car so the driver

Princess' Visit Strengthens Peace—Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (CP)—President Truman, saying goodbye to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, today told them their visit had strengthened prospects for world peace.

"Your visit here has tightened the bonds between us," Truman said to the Princess and her husband, Philip.

And, he said, peace depends in great measure "upon how well our two countries stick together and work for world peace."

The farewells, winding up a busy 45-hour visit by the Royal couple to Washington, were said at the White House.

On behalf of her father, the King, the Princess presented to the President a rare pair of English candelabra and a carved gilt landscape mirror with a huge painting inset above it.

The Princess said she hoped they would be a "welcome ornament" to the renovated White House.

Magnificent Gift

The President called it a "magnificent gift" and said the King was "very thoughtful and generous" to send it.

While making the presentation, Elizabeth said she and Philip had paid a "delightful and memorable" visit to Washington. She described the presentation as a "fitting climax."

She said: "Mr. President, we have spent two very happy days as your guests. Before we leave, I am, therefore, very glad to present to you a gift from my father, the King. I feel that this ceremony makes a fitting climax to what has been a delightful and memorable occasion for both of us.

"The renovation of the White House has attracted interest all over the world. Everyone knows how closely it has been bound up

Elizabeth Makes Hit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(Reuters)—The Washington Post in an editorial today says that during the Royal visit to Washington, which ends today, Princess Elizabeth was charming and Philip "everything a prince consort should be." "We shall feel closer to the future queen from now on and we shall understand why the British Commonwealth is proud of her," it added.

Mary Martin London Hit

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP).—Mary Martin's heart belonged to London today.

She washed the irritating old memory of a "Pacific" flop right out of her curly hair with a smashing success in the London opening of "South Pacific."

Miss Martin tried to carry Noel Coward's musical, "Pacific 1860," nearly five years ago in London. It flopped.

But Thursday night she came back to an enchanted evening and waves of applause for her starring role in the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein II show. She said her reception topped even her new work opening night triumph in "South Pacific."

Coward was among the celebrities of the British stage who thronged her dressing room.

Canadian Troops To Get Official Sendoff

Soldiers Warned Dominion Will Be Judged By Their Actions

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Five hundred Canadian troops will sail from Quebec City Monday with an official farewell and a reminder that they can do a lot to beat Communism by the way they behave in Europe.

They will make up the First Contingent of the main body of the 5,500 men of the 27th Brigade assigned to Germany as part of Gen. Eisenhower's integrated Atlantic pact force. Five other sailings between Nov. 12 and Dec. 13 are scheduled to get the whole brigade into the Hannover area of northwestern Germany by the end of October.

A 300-man advance party already has reached Europe.

Defence Minister Claxton and senior military authorites will be on hand at Wolfe's Cove to say Canada's official farewell to a group of more than 500 soldiers including brigade headquarters staff and a number of other units sailing on the steamship Canberra.

Given Booklet.

The biggest of the sailings will leave Quebec Nov. 12 with 1,400 men including the 1st Infantry Battalion.

A 30-page booklet entitled "Off To Europe" will be made available to all the 5,500 men.

It was written by Lionel Shapiro, Montreal-born foreign correspondent and author, who is one of the two correspondents sailing with the troops Monday. The other is Douglas How of The Canadian Press Ottawa bureau.

The booklet makes these among other points:

1. Some of the allied troops stationed in Europe "are deeply hated."

2. Canadians should remember that they are ambassadors of their country, that their conduct will have an important bearing on the reaction of Europeans to their country.

3. The average European girl has an extremely high standard of behavior. You can't take liberties with them. "Forget the fixed impression you have about European women."

4. Canadians are going to Europe to defend Canada, not Europe.

Baby Deaths Said Too High

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2 (CP)—Dr. Herbert L. Troyer of Toronto, associate director of the Canadian Child Health Association, said Thursday Canada is losing native born children at a death rate of 16,000 a year.

Addressing a Lions club meeting here, he said this death toll means that Canada loses 44 babies [illegible] born alive.

Dr. Troyer said that most child deaths occur in the first few months of life. Since 1900, more than 1,000,000 babies have died before reaching their first birthday.

He said a large number of these deaths are unnecessary. Parental ignorance is the cause of many. For this reason, the Child Health Association is launching an educational crusade direct to Canadian parents, he said.

"While we lost 40,000 men overseas during the last war," he said, "we lost 85,000 babies in Canada."

Mr. Martin said it shouldn't be forgotten that the $40 payment was recommended by the parliamentary committee which studied the problem. It never had been suggested that $40 a month was enough for a person to live on.

In the opening stages, Justice Minister Garson disclosed the government plans to delay temporarily introduction of legislation to prohibit retail price-fixing and to place the issue before a special Commons-Senate committee.

Princess Charms Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2. (CP)—President Truman's "fairy Princess" today bids farewell to the never-never-land that is Washington. For 45 hours she was the dream of what might have been for the hundreds of thousands in this city of government that is built on the women of the civil service. And in 45 hours she forged another link in the chain that binds Great Britain and the United States. For the 25-year-old Princess Elizabeth, supported by her suave, handsome husband, did more in 45 hours to cement good relations between Britain and the US than years of formal notepassing between the heads of state could have accomplished.

Heads of state may come and go in this capital of the United States, but a real, live Princess—and a lovely one at that—arrives but once in a lifetime.

Further Strengthened

The tie that binds the two countries was strengthened further today with Princess Elizabeth's presentation to President Truman of an overmantel for the reconstructed White House. It was a gift of the King—a rare mirror to be set over the fireplace mantel of President Truman's home.

Last Official Act

The presentation in the rose garden of the White House was the last official act of the Princess in her stay here. This was her formal farewell to her host, who greeted her in his welcoming remarks Wednesday, not as a visit Princess, but as a woman of the same age as his daughter Margaret.

The President's reception set the keynote for the entire Washington stay. It was a friendly, pleased-to-see-you reception. Aptly summed up Thursday by a teen-ager who called to the passing Princess:

"Come back again."

Elizabeth and Philip end their whirlwind US visit at noon today after a brisk round of sightseeing and a call on the President. They were due at Montreal's Dorval airport at 3 pm, EST, on their way to a well-earned holiday in the Laurentian Hills before touring the Maritime provinces.

They need the break.

The Princess' first visit to the US had an Alice-in-Wonderland flavor.

The head of the state acted more like an indulgent uncle than a busy man of affairs; photographers and reporters were as flatteringly aggressive as if she were a real football hero; and her husband drew a Sinatra-like reaction from hundreds of pretty girls.

Hectic Day

Thursday was one hectic round of activities from the time the Royal couple left Blair House until the Canadian embassy dinner wound up late in the evening.

A motorcycle escort whipped them at a mile-a-minute speed through the chill wind to Mount Vernon, where they visited the farmhouse where George Washington was born and the tombs of Washington and his wife Martha.

The Princess and the Duke joined in placing a wreath on the Washington tomb, then sped back to Arlington cemetery to honor the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Next stop on their tight schedule was a reception at the Canadian embassy—a small affair for representatives of Commonwealth countries.

High point of the day—and of Elizabeth's stay here as a Princess of Canada—was the 2,000-guest reception at the British embassy in the afternoon.

The capital's social lions and lionesses, along with a sprinkling of non-headline folks, turned out for the most glittering affair in many a moon.

Perfectly Enchanting

"It was enchanting—perfectly enchanting" was the breathless verdict of a leading authority — Mrs. Morris Cafritz, who ranks as Washington's No. 1 hostess.

Another guest Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said she didn't see how Their Royal Highnesses did it:

"They were so casual and friendly that I couldn't help watching to see if they acted the same way with the next 500. They did. The Princess kept right on being sweet and the Duke had a personal word for everyone."

Margaret Truman, one of the early arrivals, wore a dark blue frock under a mink cape and a small blue hat.

Her appraisal of the party: "It was beautiful—simply beautiful."

Dinner for the President, Mrs. Truman and Margaret Thursday night at the Canadian Embassy wound up the second day of the Royal visit. There were only 18 persons around the table. The menu was pretty simple, considering the kind of affair it was: soup, lobster, lamb, peas, potatoes an apricot dessert and assorted fruits.

May Revise Air Tactics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Out of a conference of top United States Air Force commanders may come a revision of tactics to deal with the now-dangerous Communist air power over Korea.

The presence at the meeting of Lt.-Gen. Otto Weyland, chief of Far Eastern air forces, made it evident the grave problem had high priority in the discussions.

The intensification of Communist air activity, with increased losses of US planes, can reopen the old question:

Should a new effort be made to life the ban on bombing Red air bases in Manchuria from which the Soviet-manufactured MIG-15 jet fighters are slashing at Allied bombers and fighters operating over Korea?

could get back into the right lane of traffic and avoid a collision with a southbound car.

As the car ahead neared the peak of the hill, both women noticed an object fly through the air from the east side of the highway toward some trees. It seemed to come from in front of the car ahead, they said.

When they got abreast of the object they saw it was the body of a boy and his companion was just scrambling to his feet. They saw the car come to a halt by some mail boxes, 476 feet north of the body.

Denies Drinking

Miss Long entered the witness box on her own behalf and swore she had not had a drink of alcohol that day. She suggested the odor noticed by the witnesses from the hotel might be from some tooth drops that she used to deaden the pain of a toothache.

She did not deny hitting Sanderson but said she at no time saw any boys with bicycles on the hill. Her attention was focused on a southbound car that broke over the hill, slightly over the centre line.

"As I met the car I felt a bump and heard a noise. I drove over the hill and heard a flapping sound. So I began to brake the car and look for a place to stop.

She said she stopped at the mail boxes, examined the damage and then drove on to Lindsay.

Her reason for not going back, she said, was that she thought she had only knocked over a highway sign, and it was not necessary to go back and investigate.

She admitted writing a letter to the Sandersons in which she asked them not to think too badly of her because of the events on "that very fateful day, June 9, a day which will always remain a sad memory to me."

Stumbling Block Delays Talks

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 2 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators today pressed allied delegates to accept the Communist proposal for a cease-fire buffer zone across Korea—but balked at issuing an ultimatum.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, United Nations' command spokesman, said the Communist subcommittee at Panmunjom urged the allies to give up their demands for Kaesong and accept the Red line.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, head of the UN sub-committee, asked the Reds if they were issuing an ultimatum.

"They refused to answer directly," Nuckols said, "and were evasive, saying that sincerity was necessary on both sides."

2 High Officials Resign From Packers

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Two high officials of Canada Packers Ltd. have resigned because of a "fundamental disagreement" with the company's board of directors on matters of policy.

They are Joseph Harris, manager of the Winnipeg plant, and his nephew, W. C. Harris of Toronto, a company director. Joseph Harris is a brother of the founder of the old Harris Abattoir Co. which was amalgamated with others into Canada Packers Ltd.

N. J. McLean, Canadian Packers vice-president, said Friday:

"There was a recognition of the absolute sincerity of the two in their divergent views, and Joseph Harris felt so strongly about the matter that he had no alternative but to resign. W. C. Harris agreed with him and joined him in that action..."

W. C. Harris, a Toronto investment dealer, is vice-president and a director of Monarch Mortgage and Investments Ltd., and a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia and Toronto General Trusts Corporation.

Joseph Harris is a director of Great-West Life Assurance Co., Winnipeg Electric Co. and Manitoba Sugar Co. and a member of the Canadian committee of the Hudson's Bay Co.

32 Seamen Strike As Captain Kills Man

KOBE, Japan, Nov. 2 (Reuters)—Thirty-two United States seamen went on strike here, demanding removal of their captain because he shot and killed a member of the crew who was slow in answering an order.

The captain, F. B. Weaver, took a temporary crew aboard the 7,607-ton Flying Trader, operated by the Isbrandtsen Line, and the ship continued on its schedule of calls to Japanese ports.

The striking seamen are stranded here and the steamship company has stated it has "no intention of removing the skipper from command as the strikers are demanding."

The strikin gseamen charged that Weaver shot William Harvey, a negro seaman, because he was slow in answering the captain's call.

Join In Celebration

"If it had been impossible to preserve this beautiful building, many people in Britain would have shared your disappointment. As it is, we are glad to join with you in celebrating its restoration; and my father, who has many happy memories of his own stay in the house, has wished to mark the event with a personal gift.

"It gave the King great pleasure when he found the overmantel which is before you now. The work of 18th century artists, and embodying the finest British craftsmanship, it seems perfectly suited for the place which it will occupy.

"It gives me great pleasure on behalf of my father to present this overmantel to you. It is his hope and mine that it will be a welcome ornament to one of your proudest notional possessions and that it will remain here as a mark of our friendship so long as the White House shall stand."

Ashburnham School Bylaw Goes To Municipal Board

Mayor Swanston sang his Ashburnham swan song at the meeting of the council Thursday night. It was incidental to the reading of a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $250,000 for a public school to be built on the south side of McFarlane St., part of the Erskine property, opposite Centre St.

The description of the location of the site used the word Ashburnham, and Ald. Herb Young asked whether that was a proper designation of the East Ward.

In committee of the whole on the second reading, Mayor Swanston replied that when Ashburnham surrendered its municipal sovereignty it gave up everything to the city except its own name.

Word To Candidates

"We do not like to be called East City," said His Worship. "I would suggest to any candidates for municipal office that if they want any support from Ashburnham that they call our section by that name, Ashburnham, and not East City."

Said Ald. J. E. Gillespie: "As a former Ashburnham boy, I'd like to second the sentiment of Mayor Swanston."

City Clerk Outram readily circumvented the sensitiveness of the people across the river by leaving in the bylaw the word Ashburnham and inserting after it the clause "which is the East Ward of the city."

The $250,000 for the Board of Education is for the property, building, furnishing and equipment of the proposed new school. The bylaw now goes to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval before third reading is given.

Saskatchewan Premier Made 3 Recordings

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (CP). — The Ontario CCF said today that Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan made three recordings for broadcast during the Nov. 22 Ontario campaign but is not coming to the province for personal platform appearances.

Morden Lazarus, the party's campaign chairman, made public a telegram to Premier Frost who criticized Premier Douglas in a campaign speech at Galt last night for entering the campaign.

The telegram said Mr. Douglas made the recordings at the request of the Ontario CCF to discuss the Saskatchewan hospital plan because it had become an issue in the Ontario election.

Quick Thinking Wins Medal

SINGAPORE, Nov. 2. (Reuters) —Cool concentration and steady hands in dealing with a hand grenade which was set to go off any moment have won the British Empire Medal for Edward Twigden, 21, of Huntingdon, England.

The incident took place last April when Twigden and his buddies were cleaning grenades.

Twigden threw a cleaned grenade to his pal, who slipped a detonator in and tossed it back to be adjusted. Twigden thought the missile was still unprimed and pulled the pin.

The fuse fizzed ominously. Twigden thought fast. He could have lobbed the grenade into a nearby clearing to save himself. But the blast might have wounded one of a group of natives gathered around.

With three seconds left, he unscrewed the base cap, lifted the detonator out and flung it to one side where it burst harmlessly.

"Thank God he didn't fumble," was the comment of an officer who witnessed the jungle incident.

Market Prices Slip On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP). — Stock Market prices slipped steadily today in early afternoon dealings.

Agricultures, constructions and foods retained a majority of fractional advances to form the market's strongest sections. Utilities, steels, banks, manufacturing companies and retail stores held gains and losses in balance, but papers and textiles weakened. Refining oils and miscellaneous industrials dipped sharptly.

Western oils climbed strongly. Pacific Petroleum was a standout as it jumped 1⅛ to 11⅛ following reports of a successful drilling on its Peace River holdings.

Base metals traded irregularly. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Noranda and Quemont climbed fractions while Hudson Bay and Waite Amulet eased.

Senior golds weakened. Juniors dipped sharply.

BURNED

Mrs. Carl Pierce, 571 Gilmour St., who was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital Wednesday afternoon with a burned face is reported to be in satisfactory condition by hospital authorities. Mrs. Pierce received the burns from a gas stove.

Northumberland Liberals Make Issue Of School Units

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2 — (ENS)— High School Area Board legislation and highways came in for criticism on Thursday night at a Liberal rally held here in the interests of the party candidate for Northumberland, Charles Johnston, Cobourg.

Forrest Dennis was chairman and introduced W. A. Hogle, president of the Northumberland Association.

Seek New Industry.

Mr. Hogle ridiculed the manner in which the provincial government placed highway signs, criticized the department of education for the high school area board legislation,and lamented the fact that Campbellford has never had a chance to secure an important industry, "which could have been here if someone had gone after it." he declared. Mr. Johnston would do all in his power to secure this new industry.

Mr. Hogle claimed legislation was forced through the Counties Council by Dept. of Education in ucation in Queen's Park, the High School Area. "Why should we build a high school and then have someone not only take it away from us, but force us to accept the debts of some other school as well," he asked. "Goodfellow sold your high school down the river," he said, and, referring to Campbellford's reeve, Ralph J. Locke as 'Joe Stalin', "He sold you down the river too. That's not democracy, when the department of education can tell us here in Campbellford what we have to do."

Mr. Hogle said it was unfair that the citizens of Campbellford should have "to dig down into their pockets to provide $250,000 as their share (one third) of the cost of a new high school for the southern section of the area."

Liberal Leader Coming.

The speaker said that he hoped all would turn out to hear Walter Thomson, who will be in Campbellford later this month at Edgewater Park Pavilion. He said accommodation in the hall had been made for 1000 persons.

Mr. Hogle introduced the candidate, Charles Johnston. Mr. Johnston claimed the Ontario Municipal Board had too much power and should not have so much say in the government of the municipalites. Speaking of the haphazard manner in which he claimed the grants were made in Ontario, Mr. Johston said "it is impossible for a municipality to bring down a correct budget."

Reg. Seymour, president of the Seymour Liberal Association praised the hospital plan offered by Mr. Thomson and said the money to finance the plan would come from the forest wealth of the province. He pointed out that lumbering companies were paying the same price per stump for timber rights now as they did seven or eight years ago. He also spoke of the proposed rehabilitation plan for T. B. patients.

Girl Orator Wins Contest

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2 — (ENS)—Sandra McDonald took first prize for her address on "Teamwork" in the Campbellford Public and Separate Schools Oratorical Contest held in the High School auditorium recently. Dr. W. W. Baker, head of the Public School Board was chairman for the evening and William Hogle presented Sandra with the Fraser Cup.

Second prize went to Patsy Bausch, who spoke on "Madeline de Vercheres." She was presented with the School Board cup by Mrs. W. F. Scott.

Bobby Holmes won third prize with an address on "Getting Ready for a Vacation" and accepted the Town Council cup from Mrs. G. Free.

Charles Haig presented books to each of the contestants.

Other speakers were: Olga Hedley who spoke on "Grace Darling"; Joan Robertson on "The Union Jack"; Lorraine Pirie on "Coal Tar Wonders"; Eva Smith on "Florence Nightingale"; Jean Watson on "Cotton"; Tommy Holmes on "Conservation of our Country's Natural Resources"; Dick Beatty on "The Model T Ford"; Barbara Collins on "Laura Secord"; Neville Stephens on "New Zealand"; Arlene Bell on "The Penguins of the Antarctic" and Lorene Hinds on "The Guitar."

The county finals will be held in Cobourg town hall November 9. Mrs. A. C. Newman voiced the appreciation of the Home and School Association to the judges, the scrutineers to those who presented the awards and to Mrs. Craig Beattie and her committee, who were in charge of the affair.

Colorful Vote

FLIN FLON, Man—(CP)—In a local plebiscite on the question of sale of colored margarine, presently banned, Flin Flon electors gave 1,694 votes in favor and 429 against.

Compensation Plan Best In World–Daley

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (CP)—Ontario's workmen's compensation plan provides the highest benefits of any such scheme in the world, Labor Minister Daley said, today.

In an address prepared for delivery during a cornerstone ceremony marking the official start of construction of a five-storey headquarters for the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board, he said:

"I know the Ontario (Compensation Act) is most generous. It is a non-contributory, exclusive state insurance act, administered by a government-appointed board. It is supported by a tax on production without giving unfair advantage to competitive enterprise and without extinguishing free endeavour."

Campbellford Kin Hold Children's Party

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2 — (ENS)—Members of the Campbellford Kinsmen Club provided varied entertainment for town children on Wednesday evening, when they held their monster shell-out party at Edgewater Park pavilion.

The hall was packed with kiddies and their parents. Prizes were awarded for the funniest and the most original costumes in the various age groups, with the children parading around the centre of the hall to music supplied over a PA system. President Gordon Walroth acted as master of ceremonies.

The Churchill Government

The Churchill memoirs currently appearing in large instalments in The Examiner's week-end edition reinforce the impression that Churchill is a Government in himself. As the New York Times has remarked, when he is Prime Minister he is the Big Boss, with an eye to all things large and small, and an independence of mind which at times disconcerts both party followers and the Opposition. Certainly, as his memoirs show, this independence and his penchant for putting an enquiring finger into the smallest of pies as well as the largest, keeps colleagues, civil servants and military advisers on the hop. Apart from this Prime Ministerial assumption of powers—and his consciousness of speaking and acting as John Bull and John Peel, often at the same time—he has himself held virtually every cabinet position of importance in his long parliamentary career.

* * *

But Churchill is not the entire Government. He is Prime Minister and Minister of Defence. He has surrounded himself with senior ministers of notable capacity and experience. Mr. Eden as Foreign Secretary and Deputy Prime Minister, is famous for his integrity, his knowledge of foreign affairs, and his capacity to deal with them. Especially does he know the Middle East—he can even speak Persian. R. A. Butler, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, is an expert on India and on education. Although he has not heretofore been primarily concerned with economic and finance, he has a powerful brain and great moral courage. During the very difficult months ahead (this winter is expected to be as serious, economically, for the United Kingdom, as the winter of the 1947 crises), he will give good leadership.

* * *

The Marquis of Salisbury has a distinguished name and ability. He is Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House of Lords. Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, the Home Secretary, is a brilliant lawyer, who took part in the Nuremberg trials. Lord Woolton, Lord President of the Council, takes on again the work of Food and Agricultural Minister which he discharged so effectively during the war.

* * *

To these well-known figures in ministerial posts are added others, some younger, most newer to public office, but whose abilities have quickly brought them to the fore. Churchill's new Government is neither a one-man affair nor a ministry of mediocrities. A popular Labour prejudice of recent years has been that the Tories did not have enough men of sufficient vigour and capacity—outside Churchill and Eden—to form a government. The marshalling of talents in the last seven days impressively contradicts this assumption.

Decorous And Dignified City Hall

Ten thousand citizens have now seen the interior of their new City Hall. Open house was held last Monday and Tuesday and people thronged to see what three-quarters of a million dollars could do to the inside of a building with whose exterior they have gradually become familiar as the new structure rose. Arrangements made for receiving so many visitors and guiding them through the place were on the whole very good, and it was a pleasant gesture to serve a cup of tea as they surveyed the fine new Council Chamber from the Mayor's new Parlour.

We could all view the chambers, offices, halls, reception rooms, police court and even the cells, with justifiable pride. The building seems to be exceptionally well planned and exceptionally well built. We were particularly impressed by the foyer, the Council Chamber, and the arrangement for the police and magistrate's court.

The foyer has dignity and space, without being pompous. The coloured stone and metal map of the Kawartha district, with Peterborough as its focal point, is a special feature. It is imbedded in the flooring of the foyer; and in fact, it is the floor. Appropriately, to the left, is the foundation stone laid by Premier Frost last December, and above it a bronze plaque paying tribute to the munificence of the late W. G. Morrow whose bequest raised the structure. To the right, opposite, is a tinted photograph of the generous former mayor, which looks rather small for the wall and the foyer.

The Council Chamber and its furnishings have an air of gracious dignity all too rarely found in our public buildings. It is in agreeable contrast to the former Council Chamber in the old office building on Simcoe Street. It is even elegant, in a simple, unpretentious way. Drapes, panelling, desks, mayoral dais, carpeting—and even the view from the stately windows overlooking Confederation Square—enhance rather than adorn the lofty chamber. Here is a fitting place for the heart of city government; decorous, quiet, authoritative and eminently pleasant. It is no mean city whose Council Chamber leaves the impression which Peterborough's new one does. We hope that the effect will not be marred in later years by a clutter of Co[illegible] photographs in dusty frames. We are relieved, too, to learn that the Council Chamber will be used exclusively by the Council, sitting officially. It is not a meeting-hall, a committee room or a place of back-room strategy. There are ample offices and consultation rooms elsewhere in the new building for committees and meetings.

The law-enforcement wing of the building is cleverly cut off from the administrative and legislative wings. There are sufficient side entrances for the police, the drunks, the lost trinkets and babies, and the spectators at the magistrate's daily court. His court is justly proportioned, arranged to be in keeping with the traditions and majesty of the law, and the furnishings now being installed are proper to the place. Into some of the police office rickety furniture, a hang-over from the old dingy police station—has found its way, but we presume that this is a temporary aberration. It is always hard to discard an old couch, no matter how scraggy it is.

If anything, the interior of the new City Hall is more impressive than the exterior, and the exterior is massively impressive, particularly at night when the floodlights illumine its bulk and line.

So large were the queues during the two Open House evenings that we think there must be other thousands of citizens, and many hundreds from the country, who, unable to pay the City Hall a visit last Monday and Tuesday, would welcome another one or two Open House days. The ceremonies of Friday and Saturday, and the receptions of Monday and Tuesday interfered with the regular work of the city offices. When that delay is caught up, perhaps the Hall can be thrown open again. It is Peterborough's civic centre, and a joy and pride to see.

Black Market In Canada

The alien hue of the black market is now blotching Canadian cities. This old aspect of civic corruption is new in Canada. Oh, yes, there were under-the-counter deals during war-time shortages, and here and there outright illicit trade in bottled goods. But never did these amount to a trade as wicked-sounding as the black markets in Europe and among tourists there, or even the grey market which has discoloured England since the war. But now, here, right in Canada, on our own honest native heath, is a big, wide black market, growing like a mushroom. Why?

Evil begets evil; immorality fathers immorality. The evil is high taxes; the immorality is high taxes on those things which console one for living. The result is the immoral evil of a black market in cigarettes—American cigarettes, secreted across the border in chemises; rum-run into the country by hosts of enterprising smugglers hiding cases of them under a load of straw or the back seat of a jallopy. The business is profitable for smugglers and merchants of re-sale alike; and for their customers. American cigarettes can be had at less than twenty cents a packet; the price of twenty cigarettes in Ontario is 42 cents; in Montreal 46 cents. Between the American cost of 20 cents and the Canadian prices is a profitable gulf for black-market operators to swim in. And they do.

Every other smoker in a city like Montreal is puffing American cigarettes. Some of them come honestly by the American weeds; they have bought a carton on their weekly shopping trip (for cottons, gadgets, books, and electrical appliances) forty miles away in Vermont. But most of them get the cigarettes in apparently reputable shops where the illicit packages are piled deep under the counter.

Since Canada is a country as devoted to high moral principles as it is to turning a dime into a dollar, perhaps the Government will recognize the immorality of the illegal trade its taxes have fostered, and reduce these taxes to moral levels. Anyway, the national treasury is losing money. So large is the cigarette black market all over the country and so indignant are smokers at the high Canadian prices, that the sales of cigarettes have dropped seriously, and the revenue to the tax-collectors has gone below what it was under the old taxes. In this matter, it does not pay the consumers to be honest, but it will pay the Government to be moral in its taxing schedules.

After all, it is only natural for a girl to wish for beauty rather than brains. The average man sees far better than he thinks.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHANTOM: Already I have heard strange stories about the little tower with its cupola on the new city hall. Here are four of them: 1. That it is a trap for pigeons, built expressly at the request of the police who have not been very successful in shooting them in their periodic forays with pistols on Simcoe street. The theory is that the pigeons, attracted by the lights and the sun on the glass, fly into the thing, find themselves in a maze from which they can't get out, and after a while die of starvation and exhaustion. 2. That it will house some electronic device which will give Peterborough advance warning of an A-bomb attack. 3. That the office girls at the City Hall will be using it next spring and summer for private sun-bathing. 4. That it was built in accordance with a secret clause in the will of W. G. Morrow, and that an undraped image of a modern goddess is to be erected within it, never to be seen by the public, but to be shown to each new Mayor once, at the time of his installation. What do you say about all this?

ANSWER: You or your informants are night as well as day-dreaming. The statue notion is intriguing. As far as I know, the small tower has only two purposes—to be ornamental, and to suck off the hot air from the Council Chamber. The Council Chamber—it was wisely or wittily decided—was to be the only part of the building air-conditioned. Machinery is installed now, with outlet in the little tower, which takes away warm, stuffy air from the Council Chamber. This, it is said, is sufficient to keep the whole building reasonably fresh and cool. The theory is that the hottest air will be in the Council Chamber, or attracted to it from all other parts of the building.

ALPHA: Is there any difference between All Saints' Day and All Souls' Day?

ANSWER: Quite a bit, because all souls are not all saints. All Saints' Day is November 1, All Souls' Day, November 2. All Souls' Day, in the Christian church, commemorates all the saints and martyrs of the church. All Saints' Day is observed in commemoration of all the departed. All-Hallows' Tide (all haloes) is a popular name for the festival of All Saints. The evening before is All-Hallow-e'en, or Halloween—the night of October 31. Many superstitious beliefs of the visits of the devil to earth are connected with it in popular folklore. In Canadian folklore, All-Hallowe'en is linked by some remote control with shelling-out.

DEAR ALPHA: Why don't all the buildings in Venice lean, fall down, or do something else from the straight and solid? They haven't solid foundations, have they? After all, the tower of Pisa leans, and the land there, as I saw it during the war, was solid enough.

ANSWER: Venice—on the shallow bay of the Adriatic called the lagoon of Venice—is built on piles, the way houses and buildings in northern and western Holland are. Actually, there is some ground in Venice, and it is not merely drained canal or sea. The piles are driven into the mud and earth of the 117 small islands through, around and beside which more than 150 canals have been built. Some towers in Venice do lean. I think it is the church of Santo Stefano which has a lean that looks as great as that of Pisa's bell tower.

Incidentally, Pisa's bell tower started to lean as it was being built; it did not get that way through centuries of weight on wobbly foundations or shifting soil. The third and fifth stories of the tower indicate that the architects sought to compensate for a subsidence of the foundations by straightening them.

The fine rectitude of so many of Venice's beautiful buildings which have been standing straight and graceful since Columbus' day and earlier reveals what masters the Venetian architects and builders were.

SIR: When did the Royal Family change its surname to Windsor?

ANSWER: In 1917, King George V, by Order-in-Council changed the name from the House of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (the family name of Albert, the Prince Consort, which all his and Queen Victoria's children bore) to the House of Windsor. The change was made because the family name was German, and the Germans were at the time the chief enemies of Britain. In the same year, King George V abandoned for himself and his heirs for ever, all German titles, distinctions and ducal claims. The British Royal Family, before Victoria, also bore a German family name — Hanover, because George I was a Hanoverian. He could not even speak English, and never learnt to.

DEAR ALPHA: Your note about the origin of the name "martello", as applied to the redoubts at Kingston, reminded me of a little verse I heard years ago. Do you think any of your readers might be able to give the name of the writer? Here it is:

Mr. Martello
Played on the 'cello;
His wood was good
And his tone was mellow,
And he showed remarkable powers.
He said to the King
"I have thought of a thing",
And the King said "What Did you say you had got?"
And Mr. Martello
Replied, with a bellow—
"The notion of making towers".

Mr. Martello
Grew old and mellow;
No longer he played
On the violoncello;
They buried him under the dank yew.
But his towers still stand
On the ocean strand;
We like ours best
And we call it "The Nest."
So Mr. Martello,
Remarkable fellow—
We thank you.

RESPONSE: I seem to remember that the writer of these nonsense lines was Senor Martini, an Italian expatriate in England, whose wit was so caustic that he was nicknamed 'Dry'.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: At the opening of the new City Hall a week ago today the crowd of citizens vastly exceeded the plans of the City Fathers for them. Stands were provided facing the hall, and out to the blocked-off George Street, for about five hundred. But not even all these could hear what went on, for it seemed that only one of the loud speakers (there were only two) was working, and that not well. Hundreds of the thousand or more bystanders gave up, being able neither to hear nor see, and crowded the home-going street while the ceremonies were going on.

The entire affair was quite homely, from the beginning when the platform party arrived and didn't know quite what to do or where to sit and stood around like penguins on the Sahara; to the anti-climax after the doors were not-too-ceremoniously opened, and an overlooked speech was squeezed in, while the Mayor of Peterborough, England and Peterborough, Canada stood uneasily at the open door. Anyway, everybody knew that the opening of the door was make-believe. Hadn't the City Clerk bounded in and out of the very same door not two minutes before the proceedings started, in full view of everybody, and after the dignitaries had arrived to shuffle for their seats?

The Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, a former Peterborough mayor, was recognized in his office by the playing of the National Anthem. This caught him as he was halfway up to the steps and microphones, all by himself. There was no local officer of militia delegated to act as his A.D.C. for the day; in fact, the only uniforms on view were those of the chief and deputy-chief of police. Incidentally, the platform party were eventually seated on chairs placed in two diagonal blocks on the front walk of the City Hall; facing the building and not the audience. Flatform parties are there to be seen, and not to see—a point which was not sufficiently realized by the planners of last Friday's big moment.

Ceremonies of this kind have to be planned down to the last detail, and managed meticulously, if they are to have the air of ceremonies. . . . But it was a good, homely (in the English sense of the word) Peterborough affair, and on Monday and Tuesday, open house at the City Hall gave 9,500 citizens the opportunity to view the building and have a cup of tea in the Mayor's parlour. Blotches of spilt tea on the new carpet and a wad of gum ground into it were visual reminders Wednesday of the crowds of the two preceding days.

An American View: "GOBLINS'LL GITCHA IF YUH DON'T WATCH OUT!"

"She Was A Splendid Beast"

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THE press of Great Britain apparently is confusing a few earnest students of world affairs. These students, it seems, would like to know how to spell the name of the Premier of Iran, and they feel that the newspapers are not being helpful, to say the least.

The Times of London says the Iranian Premier is a man named Moussadek. To The Manachester Guardian, he is Mr. Mussaddiq, while The Daily Telegraph, The News Chronicle and The Daily Express respectively refer to him as Mossadeq, Mossadiq, and Mossadeg. And if the earnest students have seen newspapers from this continent, their confusion may have been increased by references to Mr. Mossadegh.

We suppose that this confusion has its source in a difficulty once referred to amusingly by Lawrence of Arabia. If we remember correctly, Lawrence had explained the difficulty, or perhaps it was the impossibility, of devising a standard spelling in English which would serve in translating from the Arabian. At any rate, Lawrence himself, in the manuscript of "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," bedevilled his proofreaders with various spellings of the same names, as the following questions by proofreaders and answers by Lawrence will indicate:

Q.. Jeddah and Jidda used impartially throughout. Intentional?

A. Rather!

Q. Bir Waheida, was Bir Waheidi.

A. Why not? All one place.

Q. Rualla becomes Rueli, then Rualla again.

A. Should also have used Ruwala and Ruala.

Q. The Bisaita is also spelt Biseita.

A. Good.

Q. Author is addressed as Ya Auruns, later Aurans.

A. Also Luren and Runs, not to mention, Shaw. More to follow, if time permits.

Q. El Mayin becomes el Main, el Mayein, el Muein, el Mayin and el Muyein.

A. Good egg. I call this really ingenious.

Q. Jedha, the she-camel, was Jedhah on slip 40.

A. She was a splendid beast.

Letter To The Editor

WHO IS A FOREIGNER?

SIR: Your editorial "A Republican Canada" quotes Le Devoir as saying "We are welcoming to Canada the daughter of a foreign king," and later "that in reality once the last constitutional fictions are swept away we are receiving the daughter and son-in-law of a foreign king." They seem to be getting a whale of a reception in all ten provinces from ocean to ocean, in the largest metropolitan areas and small hamlets, so maybe the "three tailors of Tooley Street" are fictions too.

Should a foreigner condemn a foreigner? Who is this editor of Le Devoir?

Five hundred years ago only Asia, Africa and Europe, mostly Mediterranean area, were known and 2,000 years ago there were no Christians or Mohammedans, while today they threaten to return civilization to the Dark Ages of 500 years ago. It is strange that polygamy and slavery were not condemned 2,000 years ago and should not have been carried to lands recently discovered. It is medieval thinking that causes myths, fairy tales and Santa Claus stories to hinder peace, truth, justice, law, order and equality—equal rights to all, special privilege to none—to bring peace to a confused Canada—yes and a very confused world. What would Canada be without the world?

The peoples of the world do not want war, but peace. Peace without war.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel. Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward. (Gen. 49: 16, 17.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts. . . . He lieth in wait secretly as a lion in his den: he lieth in wait to catch the poor: he doth catch the poor, when he draweth him into his net . . . He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten: he hideth his face; he will never see it. (Ps. 10: 4, 9, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Evil men understand not judgement: but they that seek the Lord understand all things . . . Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son: but he that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father . . . Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way, he shall fall himself into his own pit: but the upright shall have good things in possession. . . .

He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy. (Prov. 28: 5, 7, 10, 13.)

Piety An Offence?

(Montreal Star)

It is an ironical situation that sees a man whose purpose in coming to this country was to enjoy the freedom of worship of which in general we truthfully boast haled into court for taking advantage of that freedom. The case reminds one of Mr. Bumble's sage observation that "The law is a hass."

What the culprit, Rabbi Ferencz Lewy, did was to observe the Passover in his home. Is this wrong? Technically, it is. It would have been quite all right if the gathering had been a dinner or bridge party. But it was wrong to come together to pray.

A city bylaw says that "no building shall be . . . used for purposes of worship . . . without special permission being previously obtained . . . from the Executive Committee . . ." The bylaw as a whole is a zoning regulation, and control of the use to which buildings are to be put is necessary, but the drafters of this section took in more territory than they could have intended. Sometimes lawmakers seem to be needlessly precise. Here they weren't precise enough.

It could hardly have been intended that any devout resident of Laurier Ward, the area affected, should have to consult the Executive Committee before feeling free to say his prayers in his own home. Yet that is what a strict application of the regulation calls for.

The O.S.A. New York Show

(Toronto Saturday Night)

The Ontario Society of Artists has completed a commendable effort towards increasing Canadian-American cultural understanding. At its own expense the Society sent an exhibition of 38 paintings by its members to New York. At the American British Art Gallery, these canvasses prompted a number of Americans to take a too infrequent look at Canadian art.

The OSA show is the first major art society show to be sent abroad other than under National Gallery auspices. The presentation and publicity were well handled but, unfortunately, the exhibit was not altogether worthy of the group it represented. New York reviewers were lukewarm in their reception and we cannot help feeling that the Society's next venture in this direction should be reinforced by a careful grading-by-jury before export instead of a blind acceptance of whatever the artist chose to offer.

"But, my dear sir, our choice whenever that an old car has over a new one is that you can buy it."

West Germany's Health Insurance Proves Unpopular With Everyone

By HANS NEUERBOURG

FRANKFURT, Nov. 2—(AP)—West Germany's socialized insurance system is under fire from all sides.

Doctors, patients and hospitals —all are complaining.

The doctors, in recent annual convention, charged the insurance system is exploiting physicians and recommended a one-day strike in protest against the low fees doctors are paid.

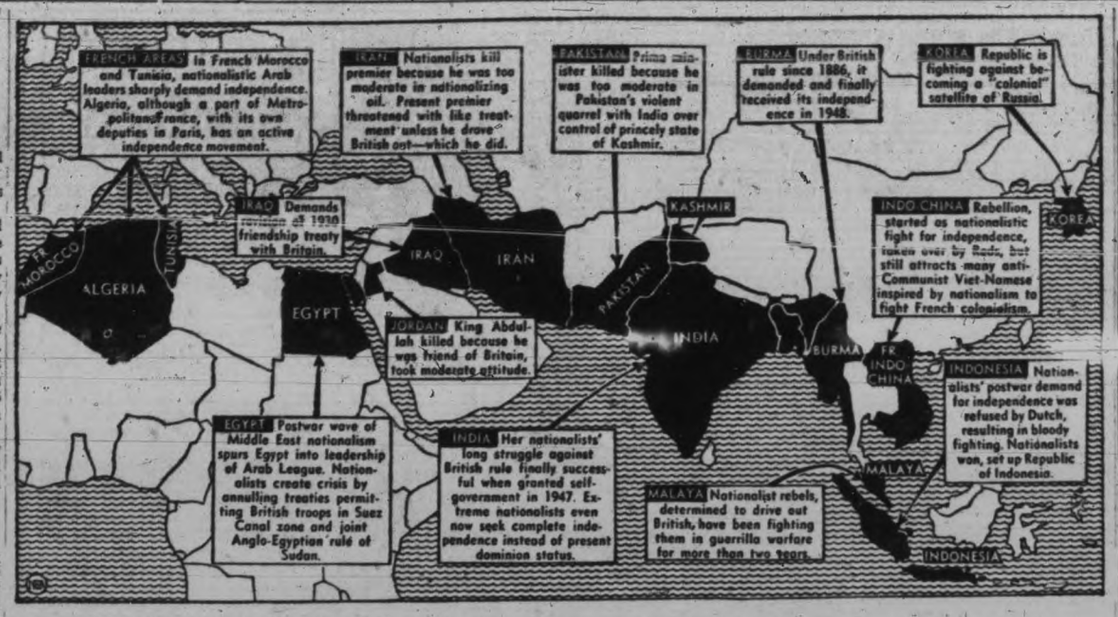
The patients complain they are not getting adequate treatment. They object to the law's limit on the value of medicines which can be prescribed for them—4.5 marks ($1.08) in a three-month period.

Hospitals complain that they are getting too little financial support from the boards which operate the huge system.

Even Boards Unhappy

Even the boards are unhappy. They complained at a recent meeting that their resources are being drained by the rising sick rate — a 100-per-cent increase since 1932. They claim they can't maintain reserve funds to combat epidemics.

This is a sorry state, Germans say, for one of the world's oldest public health-insurance systems.



Germany's social insurance dates back to 1884 when Prince Otto Von Bismarck, the "Iron Chancellor," initiated it.

Today about 14,000,000 people in West Germany—nearly one-third of the population—are insured. They pay 2,100,000,000 marks ($500,000,000) a year.

Every worker earning less than 375 marks ($89.25) a month must belong and pay two per cent of his salary into the fund.

Doctors are paid according to the number of insured patients registered with them. The doctor's fee is 3.5 marks (80 cents) every three months for each insured patient.

Medicines and hospital expenses theoretically are covered by the insurance. But if a doctor prescribes more than the allotted amount, he may find himself having to pay for the excess.

NATIONALISM RISES IN THE EAST—Illustrated on the map above is the great surge of nationalistic, anti-colonialism unrest sweeping from the China coast to North Africa. Long-smoldering, it was really sparked by Japan. Although she lost World War II, her wartime propaganda slogan "Asia for the Asiatics" lives on and is echoed in the nationalism rampant throughout the Moslem world from Morocco to Pakistan. And, of course, the Kremlin is working hard to make Communist capital out of growing anti-Western sentiment in those critical areas.

Schooner Seeks Buried Treasure

GOSPORT, Hampshire, England, Nov. 2 (CP)—Flying a jaunty Jolly Roger flag and cheered by crowds on shore, the two-masted schooner yacht Lamorna set out Thursday on a story-book search for buried treasure.

In sparkling sunshine, the Lamorna cast anchor and threaded its way through a maze of Royal Navy warships into the open sea, starting a six-month voyage fraught with the promise of adventure and peril.

The 12-man party, including three Canadians, is heading for the South China Seas, and a tiny island supposed to contain a treasure cache left behind by Captain William Kidd, the 17th century pirate. Parchment maps which the party will pick up at Singapore indicate the gold is buried on the island, 200 miles south of Thailand.

The expedition was organized spontaneously, first one member then another volunteering to join. The Canadians are Geoffrey Taylor of Outremont, Que., John Fry of Westmount, Montreal, and Ian Rogers of Ottawa.

Abadan Closure Cutting Iraq Port Pilotage Dues

By HAIG NICKOLSON.

BASRA, Iraq. — (Reuters). — The Iranian oil situation has had repercussions on her next-door neighbor, Iraq.

Before the crisis which brought work in the oilfields of Kyzistan to a standstill, Iraq received a certain amount of oil from Persia. That loss has now been made good by supplies obtained from elsewhere.

But Iraq's main loss has been financial. Now that tankers are not calling at Abadan, site of the world's biggest refinery, the port of Basra directorate is losing revenue at a rate of over $2,800,000 a year.

The directorate, controlled by the Iraq Ministry of Finance, is responsible for safe navigation and dredging in the 85-mile stretch of the Shatt el Arab estuary from Basra down to the Persian Gulf.

Entrance to the Shatt el Arab from the Persian Gulf is through the 6½-mile Rooka Channel. The directorate's dredgers continually at work, keep this vital channel from silting up.

Provide Big Revenue.

The stream of tankers which entered the Shatt el Arab empty and left full of crude and refined oil were taken to and from Abadan and Bandar Nashur by the directorate's pilots. The dues paid by the tankers constituted the main part of the directorate's revenue.

The long-term outlook is not happy for the directorate either. The tendency is to build bigger and bigger tankers. The biggest of these could not, even if they wanted to, call at Abadan.

The two pipelines from Iran into Iraq are now closed and the extra oil which Iraq requires has to be imported.

But since the Persian oil industry became an almost helpless cripple, there has been encouraging news for Iraq. The Bagdad government has reached new and more advantageous agreements with the foreign oil companies operating in the country.

The Basra Petroleum Company has made known that its rich Zubair fields in Southern Iraq will start producing later this year, and that the first exports of crude oil will go out early in 1952.

Pledge Jordan Support To Arab League

AMMAN, Jordan, Nov. 2—(AP)—King Talal Thursday pledged Jordan support for the Arab league.

In his first speech from the throne, read to an opening session of parliament by Premier Tewfik Pasha, the new Jordan monarch said:

"I declare our absolute support and sincere sympathy towards the national aspirations of the Arab states. My government will do its utmost to prove this support by continuing to co-operate fully within the charter of the Arab league."

Talal became king after the assassination of his father Abdulah, who did not always see eye to eye with all members of the Arab league. Jordan is a member, along with Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

Richard Supplies Fireworks Leafs the Goals As Toronto Edges Habs 4-2

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Taciturn Maurice Richard does most of his talking with a hockey stick. But when that stick does other things besides score goals, the reverberations are heard thoughout the National Hockey League. Look what happens: His Montreal Canadiens drop two straight to Toronto Maple Leafs and give up second position behind Detroit Red Wings to the not-so-timid Stanley Cup champions. Maurice doesn't score a goal in the 120 minutes, but he is the talk of the sports pages with his non-scoring shenanigans.

The Montrealers were walloped 4-2 on home ice Thursday night following the 1-0 Hallowe'en night loss at Toronto and, apart from the switch in positions, the steady parade to the penalty box and first-aid rooms for attention, high-flying Maurice was a one-man riot.

Now Canadiens are in a third place tie with Boston's surprising Bruins who dumped the Red Wings 3-2 at Detroit Thursday night. The other game of the night saw Chicago Black Hawks whip the Rangers 4-2 before a 4,994 crowd at New York, the smallest attendance of the NHL season.

Detroit has 11 points, Toronto 10, Montreal and Boston nine each, Chicago eight and New York five.

Big Crowd

A season's high crowd of 14,780 squeezed into Montreal Forum undoubtedly attracted by the Hallowe'en snorter when Richard made a pass at a spectator with his stick and tempers were at the breaking point among the players. And those who like to see blood with their hockey weren't disappointed.

Richard, still looking for the 300th goal of his NHL career, was in the middle of the delayed fireworks—a rip-snorting 10-minute free-for-all in the second period with Richard taking on defencemen Fern Flaman and Bill Juzda. When the players were untangled the penalty count read: Richard, double major and game misconduct which automatically draws a $50 fine; Flaman, a major and a game misconduct; Butch Bouchard of Canadiens and Juzda, majors.

Not a Dull Moment

Things had hardly settled down when Ken Mosdell was given a major for slamming defenceman Gus Mortson in the boards and drawing blood. Apart from these five-minute sentences Leafs received six mi... and Canadiens three.

The ruckus started when Flaman, taking exception at something Richard did went after him with fists flying. Flaman was sent from the ice and Richard to the penalty box when Juzda got into the act with a remark and the Rocket bounced out swinging.

It ended with Juzda laid out on the ice for a full count, bleeding freely from a cut over his right eye.

The next scene in this two-act thriller will be in the office of league president Clarence Campbell who doesn't take kindly to such conduct as threatening paying custmomers with a hockey weapon and bouncing guys around with fists.

On Carpet Before

The Rocket has been on the carpet before for his ice antics. In the 1947 Stanley Cup finals—against Toronto—he blew his top in one game and injured two Leaf players in a stick-swinging incident. He was fined $250 and suspended one game.

Last March he was clipped for $500 following a scuffle in a New York hotel lobby with referee Hugh McLean.

When the teams settled down to hockey Thursday night the Leaf scoring was looked after by captain Ted Kennedy with two, Sid Smith and Harry Watson. Floyd Curry and Ken Mosdell netted for Canadiens.

At New York, Doug Bentley paced the Hawks to victory with a pair of goals. George Gee and Mill Mosienko were the other Chicago marksmen while Don Raleigh looked after the two Ranger counters.

Reliable Milt Schmidt scored his first goal of the season for the Bruins at Detroit. Vic Lynn and Dunc Fisher supplied the others. Veteran Ted Lindsay and rookie Bennie Woit scored for the Wings.

Arrest Referee In Game-Fixing

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—A professional basketball referee was arrested early today by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan on charges he had received bribes to help insure fixing of three games in the National Basketball Association last year.

The referee ... Hogan as Sol Levy, 41, of Brooklyn. He is the first official to be taken into custody since the gambling scandal was revealed in college games early this year.

Hogan charged through his secretary, James O'Leary, that Levy had received bribes to insure a point spread in three separate basketball games, and would be booked on charges including conspiracy.

He said the games were between the Boston Celtics and Washington Capitals in Washington Nov. 11, 1950, won by Boston 78-77; the Boston Celtics and the Indianapolis Olympians at Boston Nov. 12, 1950, won by Boston 78-75; and the Syracuse Nationals and New York Knickerbockers at Syracuse, won by Syracuse 97-83, on Nov. 19, 1950.

Hogan said an unusually large number of personal fouls were called in the Syracuse-New York game—46 against New York and 29 against Syracuse.

Discipline Gridders Disobeying Orders

The Rev. J. F. Coughlan squashed rumors today that St. Peter's High coach, Johnny Lynch, will be dismissed following a disturbance in the bus returning Wednesday from an exhibition football game in Whitby.

Two senior Saints, Charles Taylor and Paul Crough, both star linemen with the Saints who have won four straight games this year, were put off the bus on the trip home.

Father Coughlan said the action was "a matter of discipline, the same as in the school".

He explained that when the boys caused the disturbance, they were told to quit; then the action was taken. "I doubt the rumor (dismissing Coach Lynch) very much. It's only a vague rumor."

Two other players, Paul Kingdon and Ron Board, both junior players, were left in Oshawa when overlooked in the crowded bus. The bus had stopped to allow the players to eat.

Relatives went to Oshawa to find the players and picked them up at Port Hope after the boys had hitch-hiked that far.

Two Referees To Handle Bout

Two referees have been appointed to handle next Tuesday's rematch between Lord Athol Layton and Zorra, the French Tarzan, at the Brock. This was at the insistence of the Frenchman and was readily accepted by Layton. Zorra claimed his lordship uses at lot of illegal stuff, particularly his chop, and figures two referees will look after this.

"Stuff and nonsense," said Layton. "I have won two decisions over Zorra, and I'll make it three straight next Tuesday even with two refs in the ring." That remains to be seen, many figuring Layton got two lucky wins over Zorra.

The semi-final will feature the former Masked Marvel, Lou Newman—minus the hood—against Timothy Geohagen. This will be the first time the Marvel has appeared here unmasked.

To open this stellar card, Sonny Kurgis will oppose Dangerous Dan O'Connor.

Two girls' hoop tilts tonight in the YWCA gym, starting at eight. First one is a league fixture between Black's and Lindsay Grads, first showing this semester of these squads. It is followed an hour or so later by an exhibition betwixt Neill's and Towne Togs, the latter an LOBA entry. Following weekend has CGE vs. Neill's, and Lindsay vs. Nurses. This schedule just opened a week ago and will run till Dec. 21, with a layoff then o'er the Christmas holidays, resuming early in January and going till spring. Meantime, the male cagers are getting lined up and will soon be in action at the ... Collegiate gyms.

Let's see the weekend football picture, all games being away. Orfuns play a benefit exhibition in Hamilton to wind up their season. In aid of the family of Angelo Cicero, who died earlier in the fall from grid injuries in that city. PCVS seniors are in Belleville on Saturday in loop play and the junior PCI-ers conclude their schedule in Lindsay that aft. Latter are out of the race (like Orfuns) but the senior Garnet and Greys have their sights set for the COSSA final here Nov. 17. St. Peter's seniors—the juniors will go after the COSSA "B" title—have a cup challenge game Sunday with St. Mike's in Toronto, having won the first of the best-of-three sawoffs.

IOOF-ers Shaping Up

Coach Johnny Godfrey is shaking down his OHA junior "B" Triple Links and awaiting word on the grouping and schedule. Club manager Len Symonds advises us that Johnny has three gbalies on his list yet, Red Wasson, Rocky Batley and a newcomer. Defence prospects include: Don Clapper, Army Armstrong, Roger Wilson, Don Bigford, Bill Stewart and one or two more. Among the forwards still retained are: Ob Buckton, Brian Robinson, Jim Morrow, Ken Floyd, Clair Ferguson and a few more local puckists, as well as an ex-Lakefield juvenile line of Bill Twist, Dick McCracken and Gord Coyle. Squad has another workout at six tonight. The IOOF-ers will be strong again.

The fact that both the Petes and Eagles have been trying out other goalies, along with Ray Harding of Petes and Ross Nicholls of Eagles, should not be surprising. After all, these fine veterans are quite likely to be guarding their respective nets again this season, but an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. They are veterans as hockey goes and it's a wise coach who looks ahead and develops future talent in all positions. Even the great Turk Broda of Maple Leafs has to give away gradually to Al Rollins. Ray and Ross are fine goaltenders yet and have each helped their clubs win provincial titles in other years, but the best athletes in the world have to bow sooner or later to Father Time. Like Joe Louis, for instance.

TVL Clubs Clear Decks

Moving into November, hockey is taking over gradually from football, which nears the end of its season, and district—as well as local—clubs are re-organizing. Nothing much emanating yet from Lakefield, but the TVL-ers are starting to line up. And we note where Belleville hopes to ice a good squad in this lively district circuit. Likely a club from here, too, same as last semester. Timmy Williams and Wally Bent are rounding up the Quinte crew, which had a recent exhibition with Tamworth to win handily. That OHA line of Mulvihill, Leo Goyer and Williams supplied the punch. Trent Valley Loop play can't start for a spell, though, as the teams depend on natural ice.

* * * * * *

Speaking of district teams, the Campbellford High School grid crew is rolling right along these autumn days. Racked up another win the other day in Belleville o'er Albert College to force another meeting of these clubs. Quinte columnist called it an upset and added: "The game was hard-fought throughout with a strong wind preventing any sustained aerial offensives. There were some thrilling running gains but on the whole the game resolved itself into a battle of the lines." These are senior "B" squads, and the winner will be playing off in Central Ontario against the Bowmanville-Whitby victor, likely the latter. St. Peter's aren't eligible for this series.

Western Expects Full Sellout

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP)—With last - minute ticket seekers still on the hunt for ducats for Saturday's big Toronto-Western game, a complete sellout is assured for J. W. Little Memorial Stadium as the two schools renew their senior intercollegiate football rivalry.

The Toronto Blues, who beat Western 17-6 in their previous meeting, rate heavy favorites to topple the Mustangs, but Toronto hasn't won a game in London since 1936.

Already this season another streak was broken when McGill beat the Mustangs here, the first win for the Redmen in London since 1935.

The Mustangs, with only one victory in four games, are in the throes of one of their poorest seasons in several years. However, coach Bob Masterson, of the Blues, looks for one of the toughest games of the season. Johnny Metras is pointing for an upset over the league-leading Blues who are sailing along undefeated in four games.

Cobourg Planning Use Ground Attack

COBOURG, Nov. 2—"We'll stick to the ground against them," said Fred Dufton of the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts referring to Saturday's do-or-die game with Orillia Blue Bombers here. The Ghosts must win to keep in step with the high-flying Oshawa Red Raiders, who occupy the top rung of the ORFU Lakeshore Senior B group. Only team to beat Cobourg this year, Oshawa can back into the league title if the Bombers upset the dope bucket by defeating the Gallopers.

The Blue Bombers have been rivals in intermediate football since the Ghosts moved into the same loop with them three years ago. Before that the two met in a district playoff. Orillia has never won, but cherishes hopes of doing it this Saturday.

King Edward Winners

King Edward downed the Queen Mary senior school soccer squad 2-0 in a keen contest. King Edward won the toss and elected to play downwind in the first half, and this was a factor in their first goal. A corner kick by Curtis was stopped by the Q. M. goalie, but the ball bounced and drifted over the line. The next goal was kicked in by Floyd. Queen Mary forced play the last half but couldn't score. Teams:

K.E.: Curtis, Rowe, Rose, Floyd, Beggs, Stevens, Howden, Hill, Orr, Mills, Phillips, Perry, Waldie.

Q.M.: Brady, Plunkett, Mason, Stinson, Lincoln, Passmore, Reynolds, Harris, Finn, J. Dafoe, G. Dafoe, Morgan Atkins. Referees, Rutherford and Druery.

Marino Wins Decision Over Terry Allen

HONOLULU, Nov. 2—(AP)—Dado Marino, Hawaii's 112-pound fighting grandfather, won a close, fast, 15-round decision over Terry Allen, of London, tonight to remain world flyweight champion. It was Marino's first defence of the title he won from Allen in Honolulu 13 months ago. The referee's and judges' decisions were unanimous.

On a point basis, Referee Walter Cho called it 27 to 15, Judge Al Bothelho 26 to 15, and Judge Louis Freitas 27 to 15.

The Associated Press score card had it 25 to 18.

Stewart Sure Richard Cracks Record Soon

HUMBERSTONE, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP).—The man who could care the most — but doesn't — says Rocket Richard can't miss cracking the National Hockey League's lifetime goal-scoring record before this season ends.

Nels (Old Poison) Stewart — whose 324-goal total is what Richard is shooting at—figures Richard's name will go into the record books ahead of his before long. Richard has scored 299 so far.

"From the blue line in there isn't any better than Richard," said Stewart, whose own reputation as a star in 15 seasons of play was built on his ability to get the puck into the net.

Now living in almost complete retirement from hockey in this town some five miles south of Welland, Stewart said the Montreal Canadiens' right winger would have starred in any hockey era.

"Today's game is made to order for him. He's got the brain. He doesn't back-check much—but then, neither did I. Some players have to wind up, but not the Rocket. He gets started on a dime, is awfully strong and also bulls his way in."

Not In Morenz Class

Stewart entered the controversy over hockey's greatest modern right wing by saying that for all Richard's goal-scoring skill, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings is a better two-way player and more useful to a team. Howe, he thinks, is the Howie Morenz type.

"They don't come like Morenz very often—about once in a century," he said when asked whether Richard was greater than the late Stratford streak. Morenz was named in a Canadian Press poll last winter as the greatest hockey player of the half-century.

"He had everything—could rush, score goals and back-check. You couldn't put the Rocket in the same breath as Howie—and that goes for everybody else, including Bill Cook. None of them was in the same stable."

Cobourg Collegiate Blanks Port Hope

COBOURG, Nov. 2—Cobourg Collegiate blanked Port Hope High School, 6-0, here Thursday in a COSSA junior football game.

On the very first play halfback Ronnie Turk of Cobourg came out of a spinner play on his own 45-yard line and raced 65 yards for a touchdown. Jack Allen, Cobourg's booter, kicked a single in the third session.

Port Hope tried a number of desperation passes in the last stanza, but Cobourg held them off with hard tackling. Ashton, the big kicker and passer, looked best for the Ports. His rugged play made it a tough afternoon for Cobourg's line and secondary.

Queen Alex Victors

Queen Alexandra blanked Queen Elizabeth 3-0 in their Public School Soccer League fixture at the Oval, with Johnston scoring two goals and aiding Eadie on another in a neat number. It was 2-0 in the first half and tighter the last session. Johnston, Eadie, Heard and Tighe were the pick of the players in this tussle. Teams:

Queen Alex: Macklin, McNamee, Ireland, Wanamaker, Ball, Jackson, Eadie, McClennan, Magee, Johnston, Nelson, Downer, Kilborn, Olmstead, Croft, Hamilton.

Queen Elizabeth: Willis, Whitnell, Harrison, Perry, B. Dorgan, Drummond, Taylor, Tighe, Heard, Lyons, Lymburner, Welsh, J. Dorgan, Reid, Gilders, McConkey.

Referees—Hill and Bird.

Queen Mary Wins

Queen Mary took a 2-0 intermediate school soccer win over King George on the latter's pitch in a good fixture. Brown counted one in the first half on a fine passing play with Haig. The other marker was tallied in the last half with Foy scoring on a pass from Dunn. Teams:

Queen Mary: Deck, Harvey, Jobbitt, Hendry, Clark, Foy, Dunn, Haig, Brown, Drury, Austin.

King Geoorge: Lamers, Pollard, Chute, Barkley, Dixon, Beavis, Crowder, Dorrington, Harding, Nurse, Starr, Innes, Smith, Macdonald.

OHA Juniors Seeking To Place $10,000 Maximum Franchise

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (CP). — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council Thursday took the first step on a proposal to place a maximum value of $10,000 on a franchise in the Junior A group and a scale of purchase prices for players.

The players would be valued at a maximum of $500, $1,000 and $1,500 for one, two and three years of Junior A experience, respectively. The joint proposal by Al Murray of Galt and Roy Mason of Guelph could place a value in the neighborhood of $25,000 on Junior A teams.

In approving the proposal the council appointed a committee to meet with George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The committee is made up of Murray, Mason, Staff Smythe of Toronto Marlborso and Happy Emms of Barrie Flyers.

The following conditions were proposed for the sale of a franchise:

1. A franchise purchaser must have the majority approval of the other clubs in the league.
2. The purchaser to have first chance to buy the club's players.
3. If no agreement is reached by the new order to buy the players, the old owner would have until Oct. 1 to dispose of them. After that date they would become free agents.

Franchise Suspended

The proposal also disclosed that if no purchaser could be found for a club, the franchise would be suspended for two seasons. At the end of that period, new owners could be admitted with approval of the council.

The Junior A clubs at present operate on a year-to-year basis.

The dispute between Kitchener and Galt over the hockey services of Jim Farelli also came under discussion. The OHA executive is scheduled to hold a hearing on the case this Saturday.

Farelli came from Fort William to try out with Galt, but is held by Montreal Canadiens on a C-form and was ordered to play for the Canadiens' farm club at Kitchener.

Orillia Players Suspended Smoking On Bus

Just before an important series with Barrie Collegiate, seven players of the Orillia District Collegiate team were suspended for breaking training rules. They were smoking while on a bus.

This action will considerably weaken the strongest team in the Georgian Bay district of the COSSA. Before the suspension, the team had four straight and Orillia was carrying high hopes on the team to enter the COSSA semi-finals against the Niagara district winner.

Orillia were chosen on the strength of the unbeaten record to play PCVS two weeks ago in a Red Feather elimination game. The Garnet and Grey handed out a 39-11 lacing.

Took Action

Action was taken by the Collegiate athletic staff and other school authorities after consultations because "it was well known smoking was against the rules of the team." Coach Graham Fraser had given repeated warnings.

It is believed that the suspended players will be given the opportunity to apologize before the first game with Barrie. If so those that do will have their suspensions lifted.

This year at PCVS both the junior and senior teams have strict training rules regarding smoking, drinking, sleeping, doing homework and having dates.

So far only one player has been suspended for the season after the coach found him smoking during the pre-season training period.

REGINA BACKFIELDER — Ken Charlton, 30-year-old six-foot, 175-pound Regina halfback, has been a standout since he joined the Roughriders in 1947. He reached all-star rating in 1949.

ALL-STAR CENTRE — Don (Red) Ettinger, 28-year-old import centre with Regina Roughriders, gained all-star status in the Western Football Union this season. Six feet, one inch and weighing 225, Ettinger is a graduate of the University of Kansas and the professional New York Giants. He is place kicker for Roughriders.

ALL-STAR GUARD — Bert Iannone, 30-year-old Regina Roughriders' guard, was one of three Canadian players to make the Western Football Union's all-star team this season. He is five feet 11 inches tall, weighing 195. He joined the Saskatchewan team in 1950.

Slow Bowlers Click In Match

NEW DELHI, Nov. 2 (Reuters) —England today was dismissed for 203 runs by India on the opening day of their first cricket test match.

The pitch, thought to be a batsman's paradise, quickly helped the slow bowlers and not one of England's batsmen looked really comfortable against the spin bowling.

Jack Robertson (5), Don Kenyon (35) and Alan Watkins (40) made some effort to knock the bowlers off their length, but they all paid the penalty eventually.

Wrecker-in-chief of England's batting was leg spinner S. G. Shinde, who took six wickets for 91.

India has yet to win an official test against England.

Mohawks Get 3-1 Win Over Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 2 (CP) —Cincinnati Mohawks scored twice in the first 2½ minutes of play to score a 3-1 victory over Indianapolis Capitals in an American Hockey League game on Thursday night.

Twenty-one penalties were called in the rough game. Emile (Cat) Francis, Cincinnati goalie, who shut out the Caps Wednesday night, almost repeated, but Vic Stasium put a shot past him at 13:34 of the last period.

Herb Dickinson and Ian MacKintosh got the Mohawk first-period goals. Eddie Kullman added the other early in the second period.

Sent To Singapore

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Jack Macbeth, Toronto - born newspaperman who last year spent six months in Korea as an Associated Press war correspondent, is off to the Far East again —for the AP—this time to Singapore. Macbeth, 30-year-old Royal Canadian Navy veteran and former sports editor of The North Bay (Ont.) Nugget, went to Korea in midsummer of 1950. He was with the US Marines in their evacuation from Inchon last winter. He visited Canadian troops shortly after the arrival in the Korean theatre.

Superintendent Resigns

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 —(CP)— Capt. Alfred Levesque, superintendent of pilots in Montreal for the federal transport department, has resigned effective Nov. 10, it was learned Thursday night. In a letter to J. C. Frost Cricitizes Sask Premier For Interfering In Ont.

By The Canadian Press.

Premier Frost Thursday night lashed out at Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan for what he termed an intrusion by the head of the Western province's CCF government in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign.

He said the Saskatcheawn Premier, who leads the only CCF government in Canada, is scheduled to make radio broadcasts in Ontario in suport of E. B. Joliffe's Ontario CCF forces.

For a premier of one province to take part in an election in another province is "simply unheard of," Mr. Frost told a campaign meeting in Galt. He suggested the only excuse there could be for Mr. Douglas' intervention was that Ontario CCF leadership was "hopelessly inadequate."

Mr. Joliffe, meantime, was in Sioux Lookout in Northwestern Ontario on a campaign swing. Walter C. Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, spoke in Strathroy on his proposed hospital care plan and said part of the money for the project would come from "the profits of the big paper companies."

Should Be Too Busy

Premier Frost said of Premier Douglas:

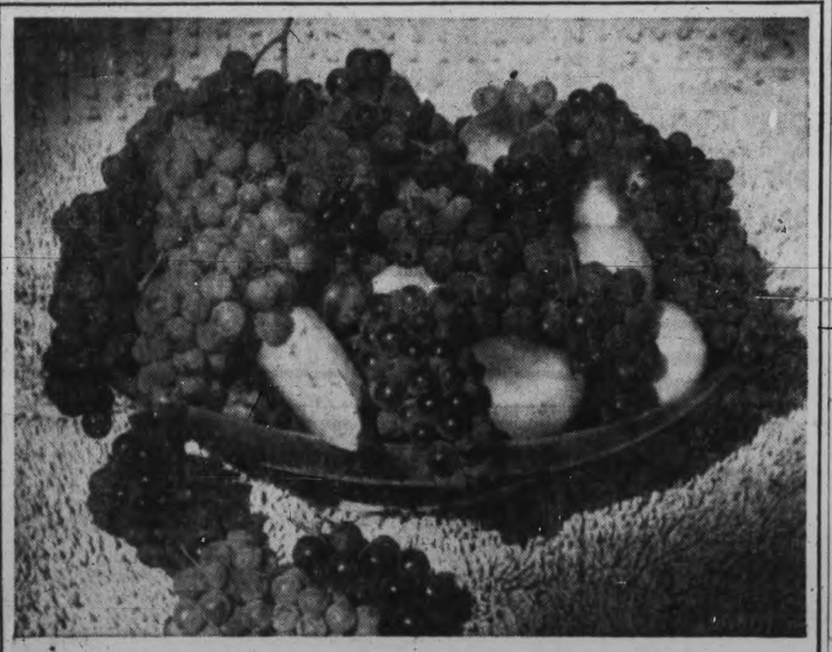
"I should think that Mr. Douglas has his hands full looking after the interests of his own people without intruding into the province of Ontario . . . In view of Saskatchewan's static position, Mr. Douglas' time might be better employed in looking after his own people and providing the same dynamic type of economy that Ontario has been fostering."

In the last 15 years, Ontario's population had increased by more than 1,000,000 while Saskatchewan's had declined by 36,000. Ontario's still was growing by 15,000 a month, with many of those persons coming here from Saskatchewan.

Mr. Frost said Mr. Jolliffe "does not know what he is talking about" when he says the Roach report on ways of improving workmen's compensation was virtually ignored by the government. The principal recommendations had already been adopted and the others were under study.

(Mr. Jolliffe said last week that the government accepted only three minor amendments out of the 18 changes proposed in the report.)

Implement Suggestions



In St. Catharines, Labor Minister Daley told a campaign gathering in his home riding of Lincoln that more of the Roach recommendations will be put into effect as soon as the board's administrative quarters in Toronto are enlarged.

Mr. Thomson told 200 Middlesex South residents that he will finance his hospital plan partly from forestry levies.

"We will not be robbing Northern Ontario, as Premier Frost likes to point out. We will be taking our money from the profits of the big paper companies."

At Sioux Lookout, Mr. Jolliffe again pledged his party, if elected, to liquidate the stockateering racket in Ontario. He told a public meeting that the government "deliberately and knowingly" let a licensed ring of American and Canadian stockateers use Toronto as a base for illegal activities.

"The Frost government charters the stockateers to sail their piratical promotions in Toronto. They can safely raid their prey abroad, just as long as they behave themselves at home."

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Promoter Jim Norris said on Thursday at New York he would like to stage a heavyweight title bout between champion Jersey Joe Walcott and ex-titleholder Ezzard Charles in Miami this February with the winner to meet undefeated Rocky Marciano in June.

The president of the International Boxing Club said that talk from Walcott's camp of a Walcott-Marciano match in Miami in February "was just wishful thinking" by Felix Bocchicchio.

Bocchicchio, manager of old Jersey Joe, said in Philadelphia Thursday he "would gladly accept" Marciano as Walcott's first opponent provided "we were guaranteed a return bout in case Walcott lost."

The Brooklyn Dodgers said on Thursday that Don Newcombe, big righthanded pitching star, has been ordered to report for a pre-induction physical draft examination at the Newark, NJ, induction centre next Wednesday.

The club said the 25-year-old Negro had been reclassified from 3A to 1A as a married man without a child. Newcombe is now barn-storming in Texas with Roy Campanella's all-star team.

A doctor Thursday removed a troublesome cartilege from the right knee of Vic Raschi, New York Yankees' big righthanded pitcher. Dr. George E. Bennett performed the operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. Despite his knee trouble, Raschi had a 21-10 record last season, and split even on two world series appearances.

At St. Catharines, the Ontario Baseball Association Thursday awarded to Shallow Lake a disputed Junior B semi-final series with Oakville. Shallow Lake meets Gananoque in the finals. Oakville refused to play the deciding game of the best-of-three semi-final series in Shallow Lake after losing a toss.

VANCOUVER'S PARK ROYAL SHOPPING CENTRE, now just over one year old, is one of the most up-to-date in Canada. The Examiner's readers on Saturday will be taken on a photo-story visit to this 11½-acre shoppers' centre.

Princess' Visit, Churchill, Gordie Howe All In Weekend

Canada's colorful acclamation of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh is recorded in color and black-and-white photos in this week's WEEKEND magazine.

From Ottawa west to Niagara Falls, the camera eyes record the pomp of the ceremonies and the less formal, more human side of the Royal visit.

Helen Gougeon, women's editor of WEEKEND, discusses the Princess as Canada's number one lady in the news; staff photographers Louis Jaques and Clay Sperling give their best in the camera coverage.

Failure At Anzio

In the second last part of Winston Churchill's "Closing the Ring," the man who brought Britain through the Second World War tells of the choice of Eisenhower as the man to lead the invasion, the failure of the assault at Anzio, and the drawn-out struggle for Cassino.

On the sports scene, WEEKEND sports editor Andy O'Brien asks if Gordie Howe, ace forward for Detroit Red Wings, will stay hot as long as Maurice "The Rocket" Richard. Canadiens officials say they wouldn't swap Richard for two of Howe, but Conn Smythe, of the Leafs, picks Howe over Richard.

Out in Vancouver—the diamond stickpin on the shirtfront of the golden west—staff writer David Willock tells WEEKEND readers (especially the ladies) about a wonderful shopping centre. There is free parking space for 700 cars, produced by setting the stores 450 feet back from the street.

The barber's chair is still nearly as bad as a dentist's when children are concerned, even when the barbers' chairs are models of elephants, tigers and other jungle animals. Photographer Bob Vose pictures for WEEKEND readers the trials of a youngster getting his locks chopped.

Red Skelton

Comic Red Skelton gives a one-page lesson in photography, with a sample of his own work. Kate Aitken tells men (for a change) what to do for dandruff, laud ties and other problems.

Major's Luck Holds Good Cheats Death, Wins Money

CAMP BORDEN, Nov. 2. (CP)—Maj. E. F. Hersey's luck holds good. In 1932, when he was nearly killed in a gun battle with the Yukon's notorious "Mad Trapper," good luck save his life. Wednesday, 19 years later, he won $140,000 in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes.

"Yes, I've been fortunate," he said.

Maj. Hersey said he will use some of the money to educate his two children, Donald, 15, and Sheila, 12.

"Now I can furnish my home as my wife wants it. I can get a new car . . . I can get my wife that fur coat she's wanted for some time. Other than that, I stay on at my job in the army."

In 1932, as a young army signals corps wireless operator stationed at the army radio station serving the Northwest Territories, he was sent to the RCMP to help in their pursuit of Albert Johnson into the Yukon—the "Mad Trapper" who had killed two Mounties.

"We were following his snowshoe tracks along a frozen creek bed. I was driving a dog team some yards ahead of the main posse. . .

"He heard us coming along the creek bed but he must have mistaken the direction. There was a big bend in the creek ahead of me and suddenly I saw him come around it, about 300 yards away.

"He scrambled into his snowshoes and started trying to climb up the bank to get out of the creek bed.

"I called back to the posse and took a shot at his back. Down the bank he rolled. He got up again and tried to get out of the creek. I hit him again and he rolled down again.

"I was shooting an army .303 rifle which is good at that range. I wasn't too worried about him shooting at me because he had only a .30-.30 and ordinarily not accurate at that range.

"I crouched down on one knee, took my time and took careful aim.

"But I guess he was fed up. He pulled his rifle from his pack and, without even aiming, snapped a shot at me. It hit me and I collapsed."

In the meantime, the rest of the posse had left the creek and circled around behind the trapper. Less than a minute after the trapper shot Maj. Hersey, the posse killed him.

The bullet that had hit Maj. Hersey was a snub-nosed dumdum. It pierced his elbow, tore a hole in his chest, punctured his lung and started blood vessels hemorrhaging.

Flown Back

Maj. Hersey said his first bit of luck, apart from not dying immediately, came in that Wilfred (Wop) May, famous northland flyer, had been overhead during the shooting, and was able to fly him to hospital at Aklavik within an hour.

"When they saw me at the hospital they didn't think I was alive. But I was fortunate in having a very skilled surgeon to attend.

"He was Dr. (Doc) Urquhart, a McGill graduate who had been appointed to Aklavik after some years of service in Hong Kong.

"When he saw me, he reached in through the hole in my chest, pulled out the broken arteries and tied them off.

"A man with less experience might have started probing for the bullet and I might have bled to death.

"In the hospital bed the next day, I felt something on the sheet against my back. It was the bullet. It had lodged just underneath the skin against my back ribs."

Stories Differ On Collision

BUFFALO, NY, Nov. 2 (AP)—Two wheelsmen from the freighter Penobscot, involved in Monday night's disastrous collision and fire in Buffalo harbor, said Thursday the vessel's steering mechanism had become locked on two occasions during the last three years.

The men testified at a board inquiry hearing into the collision between the Penobscot and a gasoline barge being pushed by a tug.

Ten seamen apparently lost their lives in the resulting explosion and fire. Three bodies have been recovered and seven men are missing, six from the tug, the Dauntless, and one from the barge, the Morania-130.

Capt. Thomas S. Sorenson, of the Dauntless, testified earlier that the Penobscot swung to the right of its course just before the collision. He said otherwise he might have slipped the Dauntless and the barge past the bow of the freighter.

But the captain of the barge, Lars Stromsland, told the board that he observed no change in the course of either the Penobscot or the tug and barge between the time he first saw the freighter and the time of the collision.

Canadian - United States Relations Under Review

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canada-United States relations was one of the many subjects discussed at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce held in Quebec Tuesday to Thursday.

Two of those who spoke on the topic were C. Bruce Hill of St. Catharines, and John Lay Hopkins, president of Electric Boat Company, New York, and Canadair, Lt., Montreal, both of them members of the Canadian and US chambers of commerce.

Mr. Hopkins said:

"Paying lip-service to our obvious good relations now is no longer enough."

And Mr. Hill commented:

"There are no two nations where international relations are so easy and so simple at the personal level, but yet so involved at the diplomatic or government level."

Need More Knowledge

Kenneth A. Greene, consul general for Canada in New York, said both Canadians and Americans should know more about each other's systems of government, and the difficulties which arise from them.

Mr. Hill is chairman of the Canadian section of the joint committee, and both he and Mr. Hopkins think that the committee has accomplished a lot, just through nine men from each country sitting down and talking frankly and then making their conclusions known in the proper quarters.

Mr. Hill seemed to think that the committee might give a lead towards a better understanding beyond the industrial field. In this connection he called attention to a resolution which the joint committee adopted in Quebec. It read:

"This committee recommends that the two chambers explore the possibility of developing a program of action to bring about a greater measure of understanding between citizens of our two countries."

The resolution can, of course, be just a pious expression, or it can be one which can lead to something important. Mr. Hill seemed to consider it important. And this writer, having seen the joint committee in session, adds his opinion, for whatever it is worth, that probably Mr. Hill is right.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 2—(CP)—Ontario Planning Minister Griesinger Thursday placed the cornerstone of the first house in the new rental house program financed jointly by the Ontario, federal and municipal governments. The first house is expected to be ready for Christmas. Mr. Griesinger said he expected that at least 1,000 homes will be under construction by the end of this month.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 2—(CP)—Nearly all the 24 beer parlors in Vancouver are closed up tight.

This isn't to say that beer has fallen from favor or flavor or that Canada's third biggest city introduced prohibition.

Four hundred and thirty-one men went on strike last week for increased wages. It created havoc in the ranks of beer drinkers. Those 431 men work at four breweries in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster.

There is some bottled beer left in the taverns which are still open but it's pretty hard for a man who is used to quaffing at 10 cents a glass—even when the glass has an extraordinarily-sized head—to lay out 29 cents for a bottle, which is only two glasses, head and all.

"It's just not right drinking beer out of a bottle in a tavern," one oldtimer complained as he contemplated a "No draught beer" sign in a beer parlor window.

More than 1,000 beer parlor waiters are applying for unemployment insurance. For those kept on, tips are fewer.

Beer can still be bought at government liquor stores but their supplies are dwindling, too. Little eastern beer is imported.

*MR. SAMUEL C. LEWIS...

Do you own your farm, Mr. Lewis?
Yes. I took over it from my mother about 25 years ago.

Do you like farming?
Yes. I sure wouldn't be at it if I didn't.

Do you believe in saving?
Oh, yes.

How do you save?
Mainly by Canada Savings Bonds. I buy several every time they are on sale.

Why do you buy these Bonds?
I can lay my hand on them whenever I need money.

Why do you prefer them to other forms of investment?
I consider them safest. I could invest my money in other ways that would bring in more at greater risk, but I want to be sure of a safe investment and a steady revenue.

Have you cashed any of the Canada Savings Bonds you bought?
Yes. I did once because I needed some extra money to buy a new tractor.

How do you pay for the Bonds?
When they're on sale, I take what spare money I have from my bank account and buy the bonds outright.

Do you plan to buy some more this Fall?
Yes.

Samuel C. Lewis, 46, is a farmer living near Kars, Ontario. Born on a neighbouring farm, he was educated in a rural school and married Margaret Hyland, also of Kars. They have an 11-year-old daughter, Joan. Mr. Lewis has a 100-acre farm and 20 head of cattle. He ships milk to Ottawa. A brother lives in London, Ontario, and another brother and a sister in Ottawa.

Cries For Land Reform Heard In Arab Middle East

By FRED ZUSY

CAIRO, Nov. 2 (AP) — Cries for land reform are being heard in the Arab Middle East.

The demands are opposed by the big landowners in the area, who own the most and the best of the land.

The result may be an open clash some day. There already have been skirmishes.

There is widespread poverty, ignorance and disease here. There are Moscow-trained agitators, too, working skilfully and secretly to capitalize on the discontent.

A United Nations economic survey of the Midle East, issued as a preliminary section of a 1949-50 world economic report, states the problem in a nutshell.

Excepting Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey, it said:

"A large proportion of the cultivated land is held by large—generally absentee—landowners. Thus in Egypt 12,000 landowners held 36 per cent of the cultivated area while 2,500,000 small farmers own only 33 per cent.

Scratch Surface

In Iran, Iraq and Egypt, the Royal estates take a big cut of the available land for cultivation. There have been a few scattered gestures in which plots of crown land were distributed to the landless peasant, but this has only scratched the surface.

But the call for land reform is being heard loudest in Syria.

Syria's new constitution provides that ownership of agricultural lands be restricted to 100 hectares (247 acres) of irrigated land a person or 500 hectares of un-irrigated land.

A bill to translate this into law is before the parliament, but as in most Arab countries, the parliament is dominated by the landowners. When the land bill came up for discussion the landowners boycotted the sessions and there was no quorum.

The Arab Socialist Party in Syria recently called an "anti-feudalism" rally in Aleppo, attended by thousands of peasants. Several open clashes have been reported in Syria between peasants and landowners.

Banned In Egypt

Egypt banned a similar meeting of Egyptian Fellahin (peasants) which had been called in Cairo. The leader of the party was arrested for questioning.

Thousands of peasants on one large estate sacked and burned the home of a large estate owner.

Even those who do own or rent small pieces of land in the Middle East do poorly. Cash rents are high. So is the proportion of the crop turned over to the landlord on shares.

Interest rates higher than 100 per cent annually may be charged for cash loans to buy seeds and fertilizer. Thus most small landowners are constantly in debt.

Ask Minister To Intercede

A request for Labor Minister Charles Daley to use his offices so an agreement can be reached between Peterborough garage owners and Local 234, Industrial Union of Automotive Employees (CIO-CCL) has been made by the union.

Some 125 garage workers in 10 local garages are trying to conclude a master agreement with their employers. They want higher wage rates and improved working conditions.

The union was certified in April and they have been negotiating since then. In August they applied for conciliation, and a conciliation officer has not been able to get a settlement.

L. A. Johnston, president of the local and chairman of the negotiating committee, said that licensed mechanics are getting $45 for a 48-hour week. He said this compared unfavorably with rates in industry.

Garages involved are Irwin-Godson, Lillico, Deeth and White, Reuben Wilson, McWilliams, Cliff Towle, Duffus, Williamson Bros., J. K. Hughes, and Gray's.

Brighton Gives Gloves To Duke

The first pair of gloves worn by the Duke of Edinburgh in Canada was the gift of the citizens of Brighton.

The doeskin gloves reached the Duke on the train between Regina and Calgary. They were made from doeskin, procured and tanned in Brighton, and made in Toronto.

In a letter to the Duke, Reeve James Simpson and Elton Simpson, chief constable, explained that "these doeskin gloves are made from the pelt of a deer which was shot in the wilds of this wonderful province and are presented to you by the direct descendants of the United Empire Loyalists".

In reply, Michael Parker, Private secretary to the Duke, said that "the Duke of Edinburgh was delighted with the charming gift".

"His Royal Highness was most sincerely touched with this friendly gesture and wishes me to say that he wore these gloves immediately and throughout the program at Calgary.

First Pair

"I thought it would give you great pleasure to know that they are the first pair of gloves he has worn in Canada and that this wonderful gift has been so much appreciated."

Liquor Not Bought On Permit, Man Jailed

Convicted of having illegal possession of liquor not purchased on his own permit, Edward R. Stevens, 47, 536 Monaghan Rd., was sentenced to four months in reformatory by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today.

In finding Stevens guilty of the charge, Magistrate Philp fined him $100 and $11 costs or three months in county jail.

Stevens requested the reformatory sentence so he could be given alcoholic treatment. Magistrate Philp granted Steven's request and said he would recommend that Stevens receive alcoholic treatment at Mimico.

Edwin R. Mitchell, a clerk in Peterborough liquor store testified that sales slips for last week did not show any purchase made by Stevens. Stevens said he had lost his permit.

CAMP KILMER, NJ, Nov. 2—(AP)—A Roman Catholic chaplain who broke his vow of celibacy and married a 24-year-old girl has been released from the United States air force, a spokesman said Thursday. The priest, Lt. Thomas J. Mitchell, 34, married Pauline Zaina of Ukiah, Calif., Oct. 19.

Skating Periods For Schools

Public schools will again hold daily skating periods at the Civic Arena it was announced today and from Monday until Friday the pupils from the eight schools will skate from 10 am until 11:30 am. The periods will begin November 12.

A spokesman for the Public Schools Men's Athletic Association, which sponsors the athletics for boys and girls, said that each school will have about five periods during the winter. This period will take the place of the regular physical education class.

He explained that the smaller schools usually take all the pupils from grade three to grade eight to the arena while the larger schools divide the school body into groups.

The association is not pleased with the suggested hours for the hockey league, from 3.30 until 5 p.m. Last year the hockey period was during these hours and the association found them "not satisfactory" and they asked for a change.

The reason for this was to allow the players to leave for the games at 3.30; the classes are broken up at 3 p.m. Besides disturbing the lessons, three teachers usually have to leave their classes to referee and coach the teams.

The association is seeking the better hours from 4 p.m. until 5.30 p.m.

Walter Smillie, arena manager said that he suggested the 3.30 until 5 p.m. hours because the schedule of ice hours is already tight. Practically every night in the week the ice surface is being used from 6 p.m. on by some organization.

"This gives us only an hour to clean and flood the ice."

Boxer Collapses At Start Of Match

BIRMINGHAM, England, Nov. 2 (Reuters)—Boxer Francis Zibea, 22, lay semi-conscious in hospital today after collapsing Thursday night at the start of an exhibition bout with Randolph Turpin, former world middleweight champion.

Zibea did not go down during the fighting, but climbed out of the ring at 1¾ minutes of the first round.

He fell unconscious at the side of the stage.

Both boxers wore 16-ounce gloves for the exhibition bout.

Blood-Testing Machine Able To Detect Mental Sickness

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP). — A new blood test using silent sounds to detect serious mental illness was announced Thursday night at Creedmore State Hospital.

The blood of insane people clots differently from blood of normal ones. The test uses sound waves, inaudible to the human ear, to measure these differences and changes.

The sound wave-blood test is something new. Possibly the method might also prove able to detect blood changes in cancer or heart trouble or other conditions.

In first trials, the test was right on 83 per cent of 73 persons known to be mentally sick or healthy the announcement said. Forty-six of them were psychotics, with various forms of insanity, mainly schizophrenia.

The test also was 80 per cent accurate in showing blood changes toward normal in people who began getting treatments for their sickness.

The test was described by Drs. Arthur, Mortimer, and Raymond Sackler, brothers and psychiatrists, who developed it at Creedmore Institute of Psychobiologic Studies.

Wants Roads Named

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP) — There's no romance in a number, says B. K. Sandwell, editor emeritus of Toronto Saturday Night. That's why, he told the Canadian Good Roads Association convention Thursday he thinks each highway ought to have a name. Queen Elizabeth Way — Toronto Niagara Falls — is attractively named, but there's no romance in "Highway No. 1" or "Highway No. 2," he said.

Thanksgiving Nov. 22

Canadians Suddenly Show Great Interest In Ancestry

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, Nov. 2 (CP).—Cyril Hankinson, chief registrar of Britain's leading families, shuffled through a sheaf of letters on Thursday and wondered whether Canadians are suffering from a rush of blue blood to the head.

Every time the postman knocks nowadays at Hankinson's book-lined office on the Strand there's another letter from a Canadian who wants to know whether he's bred in the blue of kings or nobles.

Hankinson leafed through letters from Ladysmith, BC, Vancouver, Halifax, Hamilton, and Montreal.

"Nothing like this has ever happened before," said the 56-year-old editor of Britain's best-known Who's Who on Peers and Baronets. "Do you suppose Miss Pearl Wilson is the cause of it all?"

Miss Wilson, a business woman in her 50's, wrote last April from Chatham, Ont., enclosing her family tree. She hit the jackpot. Research has established beyond reasonable doubt that Miss Wilson is a direct descendant of the Emperor Charlemagne, King of the Franks in the eighth century.

Other Ancestors

Other ancestors include King Alfred and a certain Roger de Montgomery who looked after Normandy when William the Conqueror launched the Norman conquest.

Miss Wilson's pedigree boasts the blood of 20 noble families, and she's having oil paintings of their coats of arms prepared in London.

Whether or not Miss Wilson is responsible Canadians started showing new interest in their ancestry early this summer. Hankinson's research staff now has letters from 50 to 60 families, mostly in British Columbia.

All this panting after pedigrees is a little disconcerting to Hankinson who is behind schedule with his work on Debrett's Peerage—an annual 3,200-page directory of Britain's best families, sometimes called the Bible of the Blue Bloods.

Arrives Home

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 2 (Reuters)—Islwyn Roberts, 37-year-old laborer from Plas Newydd, Wales, arrived here Thursday on the liner Franconia after thumbing lifts across Canada and back. He left his Welsh home last April with a knapsack and $1.40 in cash. He returned with two suitcases and title to $290 awaiting transfer from a Canadian bank.

City Sells Old Office Of Welfare

Council Accepts Offer Of $13,200 From Accountants

McColl & Turner, chartered accountants, have bought from the city for $13,200 the house at the northeast corner of Queen and Simcoe Sts.

City welfare office since 1935, is was prior to that time, the office of the Peterborough Cereal Co. which operated the mill across the street now owned by Dewatt Milling Co. This property and its ownership are reminders of the depression of the thirties.

What used to be the central charity board, it was a minor group in the community service and composed mostly of men nominated from the churches to carry on the work of practical sympathy. The bills were paid out of the city treasury.

The severity of the industrial depression overwhelmed the charity board. City council recognized that the board could no longer cope with the heavy problem of relief and welfare.

Mr. Ralph C. Braund was the last chairman of the old board. He performed that duty for a period of five years. Finally, in 1935, when the depression was beginning to pass its peak, the council bought the Queen St. house and transferred to it the new department of welfare. It was actually bought for the city by Relief Officer Metheral.

The new order of welfare came into effect on Jan. 1, 1935, Mr. Braund recalled quite definitely to the Examiner today.

The property committee report by Ald. H. Waddell instructed City Solicitor Huycke to prepare a deed, to be signed by Mayor Swanston and City Clerk Outram.

YES, A DEER—CLOSE — How many of you hunters who will be standing cold dawn watches Monday morning will get this close to a deer? If you did would you shoot or would you freeze up? Roy T. Bogle To Assist James Girven

Other Promotions To Follow At CGE In One-Step Shift

Roy T. Bogle was named assistant works manager of the CGE here Thursday by works manager J. E. Girven. The appointment was effective Thursday.

Announcement of Mr. Bogle's appointment was the most recent of three major executive moves in the Peterborough plant. Former works manager I. F. McRae moved to Toronto to act as full-time assistant to the vice-president, and Mr. Girven was named works manager.

Other promotions are expected to be announced within the next two weeks.

Mr. Bogle moves up from his position of general superintendent which he has held since September 1, 1949, when he succeeded the late W. O. English.

A graduate of the University of British Columbia, Mr. Bogle entered the engineering test course of the CGE and was transferred to Genelco Ltd. after completing the course.

In Army

In 1942, he enlisted with the Ordnance Corps and was made a major, serving on the Pacific coast and later in Ottawa on technical work. Subsequently he served with the US forces in the Southwest Pacific.

Mr. Bogle returned to the company in 1946, and in December 1947 was appointed manager of the then newly formed motor and generator division.

Mr. Bogle, his wife and two children, live at 817 Caddy St., and attend Trinity United church.

Graham Protests Not Knowing Of Sale Of Land

"I don't think it is fair that as a member of the industrial committee I didn't know anything about the Lemery Distributors matter until I heard it in council." Ald. Norman Graham said last night at the meeting of the city council.

Lemery Distributors Ltd. have purchased from the city a parcel of the industrial site area south of Lansdowne St. and west of Erskine Ave. for a new factory for the production of McCulloch power chain saws and other equipment.

"Some weeks ago," Ald. Graham continued, "I asked about a house belonging to the city on the west side of Aylmer St., near the firehall, that was to be rented. I was told it was to be for an employee of the city only. I'd like to know who he is and where does he work."

Made Selection

Ald. Hugh Waddell, chairman of the property committee, said the committee had obtained a list of prospective tenants from Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, and selection was made from that list.

Said Ald. Graham: "The man who was looking for a house then is still on the board of works and looking for a house. I'd also like to know why the door to City Clerk Outram's office is marked private, different from the City Treasurer, City Engineer and so on. The Clerk has a lovely office, but I dont' think "private" should be on it."

Previously, Ald. Graham had referred to a clause in the property committee report adopted by the council, authorizing payment of $200 to Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Glen for vacating the property on Lansdowne St. west that is the site of Lemery Distributors new factory building.

Had House

"I understand that Mrs. Glenn had a house to move into the following week," Ald. Graham said.

Agreement for vacating the house was dated Oct. 11, 1951.

Ald. Graham suggested that the council could have saved the money.

It transpires that recently the empty house was sold to a wrecker for $50 on his undertaking to clear it off the premises.

"What I understand is that the house was demolished before it passe council, and that she had a place ready to move into."

Mayor Swanston said he would enquire into that question. "Mrs. Glenn may have had a house, but I had understood that she intended to stay there, and the council wanted to dispose of the house as quickly as possible."

Motor Manslaughter Trial Of Melvin Wood Opens In Supreme Court

Charged In Traffic Death of Lorne Russel On North Water St.; Faces Dangerous, Drunk Driving Counts

Melvin Wood, 21, Harvey St., went on trial early today charged with motor manslaughter and dangerous driving as a result of a fatal accident on Highway 28 last June 29. A third charge of drunken driving was adjourned to Nov. 20 in police court. Wood is alleged to be the driver of the car that struck Lorne Russel, 21, Oshawa, as Russel walked north along the edge of the highway. The accident occurred less than half a mile north of the city limits when Russel was only a short distance from his destination.

Wood is being defended by T. J. Carley, KC. He pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Because the court was adjourned at 2.15 am today, it opened an hour later (11 am) for the morning session.

OPP Constable J. G. Healey identified photographs of the scene of the accident.

Officer's Evidence

He said that when he got there at 7 pm he found Russel lying by a pool of blood in the McNaughton and Sugden service station, more than 19 feet west of the pavement.

There were tire marks on the west shoulder of the highway for 112 feet. Then near the southern limit of the service station the wheel marks angled 60 feet, six inches, across the pavement onto the east shoulder of the highway. A hydro pole, 21 feet, seven inches further north, was snapped off some 18 inches above the ground.

The car, badly damaged, came to rest 34 feet north of the pole.

Constable Healey said he did not talk to Wood until he met him at Dr. Herbert Young's office at 8.45 pm. He said Wood seemed nervous but was obviously normal.

The trial continues later today.

Walter Howell Elected Head Of Kiwanis

Walter Howell was elected president of the 1952 Peterborough Kiwanis club executive at the regular luncheon meeting Thursday.

Past President A. S. Plaskett conducted the election.

Wilson Gemmell was elected 1st vice-president; R. C. Bastable, 2nd vice-president and T. T. Rodger, treasurer.

WALTER HOWELL

The following were elected to the board of directors: Norman Armstrong, Charles Hurst, John Madden, William Ovens, George Cheatle, Rufus Payne, Les Reichardt.

The 1952 executive will take office on Jan. 1, 1952.

A bright feature of Thursday's meeting was the debut performance of the Kiwanis quartet (actually a septet). The following Kiwanians took part in this group singing presentation: Dick Raine, Charles Spearin, Jim Lillico, Mort Knox, Rufus Payne, Vince McCabe, Walter Howell. Stanley Northdrop accompanied the numbers on the piano.

Two Small Boys Suffer Minor Injury

Two small boys received brush burns and bruises when a truck and the bicycle they were riding collided at Wolfe and Stewart Sts., at noon Thursday.

Wilfred Rankin 11, of 159 Stewart St., was riding his 9-year-old brother, David on the cross bar of his bicycle when the accident occured.

Stanley W. Clarke, 279 Sherbrooke St., told police he was driving west on Wolfe St., and just making a right hand turn to go north on Stewart St., when he ran over the bicycle which pulled up on his right hand side as he was making the turn.

Damage to the bicycle was estimated at $25.

Constables Robert Menzies and Wilfred Perry investigated.

FORMER RESIDENT

Mrs. W. C. Young, 70, a native of Toronto and former resident of Peterborough, died at her home in Owen Sound Wednesday. She had lived here for 41 years. Survivors include two brothers, James and William Brownlie, and a sister, Mrs. Fred Pearson, all of Peterborough.

Council To Test Land For Arena At Morrow Park

City council is prepared to begin expropriation of part of Morrow Park as a site for the Memorial Centre.

That was the pith of a resolution by Ald. E. C. Braund and Ald. H. T. Rehill which the council adopted Thursday night.

The building committee of the Centre is to be informed of the council's readiness to proceed by means of expropriation if it is found that the subsoil is suitable for footings.

There was no discussion on this resolution, and it is understood that the Morrow Trust and the directors of the Exhibition will not oppose any tests for foundation purposes.

Council To Study Ideas Of Coal Dealers On Smoke

Bylaw No. 5,000—to curb local smoke nuisance—introduced at the council meeting last night by Ald. J. E. Gillespie, was held up for remodelling. Ald. H. T. Rehill said retail coal dealers' association have been drafting a new model bylaw for the abatement of smoke in cities, "and I think it would be advisable to wait until a copy of it is available. It is on the press now and should be off in a few days."

On the suggestion of Mayor Swanston, the committee of the whole council rose and reported progress "and asked leave to sit again" on this question of trying to reduce the smoke screens that sometimes float from furnace chimneys.

The council's bylaw proposed that the emission of "dense smoke" be confined to six minutes in any hour.

Library Asks Parking Space

A request for parking space between the Public Library and the Turner house will be placed before the council as a result of a resolution passed at the library board of directors meeting on Thursday night.

Librarian William Graff was authorized by the board to write a letter to the council asking for this parking space to be used by the library staff and patrons.

This request asks for this consideration if and when the garage at the rear of the Turner house is torn down.

The board authorized the purchase of the painting, October by Clare Bice. Mr. Bice is one Morning, an Algonquin landscape, of Canada's foremost young painters.

The purchase of a polishing machine for the branch library was also authorized by the board.

Mr. Graff reported that there had been a total increase of 13,178 in circulation in the first 10 months of this year as compared to the same period in 1950.

The circulation increase for this period as compared to last year in the adult department was 5,954 and in the boys' and girls' department, 7,224.

Total circulation in the adult department to Nov. 1 was 100,906 and in the boys' and girls' department, 67,470.

Mr. Graff also reported that the library auditorium had been used by five city and county organizations and the committee room by 13 organizations.

Twenty-four school classes visited the library and three story hours were held during the month.

Outboard Marine Builds Addition

Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company have let to Eastwood Construction Co. a contract for an addition to their manufacturing plant.

Mr. C. B. Neal, president of the company, informed the Examiner that this enlargement was for aluminum and zinc die casting. This is a new Outboard operation for which the company has experienced an increasing need.

The addition to the present main manufacturing building provides floor space of 7,500 sq. ft. It will be erected at the east end of the factory, but difficulties in obtaining steel and some other materials are causing delay in construction until April.

MORE LEAVES FALL

The twin Lombardy poplars at Charlotte and Park Streets must have been shivering this morning in anticipation of the scattered snow flakes that arrived around 11 o'clock. The leaves were tumbling out of the branches as if they were told their number was up and it was time to go. Frosted foliage was heavy under the catalpas at CGE.

1st Meeting In New Chambers

Mayor Swanston Forgets To Wear New Chain Of Office

Mayor Swanston forgot last night to wear at the first meeting of the council in its new chamber at the city hall the golden chain of office presented to the city by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Monkman.

"I apologize to the council, and I am sorry," His Worship said. "We have been so many years without one that it slipped my mind. I hope that the council and the visitors will accept my apology."

"Does it (the chain) happen to be in Ashburnham" Ald Dewart asked with an accent of humor.

"It would be safer over there than any other part of the city," Mayor Swanston said.

Mayor Swanston might have cited circumstances mitigating his oversight of new and official amenity associated with the enhanced dignity of the mayoral position. He had presided as chairman of the committee of the whole in a board room down stairs for more than an hour. After its adjournment the council went upstairs directly to their new chamber, which they were occupying for the first time. It was then past 8.30 o'clock, and there was probably more haste than usual in that immediate assembly.

Women Spectators

Members of the Women's Study Group of Civic Affairs had waited for more than an hour, and the first remarks of His Worship was to explain the delay to them also to welcome them into the new quarters, "and I hope you will come back often".

A motion by Aldermen Braund and Burrows directed City Clerk Outram to write to Mr. and Mrs. Monkman conveying the appreciation of the council, on behalf of the citizens, for their splendid gift of the symbolic gold chain to be worn by the mayor.

Another motion by Alderman Burrows will extend the thanks of the council to those citizens who sent flowers for the occasion of the formal opening of the city hall.

Laud Band

Ald. J. A. Dewart included Peterborough Citizens Band in these acknowledgements. "I heard many favorable comments about the music of the band that day, and I think we should recognize the band's contribution to the occasion."

Ald. Burrows moved that the thanks of the council also be sent to the civic officials and other members of the staff, and to the ladies of the Study Group on Civic Affairs for their guiding of the visitors at the city hall Monday and Tuesday.

"We are all very grateful that the opening of this building was so pleasant and in such favorable weather," Mayor Swanston said. "It was delightful that Lieutenant-Governor McWilliams was able to be here from Manitoba, with all the others who took part in the proceedings.

"I would also like to mention the consideration shown by our own people in letting the visitors from out-of-town see the city hall without crowding. We appreciate the help of the wives of our aldermen and the members of our staff and of the Civic Study Group in helping during open house for our own citizens.

One feature of the whole affair was that everybody was so good about it. There may have been some little criticisms about a year ago, but I think we are all happy that our building has turned out so well, and that so many were willing to help make it a success."

Extra Work

Mayor Swanston said City Clerk Outram deserved the thanks of the council for the manner in which the arrangements were prepared, and for the extra work performed by him and his department.

"It was a fine gesture of General Motors and Mr. J. K. Hughes in providing an automobile for our guests from Peterborough, England, while they are here; to Mr. Walter Crone for letting us have his electric organ, and to Mr. Charles Allen for his music. Numerous citizens were willing to help in any way," Mayor Swanston said.

"I would like to mention also the members of this council who have worked hard during this past year. We would like to thank everybody. I think we should all feel happy about it. I know I do."

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Two New Forums Organized in Smith . . . "Are Co-Ops Democratic?" Forum Subject Nov. 5 . . . Stewart Nelson Elected Director of Peterborough Co-Op . . . Smith Girls Going to Institute Convention.

Farm Forum broadcast Monday, Nov. 5 will discuss the question: "Are Co-Ops Democratic?" This is the second session of the first series which is aimed at a broad consideration of co-operative action.

In rural approach to the Forum it should be realized that this is not a medium of entertainment. It is the greatest discussion program in the world.

Last year 15,000 persons in one thousand local Forums were the average attendance for 15 weeks. United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organizations (UNESCO) has voted $16,400, to which has been added $4,000 by Canadian organizations to conduct an extensive survey of the Forum this year.

Forum merits and limitations will be studied and information will be made available to the world. Already several other countries are experimenting with similar projects.

The importance of National Farm Radio Forum is its directed study of questions of prime importance to the rural community of the nation. The broadcast sets the key of discussion, and the groups apply themselves in their respective discussion periods.

The scope of the Forum goes further. Discussions should be summarized in group reports through their secretaries for immediate mailing to headquarters. That is the first channel of reaction. And the preparation of these reports indicates the duty that rests upon the group secretaries.

The common program is: listening to the broadcast; discussion and study of the presented topic; proposals for the solution of mutual problems; and ultimately the follow-up of appropriate action.

The average program also provides for a closing period of entertainment.

ON CHEX NOV. 10

Floyd Griesbach, national secretary of Farm Radio Forum, and Clare Burt, Ontario secretary, both of Toronto, will be heard in the Peterborough Federation broadcast Saturday, Nov. 10 at 12:15 pm. This is a CHEX service arranged by Harold Lewis.

SALE OF HEREFORDS

Receipts at the Grey-Bruce Hereford Breeders' sale last week was $12,725. Twelve males brought $6,960 for an average of $580; and eleven females averaged $524.09, amounting to $5,765.

In the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture provincial farmers are nearing the end of the season and its work and worries.

Huron says feeder calves continue to come into the county "in goodly numbers", some of them costing up to 40 cents a pound.

Fall wheat has come up strong; red clover seed is a big crop. In Grenville 25 farmers are taking turn using a picker in harvesting their hybrid corn. Leeds reports indications of increased breeding of hogs this fall.

Joseph Rich of Powassan topped the Parry Sound 100 Bushel Oat Club with an estimated yield per acre of 136.55 bus. Average for 20 competitors was 77.6 bus. an acre. In the potato field Harry White of Kearney was first in the 600-bushel competition with an estimated yield of 726 bus. an acre. Average was 506 bus.

Norfolk says several farmers have had excellent success sowing sweet clover in corn after the last cultivation. Many farmers are stabling their cattle since the nights turned cold.

Northumberland Spies are an excellent crop. The lake front orchards have a big yield. Some people with cars are buying McIntosh, Greenings, Snows, etc., from the growers.

TWO NEW FORUMS

Harold Lewis, Federation fieldman, reports two new Forums in Smith township. A North Smith group met at the home of Ralph Garbutt for the first broadcast Monday night. They are organized for the season. Mrs. Harold Junkin is secretary.

The second group is in the ninth line neighborhood. Their meeting was at the home of Sherman Northey. Mrs. Alvin Northey is secretary. Henry Sharpe, vice-president of the Federation, attended that meeting, and Mr. Lewis spent the evening with the group at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt.

Herb H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, who spoke here Friday night, has cultivated a hobby of painting, like the new Prime Minister of Britain. One of his productions, a harvest scene, was used on the outside cover page of an October issue of Farm Magazine.

INSTITUTE CONVENTION

Four girls from Fairview Club in Smith are taking part in the Women's Institute convention in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Nov. 5-7. Their demonstration is under the title: "Would you be well dressed?" The members are: Nola Wilson, Betty Allen, Mary Cockburn and Gwen McKee. They have been trained by Mrs. W. Clarence Mann.

DINNER AT MORGANSTON

First dinner meeting of the Northumberland calf and swine club members at Morganston Church Friday Oct. 26 was attended by 112 boys and girls who completed their year's projects. They are in the age group from 12 to 21 years. With them were leaders, parents and friends. Customarily the Holstein breeders entertained the clubs, but as they were doubling their numbers, it became increasingly difficult to include them in the accommodation.

Local clubs provided the entertainment at their dinner.

Alfred Gooding of Wooler club introduced Hugh Fox who gave a good reading on a rural experience. Campbellford group were represented by a musical number by Ronald Barnum. Warkworth club was represented by a reading by one of the Ward Brothers, introduced by local leader Howard Evans.

The Roseneath leaders Charlton Grigg and Harry Doxtator, president of the county hog producers, spoke briefly and the latter expressed the pleasure of the organization in being able to entertain the swine club. Will Curle of the Campbellford swine club spoke briefly.

Lindsay Anderson, Campbellford leader and Secretary of the Holstein Breeders, presented $1. to each of the 71 showing Holstein calves asking assistant club leader, Mel Merrill, to look after his group.

Jack Dorland of Wooler and Arnold Winters of Cobourg moved a vote of thanks to the Holstein Breeders to be conveyed by their President Gordon Macklin. Vincent Doherty and Theo McCracken thanked the hog producers for their assistance.

The feature of the evening was a talk by Principal A. M. Barr of Kemptville Agricultural School who welcomed young folk interested in developing themselves to come to their course.

NEW DIRECTOR

Stewart Nelson was elected as new director for three years of Peterborough Co-Op Services at their annual meeting Tuesday night. He replaces John Kitney who did not seek re-election. Clifford Johnston was returned to the board for a similar term of three years. About 125 members attended the meeting in the Empress Hotel. The speaker was Kingsley Brown of Toronto.

✦ ✦ ✦

TAKE MARKETING VOTE

Between Oct. 29 and Nov. 10 shippers of whole milk in the Toronto market are voting on the question of whether they desire the establishment of a whole milk marketing agency in that market.

This action has been taken through the Toronto Milk Producers' Association. Ballots are mailed directly to the producer from the Milk Control Board. The Act requires that at least 66 per cent of the producers supplying the market vote in favor of the application.

CHICAGO SHOW

Possibly some farmers may be interested in the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. This is the 52nd annual show. The dates are Nov. 24 to Dec. 1, and the place is the International Amphitheatre, Union Stock Yards.

✦ ✦ ✦

SOIL COMES FIRST

"If we didn't have good soil, we would eventually have no junior farmers," was the comment of Mr. E. I. McLoughry, of Guelph, assistant director of extension with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, here this week.

It was a passing remark on the relative importance of projects and also the essentials of agriculture.

F. C Paterson, agricultural representative, is mailing 1,000 copies of a September issue of an OAC pamphlet entitled: "Is Your Soil Healthy?"

Just a few quotations: "Lay out your fields to suit the lay of the land. Do not persist in square farming in a round country." . . . "On long smooth slopes, alternate strips of hay and grass across the slope (on the contour) will greatly reduce run-off and loss of soil by erosion . . . Strip cropping." . . . "The farmer is the king-pin around which any soil conservation program must revolve."

"Add extra nitrogen when plowing in large amounts of straw, spoiled hay or other waste material This hastens the breaking down process. Do not lose organic matter by burning these waste products. A well-drained soil with plenty of decomposing organic matter is alive with nitrogen-organisms and responsive to plant growth."

And as a Douro farmer advises: don't sell the straw to any paper board manufacturing company.

GIFT FROM JUNIORS

At a recent meeting of Northumberland Juniors, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Nelson were presented with an electric toaster. The presentation was made by County Director Donald Carruthers, who complimented Mrs. Nelson on his leadership in Junior organizations and also as the previous representative on the provincial committee. Vice - president Neil Adams was in the chair for this social hour of the program. Committee details were in the hands of Freda McCulloch and Bill Curle, of Campbellford.

Keith McIntyre President Junior Farmers

Keith McIntyre of Otonabee is the new president of Peterborough Junior Farmers. He was elected in succession to John Edmison at the meeting of the directors Monday night.

The vice-presidents are: Reg Ferguson and Mrs. John Edmison.

The secretary is Elaine Savigny; the treasurer Dorothea Kidd; and the press reported John Stewart.

Mr. Edmison was appointed convenor of a committee to draft a program of activities and projects for the coming season and year.

The Juniors have completed a year of accomplishment notably in their minor club leadership, and their work has received general approval of those who observe their activities.

An example of that appreciation was the receipt Monday of a cheque for $25 from Wm. G. Ovens of Campbell's Dairy. It was a contribution for the "furtherance of the work of the Junior Farmers". The interest of Mr. Ovens has been shown by spending some time at the Achievement Day affairs, and his impressions of the sincere spirit of the Juniors are reflected in this voluntary donation.

It was a timely gift because the Junior Association has spent most of its funds in promoting the minor clubs. More than that, it should convince Juniors that their affairs attract attention, and that their doing of things commends their group to others beyond their membership.

ELSIE TEXAL, artificially-bred Holstein heifer, should convince any doubting farmer of the value of that deviation from natural breeding. She has just established new world records for yearly production of both milk and butter fat in the junior three-year-old class on twice-a-day milking. Her average test was 3.80% butterfat. She is shown here with her owners, Cecil (left) and Glenn Atkinson of Schomberg, Ont. A year ago, Orchard Vale Laura Texal, another member of the Atkinson herd, set a world record for yearly production in the junior two-year-old class on twice-a-day milking, by giving 22,005 lbs. of milk and 778 lbs. fat.

Two World Champions Are Maple Daughters

For the second time within a year the purebred Holstein herd of Cecil Atkinson and his son Glenn of Schomberg, Ont., has produced a world champion. The new champion is Elsie Texal who has established world records for yearly production of both milk and butterfat in the junior three-year-old class on twice-a-day milking. Elsie's official figures are quoted by the Record of Performance branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, under whose supervision the record was made, as 25,929 lbs. milk containing 986 lbs. fat, average test 3.80 per cent butterfat. Last December her stablemate Orchard Vale Laura Texal established a world record for milk in the junior two-year-old class of the yearly division on twice-a-day milking by giving 22,005 lbs. milk and 778 lbs. fat.

Both champions are the result of artificial breeding, their dams having been bred to bulls in the Maple Cattle Breeders unit. Elsie is a daughter of Lonelm Texal Antony, and Laura a daughter of Lonelm Texal Ideal, two paternal brothers. Antony has 1,472 registered progeny, making him one of the most prolific sires in Canada.

The new champion almost missed being registered as a purebred. Her dam was sold while in calf by E. H. Redman, Concord, Ont., to a neighbor, Wm. Cooper. As Mr. Cooper did not maintain a purebred herd he was not going to bother having the calf registered when it was born, but was persuaded to do so by a friend. Without being registered as a purebred, Elsie could not have been placed on official test and so would have missed the opportunity of establishing her world record. She was purchased by the Atkinsons when just a few months old.

Elsie is a persistent milker having produced very evenly throughout her lactation. On her best day she gave 93 lbs. (37 quarts) and during her best month 2,679 lbs. She was fed and milked by 22-year-old Glenn Atkinson except for a brief two week period when she was cared for by Bill Allison.

The former world championships for milk and fat in this class were also held by Canadian Holsteins, the milk champion being Calamity Fayne Piebe, owned by Jas. A. McKinlay, St. Thomas, Ont., with 24,090 lbs., and the fat champion, Lifloc Mata Hari Supreme, bred by Norman W. McConkey, Peterborough, with 905 lbs. fat.

Albert Olan Wins Watch For Potato Crop

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2 (ENS)—Albert Olan of Millbrook was presented with the gold watch for highest standing in the 500 Bushel Potato Club of Durham county at the club's annual banquet in Millbrook Tuesday evening. Delbert Olan, father of Albert, reeve of Cavan township and last year's winner was runner-up, just one point behind. Since Delbert Olan had been a winner of the watch previous to 1950, he was not eligible for it last year and it went to Milton Weatherilt of Bethany. Along with the watch goes the honor of being chairman for the next banquet. Earl Weatherill of Bethany acted as chairman at the Tuesday night banquet in the place of his father, Milton.

Guest speaker was J. A. Carroll, assistant deputy minister of agriculture. He was introduced by E. R. Goodin of the crops branch, Toronto.

In bringing congratulations from Minister of Agriculture T. L. Kennedy, he said that the minister was intensely interested in what the 500 Bushel Club had accomplished in the eight years since its formation.

Durham county had in the person of E. A. Summers of Bowmanville, one of the outstanding agricultural representatives of the province.

There were three main problems facing a young man going into farming today, Mr. Carroll said. One was capital. The price of good land, and of buildings was very high at present. Particularly the price of implements for up-to-date farming was a problem.

Another problem was the obtaining of labor. Sources of immigrant labor were drying up, he said. In the old land farm workers have their unions and are paid for overtime. Fewer laborers come from the western provinces and the Maritimes because logging camps and mines offered higher wages. Some workers were obtained from Newfoundland. Means must be found to compete for labor to manage to pay them sufficiently to make farm work attractive.

The tthird problem was soil conservation, though he liked better to call it a "soil improvement" program. It would be possible he said to double grass production. This would be good for farms, good for farmers and would increase profit, he stated.

Speaking in the same strain, E. A. Summers said to prevent wind and water erosion of soil it was necessary to grow more grass. He told of one 500 acre farm where all but 20 acres was under cover crops. He advised working up the soil earlier in the season, putting in rye, and disking it in well. In his opinion a lot of seed was sown too deeply.

Mr. Summers told of an experiment which Delbert Olan had carried on with a new potato, the "Canso." This was found without blight growing in the same patch where cobbler potatoes were covered with blight.

As well as the watch which went to Albert Olan, the following prizes were awarded: one-half ton fertilizer and $25 to Delbert Olan for second place; third, silver tray and $10 to Harvey McGill, Enniskillen; fourth, silver entree dish and $10 to Fenton Fallis, Pontypool; fifth, $20 to Charlie Weatherilt, Bethany; sixth, $15 to Ernest Cavana, Pontypool; seventh, eighth and ninth $10 to Alfred Johnson, Pontypool, Donald Lowe, Cavan, Earl Weatherilt, Bethany; 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, $5 to Joe McGill, Enniskillen; Melville Woods, Millbrook; Douglas Logan, Pontypool; Laverne Hudson, Pontypool; Clifford Curtis, Pontypool; Ed Beer, Pontypool, and Thomas Ward, Pontypool.

The soloist, Ross Medcalf, sang two groups of songs which included "I met her in the garden where the praties grow," "Come to the Fair," "Sea Fever," and "McNamara's Band." He also played barn dance music on the mouth organ. W. E. C. Workman was his accompanist.

The turkey dinner with all the trimmings to which more than 150 guests sat down was provided and served by the members of St. Andrews United Church Women's Association, under the direction of their president Mrs. John McKnight. The dinner was held in the basement of the church. The bouquets of baby 'mums in great variety of color were from the garden of Mrs. J. H. McKnight.

The vote of thanks to the guest speaker, the entertainers, the ladies providing the banquet, and all who had contributed to its success was moved by Delbert Olan.

HASTINGS ORATORS

Hastings county Junior Farmers held their public speaking competition Monday evening, Oct. 29, at Cannifton Orange Hall. Winner was Bill Leeming, of the host Thurlaw Club, on the subject "Soil Conservation." Burton Hubble, of Sidney Club, placed second. He spoke on the economics of farming.

Earle Nelson, of Campbellford, president of Northumberland Junior Farmers, and Mrs Ruth Thompson, teacher of Campbellford Public School, were the adjudicators.

TO OTTAWA FAIR

Jerry Nelson, Holstein fieldman, on his way to Ottawa Wednesday afternoon to the Winter Fair, picked up Roy Ormiston of Brooklin, James T. Brown of Newcastle and N. W. McConkey, as passengers. The group wanted to see the judging of Holsteins Thursday. Mr. McConkey returns as judge of Guernseys on Monday, and will be accompanied by Bruce Hodgins of Guelph, fieldman for the Guernsey Association.

Durham Potato Title To Albert Olan By One Point

The Olan Brothers of Cavan made a tight race for first place in the Durham 500-Bushel Potato Club this year. One point separated them in the final score that put Albert Olan into the front position with 388 points, one more than Delbert Olan's 387.

Albert grew the Sebago variety and Delbert had the biggest acre yield with Chippewas, 549 bus. to the acre, which was only two more than Albert's 547 bus. to the acre.

The tabulated score indicates the closeness of their competition performance. Most of the 15 members of the Durham Club grew Katahdins. The average was 343 bus.

Delbert Olan's prize figure last year was 760 bus. The standing of the club members, as listed by the judges, R. E. Goodin of the Ontario Department, and E. A. Summers, Durham agricultural representative, follows:

Reeve, Warden Retire From Council

COBOURG, Nov. 2 (ENS). — Two bylaws were passed Thursday at the close of the fall session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council, in connection with the work of the counties clerk and treasurer.

A bylaw authorized three weeks' vacation for the clerk and treasurer; office hours of 9:00 am to 5:00 pm daily except Saturday when they will be from 9:00 am until 12 noon. The bylaw also provided a remuneration of $150 per annum to the clerk for acting as secretary of the counties home.

The second bylaw set up a petty cash account of $500 for the clerk with him as the only signing official for this account.

Increase Salary

A resolution was passed increasing the salary of the superintendent and the matron of the counties home by $150 per annum each. Reeve Frank George of Brighton township asked who should pay for keeping the counties home books. Reeve George Galbraith of Cobourg said that the superintendent and matron were getting a combined total of $3100 a year plus car allowance, which he considered good money when their board and lodging was counted in.

"They work seven days a week and are on call 24 hours a day," clerk William Barr declared. He added that if the superintendent was going to be asked to pay for the bookkeeping, he would do it himself for nothing.

"They earn their money up there," said Reeve Arthur Wartman of Percy township.

"The department rates their work as excellent," observed Warden George Walton. On motion the increase was granted.

Reeve Wartman

Reeve Wartman informed the council that after eight years of service in counties council he was dropping out at the end of the year, "for the time being, at least." He said that his work in the counties council had been pleasant and the experience one which he would not forget. He said that he had enjoyed the fellowship and although, there had been the occasional argument the friendship had been maintained. He said he had learned much during those years and there was some which remained to be learned. He warned against rushing through a session lest something valuable be passed by.

"Reeve Wartman's long service has been appreciated and we are losing a valuable member of council," said the Warden.

Warden Walton

Warden Wartman also announced his retirement from the counties council. He declared that he was grateful for the honor which had been bestowed upon him when he was elected warden last January. It was both a pleasure and an education.

He said that he was grateful to the clerk for his co-operation. His six years in council would always be cherished in his memory. There had been some sloppiness and carelessness in a number of things and when advised of them he had sought to have them corrected. There was still room for improvement and he trusted that as time went on the defects would be rectified.

The special schools committee reported that it had met with the representatives of the townships of Percy and Brighton and also Murray township, and after considerable discussion it was decided that this account for the maintenance of pupils from Murray township and Percy, that had been paid by the township of Brighton, should be paid by the counties. It was further recommended that the representatives of Murray and Percy townships should take this matter before their local councils to see if said councils might pay this money into the counties. The report was adopted.

Following were the recommendations of the legislative and by-law committee:

"We recommend that the tax procedure Chapter 45 of the Department and Municipal Affairs Act, be installed in the counties and that the clerk instruct all municipalities if the procedure is adopted. Re recommend that the resolution from the counties of Leeds and Grenville, asking for abolition of the ten per cent sales tax on all fire fighting equipment be endorsed."

Warden Geoorge Walton was presented with the traditional warden's watch at the annual banquet which marks the close of the warden's office. The presentation was made by Reeve H. Campbell of South Monaghan. Chairman of the evening was Reeve A. B. Billen of Seymour township. Among the guests were Major John Foote, VC, member for Durham in the provincial house, and ex-wardens Norman Green, Cecil Carveth and Arthur Runnalls.

DRAMA ADJUDICATOR — Pierre Lefevre, a member of London's famous Old Vic Stage Company, has been named adjudicator for the 13 regional festivals to be run off by the Dominion Drama Festival in 1952. The actor has had a varied and distinguished stage career, touring England and the Continent. The first of the 13 regioinal festivals starts in Vancouver Jan. 14.

There were games of chance, miniature bowling, a dart game and a balloon breaking contest for the young guests. Prizes of apples, oranges and bags of candy were given for the games.

There followed a grand march to music while the judges made their decisions as to the best costumes. Prizes were given this year for three different groups, fancy dress, comic costumes and for the best dressed couples. They were not placed first, second or third, the judges just picked outfits they considered good as prize winners.

In the fancy dress class the following won: Brenda Pilkington, Yvonne Pilkington, Sharon Ball, Loreen Guthrie and Elinore Crowley. Awards for the best comic costumes went to: Jane Ouellette, Alice Jeffries, Eric Butler, Wayne Raper and Bernard Hancock. Judged the best dressed couples were: Gary and Ronnie Guthrie, Elsie Tickling and Dorothea Chapman and Helen and Bernard Ingham.

Each youngster was given also a free ticket to the local movie where a cartoon, a comedy and a cowboy film were being shown.

The party was under the direction of Percy Hamilton, new Lions president.

Radioactive Snow

SYRACUSE, NY, Nov. 2 (AP) —Dr. Benjamin P. Burtt, a Syracuse university professor, said Thursday's snow, the first of the season, was radio-active. It was apparently more powerful than that of last February, but still harmless. The radio-activity presumably came from atomic blasts at the Atomic Energy Commission's big test range near Las Vegas, Nev., where experiments currently are being conducted.

Britain Plans To Explode 1st Atom-Bomb.

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Britain is out to explode her first atom bomb in about six months if Prime Minister Churchill has his way.

A qualified source said Thursday night Lord Cherwell has been given orders to speed up Britain's whole atomic energy program, which includes the development of atomic weapons. Lord Cherwell is Paymaster General, with atomic affairs in his charge.

Churchill has publicly stated he thinks atomic weapons are a factor in modern diplomacy. He told parliament last December that the West would be silly to promise it will not use the atom bomb first. Such a pledge, he argued then, would amount to holding fire "until you have been shot dead." He has described American supremacy in atomic weapon production as the West's main insurance against Russian aggression.

To Boost Production

News of Churchill's order came after the Supply Ministry announced American-British-South African talks have begun in Johannesburg to boost South African uranium production.

Several pilot plants have started to extract uranium—the fissionable material which gives atom bombs their force — from mine tailings at key points along the Witwatersrand gold reef.

Between 40 and 50 gold mines operate in the Witwatersrand district of South Africa. They mill something like 57,000,000 tons of gold ore annually. The supply of residue is virtually unlimited.

Lord Cherwell—formerly Professor Alexander Lindemann of Oxford—was Churchill's wartime scientific adviser. He has been given cabinet rank and a house next door to the Prime Minister's residence at 10 Downing Street.

CHANGING OF THE RED GUARDS—North Korean guards at the Panmunjom peacetalk site go through their ritual of changing guards. Both Red guards and UN military policemen patrol the area, to see that there are no violations of the neutral zone.

Marrying Parson Dies In Hospital

GALT, Nov. 2 CP)—The Rev. John James Lowe, 97 Hespeler's "marrying parson" died Wednesday in the Elmira Private Hospital.

The grand old man of the cloth tied the marital knots for some 1,300 couples during his career, a record attained 12 years ago when he had seven weddings in one day.

Interested in music, he became associated with the noted evangelists, Moody and Sankey, and later became musical director of John Wannamaker's large church in Philadelphia, a post he had for 15 years. He then acted as assistant pastor at a number of American churches and in 1919 was ordained as minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here.

He made his home in Hespeler. When he came to the local congregation it was a mission and during his 20 years' ministry it grew into a self-supporting church, with a membership of around 500.

Inflation Fight Just Pretence Drew Charges

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Thursday night it was a "pretence from the beginning" that the government planned to do anything at this session to fight inflation.

He made the statement in the Commons before the adjournment when some opposition members asked if debate would start today on a resolution establishing a Commons-Senate committee to study proposed retail price-fixing legislation.

The argument ended with a decision to go ahead with the debate today.

Angus MacInnis (CCF, Vancouver East) said it had been indicated by the government at the start of the session that it was in a hurry to pass legislation prohibiting price-fixing by manufacturers. He said if debate on establishment of the committee was not proceeded with today, it could be taken as an indication that the government was not in a hurry with its legislation.

Not In Hurry

Mr. Drew said he believed members would dispense with any illusions they may have had about the desire of the government to act quickly against inflation.

It was a "pretence from the beginning" that the government planned to do anything about it.

Works Minister Fournier, government House leader, replied that in view of the remarks by the opposition the government would go ahead today with the committee resolution.

Back From Ottawa Visit Mayor Here Till Tuesday

Mayor G. R. Chamberlain of Peterborough, Eng., was figuratively yanked out of bed at 6 a.m. at the Empress Hotel here this week by the long arm of Mayor Charlotte E. Whitton of Ottawa.

The compulsion of it and the dislocation of his matutinal routine remained with him in good humored protest at the luncheon in Lansdowne Park assembly hall Tuesday. He told the city council of Ottawa that he wasn't in the habit of getting up so early back [illegible] and he didn't care to be [illegible] to it by Ottawa's lady [illegible] municipal hosts always made it a [illegible] be ruled by women. [illegible]n quite understand [illegible]s you," he quipped, as [illegible] the Journal. "She had [illegible] of bed this morning at six. It gives me an idea how she hustles you through your paces."

More Leisurely

Back in Peterborough, His Worship said, things were done at a more leisurely manner.

"In fact we bring in motions, and keep referring them back until they don't get to council at all."

In a more serious vein he predicted Canada "will be the finest country in the world—it has the greatest possibilities". England was using up its resources so quickly it would have to curb them soon or "just fade away". Instead of bringing in displaced persons, his country would have to export people to Canada.

It transpires that Mayor Whitton wanted the local guests from the Old Country on Tuesday for the opening of the Winter Fair and Horse Show in the capital, and particularly for luncheon. Finally, there was nothing to it but to take off by automobile before 8 a.m.

Alderman E. V. Martin told the Ottawa civic assembly that the Peterborough aldermen corresponded to the Ottawa Board of Control. At dinner they met Alderman Turnbull of Edinburgh, Scotland. With them were Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Martin. They returned here Thursday evening.

Visit Plants

Their program today will probably include visits to the Canadian General Electric works and Western Clock Co. They have an invitation to the dinner at the Empress at night that is being sponsored jointly by the Federation of Agriculture and the Chamber of Commerce. Herb H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation, will be the speaker.

Mayor Chamberlain and party leave for Toronto Saturday morning. They will be civic luncheon guests. They are going on to Niagara Falls for Sunday, and will likely be luncheon guests of the acting mayor.

They return to Peterborough Monday, and on Tuesday they expect to visit the Quaker Oats Co. During this final stage of their visit they may optionally have some private engagements.

They sail for home on Friday.

3 Students Lose $10,000 On Stocks

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Three Toronto youths who belong to a student investment group at the University of Western Ontario in London are reported to have bought a gold stock on the advice of a fast-talking Toronto promoter and lost $10,000.

Their families are prominent in London and Toronto brokerage circles.

The student "investment syndicate" of at least 12 students at Western is said to have bought shares in an unlisted mining stock against the advice of their relatives in the brokerage business. When the stock fell, they owed two London brokerage firms $10,000 and others smaller amounts.

Found Guilty

BRIDGETON, NJ, Nov. 2 (AP) —The Western Union Telegraph Co. and its local office manager were found guilty Thursday night on charges of maintaining premises where people could bet on horse races. The big communications firm faces a possible maximum fine of $1,000 and its Bridgeton manager, Charles H. Frake, a $1,000 fine and three years in jail or both. The state claimed Western Union handled $300,000 a year in horse race bet messages through its office in this small south New Jersey community.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Practical Home Recipe For The Making Of Cheese

QUESTION: I would like to have your help on making cheese. We have a Jersey cow that will be fresh around the 1st of November. We are very fond of cheese and have not been buying as much lately as in the past due to prices. I have always made my own butter and home-made bread, so you see we love to eat. I always read your column and get a lot of good from it . . Mrs. E. C.

ANSWER: Here is a practical home-made cheese recipe that can be moulded so that it will slice. If you desire a recipe for cheese more like cheddar cheese write to me again.

Dutch Cream Cheese

Heat 3 gallons thick sour milk to 115 deg. or until too hot to hold your finger in it. Let stand at room temperature for 30 minutes. When quite dry crumble the mass into curds, then mix with half a cup of barely melted butter into which you have stirred 1½ teaspoons of soda. Let stand for 2 hours. Place in a double boiler or large pan standing in pan of warm water and add one cup of cream and allow the curds to melt. Stir until smooth then stir in another half cup of cream to which ¼ teaspoon of butter coloring has been added. Stir in 2 teaspoons salt and pour into buttered dishes to mould. Chill in cold place until of slicing consistency.

QUESTION: I am writing you to see if you can help me. Thank you very much. Our doctor said I should weigh 120 lbs. I am about 5 feet. I feel better when I'm thin. First I will tell you what I always eat at Breakfast—1 cup coffe with milk and very little sugar—small dish cooked oatmeal or All Bran—3 slices toast—brown bread—no butter— that is all.

Dinner—Little meat (lean), no potatoes anytime, 1 slice brown bread—few tomatoes or some cabbage or peas, dish applesauce (sweetened) water or cup of tea with milk—no sugar. Supper, about the same but 2 cookies.

I wrote you before and you sent me a chart—I don't understand it much. My daughter gives me her paper once in a while. I like your letters and recipes fine. I would like to hear from you by end of October. I have arthritis in my hands so please excuse writing. That is why I would like to be thinner as it makes me feel better. Good luck and loads of happiness . . . Mrs. A. W. (See answer below).

QUESTION: Could you send me a reducing diet for a working man? I read your column regularly and do like to try out different recipes.

ANSWER: I think the following reducing diet will help both of the readers who wrote the above letters.

DOROTHY DIX

Altar-Shy Male Bad Risk For Girl Seeking Matrimony

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: Howard, with whom I have been going for the past year, is a college graduate and comes close to being my ideal man. Before he met me he was going with a girl living in a nearby city, and I understand they had quite a romance. He had not seen this girl for quite a while until lately, when they met accidentally; now they are seeing each other regularly. He claims he loves me, just has a feeling of friendship for the other girl, but doesn't want to marry as he's too young (24). My opinion is that he just wants to remain a sophisticated bachelor for a while. He has been such wonderful company but I'd hate to take a chance on being hurt—which has happened to me before. Do you think there's a chance for me if I stick around?

HOPEFUL.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Howard has set you straight on one point. He certainly is not ready for marriage—not because of his age, but because his emotional age is about six. He wants a good time, plenty of attention and no responsibilities. He sounds more like a kindergarten freshman than a college graduate.

Accept Him As Friend

Since he does show you a good time, and is a pleasant companion, that is the role in which you should accept him—if you can! Hearts don't always do as they're told, but if you could enjoy Howard's company without having your affections too deeply involved you have a perfect solution.

Funy thing about these non-marrying men. They go around with one girl for years, give her the ballyhoo about not being ready for marriage, then the first thing the hopeful lassie knows she sees an announcement of her beau's wedding in the society column. Just a case of a girl with more gumption and less aversion to, waiting who has taken up the cudgels and grabbed herself a man. She'll be happy, too, just as long as she keeps the upper hand.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband is in a Veterans' Hospital and my family doesn't want me to go see him or send him anything. They think I shouldn't talk about him in front of the children.—C. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: What a heartless pack of relatives you have. You must be completely run by your family to give any consideration at all to their opinion. Better move away from them before they have you as thoughtless and cold as they are.

Your sick husband needs your attention and consideration far more than your family does. See him as often as you can, send whatever packages you can get together and above all, don't let his children forget him. He got his wounds in the service of his county; in defense of the weak. His children should be proud of him and thoroughly ashamed of the the merciless relatives on their maternal side.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it possible for a man to love his wife and still think of an old girl friend? My husband says he can't forget her. I feel as if I want to go miles away and never return but I have two children who need me.—RUTH.

ANSWER: Do you give your husband a chance to forget his old girl friend? Most people have an old romance lurking in the background that comes to light every now and then, and I surmise you have a wide streak of jealousy that insists on dragging your husband's old love into the present every now and then. Suppose you just forget all about her, or at least make him think you have forgotten. After all, you have the man. Don't nag him into getting any more romantic over the past than he is.

Major Hiltz of Toronto, who was SA representative to Germany for UNRAA, showed the guests interesting pictures of rehabilitation in that country.

70 Impersonators Frolic In YW Gym At Gay Party

About 70 business girls and women got into weird Hallowe'en costumes and really "let their hair down" at the frolic in the YWCA gym Thursday evening.

Funny papers were handed out by a character completely dressed in colored comic sheets who was revealed as Mrs. Peters. A comic pair was Marjorie Montgomery and Elva Winslow as Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner. A specially good "ghost" was Marjorie Banks and Lillian Wood with the expected garb and appearance of the Devil.

A beautiful Indian girl, wearing an original beaded leather suit more than 100 years old was Margaret Curtis. A very lovely Martha Washington was Margaret Rodger. Emily Elliott and Dot Forbes were a pair of cats. Ruth Wright was a Scotch lassie.

From half a century ago came the costume worn by Jean Weyer who called herself "The 1900 Bathing Beauty." Berta McBride originated her monkey costume and she added antics in keeping. Hawaiian dancer Shirley Milburn entertained with a dance.

Judges were Mrs. R. B. Arnold, Mrs. W. J. Hardill and Mrs. W. G. Ovens of the health education committee.

The program of Hallowe'en dances and relays offered prizes to winners Jean Hall, Ruth Wright, Elsie Evans and Rita Shaughnessy. Door prize was won by Jean Warner.

Mrs. Brudeau, of French nationality, told fortunes throughout the evening. Mrs. L. Aitkenhead gave several comic readings.

A creepy, thrilling ghost walk was arranged by Helen Hooey and Yvette Simoneau and Lillian Wood was in charge of games and the ducking for apples, etc. Refreshments were convened by Edna Rule.

Gym director Miss L. Littlefield directed the party and pianist Mrs. M. McBride played for the dances and games.

CANADIAN AMBASSADOR SPEAKS—Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong (right) speaks at a press reception for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh Wednesday night shortly after the arrival in Washington of the Royal couple. The Princess charmed about 800 newspaper and radio representatives at her first experience with a full-scale United States press conference.

Slate Blue Costume Does Princess All Hectic Day

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—The future Queen of Britain demonstrated yesterday that a woman can make a costume carry her through a hectic day of business and pleasure.

Princess Elizabeth yesterday went through her full day in Washington in two outfits.

No woman could have been stared at more or commented upon more than the 25-year-old heir presumptive to the British throne. And she knew in advance it would happen.

Yet Elizabeth, when she got up yesterday morning put on a slate-blue figured silk frock with matching coat and hat and made it do until she changed into a turquoise and cream brocade evening frock for the dinner she and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, gave in honor of President and Mrs. Truman.

Accompanied by the Duke and Margaret Truman, Elizabeth went to Mount Vernon, visited Arlington Cemetery, received Commonwealth diplomatic representatives, lunched with the Trumans, and received nearly 2,000 guests at a reception.

She did it all in the same dress with an occasional refreshing from her powder puff and bright red lipstick.

The big British Embassy reception, arranged by the British Ambassador and his wife, Sir Olived and Lady Franks, was acclaimed by guest after guest as one of the best-organized big parties ever held in Washington.

This town is used to big receptions, and guests take in grumbling stride slow-moving receiving lines, delays in getting drinks, wraps, cars and taxis.

But so carefully was every detail worked out beforehand at the British Embassy that there were no bottlenecks, even though it was the largest party ever held at the Embassy.

Welfare Council Giving Training To Young Mothers

TORONTO— (CP)— For hundreds of expectant mothers Toronto's pre-natal classes have become almost as important as knitting baby sweaters and hemming diapers.

Sponsored by the Toronto Welfare Council, the courses were first started in 1944. They grew out of a feeling among public health nurses that there was a need for more pre-natal education among young women; that in addition to teaching new mothers how to care for their baby they also should be taught something about their own diets.

While pre-natal instruction is given new mothers in other cities, the Toronto course is believed the only one in which both nutritionists and public health nurses do the teaching. The importance of proper diet both before and after birth is one of the main things emphasized in the lectures.

To date 5,000 women at one time or another have attended the Toronto coures. So fare this year 900 have registered.

Held in churches, hospitals — wherever space is available— the lectures are given in 10-week courses with approximately 25 women to a class.

Variety of Topics.

How the baby grows, hygiene of pregnancy, foods for mothers and baby, are among topics discussed. How to bathe and dress the baby also are demonstrated onto courses. So far tihs year 900 and equipment for baby displayed.

"One value of the course is that it ives the new mother actual information about what's going to happen to her," said Constance Gray, (nursing consultant for the material and child hygience division of the Toronto Health Department.

Another value is that the new mother isn't as timid about asking for information when she finds herself in a class with 25 others facing the same problems she is herself.

Finally, it's not just young expectant mothers who attend these classes. Grandmothers come to learn new methods of infant care Foster mothers attend to learn the technique of handling their new charges.

Piccadilly Girl Newest Film Charmer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The last place you'd ever expect the movies to look for a cheesecake queen is England.

But Hollywood's latest queen of the bosom and sand epics is Patricia Medina, a Latin from Piccadilly.

(In case you're not hep to Hollywood jargon, cheesecake is the photographers' name for leggy art of luscious lassies. Bosoms and sand epics are those Arabian night fantasies that feature desert scenery betwen shots of the sultan's harem.)

Patricia is currently the star of "Aladdin and His Lamp" which shows much of Sahara sand and much of Patricia.

Most of the British import here has been of the superb dramatic type and little, if any, cheesecake. Although Patricia is a native of London, her father is Spanish. That accounts for her spectacular brunette beauty—a must for those harem epics which are always best in color.

Changes Tactics.

When Patricia first came here with ex-husband Richard Green, she found she got the usual Hollywood treatment of British stars.

"They started casting me as Lady Jane or some other prim character. I'm not that type, really." That, of course, is a classic understatement.

Now that she is a leader in that most American of arts—pin-up pictures—she admits to adopting a few other US customs.

"In England, I never cared much for sports," says Patricia. "Now; suddenly, I find myself a most avid baseball and wrestling fan. I can't explain it."

Then she said she has her television set in her bedroom. That explains it.

Young Soprano Louise Roy To Sing Here

Miss Louise Roy, soprano, will sing in Peterborough on the evening of November 12, Monday, at the Queen Mary auditorium. This very charming talented personality is being brought here by St. Cecelia's School of Music.

Radio listeners to Singing Stars may have heard Miss Roy when she won the $1,000 prize two years ago at Toronto. She was also on this program from Montreal and has sung with Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg symphony orchestras. She is now a member of the CBC Opera Company and is continuing study with Vinnci of the Senior School of Music at Royal Conservatory, Toronto of which she is a graduate.

Sister Ethel Rita of St. Cecelia's Convent has met the young artist, as well as hearing her sing, and was impressed by Miss Roy's dignified bearing, yet sweet and lovely manner. She is a western girl, born in Winnipeg, and last year was guest artist at the Music Festival at Banff, Alta.

St. Andrew's Masquerade

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en party was held by St. Andrew's Choir and the Young People's Club, a good representation from each attending. Sports and games were under the direction of Wm. Peltz and Harvey Wilson. Costumes were judged and the prize for best fancy dress went to John Stewart and Miss Margaret Munro and Bob Fleming were tied for the best comic costumes. After a lively sing song with Harry Northrop at the piano, lunch was served by Mrs. Jean McNabb and her committee.

16 District Women Attend Courses Food Preparation

Demonstrations of food preparation were given today to 16 women at the Department of Agriculture offices, Hunter St. They were part of a two-day agenda for the school for leaders of girls' homemaking groups in Peterborough county, which started Thursday. Mrs. J. Montgomery, home economist with the Women's Institute and Department of Agriculture, Toronto, instructed.

Included were quick methods for cooking muffins, casserole dishes with rice and cream sauces and desserts using oatmeal.

Project of the school is the cereal shelf. Thursday, Miss Jean Noble, home economist for Peterborough county, lectured on Canada's food rules, food requirements and budget considerations in using cereals around the clock.

Attending are leaders and assistants from clubs in Havelock, Norwood, Keene, Warsaw, Fairview, Lakefield, Belmont, Bailieboro, Fraserville. The leaders will in turn give these demonstrations and lectures to their girls' clubs.

Cancer Dressings And Information Need Is Greater

TORONTO, Nov. 2. — "More than 300,000 dressings a month are being made and distributed free to cancer patients being cared for in their homes and many more could be used." The statement was made at the first work conference of the Canadian Cancer Society to be held in Ontario, which began Thursday at Toronto.

Today the society is swamped with requests to send speakers and educational films to meetings of women's organizations, it was stated. "At first we had to almost plead that our speakers be allowed a few minutes on club programs. People pictured our speakers as telling of the horrors of cancer, our films depicting various types of dread disease. When they found that our speakers were spreading the gospel of hope and healing that our films were beautiful pictures of educational value we were deluged with requests for both. It has now come to a point where we find it difficult to supply enough speakers."

There is a speaker's panel which has found it useful and necessary to hold training forums for speakers from time to time, so as to keep speakers up to date on information.

The Society's plan for education, particularly through industrial organizations, has taken the form during the past few months of distribution of literature in offices and plants. Development of plans for a school program is still in the embryonic stage.

Woman 94 Has Adventurous Life

VANCOUVER —(CP)— Celebrating her 94th birthday here this month Mrs. Cordelia Frances Gore can recall enough adventures to fill a book.

She has driven a covered wagon in Washington Oregon and California; defended herself and her four children from Indians while her husband was in the fields, and was ship-wrecked near Whitby Island en route to Blaine in 1896 losing all her possessions and one child who suffered pneumonia.

She came to Vancouver in 1897, and her husband James died the following year. Five of her seven children are living, including two sons and three daughters, but one of the daughters is married in England and another in New York state.

Mrs. Gore lives here with her third daughter, Mrs. Jessie Flucher, and still takes a keen interest in current affairs.

Nurses' Chapel Seen As Need In Residences

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Chapels in nurses' residences were cited as "not a luxury feature" by Sister M. Stanislaus of Our Lady of Mercy Hospital, speaking at the convention of the Ontario Hospital Association this week.

"Having a chapel in the nurses' residence seems to be the exception rather than the rule," she said. "Architects are not being asked to plan for chapels in new buildings.

"By this exclusion of chapels from residences are we implying that science and religion are antagonistic, and that religion is out of place in a nursing school?" she asked.

Chapels, where a nurse can go to reflect or to pray are indispensable to any nursing school, Sister Stanislaus stated.

Hallowe'en Party At Young's Point

Through the dim shadows of evening, eerie figures could be seen approaching, on Hallowe'en, St. Aidan's hall, Young's Point. Soon ghosts, witches and other weird apparitions were enjoying to the full a program of games and contests which began with costume judging, as follows:

Grades I and II—Wilfred Mindle, a dog; Carol Ann Graham, a Dutch girl.

Grades III and IV—Linda Parr, a Chinese lady; Teddy Brooks, a gypsy.

Grades V and VI—Mary Ellen Young, as the "Royal Tour"; Jimmy Dunford, a hobo.

Grades VII and VIII — Joyce McIlmoyle, a clown; Keith Freeburn, a tramp.

Adults—Mrs. Elmer Johnston, an old-fashioned lady; Pete Godfrey.

Contest winners were as follows:

Peanut race—Bobby Godfrey.

Apple races—Grades I and II, Joyce Garrett, Reggie Coones; Grades III and IV, Elda Mindle, David Lloyd; Grades V and VI, Jackie Breaker, Leona McIlmoyle.

Feather race—Grades VII and IX, Marilyn Jones, Joyce McIlmoyle, Ethel Traynor, Evelyn Freeburn, Edward Dunford, Joe Godfrey, Wayne Heard, Elmer Garrett.

Throughout the evening shell-outs of candy, nuts and apples were conducted by members of the Home and School Association, who sponsored the program. After a medley of Hallowe'en songs, lunch was served to parents and children, and the evening closed with singing games.

Judges for the evening were: Mrs. R. Breaker and Mr. Cook of Lakefield and Mrs. H. B. Jackson of Young's Point. Others who aided in the program were Mr. G. E. Elliott, Mr. J. Jones, Russel Brooks, Nelson Godfrey and the ladies of the Home and School.

14 Yards Of Wool In Pouchka Coat Given Princess

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (CP).—When Princess Elizabeth holidays in the Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal this weekend, on her return from Washington, she'll have insurance against frosty weather.

A pouchka wool coat, designed by Lillian Farrar, was presented the Princess before she left here for the United States capital.

The coat contains 14 yards of material, and is of an amber shade called "yellow croesus."

Soft and fleecy, the coat is a wrap-around style with cape effect top which extends to the elbow-length sleeves.

The material was woven in England of imported wool and designed and made here.

Weather Poor For Movie Of Canada

REGINA — (CP). — The weather is poor in Western Canada for making motion pictures.

That's the opinion of two Danish movie men interviewed in Regina recently.

"Sunny Alberta isn't sunny, dry Saskatchewan isn't dry, and beautiful British Columbia is foggy," Palle Bojesen of Copenhagen, film producer for the Danish Film Board lamented.

Mr. Bojesen, and Erik Olsen, cameramen, are making a one-hour color film called "Canada, Sea to Sea."

The pair had been in Canada seven weeks and had poor picture-making weather since they arrived in the West. Most of the film had been made except for the wheat harvest part which they hope to take in the Regina area.

The film on Canada, is to be more than a travelogue. It is to be built around principal Canadian activities.

Help Appreciated

The Danish film makers said the movie is to be finished in Canada at the National Film Board and is to be released to most of the Scandinavian countries.

"It will give an honest picture of Canada," said Mr. Bojesen.

The Danes said they have had wonderful co-operation from Canadian people in making the film. If they had had just a little co-operation from the weather the film would have been finished without delay.

The Saskatchewan wheat pool will be fully covered in the film since the Danish people are co-operatively minded.

Mr. Bojensen, a former schoolteacher, was in Canada in 1949 making radio recordings for the Danish state radio and for the CBC international service.

Mr. Olsen has made a great number of films during his career and has his own production service in Denmark.

WRONG: Make no effort to take along as little luggage as possible.

RIGHT: Realize that the storage space for luggage is limited, and so plan to take a travelling bag that is not too large or of an awkward size.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Small Dash Of Cheese Peps Vegetables For Household

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It must have been a Canadian who created that little rhyme:

Apple pie without the cheese
Is like a kiss without a squeeze.

Cheese and apple pie is one of this country's specialties, despite the fact Canada is not a nation of cheese-eaters. While some types of Canadian cheese may be the best in the world, Canada ranks 10th in per capita consumption.

Home economists of the federal Department of Agriculture say that if enthusiasts were limited to only one kind of cheese, they'd probably choose Cheddar, the type most commonly used in cooking.

There are many other kinds, of course. Camembert is a mellow semi-liquid cheese to be served with crackers, fruit and good coffee. Edam and Gouda are characterized by round or spherical red coats; mild-flavored, good either in salad or dessert. Canadian Swiss is a nutlike cheese, characterized by its "eyes" and good for sandwiches, salads or desserts. Subtle flavor makes Oka a fine dessert cheese, and the flavor of Limburger makes up for the jokes about its odor.

Cheese For Vegetables

A combination of cheese and vegetables makes a dish that's both tasty and economical.

Brussels sprouts or cauliflower which has been dipped in cheese batter and deep-fried makes a good supper dish. The sprouts or pieces of cauliflower should be cooked in boiling salted water until tender.

The batter is made by mixing one-half cup of flour, a few grains of salt and pepper, plus one-half teaspoon of baking powder. To this add a slightly beaten egg and one-quarter cup milk. Combine with flour mixture. Then blend one-half cup grated medium cheddar cheese into the batter.

The vegetable pieces are dipped into this batter and deep fried in hot fat until golden brown.

That Apple Pie.

Here is a personal recipe for hot water pie crust which is easy to make.

Ingredients: one-half pound lard, one-half cup boiling water. Beat this to cream consistency and then add three cups pastry flour, one teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon baking powder.

To make the crust shiny and brown, brush with milk before popping in the oven.

And if it's an apple pie, don't forget to serve it with cheese.

The Department suggests a topping of cream cheese, whipped until light, makes home-made fruit pies taste even better than usual.

Other cheese tips: a little Canadian blue-vein Roquefort crumbled in your next tossed green salad gives character. And for your next party, try a filling of cream cheese, chopped candied ginger and chopped almonds.

White House Daughter Wins Praise.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2 (AP) — Margaret Truman today won high praise from a fellow performer, Tallulah Bankhead, who predicts a rosy future in show business for the President's daughter.

"She's a fine, talented girl," said Tallou, the "dahling" of radio.

"When Margaret first appeared on her "big show" we were a little afraid of how she would be, since she had never done that type of thing before. But we were enchanted with how she came through. . .

Good Sport

"She's a wonderful sport, too. She hangs around the stage and kids with all of us. We've never had to change the script for her. Her only request has been that we say nothing that would poke fun at her father. But she said we could say anthing we wanted about her.

"Yes, darling, I think Margaret can make a fine career for herself in show business . . . she has simplicity . . the simplicity that goes with greatness."

Miss Bankhead added that she had reactions from the White House from Margaret's appearance. Mrs. Truman penned a letter of appreciation. (Yes, she writes letters, too.) And the President telephoned Tallulah after one of the shows.

Campbell Ends Brawl Incident

MONTREAL, Nov. 2—(CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today that "the incident is terminated" and there will be no further action regarding the hockey brawl last night during the Toronto Leafs-Montreal Canadiens game.

Campbell said Referee Bill Chadwick "handled the matter satisfactorily" and that "the penalties he gave take care of the situation."

The free-for-all featured fiery Maurice (Rocket) Richard, of Canadiens, and his knockout of Bill Juzda of the Leafs, a wild aftermath to a battle between Fernie Flaman and Richard. Richard was given two major penalties and a game misconduct penalty, Flaman a major and game misconduct. Juzda was given a major and so was captain Butch Bouchard of Canadians for his supporting role in the fighting.

The game misconduct penalties each carried a $50 fine. Chadwick did not order match misconduct penalties which, in addition to fine and banishment from the game, would have meant neither of the principals could play again until their cases had been dealt with by Campbell.

Acting police sergeant Gordon Trennum and constable Cecil Bowyer investigated.

Jury Ponders Long Case For Six Hours

The petit jury in the Gladys Long manslaughter trial returned once for 15 minutes to get instructions from Justice W. F. Spence.

Their forman Bert I. Burgess, Albertus St., asked for a closer definition of negligence as it applied to manslaughter and the less serious charge of dangerous driving.

The jury filed out at 1.17 am, more than five hours after they started their deliberations. When Justice Spence finished his explanation he was asked if negligence entered into the third count of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

The Justice said the third count on the indictment was separate from the other two.

Apparently this helped break the deadlock because agreement was reached an hour later. Foreman Burgess said the jury found Miss Long not guilty of manslaughter but guilty of both dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Members of the jury were: Gerald Routley, Douglas St.; John Kennedy, Ennismore township; William Williams, John St.; Bert I. Burgess, Albertus St.; J. Robin Runnett, Wallace St.; Vincent Shaughnessy, Crescent St.; Sherman Northey, Smith township; Bert Easson, Harvey township; Cecil Wolff, Dowhie St.; Leo Ackford, Boswell Ave.; William F. Stanbury, Prince St.; and Ted Rose, Dummer township.

Justice Spence, in dismissing them from the Long case, said: "Your actions should engender in this county a great deal of respect for criminal justice."

St. Paul's Guild Plan To Hold Bazaar

MARMORA, Nov. 2—(ENS)—The November meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held at the home of Mrs. W. M. Regan Thursday evening with Mrs. F. Leal presiding over a fair attendance of members.

The president reminded members that the bazaar's date had been changed to Nov. 23. The secretary, Mrs. W. D. Lavender, read a letter of thanks from a member who had been remembered in sickness.

Appointments of members on various departments of the bazaar was the next order of business. Arrangements were made for the bridge and euchre party to be held that evening.

Material received from a member was passed out to members for the making of articles for sale at the bazaar.

As the election of officers is annually held at the December meeting, the nominating committee was appointed: Mesdames R. G. Winters and J. R. Reynolds. Refreshments were served.

Dismiss Charge On Comic Books

DAUPHIN, Man., Nov. 2 (CP)—RCMP charges that Paul Jaddock, Dauphin newsdealer, had violated the federal government's 1949 "Crime Comic" Act were dismissed in court here Thursday.

It was the first prosecution under the recent "Crime Comic" amendment to the Canadian Criminal Code.

The trial—considered a test case for the legislation—was attended by Mannie Brown, general counsel for the comic magazine industry of Canada.

Mr. Jaddock was summoned several months after an RCMP constable had purchased comics at his news-stand.

Mr. Brown said: "The magazine produced as evidence dealt with fantasy, not crime."

The Crown said that the magazine violated Section Three of the act. This defines as a crime comic any magazine which exclusively or substantially comprises matter depicting pictorially the commission of crimes, real or fictitious.

The defence showed that the "crimes" were not depicted, only referred to in the captions.

Thorn Tree Always Blooms When Royalty Pays Visit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — (AP) —A thorn tree said by tradition to date back to the time of Christ and to bloom when Royalty is near has put forth four blossoms —with Princess Elizabeth here.

The tree is Washington Cathedral's Glastonbury thorn. That tree, according to legend, grew from the staff of Joseph of Arimathea, the man who took Christ down from the cross. Joseph is said to have gone to the British Isles, and, where Glastonbury now stands, to have thrust his staff into the ground to claim the Isles for Christ. The staff, the story goes, took root, and grew into the Glastonbury thorn.

In the Middle Ages it became custom to pluck a bloom from the revered tree when Royalty came near, and present the flower in a silver box.

Canon Charles Martin, headmaster of St. Alban's School at Washington Cathedral, an Episcopal Church, told the Washington Post the cathedral thorn had three times bloomed when Royalty visited Washington. Other times, it is said, it blooms only at Christmas.

The Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh visited the cathedral today and Princess Elizabeth received a bloom from the famous thorn, in a tiny silver box.

Worker Pleads Guilty To Stealing Sleigh

Charged with stealing a child's sleigh from a Lakefield boat building firm where he is employed, Garnet Brooks, 457 Albert St., pleaded guilty in police court today and was placed on suspended sentence for one year by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Brooks was also ordered to pay $7.50 in court costs.

Chief Constable Garnet Samis, of Lakefield, testified that he had found the snow boat (a small child's sleigh resembling a boat, with runners) in the trunk of Brooks' car Thursday noon. Constable Samis told the court Brooks admitted taking the sleigh from the warehouse of the company where he works.

Charge Otonabee Man With School Damage

A charge arising out of damage to an Otonabee township school Hallowe'en night was heard in police court today.

Earl Cook, 26, Otonabee township pleaded not guilty to the charge of damaging windows and the door of SS No. 2 Lang school.

Magistrate W. R. Philp refused to grant Cook's request for an adjournment on the insistance of assistant crown attorney Walter Howell.

Cook was remanded on bail of $200 until November 6.

Hallowe'en Is Theme At Coldsprings WI

COLDSPRINGS, Nov. 2 (ENS)—The October meeting of the Coldsprings Women's Institute was held Wednesday afternoon in the township hall, with 30 present. The president, Mrs. K. Harper, presided for the business period.

Plans were made for the fall bazaar and tea, to be held Nov. 27. Plans were also made to start the euchre and dances for the winter months.

The financial statement, presented by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Herb McKinley, showed a balance on hand of $450.30.

It was decided to donate $5 toward the needy in Greece. At the December meeting, Christmas gifts are to be exchanged, the price not to exceed 50 cents.

Mrs. Clifford Avery was appointed to secure a minstrel show at an early date. Mrs. Harold West, convener, was in charge of the Hallowe'en program: reading by Eileen Gibson, "The Golden Pumpkin"; report on the annual convention held recently in Belleville, was given by Mrs. Everett Jamieson and Mrs. Reginald Willis; the motto, "Ghosts did shriek and squeal about the streets," was given by Mrs. Ted Cusworth. Highlight of the meeting was the "Origin of knives, works, spoons, and plates," by the historical research convener, Miss Edith Hoskin. She said forks were not used till the 17th century. The first spoons used were shells picked up at the seashore. The first silver spoons were used in the 19th century. The first plates were square wooden ones, and two people ate from one plate. In England some people still cling to old habits, and customs of years ago.

Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. C. Timlin, as pianist.

The funeral service will be held Monday at 2 p.m. at the Nisbett Funeral Home, the Rev. Walter Gilling, officiating. Burial will be in the Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

Says Highways Inadequate If War Comes

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Military and civilian roads were discussed today by delegates to the 32nd annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association.

Brig. H. W. Love, commander of the Northwest Highway System—the famous Alaska Highway — told the convention that present highway systems are inadequate for war conditions. He said the threat of atomic bombing made by-passes around principal cities essential.

Maj. R. H. Young, senior highway superintendent of the Northwest System, said that the Alaska Highway is "of great strategic value to Canada" and is "a vital means of opening up and developing the vast wealth of Northern British Columbia and the Yukon."

Vast distances through uninhabited territory, extreme winter cold and mountainous terrain make it one of the most difficult roads in the world to maintain, he said.

Good System

On the civilian front, R. B. Baillie, director of traffic safety for the Manitoba Highways Department, spoke of the Manitoba program of "better education and stricter laws" that has reduced accidents in the province by 25 per cent between August 1950 and August this year.

Every driver in Manitoba is scored on a point system for accidents and traffic convictions and at eight points the driver must come in for clinical instruction or lose his licence. He said the system permits concentration on the 20 per cent of drivers responsible for 80 per cent of the accidents.

Brig. Love said that military traffic in a war might be a continuous stream of heavy vehicles for days or weeks without cessation. To prepare for this, he said, Canada required highways that by civilian and peacetime standards appear grossly uneconomical.

Urges Standardization

He urged standardization of roads between provinces to aid military planning, and asked for detailed information on road and bridge capacities, river widths and other necessary facts for planning.

Maj. Young said that the Alaska Highway was not a permanent road when Canada took it over from US army engineers in 1946. Most of the bridges and 8,000 culverts were untreated timber and many sections of the road had to be relocated to escape bad grades or permafrost.

Equipment and men must be moved hundreds of miles to attend to any break in the road. He estimated that reconstruction of the road would be necessary every three or four years.

Living Costs Up In September, Clothing Blamed

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. (CP)—Up, up, up. That's the direction of the cost-of-living index and the September trend didn't backtrack, although it did slow up. The Bureau of Statistics reported Friday that living costs reached a new peak in September mainly due to increased clothing prices. The cost-of-living index went up six-tenths of a point to 190.4 from 189.8 points during August. It is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100. The clothing sub-index jumped 6.9 points to a peak 213.8 from 206.9. The increase was said to have been due to the introduction of new fall and winter lines, higher in price than when these items were surveyed last March.

However, another important group, the food sub-index, showed its second drop in two months. Lower meat and egg prices, although somewhat offset by increases in the cost of other food items, dropped the food sub-index 1.4 points to 249.7. Foods had been as high as 251.4 in July.

Other family budget items — such as coal and coke, theatre tickets and health care—went up slightly. Rents were not surveyed.

Nevertheless the September index climb was the smallest in five months, since the two-tenths-of-a-point increase during April. The biggest increase in any month was the 4.5 points last February.

On the wholesale side, the Bureau's index for 30 industrial material prices during October reversed its downward trend in the four previous months and moved up. So did the index for farm products.

The industrial materials index advanced 5.9 points to 291.2 for the week ended October 26 from 285.3 for the week ended September 28.

Prices were higher for steel merchant bars, white lead, raw rubber, beef hides, oats, steers, hogs, lead, zinc and tin. There were small price declines in raw sugar, copper and wheat.

Farm product prices advanced 6.1 points to 255.4 from 249.3, with gains showing for potatoes, eastern grains and livestock.

Royal Couple Enjoy Holiday In Laurentians

STE. AGATHE DES MONTS, Nov. 3—(CP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip awoke today to a snowy Laurentian wonderland to begin a two-day holiday before concluding their North American tour in the Maritimes.

But unless the snow builds up to more substantial proportions, there is litle chance of skiing and the Royal couple will likely hike through the beautiful scenic trails, snap pictures and come home to a blazing log fire in a comfortable hearth.

Their hike will take them through breath-taking wintry decorations that overshadow anything man-made they have seen on royal tour routes throughout the country.

For gleaming white coverings soften the bare limbs of hardwood groves and add Christmastide decorations to the tall stands of evergreen that surround the holiday estate.

Arrive Together

Winter's first serious snowfall arrived with the Royal tourists at Montreal's Dorval airport, 50 miles away, Friday and followed them to their holiday retreat.

And throughout the route of this famous skiing resort and despite the fact they were an hour behind schedule, thousands of persons clad in parkas and snowboots stood in the wintry bluster to cheer them on.

Most of the route was taken in darkness and driving on a layer of snow was so tricky that one provincial motor bike skidded on a curve and threw its rider into the guardrail on the side of the highway. He picked himself up un-

3 Women Hurt In Jail Rioting

HAMILTON, Nov. 3 (CP).—Three women were injured Friday night in a disturbance in the women's section at Barton Street jail.

They were identified as Mary Radford, 29, and Margaret Carroll, 29, both of Hamilton, awaiting trial on charges of illegal possession of drugs, and Darlene Mascelle, 29, of Toronto, sentenced Friday to reformatory on a shoplifting charge.

T. M. Gourlay, Ontario's chief inspector of prisons, said in Toronto that Miss Carroll asked to be taken to the jail doctor. When she returned to the prisoners' corridor, the two women caused a diversion and the matron broke her key in the lock. The women then broke windows.

Later, after officers had got into the corridor, Miss Carroll cut her hand with glass, Mr. Gourlay said.

All three women were taken to hospital. Miss Radford was kept in the hospital for observation, while the others were returned to jail.

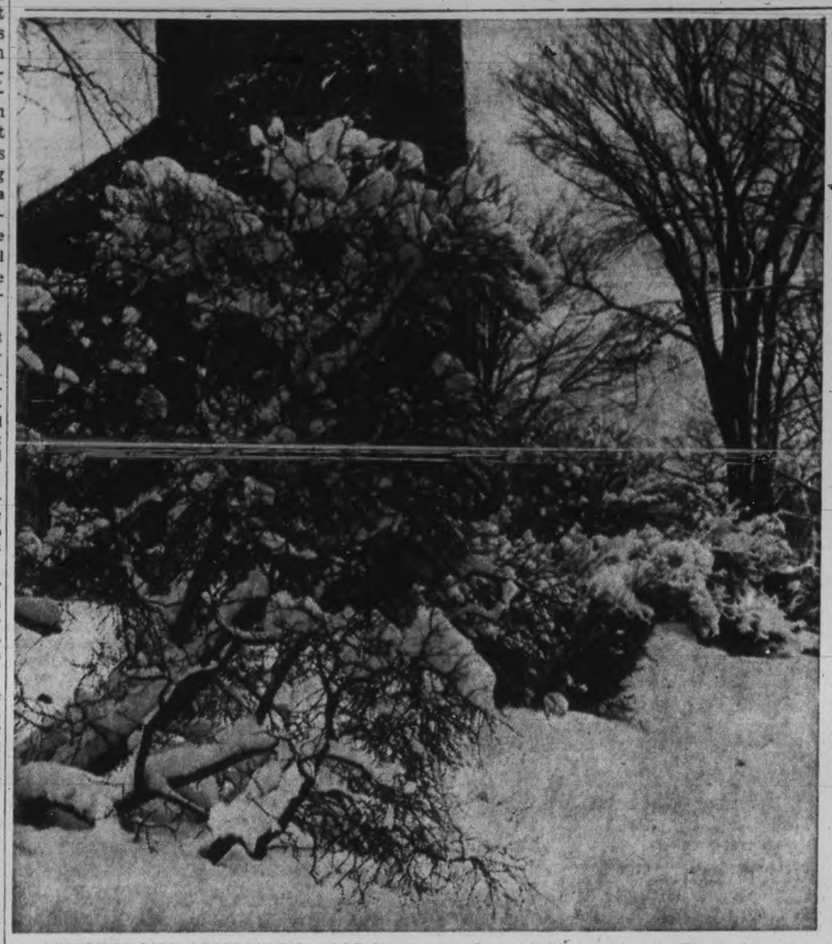
Twelve other women prisoners quieted down when placed in cells.

4,000 Troops To Sail On Carrier To Cyprus

PORTSMOUTH, England, Nov. 3 (Reuters).—About 4,000 troops of the British 3rd Infantry Division—the "Ironsides"—will embark Sunday in the aircraft carriers Triumph and Illustrious for the Middle East.

Probable destination is Cyprus, from where they could be switched within a few hours to the Suez Canal zone.

Most of the troops embarking Sunday belong to the 29th Brigade. The division's 32nd Brigade is standing by and may leave for the Middle East when the two carriers return.



The 32nd Brigade would bring the army's known strength in the Middle East to two full divisions —about 40,000 men.

Bomb Blast Rocks Peron Printing Plant

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 3 (AP).—A strong bomb blast rocked downtown Buenos Aires today, damaging a printing plant which published Mrs. Eva Peron's book, "The Reason For My Life."

It is not immediately known whether the explosion caused any casualties.

Mrs. Peron is the wife of President Juan D. Peron.

PETERBOROUG DISTRICT'S FIRST heavy snowfall of the season laid down a six-inch hazard beginning in earnest Friday evening. Cars crashed together and slithered into ditches, snow shovellers got their first workout and last winter's goloshes came out of mothballs in a hurry. The only citizens who got a kick out of it were deer hunters and kids. But there was a fresh beauty everywhere such as the laden trees and shrubs hard by the entrance of St. John's Anglican Church, pictured Above. —Examiner Staff Photo.

Snow Crosses Up Engineer

Six inches of snow, a duplicate of last year's pre-deer season weather, caught the city engineer's department with its snowplows down. No contracts for plowing roads or sidewalks have been let, and the soft, slushy snow was slowing traffic throughout the city. At the new market square, customers were wading through the unexpected snowfall. Nothing had been done to clear even the aisles. Snowflurries Friday heralded the heavier fall during the night and early morning, although few people expected anything like the heavy sticky blanket that covered the city this morning.

Deer hunters aren't happy about the weather. If it holds on, and the prediction for Sunday is "colder, with snow," dogs will have a tough time of it in the woods, sliding and cutting their feet on rocks.

Six Accidents

Six accidents in the city were caused by snow, police said, and several in the district were reported by provincial police. Worst accident was near Bowmanville, where 16-year-old Harold Brown died of injuries received in a car crash.

At 1:30 am today, OPP Constable Roy Feeley investigated an accident on Highway 7, six miles east of Peterborough, in which about $500 damage was done to a car when it slid off the paved part of the road, skidded across to the other side, hit a tree, bounced off, and rolled over.

The driver, William Emmorey, of Hastings and his brother, Steven, were uninjured.

3-Vehicle Crash

North of Lakefield, two trucks and a car were involved in a crash in which $250 damage was done and no one was injured.

The car was being driven north by Hugh Preston, 36, of Lakefield, and a half-ton pickup truck driven by Ivan Taylor, 50, of 98 Bennett St., Peterborough, was going south. Taylor said he was blinded by the lights of the car, applied his brakes and slid into the auto. Two minutes later, a

Princess Impresses US With Interest, Capabilities

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. (Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth did more than charm Washington socially during her visit here which ended Friday: She impressed those she talked to privately with her sense of her responsibilities and also the practical interest which she takes in the free world's production effort.

The best example of this is a conversation between her and the United States defence mobilizer, Charles E. Wilson. The 64-year-old official told friends Friday that he started talking to the Princess after the White House dinner in the usual polite but not unduly serious strain which a veteran industrialist might use towards a young lady.

She surprised him by directing the conversation to her impressions of seeing in action the production of frames for Sabre jet engines in Canada.

Wilson was one among many guests but the Princess appeared to him to be thoroughluy conversant with his functions as the mobilizer of the US rearmament program.

Referring to her conversations with C. D. Howe, the Canadian production minister, during the Canadian tour, she added: "Your opposite number, you know."

Many such anecdotes are circulating throughout Washington today following the departure of the royal party. They are the direct result of the obvious earnest and responsible determination of the Princess to talk to as many people as possible and to make her conversation with them something more memorable than the polite exchanges of social pleasantries which everybody in Washington expected.

Thursday's giant British embassy reception was one of the largest, most smoothly organized and democratically attended embassy parties ever given in a capital famed for its entertaining in recent years.

The consensus in diplomatic circles at the reception was that the Princess, the Duke, and the British ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, who organized it, had done more in one blow than anyone in the last 12 years to destroy the impression still prevalent in the US that important people from Britain must behave like "stiff, stuffed-shirt, striped-pants snobs."

Oshawa Crash Kills 1; 4 Hurt

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 3 (Staff)—An Oshawa youth is dead and four others injured in Oshawa General Hospital after a car-truck accident two miles west of Bowmanville at 10 pm Friday.

Dead is: Harold Brown, 16, of 169 Court St., Oshawa. He died at 11 pm in Bowmanville hospital.

Injured are: Frank Appleyard, 243 Clarke St., Oshawa; Harold Holmes, 183 Mary St., Oshawa; Edwin Gurney, Oshawa and Jack Coull, 212 Huron St., Oshawa.

The five, all members of the Salvation Army, were returning to Oshawa from a band concert in Bowmanville Boys' Training School.

Hospital authorities said today that none of the four youths is in serious condition and all rested comfortably Friday night.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Brown, westbound on Highway 2, skidded on the slippery pavement into an eastbound dump truck, driven by Clarence Wood, 238 Wellington St., Kingston. The car ended in the ditch on the north side of the highway.

An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. Charles Austin.

What's The Army Coming To When Private Asks US General To Tie His Necktie

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 3 (AP).—Imagine a private asking the General: "Sir, I can't tie my necktie. Would you mind doing it for me?"

Recruit Billie D. Shelley, 20, of Connersville, Ind., made the request to Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the Marine Corps.

The General came upon Shelley in a quonset hut struggling to get into his clothes.

Shelley gulped at the array of inspecting brass which included two other generals, and blurted out his request.

Cates replied: "I'd like to, son, but I have never been able to tie one on anyone other than myself."

So, another General stepped up and tied recruit Shelley's tie.

He was Brig.-Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps.

The depot said Shelley now is getting special tie-tying drills from his sergeant.

UN Troops On Port Islands Can Almost Touch Enemy

WONSAN HARBOR, North Korea, Nov. 3 (AP)—The strangest salient of the Allied battle line in Korea skips along islands off the besieged port of Communist-held Wonsan.

Allied occupants are so close to shore they must be supplied by night—or have supplies dropped and floated in on the tide.

United Nations soldiers, marines and sailors on the islands act as spotters for naval guns. They are part of an unending battle by the UN navy to keep the Reds from sending supplies down east coast highways to the front.

The Allies are on islands in the harbor, north of the harbor and south of the harbor. The UN has offered to give up these islands in the event of an armistice.

Some men watching the shore through binoculars are so close to the Communists that — in the words of a marine sergeant—they can "count the hairs on the Reds."

The battle between Allied warships and the Reds for control of Wonsan highways has been going on daily since February.

Highways and rail lines to the eastern and central fronts run through Wonsan, 70 miles north of the 38th Parallel. The Reds have to use these roads, or rely solely on long exposed routes winding tortuously just north of the battle line.

Allied destroyers cruising lazily in Wonsan harbor are ignored for days. Then, suddenly, Communist bateries open up furiously.

"You just can't figure them out," says Lieut. Calvin Hicks. "Some days they will raise hell. Others they will leave you alone no matter what you do."

Last Wednesday, three 76-millimetre shells hit the US minesweeper Esprey. One sailor was seriously wounded.

The damage naval guns do to the Communists is hard to determine. That's where the spotters on the islands do their work.

They are close enough to see what happens.

Eight Attacks By Reds Gain Nothing

Red Guns Shoot Down 2 UN Planes, 3 Of Enemy Damaged

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 3. —(AP)—Eight separate Communist attacks on the Korean western and central fronts today failed to gain ground, but Communist guns shot down two United Nations' planes.

A United States F-84 Thunderjet was lost in one of three jet battles that whooshed across northwestern Korean skies Saturday. An F-81 Mustang was downed by ground fire.

The Fifth Air Force said three Russian-made MIGs were damaged when 20 MIGs jumped 24 Thunderjets pulling out of a rail strike near Sinanju. The MIGs downed the F-84.

A UN advance position on the western front just west of Yonchon repulsed three company-sized enemy attacks during the night. Then the UN forces were forced to pull back when the Reds attacked in battalion strength in three waves. UN forces, however, reoccupied the positions unopposed at dawn, the Eighth Army said.

The Communists hammered at UN positions southeast of Kumsong in three attacks but were unable to dent the UN defences.

A fourth attack by a platoon southwest of Kumsong also was thrown back.

Reds Make Gain

Red forces Friday punched out one gain in the Kumsong sector. Several other Red probing attacks were thrown back.

The Fifth Air Force said F-86 Sabre jets sighted 24 enemy jets Saturday morning. The MIGs did not attack as escorted fighter-bombers assaulted rail yards in the Sinanju area.

During the night, UN pilots knocked out 200 of almost 2,000 Red vehicles sighted moving supplies toward the front, the air force said. B-29 Superforts continued their round-the-clock bombing of air bases in the northwest.

The biggest ground action was in the Kumsong sector of the central front. Two Chinese companies attacked for 20 hours, supported by a heavy artillery barrage. The UN line failed to budge.

In a separate action in the Kumsong area, UN troops were forced back 500 yards.

Ships' Officers Cancel Strike

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP). — A strike threat by east and gulf coast ships' officers was gone today, but the paralyzing wildcat walkout of longshoremen appeared no nearer solution.

The 20-day stevedore work stoppage has frozen more than 100 ships in New York and Boston harbors.

A grave new Maritime tie-up that would have hit every port between Maine and Texas was averted Friday night after the officers put off their midnight strike deadline until the stevedore dispute is settled.

Charles F. May, president of the Masters', Mates' and Pilots' Union, (AFL), said negotiations will continue in the officers' contract dispute with shipping operators.

The 12,000 officers seek increased pension and welfare benefits.

In the billion-dollar dock tie-up, some 20,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) are rebelling against their president, Joseph P. Ryan. They demand that he reopen contract negotiations with employers.

John J. (Gene) Sampson, leader of the rebels, said Friday night that this was "the only way to end the strike."

Hit Pay Dirt

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 3 (Reuters) — Sixteen investigators, sent here from London to track down a big-time gang of nylon smugglers, hit pay dirt last night. They found a cache of 52,000 American-made nylon stockings, 18 cases of American cigarettes and crates of costume jewellery.

Harriman Holds Secret Talks With UK Leaders

LONDON, Nov. 3. (Reuters)—Averell Harriman, President Truman's special envoy, paid a flying visit to London Friday and for six hours discussed world problems with Winston Churchill and three of his top cabinet men. The talk, which may have far-reaching diplomatic effects, began over lunch at Churchill's town house and lasted far beyond the cigars and brandy stage, with no officials present. Precautions were taken to prevent any news leaks from the closed-door session, but three main topics are thought to have figured. They are:

1. Plans for a personal meeting between Churchill and President Truman.

2. Whether 1954 may have to be abandoned as target year for fulfilling the Atlantic Pact rearmament plans because of the strain on western Europe's economy.

3. The Iranian oil crisis and Britain's troubles in Egypt, with their impact on western plans for creating a Middle East command.

Also Present

Present at the talks were Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Richard Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord Leathers, Minister co-ordinating Transport Fuel and Power, and Walter Gifford, United States Ambassador.

The strain of rearmament is the chief problem confronting Harriman as chairman of the Paris Temporary Committee of the NATO council set up to consider the gap between the defence plans and their fulfillment, and as US mutual security director.

The advisability of an early Churchill visit to Washington for talks with President Truman was considered at a further meeting of the new Conservative Cabinet Friday.

It is believed if the Conservative Leader, following his talk with Harriman, decides on an early visit, it will probably be either just before Christmas or early in the New Year.

Harriman reached London while the Cabinet was reviewing for the second time in two days Britain's financial predicament— believed to be worse than Conservatives realized before they took over from the defeated Labor government last week.

Policy Statement

In a setting shorn of much of the usual pageantry, Britain's 40th parliament — opening formally Tuesday — assembles to receive the outlines of government policy prepared by a Conservative party newly installed in office.

The policy statement, which will be made public in the speech from the throne, comes at a time of suspense and tension. Britain's balance - of - payments problems have seldom been more starkly portrayed than in the last few weeks. There are suggestions in responsible newspapers that Richard Butler, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, was "stunned" by treasury surveys of the country's economic position.

Not Much Choice

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 3—(Reuters)—William John Bright, a British Overseas Airways Corporation pilot alleged to have smuggled 45 gold bars from Hong Kong to Calcutta last June, was fined $4,250 Friday. The alternative is six months "rigorous" imprisonment.

Blood Tests Reveal 2.2 Alcohol

OPP Constable J. R. Pollard testified Friday that Melvin Wood, 21, Harvey St., admitted that he was the driver of the car that on June 16 allegedly struck and fatally injured 21-year-old Lorne Russel of Oshawa.

Wood is on trial at the criminal assizes for manslaughter and dangerous driving.

Russel was walking along the west edge of Highway 28, less than half a mile north of the city, when he was struck by a passing car and tossed onto the driveway of the McNaughton and Sugden garage. His body was found more than 19 feet west of the highway.

Russel suffered a fractured skull and other injuries and died 13 days later in hospital without regaining consciousness.

Constable Pollard, one of three provincial police investigating the accident, said Wood admitted at the scene of the accident that he was the driver of the car.

"Wood's eyes were glassy," said Constable Pollard. "He was smoking but I could still smell alcohol. He couldn't stand steady. His body was wobbly though his feet were not moving."

He said Wood was taken to the cruiser, given a warning, then placed under arrest and taken to the office of Dr. Herbert Young.

"Once or twice while I was accompanying him I had to assist him."

Cross-examined by T. J. Carley, KC, Constable Pollard said he had testified during the preliminary hearing that Wood was able to walk in a normal manner.

UN Offers New Kaesong Plan

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 3. (AP) —United Nations' truce negotiators, in a surprise move, proposed to the Communists to day that disputed Kaesong be placed in a demilitarized zone. Decision on the Red-held city was the final main issue blocking agreement on a Korean armistice cease-fire line.

Red negotiators at Panmunjom apparently were cool toward the oral offer, but a UN spokesman said the Communists "had not categorically turned down the proposal."

He said the Communists repeated the reasons why they feel Kaesong should remain in their control.

The UN Allies want Kaesong, about two miles south of the 38th parallel, to protect the northern approaches to Seoul.

Fear Pact Rupture

Moroccan Leader Ousted Tangier Council Badly Split

TANGIER, Nov. 3—(AP)—The eight-country council governing the international zone of Tangier was seriously split today over the ousting of a Moroccan nationalist leader who came here for a Moroccan independence conference.

One United States source said the split might rupture the solidarity of the North Atlantic Pact, membership in which overlaps council membership.

British and US officials angrily reported that the Nationalist leader, Nabib Bourguiba, was shanghaled back to Madrid behind their backs. The French and Belgian action to send him away, they said, was portrayed as a council decision when actually the council had not met.

France is worried about increasing Nationalist feeling in Morocco, which Thursday broke out in rioting at Casablanca with six killed and 70 injured.

Bourguiba, a French National, leads the Neo-Destour Independence Party in French-controlled Tunisia. He arrived here Thursday night and conferred immediately with Moroccan Independence leaders. French police arrested him at his hotel Friday morning and hustled him to a Madrid-bound plane with the explanation he was being ousted "by decision of the control council."

Tangier is governed by a committee made up of diplomatic representatives from the US, Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, Holland, Belgium and Italy. They employ an administration to do the work and co-operate with the Sultan of Morocco's representative, who handles Arab affairs.

Minor Accidents Rash Erupts With Snowfall

Six minor car accidents on slippery streets were investigated by police between five and 10 o'clock Friday evening. There was only slight damage to the vehicles involved and nobody was injured.

Slippery road conditions were blamed by Arthur Winslow, 162 Parkhill Rd., for a two car crash at George and McDonnel Sts., at 8.10 in the evening.

Winslow was going south on George St. and as he approached McDonnel St., Adam Woodcock, 441 Wellington St., was attempting to turn left to McDonnel St., and the two cars collided.

Acting police sergeant Gordon Trennum and Constable Cecil Bowyer who investigated, reported there was between $100 and $200 damage to both cars.

At 8.40, acting sergeant Trennum and Constable Bowyer were called to Sherbrooke and Water Sts.

Swerved, Hit

Francis Hickey, RR 7, Peterborough, reported he was going south on Water St., and in swerving left to avoid hitting a car backing out of a parking lot, he collided with a northbound car driven by William Cooper of Crawford's Grove, Peterborough.

Approximately $150 damage resulted to both cars.

A car and truck collided on Parkhill Rd. at the Oval at 8 o'clock.

Orville Sage, RR 10, Peterborough told acting sergeant Trennum who investigated that he was driving east on Parkhill Rd., and had just stopped his truck when he was struck from behind.

Acting Sergeant Trennum reported that the driver of the car, Ronald Harrison, 631 Downie St., said he was unable to stop on the slipper pavement before skidding into the rear of the truck.

The front end of Harrison's car was damaged slightly.

A collision between a car driven by John R. Ackerman, 380 Park St., who was stopped at the intersection of Park and Charlotte Sts., and a southbound car driven by Laverne Jones, 273 John St., resulted in approximately $60 damage to the front end of Jones' car.

Both vehicles were headed south when the accident occurred at 9.40. Constable Vic McConnell investigated.

No serious damage was done, but police have the licence number of a car which damaged the front fender of a car driven by George Neilands, 309 Caddy St., as Mr. Neilands was pulling out of a parking space on Water St. at 5.30.

At 9 o'clock, John Freeman, 302 Elias St., reported to the police station that in making a left hand turn off Charlotte St., on to Water St. his car had slid into a car parked on the east side of Water St., causing slight damage to both vehicles.

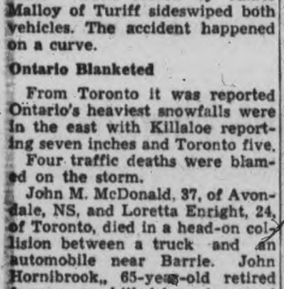
Ontario Blanketed

From Toronto it was reported Ontario's heaviest snowfalls were in the east with Killaloe reporting seven inches and Toronto five.

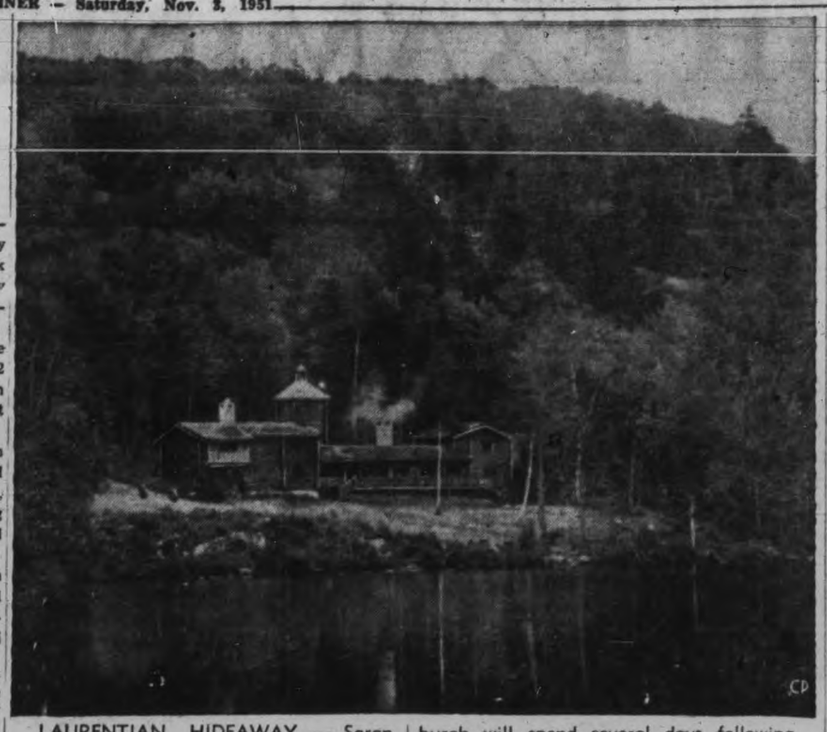
Four traffic deaths were blamed on the storm.

John M. McDonald, 37, of Avondale, NS, and Loretta Enright, 24, of Toronto, died in a head-on collision between a truck and an automobile near Barrie. John Hornibrook,, 65-year-old retired farmer, was killed by a transport truck at Burks Falls. The fourth was Brown of Oshawa.



The Dominion public weather office said the storm centre was near New York City and moving northeastward into Quebec. At the same time, another disturbance over Minnesota was moving southeastward. It was expected to pass south of Lake Erie tonight.

Although the Minnesota storm was expected to weaken in the Great Lakes area, it probably will bring light snow to most of southern Ontario tonight and early Sunday, the weather bureau said.



Temperatures in the province will continue low during the weekend.

At White River Friday night it was 27 below zero. Sault Ste. Marie recorded eight above, Sudbury 22 above and North Bay 23 above.

LAURENTIAN HIDEAWAY — Saran Chai, which means Serene Happiness, is the Norwegian-type home of J. W. McConnell, Montreal newspaper publisher, where Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will spend several days following their return from Washington, D.C., Friday afternoon. Located in the heart of the Laurentians, near Val David, Que., it is 60 miles north of Montreal.

Beautiful Woollen Coat Presented Princess By Campbellford Mayor

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3 — (ENS.—Princess Elizabeth will be able to keep warm on her Laurentian holiday, at least if she is wearing the wool coat presented to her by Mayor J. E. Ayrhart of Campbellford on behalf of the citizens of Campbellford, at a reception in Montreal.

The presentation was made by Mayor Ayrhart's private secretary Michele Ferguson, to the royal couple's secretary. The letter from the Campbellford mayor, presented at the same time read as follows: "It would bring much gratification to your loyal subjects, the citizens of Campbellford, Ontario, Canada, if you would accept their gift of a warm wool coat to protect you from the bracing Canadian autumn air. I remain, your loyal and humble servant, J. E. Ayrhart.

Mr. Ayrhart commissioned a noted French designer in Montreal to design and make the coat, said to be of an expensive wool and valued at approximately $350.

Official recognition of the gift has not yet been received, but the secretary for the royal couple expressed their thanks and their appreciation for the gift. She said the Princess would feel deeply moved in accepting the gift from the mayor on behalf of Campbellford citizens, and she regretted not being able to visit the town during the tour.

Blood Tests

At Dr. Young's office samples of blood and urine were taken.

Dr. Joselyn Rogers, medico-legal consultant to the Attorney-General's department, said the tests showed 2.2 parts per 1000 of alcohol in the blood and 2.5 parts in the urine.

Eleven Ounces

Dr. Rogers said that the 2.2 parts of alcohol in the blood indicates that an average man of 150 pounds would have consumed the equivalent of 11 ounces of alcohol.

A woollen sock and a pair of blue trousers were then entered as exhibits. Dr. Rogers said some fibres taken from the running board of Wood's car matched those from the trousers.

He added that this didn't prove that the trousers and the fibre were from the same cloth. There must be hundreds of similar pairs of pants.

Earl Newson, McCannan Ave., said he was driving north on Highway 28 when he saw a man walking along the left side of the highway. He would be 15 feet south of the southern limits of the McNaughton and Sugden garage when he passed the man, later identified as Russel.

Mr. Newson couldn't say whether Russel was on the paved surface or not.

"I continued on and heard a noise behind me, to the left", said Mr. Newsom. "It was like the sound of car tires sliding on gravel."

Car Passed Him

He said the car passed him making a great deal of noise and when two or three car lengths ahead it turned abruptly and shot in an easterly direction across the highway. He heard a crash. The car re-appeared and seemed to be coming toward him. So he turned west onto the northern part of the garage property.

When Mr. Newsom went back he saw the body of Russel lying on the ground. Two nurses were giving him what medical attention they could.

He noticed the wrecked car, well off the highway, parallel to a row of trees, and facing east.

Dr. J. R. Clark said the cause of death was a fractured skull, and other injuries.

Miss Mildred Storey

The funeral service was held Friday in St. Luke's Anglican Church for Miss Mildred Laura Storey, 294 Mark St., who died Wednesday. The Rev. Walter Gilling officiated.

Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were J. Pagett, L. Livingstone, S. Killingbeck, B. Renolds, P. Mayhew and B. Fisher.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (CP). — The American dollar today opened at 4½ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1-16 from Friday's close. That is, it took $1.04½ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.92⅛, down ⅛ from Friday.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3 (CP) — Coarse grain futures prices showed sharp advances Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. An improvement in commercial demand appeared and export buying was evident in oats, barley and rye. Some of this buying was by American accounts. Advances on the US grain markets stimulated demands.

SS Veterans Hold Hamburg Convention

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 3— (AP)—The "Waffen SS," Hitler's elite army corps which acquired a reputation for terrorism in the Second World War, was summoned Friday night to hold its first post-war convention in Hamburg next spring.

A group of 1,500 former members, which met here to call the convention, issued a demand for "complete rehabilitation of the German army in the eyes of the world" as a condition for any German contribution to European defence.

They gave assurance that they will not form any political organization.

Slow Down

The Princess gave orders that the royal car was to slow down at each crossroads and village where crowds stood and waved flags, bandanas and even bright lumberjacks' hankies. She waved back with the Prince from the comfortable recesses of her big limousine where she was bundled in her long mink coat and covered with an electrically-heated blanket.

She had a green-feathered, off-the-face bonnet that dropped with snow after she alighted for an impromptu welcome at St. Jerome. Philip was in mufti and used a brown hat mostly for waving energetically in response to cheery French greetings at each crossroads.

The 50-mile drive occupied 2½ hours and ended in a winding, hilly by-way that led through lofty evergreens to a Norwegian-type camp.

Their host is J. W. McConnell, Montreal publisher and financier. The camp is on the side of a well-stocked lake and under the shadowy brow of a mountain. It has a grass roof for insulation in a manner of Norwegian country homes and is furnished in Norwegian style.

Paving Co. Ready To Finish Street At 1951 Price

Warren Bituminous Paving Company is willing to complete at this year's contract price the paving of a section of Parkhill Road that was omitted from the schedule now ending.

"We are negotiating to lease a piece of city-owned property so that we could move our asphalt plant from its present site with the intention of converting it into a semi-permanent installation at Peterborough," the company wrote in a letter received by the council Thursday night.

"We are prepared to enter into and addenda to our present agreement to complete Parkhill Road next year at this year's prices listed in our 1951 contract."

The opening paragraphs referred to "some adverse criticism from the general public and in the press regarding the way we have conducted our operations in this year's contract. We feel these criticisms are mainly unwarranted, and we are sorry if they have caused embarrassment to members of the council."

Heavy Grading

The company explained that all the streets under construction required heavy grading, quite a depth of gravel base, plus curbs and gutters. "With all these items applying to each street, it made it impossible for us to do other than we have done, and necessitated us working on three different streets at one time."

Other factors of delay were the larger number of catch basins, manholes and railway crossings on certain streets. The letter mentioned that criticism was chiefly about so many streets being under construction at one time, and presented their explanation on that point.

"We will be the first to admit we were approximately two weeks late in getting started with the asphalt work, but unfortunately we had certain previous commitments in Kingston which were extended, causing the two weeks delay in commencing our asphalt operations in Peterborough.

"We will complete all our contract this year except Parkhill Road.

Took On Extra

"We undertook considerable extra work at the city hall for the formal opening. This required putting every available man on this work, and in view of the lateness of the season it was decided on the request of City Engineer Chalmers not to start on Parkhill Road this fall."

The company enquired whether the city would be interested in their proposal about the Parkhill Road strip next season.

"Thanks for the consideration you have shown us in connection with our work this year, and we hope this harmonious relationship will continue in the future."

Club To Make Boys Safety-Conscious

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Kiwanis Club evidently has an eye to the future in safety precautions.

Canada's first "pedal club" was opened this month in Calgary by the Kiwanians.

The "pedal club" purpose is to make school boys more aware of general road rules with the hope of reducing car accidents in 10 years' time when the present bike-riders will be driving other vehicles.

Movies of tests conducted by a city police officer, Sgt. Bob Moffat, are being used to assist instruction.

Wide interest is being shown by city and business officials.

In preliminary groups at one school about 16 boys attended. It is hoped that similar clubs will be organized in all city schools in Calgary.

Expect Railways Ask Interim Freight Hike

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 — (CP). — The railways are expected to file today an application for an interim five-per-cent increase in freight rates.

The application for the immediate temporary increase, it was learned, follows a decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners to postpone indefinitely hearings on railway requests for boosts totalling about 10 per cent.

ARKANSAS LEOPARD HUNT — A man examines the body of a leopard, one of several wild animals that escaped when a cricus trailer overturned, after the beast was shot by a posse near Mena, Ark. Another leopard was killed later, and a bear was captured. The posse pressed the search for two more bears and four monkeys which were also freed in the crash.

House Opposes Committee On Price-Fixing

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—The government's plan to turn its anti-price fixing legislation over to a committee for further study ran into brisk Commons opposition Friday.

Charges of "smokescreen," "red herring" and "stalling" emerged from the opposition benches as the government moved to established a joint Commons-Senate committee to hear representations on the legislation, forecast in the Speech from the Throne.

Opposition members accused the government of altering policy—first it had said it would bring down legislation to prohibit manufacturers from fixing retail prices of their products; now it was using the delaying device of sending it to committee hearings.

As the debate erupted, it produced the second recorded vote of this fall session.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), the chief Progressive Conservative critic of the government move, prompted the vote when he moved an amendment aimed at giving the committee power to range through the whole of the government's anti-Combines legislation.

Out Of Order

Speaker Ross Macdonald ruled it out of order on the ground no prior notice was given, and the Progressive Conservatives appealed. They lost 96 to 21.

In the opening stages, Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) introduced a motion to initiate a debate on the new railways' application for a freight-rate increase. Speaker Macdonald declined to allow it to stand.

The Chamber, seeking to get away from too much night work, also adopted the report of a special committee recommending that it sit only three nights a week for the remainder of this session.

Justice Minister Garson, moving to set up the new prices committee, said the government was taking that course because it has been "strongly urged" by so many merchants and manufacturers to give them a chance to have a say on the new legislation.

But he hoped the committee would finish its hearings in time for the legislation to be considered at this session.

He recalled that the proposed legislation is based on the recommendation of a committee, appointed last year to study possible changes in the combines legislation and headed by Mr. Justice J. H. McQuarrie of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. It made the recommendation after considering representations from various organizations.

Just Smokescreen

Mr. Diefenbaker, suggesting the government is setting up the parliamentary committee as a "smokescreen" to protect itself from the anger of the people, said there is no justification for a house committee going over the ground studied already by the MacQuarrie Commission.

What was needed was strengthening of the Combines Act and he suggested that any corporation director who knowingly enters into a combine be liable for fines. At present, penalties provided are $10,000 for individuals and $25,000 for corporations indulging in combines.

In its present form, the act was an "invitation to dishonesty" when it should be protecting the people from "exploitation."

Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) said the CCF party isn't going to agree "to any further stalling in this matter, and we don't care who does the stalling."

Baptist Federation Raps Liquor Traffic

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 3— (CP)—The council of the Baptist Federation of Canada, winding up its annual meeting, Friday condemned "the shackles of the liquor traffic," and urged the federal government to "appoint a Royal Commission to inquire into the extent and growth of the liquor traffic and into all aspects of its social consequences.

It was decided that meeting would be held next year "somewhere in the central provinces, possibly in Montreal."

Zoo Caretaker Wrestler Deer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 3 — (AP).—A zoo caretaker who wrestled with an eight-point buck deer for more than 15 minutes before police killed the animal, today nursed deep wounds.

The 195-pound buck charged E. E. Gillian, 51, when he entered the deer pen Friday.

Gillian caught its antlers after the buck had gored him twice, once through the thigh and again through the hand. Then he bulldogged the animal's nose to the round.

A passerby heard his calls and summoned police.

Reach Partial Terms On German Contract

BONN, Nov. 3 — (AP). — West Germany and the Big-Three Western allies early today reached limited agreement on the principal ideas for a peace contract, but disclosed that six weeks of talks have left some points still unsettled.

The proposed contract is aimed at putting relations between West Germany and her conquerors on a settled peacetime basis, with Germany having sovereign rights and contributing to western defence.

But once general agreement is reached and approved, separate contracts still must be worked out to settle the status of Allied armies in Germany, western rights of intervention in German affairs, sharing of defence costs, and carrying out occupation policies such as restoring property to Nazi victims and breaking down industrial cartels.

A detailed draft of the general agreement was considered at a seven-hour meeting between the high commissioners of the United States, France, and Britain, and German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Clarence Porter Heads Growers Of Gladiolus

Clarence Porter was elected president of the Peterborough and District Gladiolus Society at its annual banquet held on Friday at Stewart's Hall in Otonabee township.

Guest speaker was the well known flower judge H. B. Taylor, of Toronto, who was introduced by the retiring president, Dr. J. H. Leslie. In discussing the decorative value of flowers, the speaker said.

"The use of flowers is an art in itself, based on sympathetic appreciation and on skill in composition. The wide range of color and form of bud and of immature and mature florets make the gladiolus an interesting subject with which to work.

"For home decorations, vase arrangements may be used on the mantel. Very pleasing effects may be had from the use of gladiolus alone, though the flowers combine effectively with others, particularly delphinium, baby's breath, and other dainty flowers for light effects and with dahlias or roses for massive color effects.

"The lack of odor and the lasting qualities make the flower a suitable one for the sick room. There is hardly an occasion for which gladiolus are not well suited."

Mr. Porter proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker.

James Weyer was master of ceremonies and conducted a singsong. Gordon Touzel entertained with his accordion and following dinner Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cardwell entertained the guests and members at their home at Wallace Point.

Other officers elected were: vice-presidents, Mrs. Chris Plunkett and John Bickley; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Leslie; directors, G. H. Clarke, Dr. J. H. Leslie, Fred Storey, R. Hocking, T. H. Jackson, Mrs. A. Wade, Mrs. Gavin Shearer, Mrs. George Duncan, Mrs. G. Neal, and Clifford O'Brien. Bud Lloyd was named in charge of publicity.

A winter program was arranged to include outstanding speakers from Guelph, Toronto and Ottawa. Films will be shown of some of the best flower gardens in Canada. Great things are being expected and planned of the junior committee which already has accepted an objective of 200 members in 1952.

Produces Documents On British Aggression

CAIRO, Nov. 5. (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Salal El Din Pasha flew to Paris today with documents on British "aggression" in the Suez Canal zone since Egypt cancelled the Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

He will lead Egypt's delegation to the United Nations' general assembly, which opens Tuesday.

Salah El Din said Friday Egypt had not "so far" decided to bring the Anglo-Egyptian dispute before the general assembly.

But a foreign-ministry spokesman said the minister will meet Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, in Paris to explain Egypt's attitude.

In the Suez Canal zone, British troops were on guard against possible rioting after a quiet Moslem Sabbath Friday.

Frost Says Government Policy Has Raised Living Standard

By The Canadian Press

Premier Frost said in a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address Friday night that his policies as provincial treasurer have helped raise living standards, develop natural resources and provide a healthy environment for industrial expansion.

The Premier, in the Toronto area on his campaign tour, spoke on two broadcasts and made addresses in Markham and Oakville, near Toronto.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, made a broadcast from Fort William and addressed a rally in that Lakehead city.

Liberal Leader Walter Thomson had an idle night.

A. A. MacLeod, Ontario leader of the Labor-Progressive party, criticized mental hospital policy.

Mr. Frost said his government had sought to keep debt low and the province's credit position strong to balance the budget and to confine taxes to those which had the smallest impact on the cost of living.

"In these objectives we have been completely successful. Ontario's financial position is the strongest by all odds in the history of the province."

In a broadcast in which four members of his cabinet joined him, he said the Ontario budget has been balanced for a record eight years.

He said at Oakville that his government's enforcement of liquor laws has taken the province away from conditions under the Liberal governments "when licences were scattered across this province in a period of a few months and given to political friends." At Markham he said 1,000 homes under the federal-provincial-municipal housing plan will be taken up by the end of the month.

Mr. Jolliffe, in his broadcast, again pledged his party, if elected, to an all-out attack on the housing shortage.

"In eight years, Mr. Frost's government has not built a single house. That is part of Mr. Frost's record on which he is standing for re-election. His policy is the same as the policy of the Liberal government at Ottawa: If houses must be built, then let someone else do it. There must be an end to his buck-passing, this defeatism and incompetence."

Stresses Housing

He said a CCF government would establish an Ontario housing corporation to divert materials into house-building and help municipalities and individual citizens to finance new housing.

Mr. MacLeod, seeking re-election in Toronto Bellwoods, accused the Ontario government of doing nothing to ease a shortage of beds in mental hospitals. He said in a radio address over a Toronto station the government had spent nothing on psychiatric research during the last three years and that the province has only one psychiatrist for every 1,225 persons.

THE ROYAL COUPLE took time out in Washington to pose for this picture with British Commonwealth ambassadors at the Canadian Embassy. Left to right, seated are: M. A. H. Ispahani, of Pakistan; Hume Wrong, of Canada; Princess Elizabeth; the Duke of Edinburgh and Madame V. L. Pandit, of India. Standing are P. C. College Students Deny Losses Will Continue Playing Market

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP).—University of Western Ontario students who admittedly plunged into the gold mining market recently in hopes of making a quick killing, laugh at reports that their losses range from $10,000 to $25,000.

Not only were total purchases not as heavy as have been reported but the dozen or more students involved still have the stock and are counting their losses as purely paper losses, one of them said.

Most of the stock was bought in at between 80 cents and 90 cents a share. One said he bought 1,000 shares at 50 cents and has actually a small profit on that part of the deal. Within a few days of the operation, however, the market value plunged to 42 cents. Since that time it has recovered to 56 cents.

"We ordered the stock, expecting it would go over $1 a share within a couple of days and we would resell, taking our profits without having actually taken delivery of the stock, and before we would have to pay the entire price," said one of the youths. "Instead the stock dropped and we had to put up the whole amount or be sold out with an actual loss."

Not Permanent

The spokesman said the youthful market operators don't consider their losses permanent, and are watching the market, which closed this afternoon at 56 cents a share.

He admitted that most students, whom he were in any syndicate, had borrowed from their families to buy their shares.

A full investigation of a stock transaction in which a group of University of Western Ontario students lost heavily was promised Friday by O. E. Lennox, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission.

The student "syndicate" is reported to have followed a tip on a British Columbia base-metal mine, and to have bought some 28,000 shares, mostly on credit.

Mr. Lennox said he would investigate the transaction, particularly the part played in it by a Toronto stock promoter who is said by the students to have described the stock as a good thing.

Phil And Joe Get Together

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. (AP)—Phil of London and Joe of Scranton got together again during the Royal visit to Washington.

But Phil, who is the Duke of Edinburgh, didn't recall those Australian poker games that made such an impression on Joe in 1945.

Joe, who is Joseph W. Reap, a state department press officer, was with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke during their public appearances here.

When the Duke and Joe first met in Sydney in 1945 they were navy lieutenants. Joe didn't know the Duke, then Prince Philip of Greece and Denmark, by any name except Phil until he had to introduce him on one occasion.

When the two met again in Washington, Joe mentioned the pennyante games that the British and American officers played in Sydney.

"He said he didn't recall the games," Read said in an interview after the Royal couple departed. "But the Duke added with a smile:

" 'I thought I knew better than to play poker with Americans'."

Baby Born In London Store Windsor Stork Wins 2 Races

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—A Dundas St. general store became the delivery room for a London woman who gave birth to a baby girl shortly before noon Friday.

An ambulance arrived at Sue's Variety Shop, 1195 Dundas, shortly after the birth and took the mother and her baby girl to hospital. Hospital authorities said both are in "satisfactory" condition.

Mrs. Sue Knox, proprietor, said the woman came into the small store shortly after 11. She apparently came across the street during her morning break from McCormick's Ltd., where she is employed.

James H. Kerr, an insurance salesman, was the only other person in the store.

WINDSOR, Nov. 3 (CP)—Old Man Stork won another race in Windsor Friday. Mrs. Zarko Vucinic gave birth to a pair of baby girls while an ambulance was preparing to rush her to hospital.

It was the first set of twins for both Mrs. Vucinic and the ambulance service.

John MacPherson and James Pitre, ambulance attendants, were called to the Vucinic home, but five minutes after their arrival Mr. MacPherson delivered a lovely little five pound, 10 ounce baby girl in the Vucinic kitchen. Mr. Pitre filled in as nurse.

Then they prepared to drive mother and baby to the hospital.

With Mrs. Vucinic safely in the ambulance at the curb, Mr. MacPherson returned to the house to get the baby whom a neighbor was holding.

Suddenly Mr. Pitre rushed in and shouted, "Come quickly, Johnny, we're having another one."

There in the ambulance the second little girl—five pounds, seven and a half ounces — was born.

Frost Boosts Housing Plan

MARKHAM, Nov. 3. (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said on Friday that 1,000 homes under the Federal - Provincial - Municipal Housing Scheme will be taken up by the end of the month.

He said at a political gathering in this York East riding village, 18 miles northeast of Toronto, that he hopes the 25,000 houses under the plan announced last summer will be taken up before long by agreement with municipalities.

He referred to the family emergency-housing units at the General Engineering Company site in Scarboro township, saying they had long been considered an eyesore. He added:

"We'll enter into an agreement to build houses for these people on a rental basis. We'll take those people out of that Geco place and give them the self-respect that goes with a nice house."

Industrial growth always brought demands for housing and services for thousands of workers.

"That's the job our party is cut out for. We're prepared to accept these challenges and do a job for the people of Ontario."

Subpoenas Served On Six Newspapers

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Chicago Tribune says today that the anti-trust division of the department of justice has served subpoenas on six newspaper feature syndicates in New York.

The subpoenas demand production of all records relating to the sale or lease of comic strips, columns and other features, the paper says.

Named in the orders are Bell Syndicate, Inc.; United Feature Syndicate; McNaught Syndicate, Inc.; NEA Service, Inc.; King Features Syndicate; and Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate.

The Tribune says it has been the practice among syndicates to restrict the sale of a feature to only one newspaper in a competitive area.

Syria Rather Likes Defence Pact Plan

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Nov. 3. — (Reuters) — The newspaper, Al Hayat today quoted Syrian Premier Hassan Hakim as saying the proposed Middle-East defence pact would make it possible to limit Israel's expansion, obtain financial aid and solve "grave problems confronting Syria and the Arab world."

"We must seize the occasion to exchange present Arab treaties with foreign countries for this four-power plan which would be applied only in war," he was quoted as saying.

The United States, Britain, France and Turkey, whose invitation to join the pact was rejected by Egypt, have notified other Arab countries and Israel that they are setting up the defence command anyway.

If You Are 70 You Must Not Roam

The new old age pensions of $40 a month to all persons aged seventy or over will not be paid if the pensioners choose to live outside Canada for more than three months in a year. That is the law which is now being put through Parliament. In other words, the Government is saying to the elderly: stay put if you want to get the pension. It is a parochial, dictatorial attitude. The C.C.F. leader rightly opposed the restrictive clause.

* * *

Mr. Paul Martin, Minister of National Welfare, refused to drop the clause which will suspend payments of the pension when the pensioners are outside Canada for more than three months in the year. His reasoning is that the Government is justified in limiting payments, because the pensioners will have contributed nothing towards the pensions. That may be so. The pensions come as a kind of gift, and the donor (the Government acting for the Canadian people) can fix the conditions. He said that the requirement of residence may be altered in a few years, after pensioners will have contributed (through taxes) towards their own pensions. This should not be left to a vague probability. In the pension law now being passed, it should clearly be stated that the residential qualification will apply only for the first five or ten years.

Our point is this: In ten years a good many people will have paid in direct income tax $600 towards their pensions. They will have paid indirectly through the sales tax as much again. They should not, on reaching the age of 70 be denied the pension for which they have paid merely because they do not choose to live in Canada nine months of the year. It is unfair and narrow-minded to impose such restrictions. Many people are looking forward to travelling when they retire; others are hoping to be able to live abroad, in countries and climates whose delights they have tasted but have had to forego during their working years. (And it is not only wealthy people who have such plans. People can live more cheaply in some countries than in Canada—Canadian dollar pensions will thus go farther.)

* * *

So long as the pensions come as a gift, the Government can exercise the rights of a giver and condition the gift. But in ten and twenty years many of the pensioners will have paid for their pensions. Is what they have bought with their own money to be denied them merely because they may have restless feet or want a beaker full of the warm south? What right has the Government to limit a pensioner's freedom, to dictate that a man must live in Canada, if he is to qualify for the pension for which he has paid? Are pensions so received "universal" and "of right"? That is what the Government says they are. Let it live up to its preaching and right now remove from the pensions bill the restricting residential clause.

"Phoney" Peace

People are talking about this post-war era with anguish as years of "phoney peace." They fondly look back to what they think of as times of "real" peace, when peoples and nations were not tortured by wars and impending wars, when there were not perpetual international crises. Some of these folk, with short memories, think of the twenty years between 1919 and 1939 as times of "real" peace. They forget the rough and bloody years after the 1918 Armistice in many corners of the world, the Sino-Japanese war, the Italian campaign in Ethiopia. Others go back farther to the glorious era of peace during Good Queen Victoria's long reign (1837-1901). How peaceful was that era?

In the peaceful reign of Queen Victoria, British troops took part in no fewer than eighteen different wars, some of them, like the Crimean War and the Boer war, of considerable proportions. Here is our list:

1837: Rebellions in Upper and Lower Canada. British troops garrisoned in the country were found sufficient to quell the uprisings.

1840: China. Naval and military forces from India under Sir Hugh Gough defeated the Chinese in several engagements and blockaded Canton. Subsequently the Chinese ceded Hong Kong to England.

1839-42: Afghanistan; a campaign undertaken to dethrone the unfriendly Dost Mohammed; thought necessary in order to check the advance of Russia in Afghanistan. In this time occurred the Khyber Pass retreat (1841).

1843: Scinde War. Sir Charles Napier defeated the Ameers who were preventing free navigation of the Indus. Hyderabad fell into British hands.

1846: Sikh War, when the Sikhs were defeated. After the peace outbreaks in 1848 and 1849 were quelled.

1854: Crimean War, undertaken by England and France "to maintain the integrity of the Turkish Empire as a barrier to the encroachments of Russia." The war was terminated in 1856 by the Treaty of Paris.

1855-57: Persia. Brought about as a result of the violation of the treaty between England and Persia by the Shah, at the supposed instigation of Russia. Bombardments and ground campaigns resulted in the defeat of the Persians in 1857.

1856: Second China War, when Canton was captured by the allied forces of England and France. A treaty was concluded in 1858, but its terms were not kept and hostilities broke out again in 1859 when an advance was made on Pekin. A Convention was signed there in 1860.

1857-59: Indian Mutiny—which resulted in the transfer of British conquests in India from the East India Company to the Crown.

1867-68: Abyssinia. The British Consul and English missionaries were imprisoned by the Emperor, and Sir Robert Napier marched troops 320 miles inland to teach the natives a lesson and recover the prisoners.

1874: Ashanti War. Sir Garnet Wolseley with a force of 2,400 men taught the king of Ashantee a British power lesson.

1878-80: Second Afghanistan War caused by the refusal of the Afghans to receive a British Mission, and by jealousy of Russian influence. The British troops met little resistance at first and gained for Britain control of the foreign policy of Afghanistan.

1878-79: Zulu War in which more than a thousand English troops were slain at Isandula by an army of 20,000 Zulus. Thereafter the disputed parts of the Transvaal were secured to British suzerainty.

1880-81: First Boer War (Majuba Hill).

1882: Egypt. The Egyptians revolted in a nationalist uprising. Europeans at Alexandria were massacred. The British fleet bombarded; a British army defeated Arabi, chief Egyptian military officer.

1885: The Sudan—Gordon at Khartoum, and the late relief by troops under Lord Wolseley.

1896-98: The Sudan. Kitchener's 2½ year campaign against Mahdist hordes.

1899-1901: The Second Boer War.

The Victorian era a long and placid period of peace? These eighteen major and minor wars, with other alarums and skirmishes in other parts of the world, and British garrisons covering the face of the globe, suggest differently. Peacetime and wartime are relative terms. The present post-war years are as peaceful, relatively, as any decade in the Victorian era when the British Peace was imposed on the world by the force or threat of British arms. Incidentally, many of the disturbed areas of the world today are the same as those where peace was broken in Victoria's day.

Temper As A Tonic

A psychiatrist in Chicago has restated what a good many people have known for centuries—that forcible restraint of one's anger may have unpleasant physical results. Bottle up your temper, and a fit of indigestion or a headache may follow. The Chicago man thinks that too much restraint, over the years, may bring about some serious illnesses. He therefore advises us to give way to anger from time to time; the happiest homes, he says (and many people will recognize the truth of this) are those in which parents lose their tempers when they feel like it, and are pleasant and indulgent toward their children the rest of the time.

It is an attractive notion. So many of us were taught, when children, that a display of temper was a lamentable failure of self-control. Now the pendulum swings the other way, and we are advised that too much self-control may be as bad as too little. We must be moderate, even in the exercise of our virtues—such as self-control.

Habitually bad tempered people are uncommon. Most of us, if we gave way to bad temper, would not have occasion to do so more than once or twice in a week. The Chicago psychiatrist thinks that it might be good for us.

An odd thing about temper is that when we turn it loose it is so much milder than when we hold it in. "I'll give that fellow a piece of my mind", thinks the angry boss; "I'll tell him that one more mistake like that will cost him his job. I'll tell him I have no place for fat-heads in this organization". And yet, when he summons the erring employee, his anger comes out more like this: "You've made a silly mistake; with your experience it shouldn't have happened; be more careful next time". The volcanic eruption has sunk to a warning rumble. This is undoubtedly better for the boss and does the employee no harm at all.

A judicious use of bad temper might be a tonic for us all. Judicious, mind you.

Bibliomania

CANADIAN BOOK WEEK came to an end yesterday; for that reason we have thought it appropriate to present reviews of a couple of Canadian books today. Every year we wonder how much Canadian Book Week means to most Canadian people. Do they give much thought to Canadian books at that time? Probably only if they think of them at other times. Do they care whether there are any books which originate in Canada? The same comment would apply. Canada is, for a civilized country, remarkably indifferent to books; it maintains its calm—perhaps it would be better to say, its apathy—in the face of the literary uproars which shake Britain and the U.S.A. We are not a nation of readers, and our Governments make it clear, by the heavy taxes which they impose upon books entering the country, that they do not subscribe to the opinion that knowledge is power, or that an informed public is a desirable thing in a democracy. In their Canadian wisdom they regard books simply as a commodity, indistinguishable from sugar or pig-iron. It is refreshing to the student of history to find in Canada a country which has achieved great things in the world of deeds, while remaining coldly suspicious of the world of ideas.

WHERE NESTS THE WATER HEN, by Gabrielle Roy (McClelland & Stewart, Toronto).

IN HER first novel Bonheur d'Occasion (1945, translated as The Tin Flute in 1947), Miss Roy studied French-Canadian family life from the level of St. Henri, a poor section of Montreal. In this novel, which appeared in French last fall, and was published a fortnight ago in English done by Harry L. Binsse, Miss Roy again treats of French-Canadian family life, but this time in a happier setting—her native Manitoba. The bittersweetness of The Tin Flute loses its grime in the freshness and breadth of the marshes, scrubwoods and waters of the Lake Manitoba-Lake Winnipegosis district.

Her people, in this lonely, northern region of the water hen, are of the same caste as her people of St. Henri but their scope is wider, their life freer. It is an area and folk the author knows well—she is a native of St. Boniface (the French-Canadian annex of Winnipeg) and taught in a rural school such as that she describes at the Tousignant family's island. The qualities which made The Tin Flute an important Canadian novel are to be found in this: good writing, a poignant characterization of people and places; a memorable evocation of mood, and a revelation of a district and mode of life before unrealized in Canadian letters. If Where Nests The Water Hen has a looser framework as a novel than The Tin Flute, it is pleasanter in its ethos. In the water hen country there is poverty as in St. Henri; but it is not squalid; the struggle for life is with and against nature, not among and against men.

"The people of the region had no trouble in naming its geographical features—always in honour of its senior inhabitant, that small grey fowl which epitomized all its tedium and quietness. . . It was endlessly peaceful, there, to watch of an evening the aquatic birds rising up everywhere from among the reeds and circling together in one sector of the heavens which they darkened with their multitude." And when Mamma Tousignant went on her annual visit to Rorketon (the distant nearest village) to have her annual baby, a few days of this "holiday" were all she wanted. "Nothing seemed to her warmer or more human than that lonely gray house which, atop its mound between willows, looked out upon nothing except the quiet and monotonous Little Water Hen river)."

Incidentally, although the book is issued in Canada by a Toronto firm, it is printed and published in New York; hence the American spellings, for instance of 'honor'. As for the style; this reviewer must refrain from comment, having read The Tin Flute only in the French, and this novel only in the translation. The translation seems to academic—somewhat stilted, not sufficiently colloquial—for the setting and theme.

The novel has three distinct sections, a loose framework, although the three tales, or essays or vignettes, have the same regional setting and the same persons, by reference at least. But they can be read separately as unitary stories.

Together they are like a triptych whose altar of affection and passionate sincerity is the hinterland of Manitoba and the sturdiness of her people. The left panel of the triptych is the good-humoured, sensitive account of Mamma Luzina Tousignant making her annual baby-pilgrimage to and from the village hospital, out of her family fastness at Little Water Hen. The large central panel portrays the family household and the coming of a school and school-teacher to it—L'ecole de la Petite Poule d'Eau. It is a charming revelation of peasantry in Canada, a strong depiction of the fibre of her people. The third panel has the central figure of the Capuchin priest, ministering to "one of the world's least peopled regions, a sad, lost land, where nonetheless you encounter representatives of almost every race on earth—as many nationalities among these lakes as there are exiles. When he arrived there, Father Joseph-Marie knew nearly a score of languages".

The story of this novel is as simple and quiet as the lives of the people in it. Although there is little incident, it is so faithful to life that it has the power and moods of interesting living people in a vital, difficult land. It reads well as a story. As an analysis of a region and a characterization of people in it, it is a valuable and authentic contribution to Canadians' awareness of their own land. Miss Roy is both a talented reporter and an artist.

CANADIAN LAW FOR BUSINESS AND PERSONAL USE, by W. H. Jennings, B.A. (Ryerson).

IN THE eyes of the law you are an infant until you reach the age of twenty-one. If, as an infant only twenty years old you want to pay for a new motor-bike by cheque, are you putting the vendor on the spot? These and a couple of hundred other facts and puzzles of the law are plainly revealed in this book published this year by W. H. Jennings.

It is a fascinating book to anybody unversed in the law; Mr. Jennings' paraphrase of the law, as it affects contracts, buying and selling, borrowing, renting property or building a home, wills and alleged personal wrongs, should be a useful guide. The book deals with Canadian common law, and where that law changes from province to province, Ontario's code is first explained. But if you want to know what to do if your wife steals all your Victory Bonds out of your hidden sock, you will not find the answer in this book. It deals with civil law, not criminal. A crime is a wrongful act which is considered harmful to the state as a whole (i.e. your wife's larency). But if you slip on a neighbour's rug, and feel hurt because she did not warn you of the danger and you want to sue, that is a civil matter and it is discussed in this book. Actually, the slip on the rug is within the law of torts. Torts is a frightening word. The author defines a tort—an example of the plainness of his exposition—as "a wrong against an individual arising independently of contract and unauthorized by law. . . A crime is an offence against the state, hence the state assumes the role of prosecutor and punishes the offender. A tort is a 'civil' wrong against an individual; therefore it is the person who suffers loss or injury who must initiate legal action . . . Again, to constitute a crime, the wrongful act must be done intentionally; a tort may be the result of carelessness or negligence".

To return to our infant with the cheque. The author says: "If a minor draws a cheque upon a bank which has sufficient funds of the infant drawer, the bank is justified in making payment to the holder. Also, any adult endorser of a cheque drawn by an infant is liable to a subsequent holder even if payment cannot be recovered by the infant. However, an infant endorser cannot be held liable by any holder". This particular situation—the infant asking the vendor if he will accept his cheque, is illustrated by a cartoon—as are many other commonplace matters likely to involve legal action. They lighten rather than illumine the text.

IN HIS tender novel of English decadence 'Brideshead Revisited', Evelyn Waugh makes this nostalgic comment on youth, a remarkable and sensitive passage: "The languor of Youth—how unique and quintessential it is! How quickly, how irrecoverably, lost! The zest, the generous affections, the illusions, the despair, all the traditional attributes of youth—all save this—come and go with us through life; again and again in riper years we experience under a new stimulus what we thought had been finally left behind, the authentic impulse to action, the renewal of power and its concentration on a new object; again and again a new truth is revealed to us in whose light all our previous knowledge must be rearranged. These things are a part of life itself; but languor—the relaxation of yet unwearied sinews, the mind sequestered and self-regarding, the sun standing in the heavens and the earth throbbing to our own pulse—that belongs to Youth alone and dies with it."

An American View: THEY DREAM OF HOME

The Trouble With You Canucks Is . .

(TIME MAGAZINE)

AS a guest speaker for a meeting one night recently, the Vancouver Board of Trade invited Oregon's Richard Neuberger, author (Our Promised Land) and free-lance journalist (Satevepost, the Nation, Reader's Digest.) A frequent visitor to Canada, Neuberger seemed like the right man to tackle a controversial subject. Ten months ago, Canadian Author Bruce Hutchison had written an article entitled "The Trouble With You Yanks Is . . ."; the board thought it only fair to give an American a chance to counter with "The Trouble With You Canucks Is . . ." For good measure, they invited Neuberger's wife, Maurine, a member of Oregon's house of representatives, to share the platform.

"Your biggest fault," said Neuberger, "is your inferiority complex. You apologize too often for your liquor laws, steaks and non-streamlined trains. Why, I can hardly get from the airport to the hotel without hearing profuse apologies for everything wrong with Canada since the arrival of Alexander Mackenzie . . ."

Maurine Neuberger, in a midnight-blue cocktail dress, turned to a woman's angle. "Your suits," she said to the Board of Trade wives, "never seem to fit properly, and your skirts are often baggy and rumpsprung . . ."

Next day and far into the week, the Vancouver press bristled with indignant. responses from Vancouver's women. "(Mrs. Neuberger) appears the ideal supercilious snob . . . and a drab one at that," wrote one to the Sun. Marie Moreau, fashion expert of the Province, after surveying batches of office girls running for their midmorning coffee in downtown Vancouver, reported: "Not a bag in the bunch." One letter to the editor lashed out at U.S. women: "We're proud to wear rumpspring suits. At least they're paid for and we don't bankrupt our husbands buying clothes like American women . . . sending our husbands crazy and into the divorce court."

DIDN'T WANT A RECEIPT

A spiv received a demand for income-tax. He went to see an inspector, who said the amount owing was $1,200.

Without hesitation the spiv produced his wallet, counted out the money, passed it to the inspector and got up to go.

"Wait a minute," said the inspector. "I'll give you a receipt."

The spiv's jaw dropped. "Lumme," he said, "you're not putting it through the books, are you?"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise: thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee. The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be. (Gen. 49: 8, 10.)

* * *

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts. . . And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness.

Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years. And I will come near to you to judgement; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts.

For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. (Mal. 3: 1, 3-7.)

Whether It's Horsemeat Or No Meat!

(From the Commons Hansard)

Mr. HOWARD C. GREEN (Vancouver-Quadra): Not quite a month ago the Minister of Finance advised the women of Canada that they should be thrifty, that they should cut out thoughtless spending and cultivate an attitude of mind in which prudent household management is both patriotic and fashionable.

Mr. GRAYDON: How did that go over at home?

Mr. ABBOTT: Loud cheers.

Mr. KNOWLES: Did Mrs. Abbott turn the radio off?

Mr. GREEN: I have an immediate reaction as expressed in an editorial in the Vancouver Province of September 29 which is entitled "A Long Way From the Kitchen". It reads:

Canadian housewives are hoping that Mrs. Doug. Abbott will shove a shopping basket in her husband's hand and send him to market to buy the family groceries. After hearing the finance minister urge the ladies to beat inflation by cutting down on "thoughtless spending" and cultivating "an attitude of mind in which prudential household management is both patriotic and fashionable", householders wonder where Mr. Abbott has been all the time. As far as people working for average wages are concerned, "prudential household management" is the only thing that keeps good food on the table.

Mr. ABBOTT: Prudential?

Mr. GREEN: Then the editorial ends by saying—

Mr. ABBOTT: Prudential? Is it not "prudent"?

Mr. GREEN: It says "prudential". I think it should be "prudent".

Mr. ABBOTT: I think it should be "prudent". We are not an insurance company.

Mr. GREEN: I have no doubt the minister is sorry that he said it, anyway.

Mr. ABBOTT: Far from it. I am interested in the opinion of editorial writers but I do not necessarily look on them as the last word.

Mr. GREEN: The editorial ends by saying:

If he puts on an apron, helps with the dishes—

Mr. ABBOTT: He does.

Mr. GREEN: It continues:

—and pays a few visits to the grocery store he won't wag his finger at the housewives again. Right now they have for Mr. Abbott the same answer they have when their husbands try to raise cain over household expenses. "Let's see you do any better."

Mr. GREEN: I have here a letter written to the Vancouver Sun which sums up the situation neatly. It is entitled "Meat for Thought" and reads in part as follows:

In the meantime would suggest the following slogan the Liberals could use in their next campaign:

From the stable
To the table
We brought back the horse,
Lacking sincerity
We called it prosperity—
Fido will be the next course.

I can suggest a much better slogan. It is "Vote Liberal and eat horsemeat".

Mr. ABBOTT: Vote Conservative and eat no meat.

Mr. GREEN: The Prime Minister was extremely smug about the whole question. He said that only certain sectors of the population are being bothered by the increased cost of living and that the others are doing better than they have ever done before. He said, "Of course, I hope that the inflation will stop". I suggest one thing to the Prime Minister; that is that he start eating horsemeat right away and continue doing so until he wakes up to what is going on in Canada.

Mr. MARTIN: Under these hours he is not getting a chance to eat anything.

Editor's Note: Explanation of Mr. Martin's remark is the Commons, on an experimental basis, has been sitting 1.30 p.m. to 7 p.m.

If you've had business to do in Peterborough and weren't able to finish it, forget about it until the third week of the month. There won't be anyone in town except we reporters.

Dental nurse: "Dr. Yankem's office. No, madame, he will take no appointments until Nov. 19. Your little boy's tooth aches? Use oil of cloves."

Production president: "No, no, Smigg, I'll go into that in a couple of weeks."

Hizonner: "This bylaw is not urgent, gentlemen." (Aside to the city clerk) "Can I borrow your .303?"

Showcard designer: "I'm swamped with GONE HUNTING signs. No more orders. I hope to go myself."

Glumb, the mortician: "Do you think he might pass away before .... or will he linger.....?"

It's a fact.

Every man and his brother are examining the rifling of rifles and assembling gear, groceries and grog. They are off to the woods.

Deer hunting starts in the Kawarthas at crack o' dawn on Monday. Business and municipal affairs will stand still, those in pain must keep a stiff upper lip and the dying must wait until after Nov. 17th. Nothing must interfere with deer hunting.

Surely, there isn't a city and district that takes the sport so seriously. Being adjacent to the best hunting locality in Southern Ontario, and current reports of great promise, it is little wonder that we go overboard.

Blazing Away On the Boundary

The news release about the definition of the south-east and north boundaries of the Eel's Creek Crown Game Preserve will put many hunters, and game overseers, at ease. It is now marked by a ten-foot trail and it must be said, in all fairness, that the old blazed-grown-over eastern boundaries were confusing to one and all. No room for violation arguments, now.

More than 8,000 acres have been lopped off the south-east corner. This area held little or no forage for deer and it was wise to do away with it. The Kosh Conservation Association protested the change because they felt their prior rights of settlement were being violated. They say they settled at Kosh so that they could feed the animals of the wild from their verandahs. A pleasant situation, certainly, but it has been shown that that section can support little or no game. There will be repercussions, but....

Pea Soup by the Lakeful. GRRRH

The third annual resort owners conference of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday, was a humdinger. Count of heads showed an attendance of 102. Like race horses in a starting gate, the mention of the ALGAE in the Kawarthas, set the audience down the track, neck and neck. They were mad. They demanded an explanation for the condition. They blamed the department of lands and forests for the whole thing. And by lunch time, and during lunch, they were still mixing algae with their consomme.

Dr. Harkness of the department had patiently shown them that algae was the result of excessive sewage being drained into the waters to promote its growth, that fluctuating water levels played their infamous part and that the weather was key factor. I will stand by harrassed Dr. Harkness and his logical explanations and wonder at his tremendous patience when everyone was trying to blame his department for it all and forcing him to say his department would rectify the situation. It is of grave concern to the department and they are working on the question to the best of their abilities. But, the conference members were told, ALGAE IS HERE TO STAY. It is everybody's problem.

Bears find the smell of tanned furs inviting, says Marmora hunter Sanford Lawrence. One beast clawed a hole in the roof of his hunting camp in an attempt to reach some furs hanging inside. But the hole was only snout size and no damage was done. Another time, though, Sanford had some furs parked under a canoe and in getting at them a bear wrecked his boat. Could be furs.

While George Birch of the Lakefield Merchants Hockey Club was phoning me on Friday to give the last detail dope on the club's heaviest dressed deer contest, the mail arrived with a similar idea in mind, but not for this season.

Supporting retail members of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce—probably taking the queue from the Lakefield club—decided they should get into the act and run a contest similar to the Order of Kawartha Muskie. There would be a certificate and crest to all hunters weighing in the heaviest dressed deer and a master trophy to the top contestant. The Peterborough group thought of it too late but will have it on the books for next season.

Meanwhile the Lakefield Merchants have everything under control. The silver 10-inch trophy was put on display in the Beavis meat market window on Friday and will remain there until the hunt is over, Nov. 17. Pick-up for entry slips closes in the village tonight.

There will always be those practical souls, even among deer hunters, who put forth just a little more effort than their fellow men. Early next week we can expect to see cars streaming southward from the camps with deer and bear strapped to fenders, some loads topped off with small Christmas trees. And occasionally in car trunks will be baskets of bog cranberries—they retail at 29 cents a pound in city fruit markets.

Drinking

THE thirsty earth soaks up the rain,
And drinks and gapes for drink again;
The plants such in the earth, and are
With constant drinking fresh and fair;
The sea itself (which one would think
Should have but little need of drink)
Drinks twice ten thousand rivers up,
So fill'd that they o'erflow the cup.
The busy Sun (and one would guess
By's drunken fiery face no less)
Drinks up the sea, and when he's done,
The Moon and Stars drink up the Sun:
They drink and dance by their own light,
They drink and revel all the night:
Nothing in Nature's sober found,
But an eternal health goes round.
Fill up the bowl, then, fill it high,
Fill all the glasses there—for why
Should every creature drink but I?
Why, man of morals, tell me why?

Abraham Cowley.

Energy of Indian River Served Dozen Mills of Venerable Age and Use

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

Emphasis has been placed in these articles on the urgent need for measures to safeguard from spoliation the Indian River, running from Gilchrist's Bay, Stony Lake, through Warsaw, to Keene on Rice Lake.

This historic stream, which was once THE Trent, is a treasure trove of natural beauty and of irreplaceable flora and fauna. But aside from these aspects, it must claim our attention as a site of milling operations which served well the earliest pioneer families of Peterborough County. From Indian River mills came a substantial part of the food and feed that nourished the county's people and their domestic anomals; from them, as well, came much of the processed lumber that was built into district homes and public works.

Before proceeding to any prolegemena for Indian River reclamation and development, the writer believes a brief chronology of milling operations (even if it has many shortcomings) will be helpful to an inventory, or stock-taking, of physical valuations, such as we have never had heretofore.

Who among us today has an understanding in any large sense of the resourcefulness and initiative that have been woven into the 125 to 150 years of technological endeavor to turn the energies of our river waters to the service and well-being of Peterborough people?

An extensive survey of the life and work of the home-making Peterborough people who have been associated with the creating of values along the Indian River—the Burnhams, the Gilchrists, the Birdsalls, the Shorts, the Wedlocks, the Plunketts, the Flyes, the Longs, the Clarksons, the Hopes, the Guerins, the Borlands, the Wassons, the Paynes, the Taylors, the Kidds, the Dewarts, the Crowes, the Littles—an extensive survey of these and of the long spectral file of others who served so well, is beyond the scope and powers of the present writer.

The items here presented are mere fragments of history. They are tabulated in the hope that they may be of service if or when some future written-history (or better still, folk-museum) passes on to posterity a rare extensive record which may truthfully mirror what we may call "The Romance of Milling" on Peterborough's lakes and rivers.

The writer sincerely hopes that his data may be amplified or amended by those who can contribute either verbally or through museum collections to a better understanding of the forces that shaped the life of earlier Peterborough people. To the Women's Institutes we are indebted for our helpful effort. Let us hope that the organizational activities which have been carried on in the face of difficulties will be quickened and directed toward fields of more abundant objective values. As will be noted, the river listing below runs from south to north:

KEENE—Dr. John Gilchrist built in 1825 a grist mill with one run of stones: and sawmill with a single upright saw. Born in Bedford, N.H. Dr. Gilchrist practiced medicine in Cobourg, Ont., before he founded Keene, naming it after Keene, N.H. A canal or raceway about one mile long running from "Burnham's Dam" was excavated with the voluntary aid of settlers. The present three-storey stone grist mill was built in 1848. The mill was once operated by W. Wedlock, and since then by William Plunkett, a resident of the district 73 years. It is now operated as a chopping mill. Nearby Mr. Plunkett has a small furnace for casting tools and plates.

LANG—Formerly, called Allandale, was the site of an oatmeal and flour mill, tannery and sawmill formerly operated by Thomas Short. Present mill is owned by John Clarkson. William Hastie operated a carriage factory many years.

HOPE'S MILL—About a mile above Lang Richard Hope built a sawmill and carding mill and sold cloth.

ARMSTRONG'S POND — A deep pond above Bowie's bridge.

INDIAN RIVER POST OFFICE —Later moved about a mile east to the present C.P.R. station site. In this area was Guerin's hotel and a little further up-river a mill was operated by Louis Borland.

MALONEY'S LAKE—A widening of the river some three miles below Warsaw.

WARSAW—Building of a grist mill begun in 1835 by Thomas Hartwell, on site owned by Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, was completed in 1836 by Thomas Choate, son of Jacob Choate, owner of Choate's Mills, Port Hope. Establishing a post office and general store, Mr. Choate named the village Warsaw in 1843. He added a sawmill, carding mill and furniture factory. Operated for a time by his son, T. G. Choate, the grist mill was damaged by fire, its stout stone walls remaining. Rebuilt by Harry Young, it was purchased by John Wasson, father of Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, of Peterborough, and of the late Ernie Wasson speedy lacrosse player and one of Peterborough's greatest hockey goalers. Cecil Wasson, owner of the Dickson store, George Street, is a nephew. John Wasson installed a Grey steel roller process with conveyor system. For some years he leased the mill to Blight and Dixon, who, shipping through the nearby C.P.R. Indian River station, set a record in the intensive processing of Western wheat. In 1907, George G. Taylor and the late Stewart Payne purchased the grist and saw mills. For a time George Brown was associated with the business. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor still live in Warsaw and not long since celebrated their Diamond anniversary. A few years ago the mill was purchased by Sherwood Payne, who carries on a chopping and mixed feed business, serving a large community. At Warsaw also is a sawmill operated by Roy Banks and a small electric generating plant built by Hilliard Clements.

QUARRY LAKE—A widening of the river above the old "Quarry Dam" a mile or so above Warsaw. There may be seen the remains of the former mill site with flume and tailrace.

PAYNE'S MILL — Some four miles up-river from Warsaw, at Payne's dam, this sawmill is in active operation. Built in the late 1880's by George Payne Jr., it is now carried on by his son, Allan Payne.

WHITE LAKE—Just below Gilchrist's Bay (separated by a short portage) this lake, long a favorite fishing ground, has become lined in recent years with cottages. From this area has been taken large quantities of flat limestone for various construction purposes.

GILCHRIST'S BAY — Stony lake inlet, named after Dr. John Gilchrist who had extensive lumbering interests, is the source of the Indian river. Here for some years a steam-power sawmill was operated by Harry Buck of Norwood.

FLYING MAN

Flying would give such occasions for intrigues as people cannot meet with who have nothing but legs to carry them. You should have a couple of lovers make a midnight assignation upon the top of the monument, and see the cupola of St Paul's covered with both sexes like the outside of a pigeon-houke. Nothing would be more frequent than to see a beau flying in at a garret window, or a gallant giving chase to his mistress, like a hawk after a lark. The poor husband could not dream what was doing over his head. If he were jealous, indeed, he might clip his wife's wings, but what would this avail when there were flocks of whoremasters perpetually hovering over his house?

Pot Bulbs Now, Cold Store For Forcing In The House

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Tulips, narcissus and other spring-blooming bulbs which are to be forced in the house should be potted now and kept in some sort of cold storage until considerable root growth has been made.

While the ideal place is an underground storage pit, the home gardener can get results by placing the pots in a cold corner of the basement. Since a more or less constant temperature is important there should be six inches or more of soil both under and over the pots.

The old gardener's first preference for storage is a cold frame, with the pots covered with earth. His second choice is to bury the pots in a trench, two feet deep, dug in a spot in the garden where water does not collect. Sand or fine soil should then be sifted between the pots and also used to cover them.

Reason for using soil over the pots is that the weight is needed to keep the bulbs from being forced upward as the roots grow. The trench is then covered with leaves, or similar material, so that it will not freeze hard to prevent removal of the pots as wanted.

The pots should be given a thorough soaking before being stored away. Ten or 12 weeks is minimum time required for root development of tulips, narcissus, daffodils and hyacinths. Crocus and similar small bulbs root in six to eight weeks.

Drainage in the pot is important so put a few pieces of broken pot in the bottom over and about the hole. The pots are then filled to within a third of the top with a loam and sand.

Tulips and small bulbs are planted with the tops just below the surface, while narcissus, daffodil and hyacinth bulbs are placed so that the noses just protrude when the pot is filled to within a half inch of the top.

Amateurs should not expect to have tulips in flower until after the first year. Tulips are not as easy to grow as some other bulbs, but are very satisfactory when they flower. It is best to plant them with the flat side down, pointing towards the outside of the pot.

Then the foliage will grow over the edge of the pot instead of toward the centre, making a much more attractive appearance. Five bulbs are enough for a six-inch pot.

Generally, it is best to delay starting date until late January when the earliest varieties can be brought indoors and placed in a cool room away from windows for a week or two.

Water is needed and as growth develops more heat and light can be given. Flowers should appear in from four to five weeks.

While many tulips will force in the home the following are recommended by the Associated Bulb Growers of Holland:

Brilliant Star, Prince of Austria, Prince Carnival, General de Wet, Apricot Yellow Ibis, La Reine Maxima, White Hawk, Krelage's Triumph, Alberio, Crown Imperial, Princess Beatrix, Golden Harvest, William Pitt, Red Pitt, William Copland and Rose Copland.

Keep in mind these expert's pointers when you plan to start spring-blooming plants indoors.

Gardening Questions

Q—What is the cornelian cherry?—H. .

A—The cornelian cherry, cornus mas, belongs to the dogwood family. It makes one of the most satisfactory small trees for use as a lawn specimen and in the background planting. The yellow flowers, appearing in early spring with the forsythia, while small, are numerous, and by midsummer become red cherry-like berries, giving the plant its name. The delightful autumn color, common to all dogwoods, further recommends the cornelian cherry.

Q—What is the best way to keep geraniums over winter?—M. P.

A—Small potted plants may be kept in a sunny window or slips may be taken from larger ones, potted up when rooted, and kept in the same way. Plants may also be dug before frost, potted, placed in a rather cool cellar, and set out again in the spring, being cut back severely.

Relations Upset At Horse Show

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—International relations were slightly strained today at the National Horse Show as the Mexican Captain objected to a decision giving Ireland first place in the West Point challenge trophy.

Col. Humberto Mariles complained that Capt. Michael Tubridy had cut inside a time marker flag during his tour of the 11-jump competition. He said Mexico won't be back to Madison Square Garden if his protest is disallowed.

Brig. Gen. Alfred G. Tuckerman, president of the show, said any official protest must be made to the American Horse Show Association, which in turn would relay it to the Federation Equestrienne Internationale, for a ruling. A spokesman said it was doubtful if Mariles would make his protest official.

Tubridy, Maj. John Russell of the United States, Alvaro Toledo of Brazil and Mariles were 1-2-3-4 in the event. The four had ridden without a fault, but Turbridy had the best time, 33 2/5 seconds.

Got Approval

Tubridy was the last rider to compete, and talked to the judges before starting. He asked them if he could cut the time flags and was advised he could, Tuckerman said.

Tuckerman explained the markers were not shown on the chart of the course posted before the competition, and it was the option of any rider to cut them if he desired.

The all-Toronto Canadian team Friday won its second international jumping event and stood a good chance of taking the three-day low-score jumping competition in its final event Sunday.

W. R. Ballard and Tom Gayford rode abreast in nearly flawless fashion over the nine jumps to come out with only one-half a fault.

The Canadian team, which also includes Lt.-Col. Charles Baker, won the first day of the competition without a fault.

Their half-fault total stacks up against the second-place American team's eight.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Something new will be added in the main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena next Tuesday night. Two referees will try to keep order and to watch the judo jugular slashes by Lord Athol Layton and the kicking of Zorra, the French Tarzan. They've been rematched after that wild scene here last week when Layton got the odd decision and Zorra then cleaned house to the roaring encouragement of a big crowd. One ref—a groggy Bert Maxwell—got all mixed up and was roughed plenty by Zorra at the finish, but this time two arbiters ought to be able to keep some sort of control over these wild matadors. The bout should jam the place again. Lou Newman (former Masked Marvel) meets Tim Geohagen in the semi-final, while Sonny Kurgis tackles Dan O'Connor in the prelim.

We note in the Quinte sheet some names in the Kingston OHA senior "B" lineup, the team formerly known as Nylons and now coached by Stan Scrutton. Goalie Dougall returned to Limestone City after Belleville officials declined to offer him the city hall. Some good pucksters like Don Murray, Markle, Aitken, Ohlke and Catlin are again available and some guys named Hawkins, McKeegan, Tinkess, Watt, Biggour, Teepel and Babino. Others likely, too, and we wouldn't be too surprised if the OHA lifted the suspensions on some of the 1950-51 Nylons, after granting the club permission for a flock of imports. However, we'll wait and see.

Need More Free Rinks

It is hoped that the Recreation Commission may obtain, through the parks committee, more free skating and hockey rinks about town this winter for the kids. More than was the case last cold season. Boys and girls, as well as many adults, enjoy skating nights and weekends, but the city has grown a lot in recent years and there isn't enough accommodation provided skaters. Also, hundreds of young boys are anxious to learn hockey and Civic Arena can't take care of them all, by any means. More free open-air rinks is the answer for this and pays off in various ways, being healthful, aiding sports and cutting down on juvenile delinquency. It's a worthy investment.

Artificial ice is a boon to OHA teams here and lets players get in shape early to start schedules a month and a half ahead of centres having only natural ice. We can recall as a kid when players of the calibre of Irvin (Ace) Bailey, Frankie Collins, Shrimp McDougall, etc. and etc., got in their first hockey licks of the season on the frozen surface of the canal while ice-makers at the Brock anxiously watched the temperature in late November and early December. Incidentally, we had a lot of city open-air rinks then, too, as well as various fields flooded by the firemen for skating and hockey. These fields now are filled with houses.

Batting The Birds About

Central Ontario badminton officials have ruled out wood shots—okayed last year for a trial by the Dominion body—and such shots will be called faults. Too tough to distinguish betwixt a throw and a wood, they ruled at an Oshawa meeting. R. McDonald and Roy Johnston being there for Peterborough. Cliff Palmer is prexy of this loop and the COBL tourney will go in Belleville in January. Ten juniors, eight to 11 years, play here Tuesday and Thursday afts under instruction of Joy Elmsley and Marg Baker. Older members supply racquets and birds. A round-robin for tonight at eight was lined up by Roy Johnston and a big turnout is requested. Grant Henry and Ralph Charlton teamed up the other eve to win two straight over Vince O'Donoghue and Reuben McDonald. Some fine play, we're told. Hallowe'en pranksters Wednesday defused the Market Hall boxes, an annual custom.

Just one girls' hoop tussle run off last gloaming in the YW gym. Mayhap the the Lindsay lasses were snow-bound. Anyway, Neill's rolled right efficiently from the start to ring a merry tune on the backboard as a flock of shots went through the rims. Final score totalled 51-20. Black's couldn't click at all till the last half, when they staged a better showing but the damage was done by that time. Joan Dunk, Mickey Callan, Grace Poast, F. Borland, Pauline Stewart and W. Byers did the tallying for Neill's, while Joan Krogh, Marg McIlvena, McInroy and Carol Ferguson were best for the losers. Games next Friday are: CGE vs. Neill's, and Lindsay vs. Nurses.

Tigers Crush Redmen 5-3 As Childs Performs Like Colt In Brantford

By The Canadian Press

Art Childs, some say, played his first hockey game before Jersey Joe Walcott knew what boxing gloves looked like. Walcott may be a grand-daddy of the ring, but Childs, veterean Hamilton Tiger goalie, performed like a young colt in Brantford Friday. The result was a 5-3 Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League win over Brantford Redmen. Childs blocked 42 shots in thwarting the Brantford attack. Sarnia Sailors skated to a 5-2 triumph over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen while Owen Sound Mercurys and Stratford Indians battled to a 4-4 overtime tie in other senior tilts.

Guelph Biltmores again forged into the OHA Junior A series lead by skating to an easy 7-0 win over ninth-place Oshawa Generals.

A three-goal performance by rookie centre Greg Hicks sparked Kitchener Greenshirts to an 6-4 decision over St. Catharines Teepees. The win snapped a four-game losing streak and lifted Kitchener into third place.

Still Seeking First Win

Windsor Spitfires still looked for their first win today after dropping a 7-1 verdict to the revamped Barrie Flyers. Flyers moved into fifth-place tie with Toronto St. Michael's.

Hamilton's victory in a mild game—only two penalties were handed out—put them in the league lead. Frank Liscombe and Fred Pankowski each got a pair of tallies to lead Hamilton. Murray Comfort added the other. Stemmler, Holotast and Oberholtzer scored for the losers.

Owen Sound and Stratford remain deadlocked for second place as a result of their 4-4 sawoff. Jack White, Don Heinbuch, Jack Thaler and Larry Lemenchick hit for the Sailors, with Tommy Burlington, Roy Leckie, Moe Galand and Andy Grant evening matters.

Two goals in the final period by Ted Garvin and Chuck Glaab enabled Sarnia to hand Kitchener-Waterloo their fourth straight loss. Dutchmen's Ed Kulik and Harvey Jacklin matched first-period Sarnia goals by Glaab and Don Emms. Billy Taylor accounted for Sarnia's other goal in the second period.

Scores Twice

Ron Murphy, the league's top goal-getter, scored twice for Guelph with Ken Laufman, Aldo Guidolin, Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice, McCreary and Louie Fontinato adding singles. It was Chuck Hagen's first shutout of the season.

Doug Mohns, with two, and one each by Don Cherry, Paul Emms, Reg (Toodie) Campbell, Johnny Martan and Don McKenny accounted for Flyers' scoring. Bob Brown spoiled Lorne Howes' bid for a shutout.

Besides Hicks, Art Joyce, Red Ingoldsby, Mike Holowaty, Orv Tessier and Ron Austin scored for Greenshirts. Gord Myles, Brian Cullen, Orrin Gould and Buddy Boone were St. Kitt's marksmen.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Snow and rain fell here Friday and the weatherman predicted a frozen field for the start of the western Canada football final between Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight.

As the dreary weather dashed hopes of good conditions for the first game of the best-of-three final, fans wished that the tarpaulin that the Canadian Rugby Union has ready for the Grey Cup final in Toronto Nov. 24 was in Edmonton instead.

Big, wet snow-flakes came down here for three hours yesterday morning, then turned to a drizzling rain about noon. The drizzle kept up all afternoon, then turned back to snow at nightfall.

The weather forecaster held out no hope for good conditions today.

"It will be a frozen field," the weatherman said, "with the temperature about 30 above at 8:30 pm (game time").

Mud turned into gold Friday for Hal Price Headley when his Cajun raced home first in the Pimlico Futurity at Baltimore. The way to the $46,540 pot was left wide open when Greentree stable decided not to risk running Tom Fool on the waterlogged track. Tom Fool had been expected to be an odds-on favorite because of five stakes victories. He is the leading contender for two-year-old honors of 1951.

Cajun came tearing up along the rail to G. F. Strickland's Lord Priam by nearly a length and pay $35.20. Brookfield farm's Invureye finished third.

Ernie (The Rock) Durando, Bayonne, NJ, bomber, outslugged rugged Paddy Young of New York's Greenwich Village, to win a split decision after 10 furious rounds at St. Nicholas Arena in New York Friday night. Young weighed 159½ and Durando 158½. Durando dropped Young for a nine count with an overhand right in the first round, but Paddy came back strong in a bitter brawl.

At Toronto, Varsity Blues clinched first place in the intermediate intercollegiate football race Friday with a 12-1 victory over University of Western Ontario Colts. Playing in a mild drizzle most of the time, Blues had the game won by half-time. Don Fawcett emphasized that in the dying minutes by romping 105 yards down the field for another University of Toronto touchdown.

Americans Lead For Ryder Cup

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 3 (AP)—The grip Uncle Sam's golfers have had on the Ryder Cup for 16 years was considerably firmer today as the American team massed a 3-to-1 lead over Britain's best in opening foursome play.

With play suspended today, the United States team needed only a split in Sunday's eight singles matches to retain the cup it has held since 1935.

It took a surprising 2-and-1 victory by Charles Ward and Arthur Lees over Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle to give the confident invaders their only victory.

Captain Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. VA., and Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., dealt a 5-and-4 trimming to Jimmy Adams and John Panton. The US open champion, Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex., and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., prevailed by the same score against Fred Daly and Ken Bousfield. Clayton Heafner, burly Charlotte, NC, pro, and Jackie Burke of Houston, Tex., ganged up on Britain's open champion Max Faulkner and David (Dai) Rees, 5 and 3.

Bob Patten Hits 877

Bob Patten, youngest member of the youngest team ever to bowl in the Men's City Bowling League was the whole show this week in Duffus' as he hit a terrific 877 triple and took single honors with a fine 338. Bond's took the top single game with 1,276 as McGillis led in pinnage with 3,310.

Other good scores rolled were: Jim Heron 804, Eric Martin 798, Jack Playford 781 (325), Holly Mowry 749, Frank O'Heron 799 (305), Jack Murray Sr. 748 (312) and George Gimblett 735 (297). McGillis went into a top-place tie by whitewashing DeLaval 6-0, as 4-2 wins went to Bassel's, Madill & Post, Sunocos and Anthony's over Moore's, Clapper's, Bond's and Kawartha in that order.

Neill's Turn Back Black's In Girls' Loop Cage Fray

Neill's racked up a 51-20 Girls' Black's last evening in the YWCA in the only tussle staged. They rolled to a 25-2 first-half lead and had a big edge again in the last spasm. The victors' passing, shooting and checking left little to be desired, while the losers couldn't get untracked in the first part at all, but fought back harder in the last session.

Joan Dunk topped Neill's in sniping with 16 points while Mickey Callan clicked for 11, F. Borland eight, and M. Gillen, Pauline Stewart and W. Byers got four apiece. Joan Krogh was highest for Black's with eight points, Marg McIlvena having four, Rosie McInroy and Carol Ferguson three each, and Rita Naylor and Carol Raper singles. Teams:

Neill's—J. Dunk, G. Poast, M. Alpine, D. Smith, F. Borland, M. Gillen, P. Stewart, M. Callan, W. Byers, J. Castle.

Black's—R. Naylor, M. McGill, M. McIlvena, R. McInroy, C. Raper, J. Krogh, M. Hollingsworth, G. Ferguson, E. McIlhagga, M. Bint, B. Pollock.

Officials: R. Burrows, D. Beatty, I. Black.

Retired Horse, Mule Broker Returns As King Of Claimers

By JOHN N. GREGORY

CHICAGO — (NEA)—William Hal Bishop retired some years ago from the hard rigors of running a horse and mule brokerage at Anna, Ill.

Bishop sought the seemingly simpler life of racing horses.

He left an eight-hour-a-day job to get up at 4.30 every morning and work out a dozen or more horses.

He firmly believed he would retire, of course, but after being around horses for many years, he had them in his blood. So after a couple years of comparative recreation, the retired broker found himself becoming more and more involved with horse flesh. Pretty soon he found himself with lots of horses, which he was running in lots of races—from four to eight daily at some track.

Bishop is the undisputed King of the Claimers.

Normally, Bishop stables two dozen or more horses at major tracks, with 12 or 15 always active. His expense runs to $2000 a week, or $100,000 annually.

Since it takes many trips to the winner's circle to keep his ponies in oats, Bishop is trying for purse money at all times.

Trainers have been known to run thoroughbreds merely for the workout. Not so with Bishop. He's out to bag the roses.

In 1949, Bishop saddled 129 winners, which along with place and show horses brought him $237,000 in purses. He picked up another $85,000 trading. He saddled another 127 winners in 1950, good for $218,000, 12th highest in the land. Last year's performance included 103 which placed, 93 that showed.

He will fare as well this year.

Bishop lost 35 horses via claiming channels during a three-week span in 1949, yet finished with two more than he started.

His judgment is considered 90 per cent correct, and his record bears this out.

One mount, Boden's Pal, won more than $100,000. Last year Boden's Pal was claimed by another, only to have Bishop reclaim him this season.

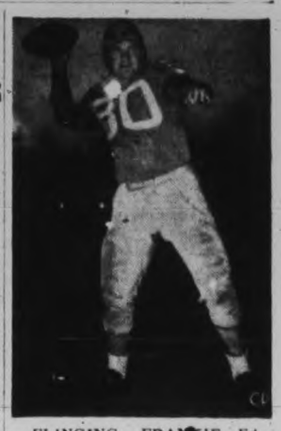
Bishop feels the contracting of Jockey Harold (Red) Keene's services was one of the smartest moves he ever made.

The veteran horseman refuses to place sizable wagers on his entries. Around the tracks he is known as a modest bettor. Two-dollar plungers around the parimutuel windows, on the other hand, rarely hesitate to wager on Bishop's horses.

On the subject of betting, Bishop says:

"I throw away almost one whole purse a year making small bets and playing poker. A man shouldn't do those things—you've got to watch yourself in this business."

As for advice, William Hal Bishop suggests two rules:



"Leave whisky alone and stay away from strawberry roans."

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3. (ENS)—High scores for the Ladies' Bowling League this week were as follows:

Afternoon League: Betty Kelly, single 243, triple 618; Betty Graham, single 272, triple 521; Isobel Jeffery, single 235, triple 562; Alice Lockwood, single 208, triple 589; Evelyn Samis, single 190, triple 520.

FLINGING FRANKIE—Edmonton Eskimo quarterback Frank Filchock is playing backfield coach and is said to be slated to take over club reins when Eskimo coach Annis Stukus returns to sports writing this winter. Filchock is 34, five feet 10 and weighs 204. He was voted top athlete in Canada in 1949, the year he led Montreal Alouettes to the Grey Cup title. He was an Eastern All-Star in 1949 and 1950 and came to Edmonton this year.

Say Smythe Intends To Make Leaf Players Interchangeable

By The Canadian Press

It looks as though Toronto's Maple Leaf players are going to be highly interchangeable.

That's what Managing Director Conn Smythe says he wants in a National Hockey League player. It was one reason for the shunt to the minors of forwards Danny Lewicki and Ray Timgren.

"If you're going to stay in the hunt for the Stanley Cup you can't introduce too many young fellows and train them," said Smythe in an interview Friday night. "A team has to be interchangeable—every player must be able to do more than one job."

He was commenting on the recall from Pittsburgh Hornets of Rudy Migay and Bob Solinger. They'll replace Lewicki and Timgren. But Lewicki, 20-year-old Port Arthur native, said Friday night he wouldn't report to the American Hockey League club. Smythe said if he didn't he'd be suspended. Timgren left Friday night.

Roster Cut Down

Smythe said that with the Leafs striving for more scoring punch the move was necessitated in part by a league ruling which allows a team to dress only 15 players, two less than last season.

He added there will be other changes if necessary.

Migay and Solinger got their NHL baptism at Montreal Thursday when the Leafs won 4-2 in a contest featured by a wild brawl between fiery Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Leafs' Fern Flaman and Bill Juzda.

Part of Richard's punishment was a game misconduct penalty which carries a $50 fine. President Clarence Campbell of the NHL said Friday "the incident is terminated" and no further action will be taken against any of the players invloved.

Sedgman, Savitt May Meet For Title

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 3 — (AP).—If the seedings run true to form, Frank Sedgman, United States champion from Australia, and Wimbledon titleholder Dick Savitt of East Orange, NJ, will meet for the New South Wales tennis title.

The two Davis Cup aces topped the seedings announced today for the tourney starting Nov. 15. Sedgman headed the domestic list and Savitt the foreign draw.

The tournament will be the first test for US and Swedish cup forces, who meet in the inter-zone final the second week in December. The winner will challenge Australia Dec. 26-28.

Moses First Emancipator

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

Widely, among all peoples wherever the Bible is read, the slavery of the Jews in Egypt has been a symbol for slavery and bondage everywhere.

And similarly, Moses has been the outstanding type of leader of a people and their deliverer from bondage. Such a leader, wherever he has appeared, has inevitably been called "a Moses."

That, obviously, it a great distinction; and it is a merited distinction. Where in all literature and history could a leader be found, who in all the details of his character, experiences, and career so fully typifies the man of action, devoted to breaking the bonds of those held in subjection?

The career of a liberator, unless he be a phony, whose underlying spirit is ambition and the aim of power for himself—a phony type with which the whole history of liberation is clustered—almost inevitably begins in a great act of renunciation. He has to decide whether he will live for himself, or for those whom he has the impulse to serve and liberate.

It was thus that Moses began. Rescued from a pitch-lined basket in the water he was brought up by Pharaoh's daughter in the palace, with privilege and a great destiny marked out for him. But he did not choose the way of personal ambition and worldly success. He realized his Jewish origin, he saw the affliction of his people, and he chose to cast in his lot with them, rather than be called "the son of Pharaoh's daughter.

The author of Hebrews II characterizes it as a great act of faith, and such it was. But it was also a great act of courage and devotion, set negatively in renunciation, and positively in a course of determined action.

For the man who would be an emancipator renunciation alone is not enough. Moses might have retired from the palace, and found freedom in the wilderness for himself. It was his action that counted.

During the years when I was editing "The Conugregationalist," in Boston, there frequently came to my office men and women whom I knew to have accomplished Moses-like leadership in various fields. Almost without exception the impression was not that of strength, even as they said of Saint Paul that his presence was weak. But when these visitors came to speak of their particular field and purpose they quickly revealed a Moses-like spirit, a single-minded devotion and goal from which no obstacle or difficulty could have turned them aside.

One must not neglect, or underestimate, that aspect of spiritual attitude and preparation at the outset of Moses' career. In the sense of his own inadequacy to fulfill a great goal and purpose, a man, if he is sincere and conscious of a call, inevitably turns to a Power greater than himself for strength and guidance. It was in that sense that Paul said "when I am weak, then am I strong."

THE REV. CHARLES J. MUXWORTHY, BA, BD, new minister of the Church of the Nazarene, succeeds the Rev. Robert Coghill, who has moved to Hamilton. Mr. Muxworthy is a graduate of the Eastern Nazarene College, Quincy, Mass., and the Nazarene Theological Seminary, Kansas, Mo., where he received his bachelor of divinity degree. Peterborough is his first permanent charge.

SPECIAL PREACHER Roy Gustafson of St. Petersburg, Florida, who will commence a special series of gospel messages on Sunday, November 11, at the McDonnel Street Gospel Hall and continue through the week at 8 pm daily, except Saturday.

WINNIPEG (CP).—The Rosh Pina congregation which had its Synagogue in an old frame building since 1892 is moving to a new building now under construction. Many of Winnipeg's earliest Jewish families were members of this Synagogue.

It has long been my firm belief that no man is really called to a task for which God will fail to give him power of achievement, if he will honestly and devotedly do his part.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIII. No. 104 SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1951

Unemployed Mount SlowlyHigher

Dipped To Low In August; Short Week Blamed

Unemployment in Peterborough and district continued its slow upward trend during October, William Mellis, manager of the National Employment office, said today.

The number of claims received by the Peterborough office reached record low in July of 566 and since has been increasing. In August the claims numbered 633, in September 659 and at the end of October 743.

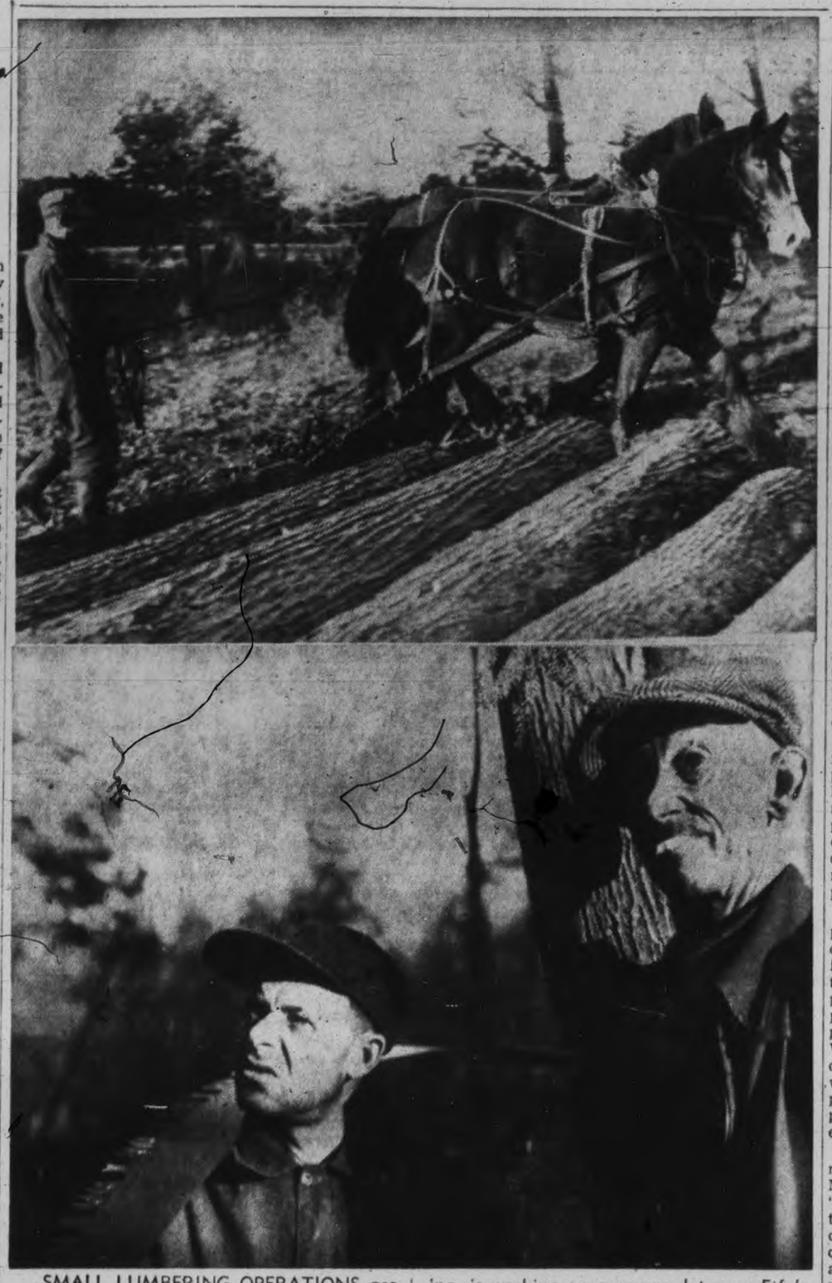
Mr. Mellis pointed out that conditions in the city and district this year are slightly worse than at the same time last year when there were only 680 on unemployment insurance. This year 743 men and women were drawing the insurance money.

Short Weeks

The increase this year is due to the short-time work in Peterborough and Campbellford factories. In Peterbrough two factories, the Western Clock and the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company, still have their employees working a short week. The reason is lack of sales.

In Campbellford two companies, the Campbellford Cloth and the Toronto Carpet, are still slack.

Unemployed persons applying for work are also more this year than last, 954 compared with 828 in 1950. There were 595 men and 359 women job-hunting in October in the district while only 513 and 315 were registered in 1950 as available for work.



Fewer Jobs

Jobs for both men and women decreased this year slightly, but even those that are available demand experience. The 42 jobs for men desire mostly mechanics, machinists, draftsmen and other skilled laborers. The 13 jobs for women want experienced typists and stenographers.

In 1950 there were 44 jobs for men and 29 for women.

Claims by city people this year decreased slightly for both the men and the women. Mr. Mellis said that 279 men and 227 women in the city were obtaining money through the unemployment insurance as compared with 304 men and 228 women last year.

The increase this year was noted in the district where 159 men and 78 women drew money through the mail claims. Last year these claims numbered only 107 men and 41 women.

SMALL LUMBERING OPERATIONS are starting throughout the district on second-growth limits. Hand labor and horse power have been supplemented, to some extent, by chain sawing, but the crosscut is still in general use. A skidding team, Top photo, driven by James Convey of Hasting, is working on a swamp lot near Fife's Bay on Chemong Lake. Sawyers Ivan Bolton, Left and Odo O'Toole plan a method of felling a "hanging" basswood. The most valuable logs being taken from this particular area are birch for veneer manufacturing.—Examiner Staff Photo.

Business Men Farmers Hear Hannam

Scores Criticism Of Floor Prices Says Help Everyone

In a rural-urban get-together designed to promote better understanding of the problems of town and country, Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and Peterborough County Federation of Agriculture sponsored a joint dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel Friday evening.

The assembled farmers, business men and industrial men and their wives who jammed the Kawartha Room to capacity, heard guest speaker Dr. H. H. Hannam declare that criticism of floor prices for agricultural products on the grounds that the taxpayer's money is being used to keep food prices high is "a fifteen cent argument."

Dr. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said that price support legislation has cost the individual Canadian only 15 cents a year during the five years the Farm Prices Support Act has been in effect.

By preventing "violent price fluctuations, a floor price keeps producers in business and in the long run, the consumer pays a more stable and lower average price than he would if prices were entirely determined by the law of supply and demand Dr. Hannam said.

Purchasing Power

Declaring that "healthy farm purchasing power is at the roots of the prosperity we are enjoying today," Dr. Hannam went on to say that "it is ridiculous to protest high food prices and not protest all high prices. We can't pull one down without the other. We might have a sounder economy if all prices were on a somewhat lower level but world preparedness and demand for our products in other countries all enter into it."

"Floor prices have helped us maintain farm purchasing power. Mostly the floor price has been a "stop-loss" price and has maintained a reasonable measure of confidence in the commodity in question for processors, merchants and industrial workers as well as providing minimum security for the producer," he continued.

In a reference to a member of parliament who recently urged the government to place an embargo on the export of meat to the United States, Dr. Hannam said the closing of the US market would cause a glut on the Canadian market immediately.

Wreck Industry

"To do this in the face of today's very high costs of production would break the price of beef to the point where it would be a tragedy to livestock men and could not help but undermine many businesses and payrolls as well," the speaker continued.

"Why pick out the farmer to be soaked?" he asked. Many Canadian industries sell their products freely in the US. We cannot enjoy full freedom of democracy when some are slaves."

In this connection, Dr. Hannam mentioned the bill currently before the House of Commons to prohibit manufacturers and suppliers from establishing the resale or minimum price for their products.

The prices of most of the farmer's requirements are fixed on this basis, declared Dr. Hannam, but the farmer has to sell his products on an open and highly competitive market.

CHARLES HURST

Charles Hurst To Contest Utilities Post

Second to announce his intention to run for the position of utilities commissioner is Charles K. Hurst, superintending engineer with the Trent Canal here.

George A. Macdonald announced Wednesday he would seek renomination to the commission. Mr. Macdonald has been a member of the commission for 12 years and is a former Mayor of Peterborough.

No Election Since 1939

Since Mr. Macdonald was elected to his first term there has not been an election for the commission. This year's will be the first election in those 12 years.

Mr. Hurst, president of the United Nations Association in Peterborough, was born in Calgary, and graduated with a BSc from the University of Alberta.

After graduation, he worked with the waterworks distribution system for the city of Edmonton. During this time he took his MSc at the University of Iowa, specializing in waterworks and sanitary engineering.

In 1940 he went to Ottawa with the Department of Transport as hydrometic engineer with canal services, where he stayed until 1942, when he joined the Navy and served as a torpedo officer until September, 1945.

He rejoined the department in 1946, and was put on design and hydraulic investigation for the St. Lawrence waterway. In November, 1948, he came to Peterborough as assistant supervising engineer with the Trent Canal.

Mr. Hurst is a director of the Kiwanis Club, a member of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, of the United Services Institute, and the National Film Council.

He is married, with three children.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

TO EXTEND DRAIN

Work may be done this fall on a storm drain on the east side of Monaghan Road from the end of the existing drain between Albert and Wolfe Streets, northerly to Wolfe St. This job is authorized in bylaw No. 5002. It is done as a local improvement and on the petition of the CGE.

MATTER OF EFFICIENCY

Ratepayers who trudged through the snow last night and again this morning, without benefit of plows, were rather sharply saying that efficiency within the community should begin right in the administration and manifest itself all the way down to cleared walks, even if this snow did arrive earlier than usual.

CCF, Conservatives Begin Electioneering Tour Through County Centres

W. C. Grant Opens Campaign In Lakehurst Harold R. Scott Speaks In Keene Liberals Yet To Organize Rural Tour

Electioneering through the hustings of Peterborough county started Friday night when CCF candidate W. C. Grant, reeve of Lakefield, spoke at Lakehurst. The Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, will speak tonight in Keene. A speaking itinerary for Liberal candidate F. P. (Paddy) Burke, president of the Canadian Legion in Peterborough, has not yet been mapped.

So far, it is agreed, no particular issues face the electorate. Voters will for the most part be choosing a man, not a platform, when they go to the polls November 22.

Mr. Grant's campaign will last from Saturday night until November 15, when his swing through the district will be concluded at Lakefield.

Mr. Scott's itinerary carries him through eight places, starting tonight at Keene and ending November 19 at Norwood.

Plans for campaigning in Peterborough itself are still tentative, although it is likely that all three candidates will concentrate much of the final week's effort here.

Only definite date settled for Peterborough is next Monday night, when E. B. Jolliffe, CCF leader for Ontario, will speak to a CCF rally in the Legion Hall. This will probably be the only visit of a provincial party leader to this city.

Here is the itinerary for Mr. Scott, the Progressive Conservative candidate: Keene, November 3; Havelock, November 5; Ennismore, November 6; Warsaw, November 12; Buckhorn and Lakehurst, November 13; Lakefield, November 16; and Norwood, November 19.

Mr. Grant's itinerary follows: Lakehurst, November 2; Bridgenorth, November 6; Young's Point, November 8; Apsley, November 10; Havelock, November 12; Douro School House, November 13; and Lakefield, November 15.

Two Seek Help Of Legal Clinic

Two applications to appear before the legal aid clinic have been received by County Director William Grant.

Mr. Grant said Friday afternoon that one of these applications was for aid in a civil case and one for a criminal case. Both cases have as yet to come before the clinic.

The clinic is made up of three persons — J. R. Twigg, social worker; Richard Batten, secretary and a solicitor. A different solicitor is appointed each month.

The function of the clinic is to find out whether the applicant is eligible for free legal aid (to be applicants, annual earnings or means of subsistence must be less than $900, together with an additional amount of $200 for each dependent).

Give Advice

The second function of the clinic is to give on-the-spot advice.

If the applicant is eligible the clinic makes a report to the county director, who arranges for a solicitor to look after the case.

Starting this month clinics will be held on the first and third Monday of every month. The dates this month will be Nov. 5 and 19. The clinics will be held in the county council chamber.

North Monaghan Would Place Ban On Hunting

Concerned about the zinging of bullets across their pastoral fields North Monaghan farmers are moving to make their municipality a preserve for their own safety. They are asking for a ban on rifles and other firearms used in hunting.

Township Council Thursday night authorized the clerk, Bruce Johnston, to write the Department of Games and Fisheries for permission "to close the township for hunting."

This is an old grievance against persons who have been shooting around the township as if it were 100 miles north of Peterborough, where residents are few and far between.

North Monaghan is suggesting that with all the cars on the roads these days the people who like the sound of guns take themselves to the timberland. The township is becoming extensively suburbanized, and the safety of the people is increasingly endangered.

Duck Hunting

Discussion brought out a question of duck shooting down the river to Monaghan's south boundary in the Whitfield neighborhood, at old TAS Park. That permission was said to be under Federal authority.

Accounts passed for payment were: Expence in collecting dog taxes, $2.70; printing, $3.85; relief and welfare, $16.23; registrar of county, $8.35; to the County of Peterborough for crushed and delivered gravel, $3,637.10; truck hauling gravel, $33.50.

Oscar Dunford was appointed by by-law road superintendent at 80 cents an hour. This by-law conforms with the requirement of the Department of Highways.

It was decided by the Council that the Court of Revision be held at the Court House Saturday, December 1, 1951, at 2 pm.

New Buildings Near $4 Million

Peterborough's building permits for ten months to the end of October lack only $338 of a total of $4,000,000.

October permits amounted to $306,723 as compared with $291,976, another monthly gain over 1950.

Total for the year to Oct. 31 was $3,999,662, and for the corresponding period last year—$3,513,853.

Details were as follows for last month:

25 garages, $8,435; 18 dwellings, $145,500; 81 miscellaneous permits, $152,788. Totals: 124 permits—$306,723.

Permits for October last year were:

32 garages, $9,075; 33 houses, $241,400; 82 miscellaneous, $41,501. Totals: 147 permits, $291,976.

Largest item in the miscellaneous list was the new Masonic Temple at Rubidge and Hall Streets, of which the prospective cost is $63,000.

Lemery Distributors' factory, Lansdowne St. West, is estimated at $32,000.

Trinidad Leasehold Service Station, Landsdowne St., east: $23,000.

Average cost of the houses laid down last month was $8,083 as compared with the average of $6,352 in October last year.

AFTER THE FESTIVITIES

Now that the party and the pleasantness at the city hall are over, City Auditor Edward Humpage moves up again into the foreground with his nose in the accounts, the borrowings and spendings, and the prospects for 1952.

Old-Time Lumbermen Cut Piles Of Logs In District

Horses leaning into traces dragging heavy logs through swampy bushland after two lumbermen have cut them down is not the picture that most people have of lumbering. But in Peterborough county and other counties throughout the district there are dozens of small lumber companies sending out a steady flow of logs from bushes to lumber mills.

Large lumber operators work with a highly mechanized organization which uses caterpillar tractors, bulldozers and huge power saws to rip through giant trees.

Smaller outfits also use power saws, but there the similarity ends. In the Peterborough district and many others, small gangs of men with a team of horses go out into the woods and start to work—just as they did years ago.

Charles Elmhirst of Indian River and his son Percy have three gangs of men cutting logs—one gang of Fife's Bay between Lake Chemong and Highway 7, another at Bridgenorth and a third near Marmora.

30 Years

Mr. Elmhirst who has been in the business 30 years either buys logs already cut, purchases logs at so much per thousand feet log measure, or makes a deal with whoever owns a timber tract for the right to cut the type of trees he wants and sends his men in to cut them.

At Fife's Bay, four of Mr. Elmhirst's men were busy Thursday afternoon felling birch, elm, maple and basswood trees, cutting them into logs and dragging them out of the woods where they are loaded on trucks and taken away to be manufactured into wood veneer products.

Logging operations are somewhat similar to the assembly line method of mass production used in most large industrial plants. In fact, it may be that the idea has been adapted from woods operations.

One man goes ahead notching the trees to make sure they fall in a certain direction. A pair of sawyers come behind, falling the trees and trimming off the limbs. Then, another man "snakes" the logs out to where they can be loaded on to trucks.

The sharp cracks of Joe Davis' axe could be heard from the edge of the road and helped in locating him through a maze of trees and brush.

Joe was just notching two tall elms, that were about two feet apart at the base and veered sharply away from each other as they towered in the air.

"I could break them both on this stump," declared Joe as he sunk his axe halve into a rotting birch stump when asked how accurately he could direct the fall of trees.

Year Round Job

With Joe as with Mr. Elmhirst his boss, logging is a year-round job.

"I've been working in the bush ever since I ran away from home when I was eight years old," he said. "I scrubbed floors and washed dishes in shanties before I was old enough to work in the woods and for seven winters, I filed saws in a camp at Alsace near Sudbury."

Conveniently, Joe "batches" in a house trailer with a fellow woods worker and they move about from place to place, taking their living quarters with them when they move to new jobs.

Further on, Ivan Bolton who calls Peterborough his hometown and Odo that's how he spells it O'Toole from near Young's Point were whipping a crosscut back and forth, sinking it into a fallen elm log.

With a team of horses, Jim Convey of Hastings was dragging the logs into the open where they could be loaded.

Here is one place where dobbin is still the best means of getting the job done. A horse can "snake" a log through a narrow winding forest trail where a tractor would have to have a bulldozer make a road for it. The logs are dragged by one end, an ice tong like steel jaw is jabbed into the end of the logs and when the horse draws the chain to which it is fastened, tight, the tongs clamp tightly into the log and it is "snaked" out to the clearing.

The logs are piled on a "jammer" hoist which looks like a ladder that is wide at the bottom and narrows sharply toward the top and they are raised by a cable pulled by a horse so they can be easily loaded on trucks.

Three Streets To Get New Light Standards

Street lights requested by Ald. N. Graham were recommended to the Utilities Commission, as follows: Princess St. easterly from Lock to CNR; Westcott from George to CNR; Romaine St. at Aylmer St. corner.

When it was suggested that this list should be referred to the fire and light committee, Ald. Graham said, "I'm afraid it'll get killed there. It's been several times before the fire and light."

Ald. A. B. Burrows, chairman of that committee, declared today that not one of these items had been before the fire and light committee "in the last two years since I have been a member of it".

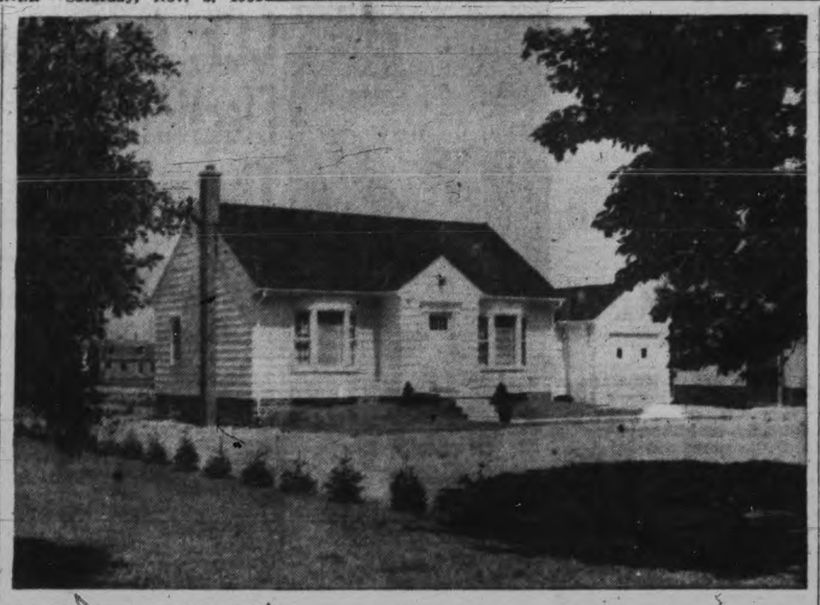
Newman Opens New Trade Post

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—Gerald A. Newman, the Trade Department's export division director will leave that appointment to take charge of a new trade commissioner's office to be opened in New Orleans early next year.

Appointment of the 46-year-old trade expert to the U.S. post, announced Friday, is in line with the department's policy to bolster its field forces in the US in the hope of capturing a bigger share of the American market for Canadian goods.

A survey was made of the southern US market last year and it was decided there were excellent opportunities for the expansion of Canadian trade in the Southeastern US belt.



New Orleans, a thriving industrial and shipping centre near the mouth of the Mississippi River, will be the latest link in the chain of Canadian trade offices at Boston, New York, Washington, Los Angeles and Detroit.

The energetic Mr. Newman, who has covered Canadian trade fronts in Europe and the US during 22 years of service with the Trade Department, is a native of Leamington, Ont.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP). — William (Klondyke Bill) Engel, 74, a mail carrier in the Yukon during the gold rush days more than 50 years ago, died Wednesday. In recent years, when he worked for a paving company here, he liked to spin yarns about his Klondyke days when a man might pan $700 worth of gold in a day.

Dies On Ship

HOUSE No. 774. — This gleaming white home was planned with "kitchen-to-the-front" for a number of reasons —the most important of which, perhaps, is the step-saving factor. Just think of the hundreds and hundreds of steps it will save between kitchen and the front door! With the housewife spending so much of her working day in the kitchen, it is important, too, that she be able to look out over something more than a side-drive. Savings in plumbing installation is another factor worth consideration. With the front kitchen, plumbing lines can often be shortened with resultant savings. Still another important advantage is the spot for deck chairs! A drop-leaf table in the far privacy, better exposure and less noise in living and sleeping quarters. The modern kitchen with its gay colour schemes, its air of comfort as well as convenience, is now doubling for other activities besides cooking — so that it has in fact become to many home owners a real living room. For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

3½ Pound Tumor Removed From Patient's Heart

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4 (AP)—A Cincinnati surgeon Friday told of the successful removal recently of a 3½ pound tumor from the heart of a 45-year-old man, Charles F. Dabney.

Surgeons said the tumor was the largest ever removed from a heart. Only one other similar operation has been successful, they said.

Name of the surgeon was withheld at his request.

Dabney, now back at work as an industrial gas engineer, told a reporter he always was fatigued and went to a doctor.

Examinations disclosed the heart's shadow was eight times its normal size.

Since the tumor extended almost completely across Dabney's chest, the incision was begun on the right side near the shoulder and extended down his side to the rib bed and around to the back.

A rib was removed from the right side of the patient, enabling the surgeon to enter the chest cavity.

Then, bit by bit the huge growth was cut away from the vital organ until it was free and could be lifted from the patient.

It took 2½ hours to complete the operation and 30 stitches to close the incision.

Turn Down Union

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP).—Proposed amalgamation of the Canadian Club of Toronto and the Empire Club of Canada has been voted down, the Canadian Club announced Friday. Ninety per cent of Canadian Club voters said they favored amalgamation but the Empire Club's vote of 64 per cent in favor was short of the required 75 per cent majority required in each club.

Civilian Masquerade

CHESTER, England, Nov. 3—(Reuters)—Police testified Friday that a French civilian masqueraded his way into the British army's recent autumn manoeuvres and stayed all through them as a dispatch rider. The masquerader, Jack Levin, 27, was sentenced to six months in jail for stealing an army automobile and other equipment, including the uniform he was wearing when convicted.

Admit Smuggling

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 3 (CP).—Two men, arrested Thursday night when RCMP confiscated 600,000 United States cigarettes, largest seizure ever made in Canada, pleaded guilty Friday to smuggling charges. Ruled Suicide

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 3 (AP)—Dr. Albert H. Covner, 53-year-old Nahant heart specialist found dead 10 days after three girl baby sitters stole $20,000 from his home for a Manhattan spending spree, has been ruled a suicide. Medical examiner Thomas P. Devlin, of Stoneham, said a pathological examination showed Dr. Covner was a "suicide by morphine poisoning during a state of depression."

Make Round Trip Across Continent On Motorcycles

By BARRY WEST.

MONTREAL — (CP). — Jean and Rene Bison returned recently to their St. Marie de Beauce home in the Eastern Townships after completing a round trip to Hollywood by motorcycle.

The trip was the realization of a 16-year-old dream. As youngsters their imagination was fired by an article on the film colony in a travel magazine. For nine-year-old boys such dreams are easy to forget, but Jean and Rene remembered.

Rene worked as an assistant to his father in a shoemaker's shop in Ste. Marie de Beauce, while Jean became a dark room worker for a Montreal photographer. A short time later the latter became chief photographer of a local studio.

He returned to their home town and persuaded Rene to buy a motorcycle, and last July they set out with $490 between them.

"We had some wonderful adventures on our trip," Jean said. "Rene bought all the food. I had difficulty teaching him English, and he brought back only what I asked for."

300 Miles Daily

The brothers travelled an average of 30 miles daily, pitching their tent in public parks along the route. "We saw the Grand Canyon, the Rockies, Death Valley, which is closed in summer, but we went through anyway, and the scenery was well worth the discomfort," Rene said.

The pair took the lower route west—through Indianapolis, St. Louis, and through Highway 66.

They spent two months in California and took a side trip to Mexico. The cost was $310 and the remaining $180 was spent on gifts for the folks back home.

Their adventures included an encounter with a rattlesnake which attempted to invade their sleeping bags one night, and seeing 40-foot waves in the Gulf of Lower California. Rene's motorbike was severely damaged, but he was able to have it repaired well enough to complete the tour.

The boys were pleased at the friendliness of the Americans and their great interest and enthusiasm in the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada.

Rene will return to work for his father and Jean resumes his work in Montreal.

Admit Bride Charged Spy

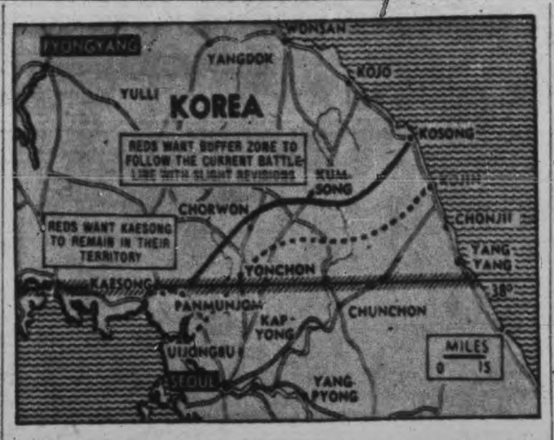
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—Ellen Knauff, German war bride who had been barred from the United States for three years on charges she was a spy for Czechoslovakia, finally won the right to be admitted.

Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath announced approval of a recommendation by the Board of Immigration appeals that the alien be admitted to the US for permanent residence."

Mrs. Knauff, a 36-year-old German, has been trying to get into the US since her marriage in 1948 to Kurt Knauff, an American soldier then stationed at Frankfurt, Germany.

Mrs. Knauff has denied the spy charges all along, saying she had never even seen the witnesses who testified to her alleged spying. Her husband now is back in Germany as a civilian employee of the US Army.

Apply To Marry



PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3 (AP)—Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner quietly applied for a marriage licence at city hall here Friday. Sinatra's divorce from his first wife, Nancy was made final in Nevada Thursday clearing the way for his marriage to Miss Gardner.

Below Zero

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3 (CP). — The temperature fell to four degrees below zero in Winnipeg early Friday, coldest Nov. 2 in history. Previous low for the day was 2.5 degrees in 1879.

ATOMS AND NEONS—Smoke from an atomic explosion is plainly visible beyond the garish skyline of Las Vegas, Nev., as the latest Atomic Energy Commission test bomb was detonated at the Frenchman's Flat proving ground. Minutes after the smoke was seen, the shock wave rattled and broke windows in Las Vegas.

RED OFFER — Communist negotiators surprised the UN truce team by suggesting a buffer zone based on their interpretation of the current battleline. The original Red demand was that the buffer zone be located along the 38th Parallel (shaded area). When the UN refused this suggestion, the Reds asked that the buffer zone run approximately 12 miles south of the current battleline across Korea (broken line).

Think Princess Elizabeth Good Ambassador

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (CP)—The Evening Star, in an editorial headed "Lilibet's Conquest," Friday cited Princess Elizabeth as "one of the very best ambassadors Britain has ever sent to these shores."

"As she wings her way homeward via Montreal today," the newspaper said, "Princess Elizabeth, even though it may strike her as empty flattery, ought to be told the simple truth by somebody. The simple truth is she has conquered the hearts of the capital of the United States of America. Together with her handsome husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, she has charmed and captivated this city to such an extent that our oldest inhabitants, searching around their memories, are hard put to recall the name of any past visitor quite comparable to her in terms of peaches-and-cream good looks and sweetness of personality . . ."

Government Stalling

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 3 (CP)—Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, said Friday the Federal government's decision on the maintenance of retail prices is "just a stall." Mr. Bengough commented in an interview on the government's announcement yesterday that legislation prohibiting retail price-fixing will be delayed temporarily and the matter placed before a special Commons-Senate committee.

Icy Roads Cause 5-Car Crash

SOUTH RIVER, Nov. 3 (CP)—A five-vehicle accident, caused to some extent by the season's first icy roads, Friday sent two persons to hospital in nearby North Bay and caused damage estimated by police at close to $5,000.

Included in the damaged vehicles was a police cruiser which went to the scene to investigate.

In hospital in North Bay are Allan Carswell and Herbert Wood, both of Belleville. Their car went out of control and slewed broadside on the road. A northbound truck struck it broadside. The car, a 1950 model, was completely wrecked. The truck was driven by Russell Moore, of Barrie.

Along came a car, driven by William McHague, of North Bay, and slammed into the rear of the truck.

From South River came Provincial Police Constable Ken Chalmers to investigate. He parked, just in time to have his cruiser struck by a car driven by a hunter from Cleveland.

Union Cancels 3-Month Strike, Lawsuit Likely

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP).—End of the more than three months' long strike at Robinson Industrial Crafts, Ltd., was reported Friday by George Watson, international representative, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO

His action followed granting of a permanent injunction against picketing of the plant by a Toronto court.

Mr. Watson notified company officials and Mayor Allan J. Rush of the union's decision Friday.

Oliver W. Durdin, lawyer for the company, said he had been notified of Mr. Watson's action. He said the company "intends to be as reasonable as possible in taking back striking employees."

Reserve Right

He said also the company "reserved the right to decide who would return and when."

Mr. Watson said the union wished to thank Mayor Rush for his mediation efforts. "He did an excellent job in seeking a settlement," Mr. Watson said.

The strike started July 25 after four men were discharged by the company. About 60 left their jobs. The strike had been marked by several picket line incidents, including damage to, and burning of a tent, overturning a car, and other incidents over which the police were called.

Mr. Durdin said the company did not intend to withdraw a suit for damages now pending against the union.

Stock Market Confuses Big Observers

By DICK BAIDEN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Confidence that recent stock market irregularity was a technical "shakeout," or just an example of the Dow theory's secondary reaction, was expressed this week with increasing qualification and decreasing enthusiasm.

New York's Wall Street Journal commented: "... Business is spotty and it may become more so as months pass.... So that not all disappointing reports can be blamed on higher taxes."

Technicians and chartists countered with the assertion that October and November are traditionally slow months while buyers accumulate stocks for the December-January advance.

Toronto observers pointed out that their market had steadied after last week's sharp dip. Solid "growth" stocks were still in demand, they said, while only the more speculative issues weakened.

Industrials were pushed from a steady decline in Toronto Monday by a sharp, final-hour rally. Western oils were strong while base metals and golds edged higher. In Montreal, industrials weakened while papers held firm.

Climb Moderately

Toronto prices climbed moderately early Tuesday but demand eased and industrials slipped. Mining issues traded irregularly. Montreal markets were closed for the Royal tour.

Golds and western oils took over the Toronto market Wednesday with a strong final-hour climb. Papers and industrials pushed ahead in Montreal.

Toronto posted its best gain in more than six weeks Thursday with strong advances in industrials and western oils. Industrials continued to climb in Montreal while papers were steady.

Late weakness eased Toronto prices Friday. Most of Thursday's gain was eliminated. Western oils, however, were strong. Industrials traded irregularly in Montreal while papers slipped.

Best In Two Months

New York opened the week with the best gain in two months. Oils and rails led. Late selling erased early gains Tuesday, but the market bounded back Wednesday for strong advances in steels, oils and rails. Volume was small. The recovery extended into its second session Thursday. Yesterday, however, it retreated quietly in the slowest session in more than two months.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down .99 at 346.10, golds up .34 at 84.39, base metals up .13 at 193.48, and western oils up 5.48 at 125.98.

In Montreal, banks were off .01 at 29.57, utilities off .5 at 86.3, industrials off 1.9 at 288.7, combined off 1.5 at 181.2, papers off 11.62 at 800:71, and golds off .82 at 68.03.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 10 cents to $96.20.

GI Hear A-Bomb Blast Scared Right Down To Toes

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 3 (CP)—The reaction of troops within 10 miles of an atomic explosion was described Friday at a press conference.

"I was still scared right down to my toes just before the blast and after," said Sgt. William Roberts, 23, Korea veteran, one of the troops participating in manoeuvres near Thursday's nuclear explosion.

The atomic test was the first using troops to determine possible effects on them.

The concussion was strong, Roberts said, but he experienced greater concussion in close bombing runs and artillery fire in Korea.

Another soldier of the fissionable era was asked how he'd like to parachute after an A-bomb blast and he said:

"I wouldn't be afraid to jump. I think I would feel better with an A-bomb clearing the way for us first. We would have less trouble when we got down."

Sgt. Roberts was asked how he thought the A-bomb would work in Korea and replied:

"I don't believe it would be much good in mountainous terrain. The way the Reds fight and hide in the hills, I don't believe it would be practical."

For Bad Winter Cough, Mix This Syrup Yourself

If you want a splendid cough medicine, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet the way it takes hold of distressing coughs, giving quick relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) It's no trouble at all and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps to clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a very reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Placing Siding Over Stucco Is Possible On Old House

QUESTION: The stucco on the second storey of our 30-year-old house is in poor condition and we are wondering about applying asbestos-cement siding shingles over it. Would it be necessary to remove all the stucco before applying this material?

ANSWER: Asbestos-cement siding shingles may be used over stucco, only when it is in good condition, applying over nailing strips of 1 x 2 or 1 x 3 inch material. If the stucco is in poor condition, however, it must be removed. All nails, wires and other parts of the original stucco work must be cleaned off before the felt underlay is applied. Nailing strips should be installed only as the job progresses in order to insure proper spacing.

Before applying shingles it's always a good idea to apply chalk lines for the top of each course all around the house—this is a big help in obtaining accurate courses and avoiding wedge-shaped courses at the eave lines.

Insulation

QUESTION: We have always thought of the air space in our frame walls as providing good insulation—why fill this up with some type of "insulating" material? Seems to me this defeats the whole principle of the insulating value of dead air.

ANSWER: In years gone by it was common to refer to enclosed air space as "dead" on the assumption that there was no movement of air in such a space. Research however has proven that there is actually always a movement of air due to convection whenever there is a difference of temperatures between the surface enclosing the space. An air space does have some insulating value however. A vertical air stud space of 3⅜" is as good as ¼" of an average bulk insulation.

Ventilation Under House

QUESTION: What clearance must be provided under the unexcavated area of a house and how much ventilation is required?

ANSWER: Houses built under the NHA, must have top soil and all vegetable matter in an unexcavated area removed, providing a ground level of at least 2' below the bottom of the floor joists and beams. Where piping, duct work, etc., requiring periodic inspection or repairs are located in an unexcavated area, an opening of not less than 2' x 2' must be installed to provide access.

Unexcavated areas must be vented through the foundation walls with at least two vents of 1 sq. ft. each, in opposite walls, per 500 sq. ft. of unexcavated area. Non-corrodible screening of not over ¼" mesh must be installed in each vent opening.

Planning The Driveway

QUESTION: This coming summer we plan to build a garage connected via a breezeway to our house. While we are presently driving a small English car, we want to make sure the driveway will accommodate larger cars should we switch over to a larger model some time in the future. Have you some recommended figures for driveway design?

ANSWER: A one-car driveway should be at least 8' wide on straight runs and 11' on curves. If the driveway is sloped there should be a level area of at least 15' feet in length in front of the garage to eliminate rolling hazards. Should the driveway be curved, remember that the smallest outside radius for driving a normal size car is about 28'—and 18' for the smallest inside radius. These radii should be increased if at all possible, keeping a minimum driveway width of 11'. Entering and leaving driveway is also greatly facilitated by providing curved curbs at the roadway between 3 and 5 feet in radius.

Sudden changes in grade or sharp dips should be avoided because of long overhangs and low ground clearances of present cars. A change of driveway grade of 1" per foot in any 10' of distance is about the most that can be safely allowed, considering the possibility of car overloading and spring action. Driveways should all slope slightly for drainage purposes—either down slightly from the centre towards each side, or crowned in the centre. A slope of ¼" per foot from highest to lowest point is about right.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP).—Four men convicted last June of conspiring to rob a dairy in March lost their appeals Friday and were described by an appeal court justice as "menaces to society." CNR Ordered Restore Rate

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP). — Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald, in one of his last acts before retiring as chief of the Board of Transport Commissioners, has ordered the Canadian National Railways to restore a controversial low Maritime freight rate on rough lumber, although opposed by two other board members.

His ruling made public in an order Friday was based on an interpretation of the Maritime Freight Rate Act, on which Commissioners F. M. MacPherson and A. Sylvestre both disagreed. All three reviewed the case.

However, both commissioners noted in their judgments that since the issue involved a question of law, the opinion of the chief commissioner must prevail. Mr. Justice Archibald's judgment was dated Oct. 29 and his order to the railways Oct. 31. He was to retire Nov. 1, to be succeeded by John J. Kearney, the new chief commissioner.

Order Montreal Stores Closed On Roman Catholic Holy Days

Montreal, Nov. 3—(CP)—City council late Friday passed by 60-29 vote a motion to close all retail stores on Roman Catholic holy days of obligation.

The days are Epiphany, Ascension, All Saints' and Immaculate Conception, in addition to New Year's Day and Christmas Day.

The motion needed, and obtained, a two-thirds majority.

The bylaw provides exemptions for drug stores, florists' shops, tobacco stores, confectionery stores, soda fountain establishments and places operated by news vendors.

Prior to Friday's meeting, all councillors were furnished with copies of a letter written to Mayor Camillien Houde by Msgr. Paul-Emile Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, requesting a favorable decision on the motion and stating that the legislation of the church on the observance of holy days is precise and forbids servile work on such days.

Councillor W. Bullock said he believed that passing such a bylaw would be a mistake and make for ill-feeling in the province. Retail stores would be forced to close but factories could remain open and this was unfair.

Too Much Loss

Councillor Frank Hanley asked Councillor J. M. Savignac, sponsor of the bylaw, whether it had French-Canadian support. He claimed that if it were passed store workers would lose pay for these days off and men with large families could not afford to lose six days' pay a year.

Councillor Leo McKenna said he was against the bylaw. He said that the provincial government should pass a law closing all offices, factories, stores, etc., on these days. He asked why only the retail store owner should be penalized.

Councillor A. Farley claimed there was a principle of justice involved. If Roman Catholic stores were forced to close on holy days other stores should not be permitted to remain open and make additional money. Councillor Herve Brien thought it was a matter for the higher governments to settle, and all industry should be forced to close on these days if the retailers were.

Councillor Karl MacNamara suggested giving the bylaw a hoist for six months or a year. He said the law did not seem fair to the Protestant and other minority faiths. He felt that the letters received from Msgr. Leger and other prelates expressed only the Catholic viewpoint.

Councillor Leon Lortie said this province has always been noted for its tolerant attitude and in this respect perhaps it is the greatest in Canada.

Canadian Troops May Travel Without Passports In Europe

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP). — The army said Friday the 5,500 soldiers of Canada's 27th Brigade likely will be able to travel in all Atlantic pact countries in Europe without special passports.

It said the External Affairs Department has made representations to Canada's allies which, if approved, will enable the Canadians to travel in those countries in uniform, carrying only leave authorization and personal identification cards.

That would include France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Britain and Italy. The men will be stationed in Germany.

The army said "everything possible is being done to make the troops' tour of European duty enjoyable."

The soldiers will be able to buy cigarettes through their unit paymasters with orders of $2.25 and $4 for 400 and 800 cigarettes respectively.

Lions' Hallowe'en Party Successful

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3 (ENS).—The Hallowe'en party sponsored by the Lions Club on Wednesday evening was a huge success. Commencing with a parade headed by the High School band, the children, disguised as witches, goblins, hoboes, Spanish ladies, gay cavaliers, and in numerous other bright costumes, had a gay evening. Lion Sam Henderson welcomed the children at the Town Hall on behalf of the club. The judges: Mrs. Orville Loucks, Mrs. Howard Tretheway, and Lion Harold Hamblin had a difficult task choosing the best costumes.

Prizes were awarded as follows: Under 5 years, boys and girls—Billy Stabler, Perry Foster; 5 to 8 years—Lois Farow, Jackie Sharman. Due to the large number of entries in the 5 to 8 year group it was divided and additional awards were given to John Graham and Sharon Payne; 8 to 12 years — Marie Currie, Paul O'Brien; 12 and over—Helen Bowen, Peter Lilley.

Two films were then shown and each child was given a bag of candy at the door. Following this a costume dance was held for the older crowd. Charlie Ridpath's Orchestra supplied the music and W. Abbott called of for the square dances. Prizes for fancy costumes were awarded to Mrs. A. Graham, Mrs. Eric Anderson, and John Mather.

See Femininity Keynote In Latest Resort Fashions

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3 (AP).—Twenty California designers on Friday concluded the National Press Week showing of resort and cruise fashions to fashion editors. Femininity was the keynote.

Over-all trends seen in the huge group showing of 10 models accented the feminine, even in active sportswear. Glitter and glamor were seen on everything from otherwise boyish shorts and shirts, to sundresses and full-circle separate skirts.

Colors, too, are feminine with pastels in the lead. Pink, white, pale blue intermixed with the more intense shades. There was lots of black and white, too. A new shade of toast-brown blends beautifully with a suntan.

Among the show's toppers was a new fabric called worsted wool shantung—a wonderful all year weight in mild climates.

A San Francisco company drew applause for a "French smock" in faded blue denim. Junior miss scored with reversible skirt with pleating. A brilliant print on one side, solid color on the other gave milady double duty wear.

Zolot featured a hand-loomed imparted Italian cotton in a short fly-away jacket. The fabric almost resembled a fine wool plaid.

Natural color silk pongee separates with gold thread and gold sequin embroidery were shown. Fashion editors said the best shorts were designed by Marjorie Montgomery. In yellow, pure Irish linen, they were horizontally tucked from midway to hem and worn with a black sleeveless broadcloth blouse.

Snowflakes, Not Stardust Falls On 1951 Ball Guests

It wasn't stardust that blanketed Peterborough Friday evening. But the Stardust Ball was every bit the success anticipated in spite of the snowstorm. Three hundred and twenty-five couples took the first blow of winter as a mere incident for they couldn't miss this annual event that is so very popular that ticket holders have been looked at with envy the past few weeks by scores who were just too late in asking for them.

Girls of the Col. Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE, hold the ball to raise money for welfare work in the Empire. They conduct it in the traditional Sadie Hawkins style and both fellows and girls seem to like the idea.

The only stars of the evening this year were large silvery ones decorating the Club Aragon. They were highlighted in a color scheme of silver and sky blue put up by a committee of Chapter members, assisted by their husbands and friends. But the feature of the decorations was several hundred balloons, all of the sky blue color, that were out of reach behind overhead clouds until nearly the end of the dance.

Door prizes were drawn for and the winners were Miss Shirley Johnson and Paul Bedard. There was also a spot dance which was won by Miss Jacqueline Theobald and Roy Bush.

Favors for the guests were swizzle sticks and "Stardust Ball" match books, given out at the door by Misses Jean Hamley, Dorothy Allan, Betty Pogue and Mrs. J. Dolan. Assisting with tickets and guest register were Miss Marguerite Dummitt and Miss Eleanor Jobbitt.

Regent of the Chapter Mrs. H. G. Shaw was first to welcome the guests. Also in the receiving line were Mr. Shaw, the vice-regent, Miss Marjorie Benson and her escort, Mr. W. G. Durant, Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter, Alderman D. Miller and Mrs. Miller, and the Hon. H. R. Scott and Mrs. Scott.

The girls and their escorts were:

Some Vienna Art Treasures On Slides Seen Here First

Subject of the first lecture, an illustrated one, on this year's studio porgram of the Women's Art Association, Friday afternoon, was the "Vienna Art Treasures." This may be the outstanding meeting of the year for the members, since a majority of some 75 present had actually seen the treasures during their exhibition in Toronto this summer.

The treasures received a deeper and fuller meaning to these ladies, and a reality to those who had not seen them, through the lecture. Narrator Mrs. Harold Whitley, Toronto, a member of the Art Gallery staff, was very enthusiastic to explain the history, interesting points, and value of the treasures, pictured in color on slides which were being used for the first time in Peterborough.

She had worked with the staff in setting up for display the $80 million collection, and from the men in charge of it, during the five showings on the North American Continent (one in Canada), she had extracted most interesting facts about the pieces.

The slides, which she had not chosen and which therefore did not include many of her favorites, were mostly of paintings dating from 1500. Included were magnificent portraits, a few by the artist from whom was gotten the lovely shade Titian red. The impression of movement in the picture was particularly notable in some of the old canvases. On a large painting of Vienna, native visitors to the Art Gallery had been able to show to Mrs. Whitley the principal buildings of the old city.

Jewel-encrusted goblets and wine glasses and the famous Bellini salt cellar were pictured. One of the finest pieces was the Burgundy goblet, used in the court of Burgundy, which was made out of a piece of rock crystal taken from the Swiss mountains, not manufactured as crystal is today. The anti-poison wine glass, for in those days there might easily be poison in the wine unless the host was a close friend, had a centre part made of the cud of ruminating animals, which substance was supposed to kill the poison. Solid gold figures of the God Neptune, and the Goddess of Earth are on the salt cellar, which weighs 15 pounds and is equipped underneath will ball bearings so that it could be "passed" around the table. Detail around the cellar, in gorgeous color, showed the sea nymphs in the blue water on the salt side, and the lovely earth flowers on the Goddess' side where there is a small Ionic temple, and there is behind it a small pepper shaker.

Pictures were shown also of the rare and old ivories in the collection.

President Mrs. N. D. Seaton introduced the speaker and accepted the greetings from the Art Gallery which Mrs. Whitley extended.

NANCY LOWERY, 12, won first prize in the Manvers township public speaking contest recently. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Lowery, RR 2, Bethany, and a pupil of Miss D. Mann at Tifford School.

DOROTHY DIX

Two Sides To Wife vs. Mother Problem

DEAR MISS DIX: You write often on mothers-in-law; let's have a word about daughters-in-law. My son and daughter-in-law have three children. I have helped them in my home and in a financial way, yet nothing I do is ever appreciated. If she knows I am in favor of something, she is against it. I love the children and have their interest at heart, and they love me. She surely is not jealous of her husband as he is not affectionate and scarcely ever comes to see me. This problem has made me sick and I pray that God alone will give her a change of heart.

U. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for eight years to a man who still listens to everything his mother says. According to her, I don't know how to dress or raise my two children. She calls my husband on the phone every night at dinner time. She will not speak to me and is always persuading him to do things for her. If I leave him, his mother will support him and he won't have to work—that is the sort of life he wants. His mother has money and a good job.

C. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Here are two extremes, of the same problem — obstacles deliberately put in the way of a good relationship between the two women a man loves most, his mother and his wife.

A mother knows, from the moment her baby boy is laid in her arms, that someday he will marry and the reins of possession will pass from her hands to a younger woman's. After all, didn't mom herself take for a husband some other mother's son?

Mother Deserves Credit

When daughter-in-law has looked over the field of eligible males and picked herself the perfect mate, she must be mindful that his perfections are due to the training of his mother. His moral training, his ideals, and to a large part his education, are products of a mother's constant watchfulness and sacrifice. For these blessings, daughter-in-law should be truly grateful.

The mother who binds her son with possessive ties that will be broken is not so commendable now as she was a generation ago. Older women are finding that there is a place for them in the world and the marriage of a son no longer leaves them emotionally bereft. A boy who will never be able to sever this bond shows distinct signs of his immaturity before marriage, and his fiancee is so well aware of the situation that she is foolhardy indeed to combat it.

With the decrease of possessive mothers-in-law there is an increase in the number of smart-alecky young girls whose main intent in marriage is to keep the young husband away from his mother altogether, save for duty calls on Christmas, Mother's Day or some such occasional observance. These girls are doing untold damage to their marriages.

No man can be completely happy knowing there is a tension between his wife and mother. No wife can contribute so much to her husband's welafre as the one who establishes a fine companionship with the older woman. A young wife should be more aware of her mother-in-law's sensibilities. She has won the man, leaving his mother much the lonelier; why not be generous over the victory?

The middle-aged and elderly are in great need of praise and affection for the greater part of romance has left their lives. What the young couple often mistake for interference is usually anxiety born of love, and not maliciousness. Surely such an attitude can be understood and compassionately tolerated. A husband should be encouraged to visit his mother often, to phone or write her and offer his services when needed. After all, the more love we give away, the more we have. A faithful son will make a faithful husband, extending to his wife the honor he learned from his mother.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a boy and we plan to marry in the near future. We both realize we are very young and are going to wait until I finish high school, which will be in two years. My parents don't approve of the boy; they want me to marry a lawyer or someone like that. My friend and I live quite a distance apart; he writes once or twice a week and comes to see me when he can. Do you think he truly loves me?

R. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Just put all thoughts of marriage out of your head until after graduation, and the whole problem will probably solve itself very nicely. In the meantime, enjoy the rest of your schooldays and don't worry so much about the future. Your parents are trying to protect your welfare by having you marry someone of assured position, but even if your present beau or some future one has to work his way up in the world, there are plenty of rungs on the ladder of success.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted by Mary Moore

QUSSTION: Your Saturday column carried the letter of the wife of a poor husband who has a painful attack of nostalgia. I think it has been brought on by the large quantity of Australian lamb and mutton which we are importing. He wanted the recipe of an old-fashioned (meat-not beef) stew which had gravy not thickened with flour. Perhaps his ancestry is Border Scot or Border English. Years ago those rivals raided their neighbors for the requisites to make the stew he smells. If I guess correctly—the stew that his mother served was made of neck of lamb, or breast of mutton. The methods of preparing are a little different—but this is a national Scottish Dish:

Neck Of Lamb Stew (contributed by Margaret D. McD.)

21 lbs of whole neck of lamb—have the butcher saw or chop the bone almost through into the number of servings which you want (say 5) wash the meat and rub away any part of splintered bone. Dry on a clean towel. Sprinkle with salt and Black Pepper. Place in a heavy pot. Add 1 small carrot for each serving and 1 small onion for each two or three sprigs of parsley and about two leaves of mint (no more). Cover the meat and vegetables with hot water—just below the boil—Place a tight lid on the pan and cook over gentle heat for 1½ or 2 hours. When the meat is almost tender, add more water if necessary and some rolled oats or oatmeal—our family used a handful—(but we had small hands). The oats completely dissipate any woolly or muttony flavor, and the aroma from this stew while it is cooking is something never to be forgotten. In early summer we added new peas—not too many, and served more peas and potatoes (whole) from a large tureen. Please do not sear the meat or use anything but Black Pepper.

Speaking of the Australian Lamb, now on sale, while drinking tea with friends, a few weeks ago—our hostess mentioned the stew thickened with rice. She was of English Border ancestry—neither side used flour.....Margaret D. McD.

ANSWER: What a delightful letter! I had many a chuckle out of it. Thank you.

Write to me, won't you, when I can help you.

QUESTION: On account of your being away I delayed acknowledging your prompt reply to my request. The cauliflower, I hope will taste as good as it looks. Your directions were so explicit when you wrote of having the lobster it made me fairly drool. We lived in New York until two years ago and made frequent trips to Connecticut and Maine. In the former place we even went out with the fiserman to haul the pots. I do miss shell fish here.

I have another problem. Usually I made quite good meringues but sometimes they are a little gummy in the middle—Could it be that I make them a little larger and so should cook them longer? For two whites I use a little cream of tartar—½ cup gran. sugar—½ tsp. vanilla—½ tsp. vinegar—Cook for 1 hr. at 275 deg. Assuring you of my appreciation of your recipe when you were dashing off.. Lillian M. G.

ANSWER: How would you like to try my recipe for meringues?

Meringue Shells: Using 6 egg whites (¾ cup) beat them until stiff—meanwhile gradually adding 1½ cups (or 2 cups if you prefer them) of sugar until meringue is very stiff. Also add, a little at a time 1½ teaspoons lemon juice or vinegar and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Shape into four-inch individual meringue shells on heavy brown paper bake for 1 hr. at 275 deg. Fahr.

Violently Loved, Separation Asked

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Amina Day, 57, has testified that her 69-year-old husband made love to her too violently and too often and that she must separate from him for the sake of her health.

Mrs. Day explained her difficulty at a hearing Friday on her suit for separate maintenance against William P. Day, wealthy real estate developer. She testified that his excessive affection has made her so nervous she has developed a crick in her neck.

Kiwanis Prepare For '52 Festival

Approximately 2,000 Peterborough Kiwanis club music festival syllabuses are expected to be in the mail by the end of next week.

Festival committee chairman, Wilson Gemmell said today that the syllabuses have been proofread and are expected to be ready for mailing next week. They will be mailed as far west as Hamilton and east to Kingston.

Included with the syllabuses will be application forms for the 1952 festival. The closing date for application has been set at March 31.

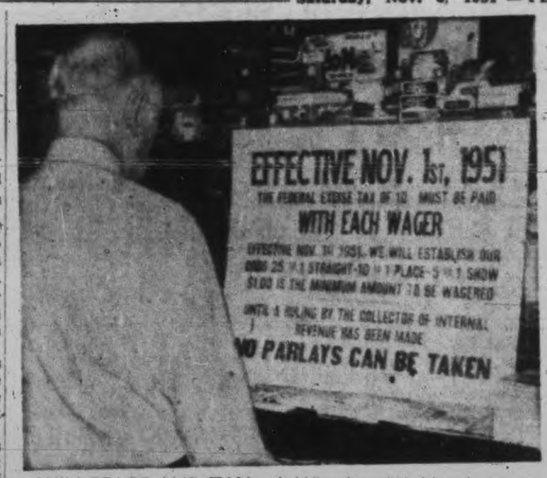
One class in the syllabus which has been neglected in past years seem to hold promise of interest for the next year's festival. This is the service club class in the adult group choral section. Any group entering this class must have a minimum of eight members.

"I have been informed that the Kiwanis club will definitely have an entry in this class," Mr. Gemmell said. "And we, of course, are expecting the Rotary club to at least match us by having an entry."

Historical Collection Planned For Harwood

HARWOOD, Nov. 3 (ENS). — The Harwood Branch of the WI held their meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. E. Drope, the president, who presided. The district president, Mrs. Hilton Eagleson of Cobourg, was present and gave a paper entitled "Public Relations."

The Alderville Homemakers' Club were present and Mrs. Simpson gave a most interesting address on the work of their club, which is affiliated with the Women's Institute. The Institute decided to begin their meetings at 2 pm for the winter months. There were 40 present for this meeting.



The meeting discussed ways and means of providing a cupboard or room for an historical research display. At the present moment there seems to be no place available, and further discussion will tage place at the December meeting. The Rev. T. F. Summerhayes has offered the Women's Institute four valuable antiques, formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Farr, pioneers in this district. These antiques consist of an oxen yoke, a scythe, a sickle, and a spinning wheel.

The Institute are most anxious to have these valuable antiques if a place can be arranged to accommodate them. Then too, members in the community have offered antiques from their homes. These would complement the valuable Tweedsmuir History, which is in the course of construction in the branch.

Mrs. J. Robson was convener of the program. Mrs. J. Minifie was pianist. Mrs. Frank Stephens gave the report of the Area Convention in Belleville, and Mrs. J. Johnston also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Alfred Crick read a paper, and a duet was sung by Mrs. Loukes and Mrs. Bigwin of Alderville, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be the Christmas meeting on Dec. 6 at the home of Mrs. D. Herriott, and there will be a Christmas gift exchange.

Teamster Dies After Accident

LINDSAY, Nov. 3 — Joseph Kearns, 64, Lindsay teamster died Friday in Lindsay hospital as a result of injuries received when he was run over by his wagon Oct. 27.

Mr. Kearns was delivering a load of coal on Sussex street when the accident happened. He was on his way into the house when his team became frightened and started down the street. He ran to stop them, seized the reins and fell in the path of the right rear wheel of the wagon.

He was rushed to the hospital with pelvic injuries, where he seemed to be recuperating until he died suddenly Friday morning.

Mr. Kearns was a contractor with the Lindsay coal company for more than 30 years. He also was a contractor for Superior Fuels for a few years.

He leaves three brothers, Peter, William and Bert, and one sister, Mrs. M. Eakins, all of Lindsay.

Crown Attorney Jordan said that an inquest will be held.

Campbellford Names Committee To Discuss Fire Protection

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3 — (ENS)—The question of fire protection for the township of Seymour came up again at the Friday evening meeting of the Campbellford Town Council. After much discussion as to what should be done, Councillor Macmillan made a motion that a committee from the Seymour council, the fire, water and light committee of the town council, the fire chief, and also, at the request of Reeve Billen of Seymour, the fire marshal, meet together to discuss the problem and arrive at some logical conclusion.

Deputy Reeve Ward Archer of Seymour stating that he thought the 100 gallon tank on the Campbellford fire truck was too small to be fully effective against a rural fire. He said that a 500 gallon tank would be more suitable. Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason of Campbellford said that a satisfactory arrangement had been worked out in the village of Brighton. When the fire siren sounds for a rural fire in that village, the fire truck leaves immediately with equipment necessary for fighting the fire. Immediately upon hearing the siren, the other town truck, a stake job, proceeds to the fire hall, loads the remaining hose and equipment on, and stands by, ready in the event a fire breaks out in the village.

Found Unsatisfactory

Reeve Billen said that when the Seymour council was approached some time ago, relative to supplying equipment, they made inquiries and the only one that was received was a jeep truck equipped with fire fighting equipment, but that this was found to be unsatisfactory.

A discussion on the oossible sale of a lot owned by the town resulted in no immediate action being taken. A local carpenter and contractor asked council for permission to purchase the lot and construct a woodworking shop on it. Some members of council thought the lot would be a good location for the construction of the new town warehouse, to store road and other bulky equipment. The present town storehouse has got into such a dilapitated condition during the past five years, that many people are of the opinion that it would be easier to construct a new one than to try to clean up the old one. The town cannot afford a new storehouse at the present time, and on a motion by councillor Macmillan, the road and bridge workmen are going to have the task of cleaning the old one up.

Council authorized the purchase of a wreath, to be placed on the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day. The wreath will be secured from the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

A letter from the municipality of Hespeler asking council to endorse a proposed amendment to the Highway Improvement Act that would lift some of the burden of the cost of the upkeep of county roads from the municipalities was received and filed for the consideration of the incoming council. The amendment would ask the provincial government to pay a greater cost of the road upkeep on highways passing through a number of Ontario towns. These highways, the letter stated, took more business away from the smaller municipalities than they brought in.

Councillor Macmillan reported that all the fill and top soil had now been deposited at the Cenotaph. A clean-up and beautification campaign on the Cenotaph was started some time ago, and is now just about completed, making it one of the finest such memorials of its kind in any town of similar size in the province.

In view of the fact the election in the town will be held earlier this year, it was decided to hold a special meeting to pass the election by-law, and this will be held on November 23. The nomination meeting will be held on November 26 and the election one week later on December 3. Municipal elections were previously held on New Year's day, when usually resulted in a comparatively light vote.

After passing the pay sheet, council adjourned.

free enterprise system should be the first to uphold the same kind of competition for everybody. Certainly the way to kill the competitive system is to permit restricted and privileged competition for special interests and open competition for the great majority," he continued. "It will be a great tragedy if that Act isn't passed this session."

Help Peace

Referring to the role that Canada has played in the setting up of world agricultural organizations such as the United Nations Federation of Agriculture Organization, Dr. Hannam said that "better feeding of the world is one of the fundamentals of the building for an enduring peace." In the eyes of the people of underdeveloped countries, we in Canada and the US are all food millionaires."

Dr. Hannam said that these international organizations were giving new hope to starving millions and at the same time were preventing the disastrous competitive dumping of surplus food products that depressed the world farm prices after World War I.

Dr. Hannam paid tribute to county agricultural organizations and farm forums as the "backbone of organized agriculture" and said that agriculture organizations will be "sounder and more successful if they are built on the basis of educational discussion."

Dr. Hannam was introduced by Henry Sharpe, first vice-president of Peterborough County Agricultural Federation and thanked by Kenneth Dalrymple of the Chamber of Commerce.

Head table guests included Mr. and Mrs. Bob Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. William Dawson, president of the local federation of agriculture; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dalrymple, agricultural representative Frank Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sharpe and John Kitney, secretary-treasurer of Peterborough county agriculture federation.

Mr. Dawson and Mr. Arnold acted as co-chairmen for the evening.

A capacity audience enjoyed a variety concert in Mark St. S.S. Hall presented by Mark St. choir and assisting artists. Len Agnew was master of ceremonies. The opening chorus was by the men. Fern Brook sang comic solos in costume. Mrs. N. Hepburn and Ed Bentley were heard in a pleasing duet "Love's Old Sweet Song" with an obligate sung by 10 choir ladies in costume.

Rev. B. S. Morwood spoke briefly in the intermission and the second part of the program opened with a Gypsy scene in costume which consisted of a tenor solo by Don Eason "Just like a Gypsy", a violin solo "Play Fiddle Play" by C. Searles, a duet by Misses June and Gwen Kilborn, assisting artists who sang "Gypsying". The choruses were sung by the girls dressed as gypsies and was very colorful with brilliant colored costumes and tamberines. George Bennett and Ted Brook entertained with guitars and singing. A trio was sung by Fern Brook, Marg. Kidd and Audrey Graft followed by a barber shop quartette by four choir men "Come where my love lies dreaming" and "I just keep a livin' along". Other assisting artists which were very much enjoyed were Henry Jackson with his accordion solos and Miss Ann Colins who sang two numbers. Mrs. Argue gave several recitations which the audience applauded greatly. Misses June and Gwen Kilborn, assisting artists, also sang two songs in the first part of the program. For the finale the song "It is no Secret" was chosen, the verses being sung by Mrs. Olive Searles and the chorus by the choir with religious slides shown. Pianists were Mrs. Searles and Miss Gwen Pomeroy. The concert committee were Mr. George Bennett and Mrs. Marie Green.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the benediction by the minister.

Institute Hears Of Pioneer Days

ROSENEATH, Nov. 3 (ENS)— "We are enjoying many privileges today made possible by the sacrifices of the early settlers," said Mrs. Albert Halstead, a charter and life member of Roseneath Women's Institute, as guest speaker at the November meeting. Mrs. Halstead's subject was "Early Settlers of Alnwick Township," and told of her grandparents along with other pioneers coming from the old land and hewing their homes out of the forest; of the first church and cemetery in the township being at Alderville; of the first council meeting being held in Alderville school. Mrs. Halstead also spoke of the location of the first school; of walking to Hastings and carrying a basket of eggs or butter; of the oxen as a means of transportation, and cradling the grain and threshing it with a flail.

The meeting was held in the township hall on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. George Mouncey as hostess. The first vice-president, Mrs. Fred Murphy, presided, with Mrs. O. Adams as pianist.

The program was given over to historical research and Mrs. Charlton Grigg, branch convener, was in charge and also conducted a quiz on "the line of succession to the throne."

Unknown Korean Boy A Hero To Van Doos

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA—(CP)—No one knew his name but a platoon of the Royal 2nd Regiment won't forget the actions of a small Korean boy who pinch-hit recently as a stretcher bearer, then was wounded himself.

The platoon of the Van Doos was pinned down by enemy mortar and artillery fire and stretcher bearers were moving up to care for the wounded. Among them was the small Korean who had pestered Canadian officers to let him help.

As he bent over a stricken soldier, a shell exploded nearby and a fragment pierced the youngster's neck and came out of his eye.

He staggered, but waved on other stretcher-bearers who came to him. Then pressing a handkerchief to his bleeding eye he stumbled to the rear.

When the action was over and the Canadians went back to their permanent position in the rear, he was gone.

They never saw him again.

Two Dangers To Industry Grant Warns

The double dangers of over-centralized industry were stressed Friday night by William C. Grant, CCF candidate for Peterborough county, speaking at Lakehurst.

These dangers were: from a possible atomic attack, and the serious social problems "caused and aggravated by the overcrowding of our population in small areas."

"During the last war and subsequently we have become steadily aware of the dangers of over-centralization of industry and population . . . even more apparent when we understand the implications of an atomic bomb attack.

No Steps Taken

"Yet no positive steps have been taken by the government to encourage the decentralization of industry nor to stop the present trend towards centralization. . . . I think events will force this (an even spread of industry throughout the country") Mr. Grant declared.

Of the government's record in general, Mr. Grant said: "Premier Frost is standing on the record of his government and his government has with few exceptions, pretty well stood still during the past three years."

In fact, said the CCF candidate, the Progressive Conservative government has been "making gestures to indicate motion, but in reality remaining stationary."

He said the Liberals and Conservatives have been "blundering along into one blind alley after another seeking to avoid the necessity of providing a socialized hospital plan."

Should End Chaos

"If the government studied this problem to the extent the Prime Minister said it did, it should have had a scheme in operation already putting an end to the chaotic conditions which exist today.

"I am fully aware that the lack of hospitals would prevent the full operation of this scheme, but this does not prevent the completion of a plan and . . . (its) . . . establishment . . . where space is inadequate," he said.

He charged the government had been stalling on the expediting of the recommendations of the Kennedy Commission on forestry. "Mr. Frost cannot plead the need of further study (of the problem)".

"The CCF has a uniform forestry policy in the recommendations of the Kennedy Commission, which it pledges to implement."

4 Short Plays Well Presented At Knox Church

An Evening of Plays, presented by the Knox United Church theatre group Friday night in the church hall was an evening of enjoyable entertainment.

Four plays — from the light comedy, in Painter Away (adapted for the stage from a Scotch story by Knox director, Peter McCombe) to the serious mood atmosphere of the well-known Trifles by Susan Glaspell, were all well received by the audience.

This latter play calls for special mention in its treatment by these players. It is a difficult play to present for true audience appreciation. The action is slow and its presentation depends mainly on the ability of the two female members of the cast to interpret the meaning of the play and hold the audience's interest in their dialogue. This was capably done by Vera Tasker as Mrs. Hale and Dorothy Grainger as Mrs. Peters.

The three male members of the cast—Ganton Clarke as Sheriff Peters, Dennis Crowhurst as Attorney Henderson and Harry Tasker as Mr. Hale also gave commendable performances. The play was directed by Peter McCombe.

Painter Away

Painter Away dealt with the old story of a father's scheming to marry off his daughter. Peter McCombe as the father (John Hopewell) was enjoyably amusing in this play. And the note of comedy was also carried off well by the other members of the staff —Susan Summers as Jenny, his wife; Ada Huffman as tea-cup reading Mrs. Morrison; Louise Potter as Nan, her cousin and Ed Potter as Matthew Little.

World Without Men—A play in which a girl reporter dreams that a famous woman scientist removes all men from the earth—was also enjoyable. The part of the reporter, Miss Whisper, was handled capably by Joyce Meiklejohn as was the part of the scientist, Madame Pavel, by Peggy McCombe. The remaining members of the cast Lindy McIntosh as Millet, the maid; Ada Huffman as Mrs. Smith; Betty Massey-Cooke as Mrs. Jones; Betty Potter as Mrs. Robinson and Betty Blair as Mrs. Brown also gave good performances. Rodger Davis was the director.

The evening was rounded out by an amusing satirical sketch of the far-fetched actions of insurance salesmen to sell policies. Victor Potter gave a realistic performance as the seeming criminal maniac who turns out to be the salesman. And the part of Mr. Whiffle, the victim, was capably performed by Rodger Davis.

Dressen Back?

At Los Angeles, second baseman Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn baseball team innocently disclosed Friday that Chuck Dresden has already been rehired as manager of the Dodgers.

Robinson was talking about the criticism aimed at Dressen in Boston. Praising Dressen as a "great guy," Robinson added: "When Walter O'Malley (Brooklyn president) announced in the clubhouse after the playoffs with the Giants that Dressen would be back, we all cheered.

"I'm certainly glad he's going to be back and we'll prove we're behind him 100 per cent."

There has been no official announcement from the Dodgers about Dressen and 1952.

Justice Praises Report Of Jury On Public Buildings

"It's a long time since I've had the pleasure of reading such a careful grand jury report," said Justice W. F. Spence commenting on the grand jury's recommendations at the present assizes.

He said the report showed astuteness and thoughtful preparation. The recommendations were practicable, said the justice, and attention was paid to small improvements as well as large ones.

As an example he cited a couple of the grand jury's recommendations: Discontinue waxing parts of the floor at the Old People's Home; it is too slippery and is a hazard to old people. Put rubber treads on stairs to further insure the safety of the inmates.

Other recommendations to improve the Home:

New Wheel Chair

Get a new wheel chair. The present one is useless.

Get a new stretcher.

Consider increasing the monthly allowance for each inmate from the present $2 a month. Pensions have increased since the time when $2 was considered an adequate allowances.

Get the advice of the agricultural representative's office on all agricultural matters at the farm. And draw up a plan for long-term operations.

As hot water is said to be available only one day a week, an automatic device should be installed to the large water tank at the rear of the boiler.

The Grand Jury also said they thought that those in charge of the Home are interested in the welfare of the inmates and the satisfactory maintenance of the various buildings.

Hospitals Praised

Both Civic and St. Joseph's hospitals met with praise from the Grand Jury. They said the Civic was an admirable hospital and they had only two recommendations: that the wall in the kitchen where metal baskets are stored be protected to a greater height; consideration should be given to providing some type of floormat for the operation of some laundry machines.

St. Joseph's hospital also deserves credit for the upkeep of its new wing, and for keeping the older parts of the building in good condition.

Well Cared For

All jail officers are doing their duties capably, the Grand Jury said. Conversation with the prisoners indicated that they are well cared for. Some painting done by a recent prisoner was singled out for attention.

One recommendation is that the passageways leading from the courthouse to the jail be converted from wood to cement.

In the courthouse itself the Grand Jury reported that the caretaker, James Brownlie, should be commended for his work in keeping the courthouse clean and neat. They also suggested that the county council continue redecorating the building.

Improve Accoustics

When the courthouse is being redecorated some attention should be paid to improving the acoustics.

Artificial lighting should be installed as soon as the budget permits.

Other suggestions in the county courthouse: removal of antiquated washroom facilities at the entrance to the country council chamber; improved drinking water facilities in the main hall; replacement of hardware on the office doors of the county engineer and the county assessor.

A check should also be made of the heating in the magistrate's office.

The caretaker's home needs eavestroughing, and the outside of the house should be painted.

A review should be made of the insurance carried on public buildings, to bring the coverage up to present-day values.

Members of the grand jury were Loyola Moloney, Douro; Leonard W. McNeil, Elcome Cresc.; John a Nornabell, Engleburn Ave.; Randolph Nicholson, Young's Point; W. G. O'Dette, Maria St.; Patrick O'Toole, Centre St.; Ross R. Pammett, River Rd. N.; Alfred Pink, Dublin St.; William R. Thompson, Weller St.; David Walsh, RR 3, Asphodel; Eric Westbye, Gilmour St.; James G. Wharry, North Monaghan; and Keith O. Birkin, Gordon Ave., foreman.

Germany Lauds Canadian Idea

MUNICH, Germany, Nov 3 — (Reuters). — The Liberal-Catholic Sueddeutsche Zeitung today criticized Britain for insisting that the Canadian 27th Brigade, on its way to Germany, should have the status of occupation troops.

The newspaper said in an editorial: "The Canadian government wants to regard the brigade not as an occupation force but as a reinforcement for Atlantic Pact forces. She would pay for its upkeep herself.

"We are deeply grateful for the goodwill the Canadian government has shown."

The newspaper commented that while occupation troops get "little favors" which other forces do not enjoy, it thought Britain's insistence on the 27th having occupation status was not prompted by "benevolence" but by political considerations.

"It was the belief that equality for West Germany now, at a time when the western powers seek talks with the Soviet Union, is not so urgent as the Canadians—and not only these—think," the newspaper said.

Americans Think Princess Earns Her £50,000 a Year

By ED CREAGH.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)— Ever wonder what Princess Elizabeth and her husband do to earn the £50,000 which British taxpayers provide for their support each year?

Well, in the opinion of President Truman and a number of other Washington officials they do a great deal toward preventing a third world war. And if that is so, the cost of keeping them in style may be a bargain.

Truman spoke his kind words just before the Royal couple took off into a cold, drizzling sky at 1:35 pm Friday for a rest in Canada after their strenuous, 45-hour capital visit.

Elizabeth and Philip start back to England Nov. 12.

Truman told the obviously tired Princess that she and the Duke of Edinburgh "completely captured" the hearts of the thousands of Americans they met here, and thus strengthened the bonds between this country and its chief partner in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Ring of Sincerity

This might have sounded like the polite utterances public figures are given to making on such occasions. But there was a ring of solemnity in the President's voice when he said the hope of averting war depends in great measure "upon how well our two countries stick together and work for world peace."

Underneath all the frivolity that surrounded the Royal visit, there was a serious purpose — the bettering of Anglo-American relations.

You'd have found it hard to detect any such underlying purpose though, if you had followed the Princess and her husband on their fast and furious Washington rounds.

Their visit to the House Chamber Friday for instance, was more like an old home day than affair of state.

Congress is in recess, but some 40 members "just happened" to be in their seats when the Royal pair entered, and they lined up as eagerly as boy scouts in a chow line for a handshake and a fast how-do-you-do.

Securities Dive In London After Rumors

By SYDNEY CAMPBELL.

LONDON, Nov. 3 (Reuters).— British Government securities on Friday dived to their lowest levels since the outbreak of war in 1939, highlighting another day of slump on the London Stock Exchange because of threatened economy measures.

Some of these gilt-edged securities, including the 3½ per cent war loan, the biggest single issue, fell to the lowest level on record.

Earlier, another £200,000,000 has been lopped off stock exchange values, bringing to about £800,000,000 the total sum wiped off in the week since the general election. This takes the place of the boom which had been expected to follow a Conservative victory.

Drastic Action

Warnings in the press that government action to deal with the economic situation will be drastic and far-reaching caused nervousness and weakness and virtually removed buyers from all sections of the market. The exchange closed wretchedly.

Treasury 2½ per cent bonds, issued at 100 by Chancellor Hugh Dalton five years ago, fell below 63. Investors in this prime government security have lost nearly two-fifths of their capital.

Exceptionally, Hudson's Bay were strong Friday on heavy Canadian buying. There have been rumors for some time that Canadian interests would like to buy control of this important company and transfer it to Canada.

Campbellford Boys Bow Out To Albert College Team

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3 — (ENS).—The Campbellford High School Senior B COSSA team, which has been going great guns in recent weeks, bowed out to Albert College here Friday afternoon, when they lost the final game 23 to 14.

It was the last game of the series and decided the championship of the Bay of Quinte area. Both teams had won six and lost one. Campbellford defeated Albert College 7-6 on Wednesday in Belleville, tieing for first place.

The Rev. J. C. Moloney made the official kick-off to start the game. A large crowd was on hand with the entire student body of Albert College coming along to support their team. The Belleville boys were just a little too heavy and pushed the local youngsters around considerably during the last quarter. They are, however, the only team that has been able to stand up to the Belleville crowd, and deserve a great deal of credit for their efforts.

A Field Goal

Campbellford kicked off to Albert College and the ball went deep down into Albert's territory. On the second play Campbellford intercepted a pass on Albert's 35 yard line and scored three points on a field goal by Paul Bennett.

Campbellford again intercepted an Albert pass on the 40 yard line. They rolled for a first down, and on the third down, Rose scored a single point on a long field goal attempt. The local lads held the Albert team at bay again, getting the ball deep in Albert territory. Again they scored on a second field goal by Paul Bennett to make the score 7 to 0.

Again, Albert College couldn't get rolling as the Campbellford team held them in their own end. A long run by Don Rose brought them to the Albert 20-yard line and this time Campbellford scored a touchdown on a bullet-like pass from Bennett to Ted White in the end zone. Paul Bennett converted. This made the score 13 to 0 for Campbellford at the end of the quarter.

Start To Roll

In the second quarter, the Albert team began to roll. They had Campbellford deep in their own territory most of the quarter, but the locals held them off on four plays within the 10-yard line. Albert finally scored on a plunge from close in but their touchdown was not converted. Score at the end of the half was Campbellford 13, Albert College 5.

The second half was a different story. It was all Albert College. Their heavy line began to take its toll of the lighter Campbellford line. With a good running attack they drove the length of the field for their second touchdown. This was converted. Campbellford scored a single point shortly after when Jim Jeffs scored on a long kick.

Albert drove over to score another touchdown and converted this one, making the score Albert College 17, Campbellford 14.

In the final quarter, the home team went in for several good gains but could not get deep enough into Albert territory. Midway through the quarter Albert scored and converted a touchdown to end it.

Campbellford: Jim Jeffs, flying wing and Paul Bennett, quarterback; Paul Ibey and Bill Lelliott, halves; Don Rose, fullback; Ted White and Charles Root, ends; Paul Hendricks and Al Wickens, middles; Glenn Wilson and John Bird, insides; Bob Barnum, centre. Alternates: Ron Brown, Ken McFarlane, Glen Yenta, Charles Calder, Jack Doherty, Don Iliffe, Jack Petherick, Jack Locke, Jim Baker, Bruce Cooke and Don Mackie.

Albert College: Hobbs and Hummell, ends; Robins and Joy, middles; Justus and Armstrong, insides; Turpel, centre; Shepherdson, quarter; Faulkner and Duncan, halves; Elliott and Brewer, fullbacks. Alternates: Gilham, Rodd, Donnelly, Campaign, Taylor, Heaten, Courtice, Fleck, McCullough, Burk, Scott.

54,000 Workers Given Cancer Data

TORONTO, Nov. 3—"Cancer information has been distributed to 54,000 employees in the employment of 153 Canadian companies in Ontario during the past year. This is a great step forward in bringing life-saving information to the workers of this province" said Mrs. David McLaren, Toronto branch, Canadian Cancer Society, at this week's session of the first work conference of the Society to be held in Ontario.

"The Society's plan for education, particularly through industrial organizations had taken form during the past months, and the dissemination of literature and displays in offices and plants has been the means of sending this important material into many homes in the province," Mrs. McLaren pointed out.

Mrs. F. P. McInnis in explaining the necessity of opening more cancer information centres in Ontario, stated that during the past year more than 1,000 people had visited the Little Red Door in Toronto with similar numbers taking advantage of these centres in London, Hamilton, Ottawa and Montreal. 392 persons were referred from the information centre to their own doctor, and 437 were referred to other agencies for assistance with their cancer problems.

Should Know Signals

Stressing the need for more public awareness of the cancer danger signals, Mrs. N. H. McCullough stated, "We should all know and remember that many forms of cancer can be cured if the patient is treated early enough. Education of the public as to the urgency of early and prompt diagnosis are most important weapons with which to fight cancer, and that is why it is so important to learn the danger signals and to report your findings at once to a doctor".

More than 250 delegates from cities and towns in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and New York Sate, joined the delegates from Newfoundland at the session. The conference is under the direction of Mrs. Egmont L. Frankel, president of Toronto branch, and the members of her committee.

Corrects Mistakes In Plan Outline

REGINA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas, of Saskatchewan, said Friday his only part in the current Ontario election campaign has been to "correct some of the mis-statements being made—with regard to the Saskatchewan hospital services plan."

The Premier's statement was in answer to a charge by Premier Frost of Ontario that Mr. Douglas displayed "bad taste" in making three recorded radio speeches in the campaign for the Nov. 22 Ontario general election.

Premier Frost said it was "simply unheard of" for the Premier of one province to take part in an election campaign in another.

"I am quite within my rights," Mr. Douglas said, "in placing the facts before the Ontario electorate with regard to the hospital services plan in order that it may be in possession of all the facts."

The CCF Premier said that the hospital plan had been made an issue in the election by the Liberal Party, "who adopted it as their own," and the Progressive Conservative press, "which has been mis-representing the plan."

Payment For Dinner Refused At Hotel

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lawlor of South Beach, Clear Lake, declined Ald. Doug Miller's money last Saturday evening when he wanted to pay for the dinner at which he had as guests Mayor Chamberlain and Ald. Martin and their wives of Peterborough, England. Mrs. Miller accompanied him. "That's another example of the hospitality which has been shown to our guests," Ald. Miller said at the city hall Thursday night. "It was not confined to the city. We had a very enjoyable time, in most pleasant and cheery surroundings. But, Mr. and Mrs. Lawlor would not let me pay for dinner."

Adjusting To School Life

By NANCY CLEAVER

Three mothers of First Grade scholars were discussing what a change it meant in a child's life to start to school. Tommy, who was bubbling over with physical energy and was naturally talkative, rebelled strongly against the teacher's "everyone be quiet!" Janet, a slow moving child, inclined to dawdle, found the discipline of the school's time schedule and the demand for instant obedience extremely difficult. Andy, who was inclined to be delicate and was a timid little fellow, was used to playing with the small group of three or four children his age on his block. Now he must try to hold his own in games with twenty or more yelling, pushing youngsters in the school yard.

The change from carefree vacation days to the school schedule is an abrupt one. The adjustment is not easy for most children. These three mothers reflected in their conversation three ways in which a child must get used to school.

The routine at home is usually fairly flexible. A child is free to ask his mother the question which comes into his mind. If he defends his seemingly 'naughty' action, mother listens to his explanation before passing judgment. Many children enjoy participating in family discussion on different topics.

But the teacher has a large group in her care. She has a certain amount of work she must cover. It is impossible for each child to talk whenever he feels like it. Although "Quiet please!" may anger Tommy, it is a necessary rule.

Promptness is a major virtue at school. Being late in the morning starts the whole day off wrong for the child and his tardiness is often not his fault. Mother must see that clothes and books are laid out neatly the night before in readiness for the morning scramble. Children should be wakened regularly at an early enough hour so they can go to the toilet, wash, dress and eat without too much rush. A nutritious breakfast with fruit, cereal, milk, bread or toast with jam or honey gives a student energy to go on for the whole morning. Janet may struggle with the "On time, please" regulation at school. But this is part of her necessary preparation for participation in classroom learning.

The adjustment from a small group to a large one, is, of course, most perplexing for the little child just starting to school. It is a great help to the new scholar if he knows another friend who is also beginning school life. Then he can search for a familiar face among all the strange ones. Every child must find his own place in the school group. This struggle for status is particularly trying for a child like Andy who is timid and not too strong.

The qualities which school children rate high are not necessarily those which parents place at the top of the list. Physical prowess is greatly admired by youngsters. The aggressive, able lad with leadership ability, may use language which mother says is "not nice" but Andy certainly can see that he is "tops" with the other fellows. The hand-smocked dainty dress which mother made with such loving care may be so different from the sturdy, wash frocks of the other girls, that small May is miserable. A child does not want to be too different from the others!

It is not just the child starting to school for the first time who finds it no easy matter to get used to school. A great host of children every September know from bitter experience that adjustment from vacation to school days is demanding.

Parents can help by using extra stores of patience and imagination, at this time. The child's behaviour at home often reflects a situation that he can't quite cope with at school. The small boy who yells at little sister and bosses her around may have been afraid to assert himself at school. He wants to prove to himself that he is a "big guy!"

At bedtime, if mother watches, a child will often reveal by a chance remark what is troubling him at school. It is such a relief to be able to talk things over. Mother's attitude to school life and to the teacher will color her child's thinking. The teacher needs and deserves the parent's support, whenever possible.

The school and the home should be active partners in the biggest task on earth—the training of today's children for tomorrow's world. A sympathetic, understanding entering into the child's re-actions and thinking on the part of the parent and teacher will make the pathway of school, (particularly the hard first days in September) much easier than they would otherwise have been.

Have Exhibition Of Wood-Carvings

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Paintings and wood-carvings portraying various phases of Canadian life went on sale Friday at the Toronto Art Gallery.

It was the fourth sale which the gallery's women's committee has had of the works of Canada's artists.

Govefnor - General Viscount Alexander, who opened the exhibition, said Canadian artists have done well in expressing the ruggedness of this country. It was time now, he said for them to turn to portraying its more friendly aspects.

The Governor-General and Lady Alexander spent about an hour touring the exhibit and chatted with several artists.

Prices of the paintings ranged from $35 for a color lithograph, "Boy With Chicken," by Ghitta Caiserman of Montreal, to $250 for "Fisherman," a scene in Tempera by Grant Macdonald of Kingston. Several were sold shortly after the show opened. While most of the paintings ran along conventional lines, there were several unusual offerings.

Other exhibitors included Andre Bieler, of Kingston, and Alvin Hilts, of Timmins.

Two Actresses Deprsesed Over Casting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (AP) — Nina Foch, newly discovered as a sexy beauty, can't figure it out.

"It's the same old story," she sighed. "You have to go to Broadway to show Hollywood you can do good movie roles. And you have to be seen in movies to land good stage parts."

When she was under contract to Columbia, the studio could think of her only as a portrayer of neurotic females. "You're not sexy," she was told.

But M-G-M thought otherwise. In her three films there, she has been an eye-appealing clothes horse. In "Young Man In A Hurry," she competes with Denise Darcel for Glenn Ford. And she plays Marie Antoinette in "Scaramouche."

Unhappy?

Nina isn't too happy about the turn of events. "Now I'll have to go back to Columbia to get a neurotic role again," she sighs. . .

June Allyson has a casting problem, too. But she isn't getting sexier. Just younger.

June plays most of the time in "Too Young To Kiss" as a 14-year-old. When I saw her on the set of "The Girl In White," she was decked out as a lass of 12.

"I'm going backwards," she declared. "Isn't it awful? I understand they are now dusting off a few old Margaret O'Brien scripts for me."

Trapped Canadians Fight Way Back To Own Lines

By BILL BOSS

WEST-CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 5. (CP)—Canadian troops were subjected to a nine-hour Chinese attack Saturday. This was disclosed today when a 48-hour censorship on the nationality of troops involved was lifted. (Boss's previous cable on the action identified the troops only as United Nations.) Waves of Communist troops came on four times, surrounding a Canadian outpost position. But the Canadians, in platoon strength, fought back to the main defence lines, inflicting casualties on the enemy.

Lieut. E. J. Mastronardi of Toronto, the platoon commander, called for artillery fire on his position while it was surrounded, but this was refused.

At one time his flare pistol was shot from his hand. When his revolver jammed as he fired it at point-blank range, he snatched a burp gun from a dying Chinese to continue the battle.

Private Johnny Johnson of Windsor calmly stripped two jammed Bren guns in the heat of the action and put them back in service. It was his first day with the company.

While Lieut. Mastronardi, Pte. C. W. Baker of Lunenburg, NS, and one other soldier fought a rear-guard action, holding off the Chinese pursuit during the withdrawal the rest of the platoon, sparked by Cpl. Jack Sargeant of Owen Sound, opened a gap through the Communist encirclement and fought through to the main defences with all the platoon's wounded.

Hurled Back

Chinese Reds today hurled back Allied infantrymen attacking two hills lost to tank-led Communists of Yonchon on the west front.

Reds won the hills Sunday when they threw elements of a division at UN positions along an eight-mile front. It was their biggest attack in two months.

UN infantry recaptured the positions when they stopped the Chinese "human wave" assaults, but were forced to withdraw again.

Shortly afternoon today the UN troops moved forward again, this time under a blanket of air strikes.

Allied Mustang and Thunderjet fighters raked the scarred hills with strafing and fire bomb attacks.

Allied tanks moved up to support the drive.

A briefing officer at Eighth Army Headquarters said the Red attack Sunday was the heaviest Communist assault in two months.

An Allied briefing officer found no special significance in the Reds' heavy ground assault. He

Danny Kaye, Canadians Make Movie

By WILLIAM BOSS.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 5 (CP).—Comedian Danny Kaye adlibbed and produced a motion picture in Korea Sunday. His supporting cast was all-Canadian.

Although the four-minute short, intended to be used throughout the Commonwealth, was a serious appeal for more volunteers to offer their blood as plasma, Danny managed to keep the dressing station's "studio" audience alive with laughter. He mimicked and wisecracked between "takes."

The comedian's plasma appeal was photographed and recorded during a two-day visit to the Commonwealth Division which opened Saturday with an outdoor performance attended by 4,000 troops.

Capt. David Whittingham of Toronto was shown "transfusing" Cpl. Jack Huffman of Cedar Springs, Ont., supposedly a patient with a head injury.

As Kaye spotted his "stretcher" case he gasped: "Get the mousetrap on the guy."

Enters Into Spirit

Pulling Huffman's stiffly-waxed three-inch mustache point, Pte. Joseph Labrecque of Montreal entered into the spirit of the act as Kaye darted behind the stretcher handing the comedian a pair of scissors.

Huffman: "Hey, I've suffered enough for my public already — leave it alone."

Kaye, poking a red smear on Huffman's arm: "You've got the thinnest blood I have ever seen. What's that, ketchup, you've got on there?" (It was). "You smell like you're going to be eaten in a minute."

Charities Get 14 Million Fund

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP)—John P. Bickell left an estate of $14,577,518, it was announced here today. Much of it will be used to create a philanthropic fund to be known as the J. P. Bickell Foundation.

A Toronto financier and mining tycoon, Mr. Bickell died at New York Aug. 22. He was 67.

His career in Canadian business and finance spanned four decades that saw the Dominion grow from a predominantly agricultural country to an industrial nation.

He started his brokerage business in Toronto when he was only 23 and retired after 12 years to devote himself to growing mining interests. At one time he was president of three mining enterprises, the largest of them McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd.

In 1940, Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook called him overseas to help with Britain's aircraft production.

Half the income from the planned J. B. Bickell Foundation will be paid in perpetuity to the Toronto Hospital For Sick Children. The balance will go to such other charities as the foundation trustees decide.

The will directed that the trustees pay 10 per cent of the foundation's income to charitable or educational organizations "to be used solely for medical research."

Police Hold Minister After Wife Injured

BEDFORD, Pa., Nov. 5—(AP)—A Michigan minister is under police guard today after he was found hitch-hiking six miles from where his wife lay injured near their burned automobile.

The minister, the Rev. Philemon Sebastiades, 59, of Lincoln Park, a Detroit suburb, was treated for burns of the face and hands and for shock. His wife, a patient in the same hospital, has puncture wounds of the abdomen.

State Police said the couple have told conflicting stories and it is not yet known why the car was destroyed by fire shortly before the two were picked up Saturday.

Officer Harry Rook said Sebastiades, pastor of the St. George Greek Orthodox Church at Lincoln Park, is charged with suspicion of assault with intent to kill.

Mother Gets Burns Trying To Save Boy Trapped In Bed

BANCROFT, Nov. 5. (ENS) — A family in Hermon, 16 miles east of here, lost a son, their home, and their winter's supply of food Saturday night.

Morris McConnell, two-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McConnell of Hermon, was burned to death in his own bedroom.

Cause of the fire is believed to have been an overheated metal chimney, which passed through the boy's room in the second storey of the McConnell's frame house.

The boy's mother was seriously burned about the head, face and arms in an effort to rescue her son. She was taken to Bancroft hospital, where her condition is said to be "as good as can be expected."

Neighbors To Rescue

Neighbors have been quick to respond to the needs of the grief-stricken and homeless family. Mrs. Andrew Ramsbottom who lives nearby, gave first aid to Mrs. McConnell and has taken the family into her home until they can find a place to live.

Fifth A-Blast One Of Biggest

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 5. — (AP)—The fifth atomic blast in the current test series exploded at 8:31 am PST today.

Thirty seconds later the atomic cloud customary in the detonations could be seen from Las Vegas rising over Yucca Flat test site, 75 miles away.

It was a big one, perhaps the biggest yet, reported observers here who have seen the previous blasts.

An indication of the size and potency of this detonation was indicated by an unusual warning from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Warn Residents

Radio stations in a wide area covering Goldfield, Beatty and Caliente, Nev., were asked to warn residents to open windows in their homes and stores.

Presumably this would be to lessen effects of tremendous concussion expected.

A commission spokesman warned newspapermen to waste no time after the detonation in leaving Mt. Charleston, the vantage point from which they have observed the tests at Yucca Flat 50 miles to the north.

No such warning was issued prior to the first four explosions in the series. Presumably Mt. Charleston was expected to be in the path of wind-blown radioactive particles.

Reject Soviet Demand China Be Given Seat

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP) — The fifth United Nations general assembly rejected at its final session today a Russian demand that the question of giving China's seat to the Communists be given priority in the sixth assembly, opening Tuesday. The vote was 11 for, 20 against and 11 abstentions.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik threw the explosive question of Chinese representation into what diplomats had hoped would be a non-controversial, ceremonial windup of the fifth session.

He angrily declared "it is time to put an end to this disgraceful attitude toward the Chinese people."

T. F. Tsiang, Nationalist Chinese delegate, denounced the Russian proposal as calculated to "decrease peace." He said the regime Malik proposed to admit has been denounced by the assembly as an aggressor in Korea.

Wonder Drugs Losing Punch Doctors Seek Substitute

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5 — (CP)—The wonder drugs are losing their punch like aging prize fighters, and doctors are beginning to speculate on where their next antibiotics are coming from.

Penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin and chloromycetin all are less effective against microbes now than they were two to four years ago, says a study made by Dr. Dwight M. Kuhns, Dr. Matthew H. Fussilo and Dr. Monroe J. Romansky of Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D.C.

Their study was presented as an exhibit at the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

The most striking example shown was the weakening of penicillin against golden staphylococcus, a germ which causes abscesses and boils.

In 1947, the Army doctors said, the survival rate of this microbe was only 30 per cent in test tubes involving standardized doses of the drug. In 1948 and 1949 59 per cent of the microbes survived the same doses.

In 1950 the survival rate was about 61 per cent. It probably would have gone higher, the experiments reported, except for the fact that some of the test microbes were taken from Army personnel just returned from Korea. Against these Korean germs the drug still was 65 per cent effective.

The Korean germs likely were more susceptible than the same kind of germs in the U.S. because penicillin has been used here eight years and only one in Korea.

Against this same germ streptomycin, once 95 per cent effective, dropped to 76 per cent.

Streptomycin did show a small gain in effectiveness against colon bacteria and against some other intestinal microbes. Chloromycetin also made a slight gain in potency against the germs that cause eggs to sour.

Physicians can get around this weakening tendency by giving heavier doses but they can't continue that indefinitely.

However, some of the older antibiotics still are effective against disease such as gonorrhea and certain forms of tuberculosis.

Turkey Gets Moscow Warning

Demand Dardanelles Share

MOSCOW, No. 5. (AP)—Russia may shortly renew her demands on Turkey for a share in defence of the Dardenelles and likely will warn Greece and all Middle East nations against living up with the Atlantic Alliance.

Diplomatic observers here believed today that these were the next obvious moves by Russia following its sharp note to Turkey warning against joining the Atlantic powers. All Moscow papers Sunday published the note to Turkey, the first such communication to that country since 1946.

The note said the USSR could not "remain indifferent" to the course the Turks are pursuing, especially since they have a common frontier with Russia. It again declared the Atlantic alliance was an "aggressive" organization aimed at the Soviet Union, and said the proof was in the preparations to create a European army, remilitarize Western Germany, intensify the arms race and build and expand American bases all over the world.

Pointedly, the note concluded that Russia "expects explanations from the Turkish government" on its reported plans to join the alliance and provide air and naval bases for the western powers.

(Dispatches from Istanbul, Turkey, quoted informed sources as saying the note was "very severe" and that it warned that Turkey's membership in the alliance would be considered an "act of hostility against the Soviet Union.)

It seemed obvious that the note to Turkey was intended as an implied warning also to Greece and all Middle East nations to stay clear of any military alliances with the west, and will be followed by a specific communication to Greece and any other Middle East nations approached by the Atlantic powers.

Claxton Sees Troops Off For Germany

By DOUG HOW.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5. — (CP). — The first Canadian troops from the main body of the 27th Brigade sailed today to represent Canada among the defence forces of Western Europe.

Defence Minister Claxton witnessed the departure of 500 specialist troops from Wolfe's Cove and told them they will hoist Canada's standard in Gen. Eisenhower's European defence array.

RCAF Mustangs, swooping low, darted back and forth above the waterfront adding their aeronautics to a farewell sounded by brass and pipe bands.

The departing troops represented a dozen units and sub-units of the 5,500-man Canadian force trained for European service.

Advance Parties There

They have been preceded by advance parties which have organized the brigade's camp area near Hannover in the British sector.

I boarded the 13,500-ton Canberra, a Greek Line passenger transport, with the Canadians here this morning for the voyage to Rotterdam.

Most of us came to Quebec on Sunday night by special train from Montreal, where the specialists, including dental, workshop, ambulance, ordnance, and signals personnel, had assembled from camps at Barriefield and Camp Borden, and Montreal.

Everyone had a berth on this comfortable troop train.

We were taken directly to the dock where the Canberra, carrying some civilian passengers, awaited the troop embarkation that started at 9 am EST.

Defence Minister Claxton was on hand with a word of farewell. With him were Brig. Frank Fleury, Eastern Quebec Military Area commander, and Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, commander of the 27th, who will sail himself in a few days.

Ships Collide 238 Rescued

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 5 — (AP) — The $4,000,000 motorship Maipu — pride of Argentina's merchant fleet — was rammed by a US troopship and sank in the foggy North Sea Sunday. The transport and German rescue craft saved all 238 persons aboard the Argentine vessel.

The troopship, the Gen. M. L. Hersey—her bow stove in by the collision — limped into Bremerhaven Sunday night with many Maipu survivors aboard. A special train was chartered to take them to Hamburg, the Maipu's port of call.

The fact that the usually rough North Sea was calm under its fog blanket was said to have played a large part in the rescue.

The 12,000-ton Maipu and the 10,000-ton transport, groping through early morning fog, collided 15 miles offshore, near the German island of Waneroog.

Witnesses said the Argentine vessel began to list immediately, but stayed afloat for three hours—another big factor in the successful rescue. Passengers aboard the stricken vessel included 38 women and eight children.

Three Prisoners Escape From Jail By Sheet Rope

TORONTO, Nov. 5. (CP)—Three men went over the wall at Toronto's Don Jail Sunday night. Today they were hunted far and wide across Southern Ontario. Edwin Boyd, 37, Leonard Jackson, 29, and William R. Jackson, 25, sawed out a bar of a second-floor corridor window sometime after supper. They squeezed through an opening 9¼ inches by 16 inches, slid down a bedsheet rope to the ground, then used another improvised rope to scale the exercise yard wall and reach the street.

They were all described as dangerous.

Chief Turnkey Alf Bennett missed them when he went to put the men in their cells at 8 pm. But the break was not reported to police until 9:25 pm, officials said.

First In Seven Years

William R. Jackson was under sentence of seven years and 20 lashes for robbing and beating a 69-year-old man. The other men were awaiting trial, Boyd, an ex-commando from Pickering, for robbery and armed robbery and Leonard Jackson who has an artificial left foot, for an armed hold-up of a bank at Bradford.

The break was the first one since 1944 at the 87-year-old east-end jail.

Jail officials said they believe a group of 15 other prisoners gathered around to shield the trio while the escape was in progress. No sign was found of the hacksaw blade believed used to cut through the bar..

William Jackson was one of the first men to receive free legal aid under the new system set up by the Law Society of Ontario.

Nehru Has Plan For Suez Canal

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 5 — Prime Minister Nehru proposed Saturday internationalization of the Suez Canal, the Panama Canal, and other "international highways."

He said this would be in the interests of all countries.

"I see no reason why Suez should not be under Egyptian sovereignty, but with its operations and traffic internationalized," Nehru added at a press conference.

Egypt is trying to oust British troops from treaty-won positions guarding the Suez Canal, a waterway operated by a private corporation. The United States owns and operates the Panama Canal.

Nehru advised the world to accept developments in the Middle East, including Egypt and Iran, as natural shifts in the balance of power.

India naturally sympathizes with Nationalist aspirations of the Middle Eastern nations, he said, but realization of those aspirations would be best achieved by "non-violent, peaceful methods."

Deer Turns Tables Attacks Armed Hunter

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 5—(CP)—Deer are fighting back against the hundreds of hunters tramping through the snow-laden bush of Algoma district. Gordon Horner, an automobile parts salesman, has bruises to prove it.

Hunting north of Larden River Saturday, Horner was standing with his back to a tree, watching down a trail. Hearing a thrashing sound behind him, he turned around, right into the path of a charging buck.

Knocked flat on his back, Horner escaped serious injury. His rifle discharged in the air, and the buck kept on going.

White River Coldest At 22 Below Zero

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP) — White River lived up to its reputation Sunday night as the coldest spot in Eastern Canada. The temperature dropped to 22 below zero at the Canadian Pacific divisional point half way between Sudbury and Port Arthur.

Runner-up was Kapukasing, 125 miles northeast of White River. The temperature there was 19 below.

Port Arthur was a piker. Thermometers at the head-of-the-lakes port registered only two below.

Troop Plane Crashes

AMARILLO, Tex., Nov. 5 (AP) —A C-47 troop carrier plane with 30 persons aboard crashed while making an emergency landing at the Tucumcari, NM, airport today. The Amarillo Globe was told. The plane carried 27 returnees from Korea and a three-man crew. It was en route from Caliofrnia to Pennsylvania, the Globe was told. Ambulances took injured to Tucumcari hospital.

Abadan Plant Begins Work

TEHRAN, Nov. 5 — (AP). — Iran announced today that "with the help of God" it has begun temporary operation of a major unit of the Abadan oil refinery, from which the British were expelled at the height of the British-Iran oil quarrel.

The official government announcement said Iranian engineers and workers, without foreign help, started up "Apparatus No. 70," one of the major refining units of the vast installations.

The government said present plans call for operating the unit only a month, to refill storage tanks with oil for domestic consumption.

Latest Frostbite Treatment Still To Use Warm Water

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 —(AP)—Here is the latest from science on how to treat forstbite this winter.

Warm the frozen parts rapidly. Use warm water if possible, at about body temperature.

This will hurt more than slow warming, but there won't be as much damage to tissues and probably less risk of an aftermath of gangrene.

Don't rub with snow. That just delays the recovery, even though it may not hurt as much.

This is all you can do, and what the doctors can do in addition comprises a few drugs that thin the blood or dilate blood vessels. These speed recovery and may prevent gangrene.

Last year there were high hopes of finding a new remedy for frostbite, becouse of the thousands of Korean fighters badly frozen. And because of Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, of Chicago, the woman found rigid, in 11 below zero weather, her body temperature 64, the lowest recorded in medical history.

It was thought that her case might lead to a discovery connected with her astonishing recovery. She lost both legs below the knees, but by all previous standards she was beyond hope of life.

Whatever she had that saved her remains a mystery.

The Korean war spurred military research. But all that came out was assurance that the old method of warming up quickly is still the best.

US Expected To Propose World-Wide Census Of All Weapons

Plan Calls For Strict Verification System In Atomic Arms Accounting; Key Point In Truman Peace Plan For UN

PARIS, Nov. 5. (AP)—The United States is reliably reported today to have decided to propose a world-wide arms census including a complete accounting of all atomic weapons. The US plan, which will be placed before the United Nations assembly here this week, calls for a strict system of verification for the atomic accounting. This may prove to be the stumbling block which could hold up indefinitely any disclosure of the number of atom bombs in the US and Russia.

Informed quarters said the arms proposal was the heart of a reported peace plan which President Truman will announce Wednesday night and which Secretary of State Dean Acheson will lay before the United Nations Assembly, perhaps on Thursday.

Inclusion of atomic weapons in the proposed arms census represents a drastic change in US policy. The census question has been before the UN since 1948, but was blocked by the Russian veto because the US refused to include atomic weapons.

Word of the United States policy shift leaked out as the 60-nation assembly prepared to launch its 1951 meeting here Tuesday. The US is reported asking Britain and France to support its new peace formula, timed to beat Russia to the peace punch before the Soviets have a chance to renew their expected peace offensive. The main idea appears to be to bring together several outstanding questions under one heading, launching them as a package proposal. According to best information available, this might include a plea to Russia for peace in Korea, the arms question and an appeal for a united election in all of Germany.

British Confirmation

First reports of this new approach circulated during the weekend and were confirmed by British sources Sunday. Britain's new Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, had separate talks with both Acheson and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman within a few hours after he arrived here to head the British delegation to the UN.

After his conversation with Schuman, Eden announced they had reviewed the whole list of problems before the Assembly and were in full accord. This, he said, included the controversial Arab demand for the independence of Morocco, now a French protectorate.

Propose By-Passing Buffer Zone Stickler

MUNSEN, Korea, Nov. 5 (AP) —The United Nations today proposed by-passing the cease-fire buffer zone stumbling block until a Korean armistice is ready for signing.

The UN suggested a permanent committee study the buffer zone issue while negotiators go ahead with talks on other points that must be settled before the fighting can end.

The Reds said they would study the proposal tonight. Presumably they will give their reply at a meeting scheduled for 11 am Tuesday (9 pm Monday, EST).

Treasure Hunt Broken Up By Channel Storm

MILFORD-ON-SEA, England, Nov. 5. (AP)—There's hope yet for the projected expedition to find the tabled treasure of private Captain Kidd

An expedition by a crew of Canadians and Britons to find the treasure, reputed to have been buried more than 250 years in an island off Siam, set out from Gosport last Thursday in the two-masted schooner Lamorna. But the Lamorna and her treasure hunters never got out of the English Channel. A storm broke both her masts.

The treasure hunters were removed from the distressed ship by lifeboat, and she finally was washed ashore near here Sunday.

Damage Superficial

This morning the Lamorna, 263 tons, was found on the Hampshire beach, head-on to the shore as the gales began to subside. But the damage was described as superficial.

There was no hint whether the treasure hunt is to be called off or money spent on an expensive refit.

Captain Kidd was hanged for piracy near London in 1701. At his trial he estimated he had buried treasure worth $3,360,000.

The Canadians in the treasure-hunting expedition are John Fry of Montreal and Ian (Buck) Rogers of Toronto.

Warn The King Must Be Careful

LONDON, Nov. 5 (Reuters) — The health of the King has steadily improved during the last two weeks, but need for care remains, an official bulletin from Buckingham Palace said today.

The bulletin read:

"The King's health has steadily improved during the past fortnight.

"His Majesty is up for the greater part of the day and though he has been able to attend certain affairs of state without undue fatigue the need for care remains."

A London medical expert familiar with the phrasing of the bulletins described the new one as "very reassuring."

"The fact that the King has been gaining steadily in strength" he told a reporter, "means that we can look forward to an indefinite period of reasonably good health now."

Royal Couple Start On Trip To Maritimes

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que., Nov. 5—(CP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh stopped off in this Eastern township centre for 10 minutes today on their way to a tour of the Maritime provinces.

Some 20,000 persons, braving damp, inclement weather, cheered the Royal couple.

Mayor Antoine Diron officially greeted the Royal visitors and presented mayors and their wives from surrounding municipalities.

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip walked around, chatting with veterans, Boy Scouts and officials. The Princess wore a mink coat and a mustard-colored, off-the-face hat while the Duke appeared in a beige polo coat and a business suit. He wore no hat.

The Royal couple stopped briefly at St. Hyacinthe at 9:55 am EST. They stopped over 15 minutes instead of the 10 officially called for.

Heavy Storm Passes From Ontario

Cold Weather Covers Most of Province, Many Accidents

TORONTO, Nov. 5. (CP) — The storm centre that ripped through Southern Ontario during the weekend left the province Sunday, leaving in its wake at least 17 deaths and countless number of traffic accidents.

Snow is still falling in many areas, a storm aftermath caused by the cold air mass mingling with the cooler air off the Great Lakes.

As the Minnesota-born storm moved through the Niagara peninsula and the area along the northern shore of Lake Erie Sunday, it produced near-blizzard conditions. More than a foot of snow fell in five hours.

Toronto received its first heavy snowfall Friday night and early Saturday. Sunday, while the Niagara district was swept by the storm, Toronto, 50 miles across Lake Ontario, basked in bright sunshine.

Cold Weather Arrives

Cold weather set in throughout most of the province, but skies cleared.

Minor accidents were reported throughout the area. Toronto reported 100 automobile mishaps. Injuries, however, were few. London police said snow that snarled traffic made skids "a dime a dozen." In Hamilton, 57 mishaps were listed. On the eight miles between Welland and Port Colborne, 30 cars skidded into the ditches.

The storm forced Great Lakes vessels in the Port Colborne district to take shelter.

At the Hawkestone Curve, near Orillia, there were eight cars in a ditch at one time.

The place of security

There is a realm where hope is no longer precarious. It is the realm of unwavering spiritual understanding. It is the realm of Truth.

How may we find it? Though knowing (understanding) the same truth which Jesus knew, and which he promised would "make us free."

The Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, plainly shows the way. To any sincere student this great book steadily unlocks the treasures of truth in the Bible and proves, by healing the sick, their practicability today.

It may be bought, borrowed or read at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon is also for your use.

Elizabeth and Philip Make Mr. Churchill Snowman

STE. AGATHE DES MONTS, Que., Nov. 5. (CP)—The Royal tourists today were rolling down to the Maritimes for a nautical-flavored hail and farewell. Canada's four Atlantic provinces will say the country's goodbye after an 8,000-mile cheering program by sea, land and air, from coast to coast and a sidetrip to Washington.

A little Newfoundland fishing fleet will escort them over the squid jigging ground of Portugal Cove to board their liner Empress of Scotland Nov. 12 Less than a week later they'll be home with Prince Charles and Princess Anne. They've already told Charles some of their experiences by trans-Atlantic phone.

The final leg of the trip started early today in a minor blizzard from this snow-covered Laurentian skiing resort 1,500 feet above sea level after a two-day holiday —the most informal of the tour. It was a holiday in which they threw snowballs, built a "Mr. Churchill" snowman, went for a sleigh drive through Christmas-card scenery and finally surprised everybody by dismissing their chauffeur and driving alone to church Sunday morning.

They are leaving the Laurentian snow and wintry scene for the clear frosty weather of the Maritimes.

Make Brief Stops

Before they cross the Restigouche into Northern New Brunswick they have brief official stops to make at St. Hyacinthe, Drummondville, Levis, Riviere du Loup, Rimouski and Mont Joli.

First Maritime stop is the New Brunswick capital of Fredericton Tuesday morning. After that they go in order to Saint John, Moncton, and Sackville, NB, Amherst, Truro and Halifax, NS, Charlottetown, PEI, Sydney, NS, and finally St. John's, and Portugal Cove, Nfld.

They leave the Royal train at Charlottetown and make the stops after that in the big Canadian cruiser Ontario.

Maritimers were hoping their beautiful fall weather and coloring would hold for the Royal arrival but there is little left of the splash of scarlet and gold on the rolling hillsides and rugged coastline.

Happy Time

The Laurentian holiday was a jingle-bell, happy affair. The Royal couple enjoyed the scenery from a sleigh after making a snowman and throwing snowballs at each other. They wrote some thank you letters and telephoned home.

Trinity Anglican Church was crowded to its 140-seat capacity Sunday and several thousand stood in the snow-blown street to hear the service through a public address system. The Prince read the lesson.

The Rev. Dr. G. Basil Jones, the rector, welcoming the visitors, hoped they would remember the "quiet Sunday morning spent in the worship of God in the heart of this lovely Laurentian country, clad like a fairyland in its first mantle of snow."

After the service the couple were given gifts typical of the Laurentian country — "ceinture flechee" or sashes, now worn by skiers and snowshoers but formerly worn by the "Coureur des Bois" of early Canadian history.

Rescue Trio On Frozen Lake

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5 (CP). — Three chilled and wet fishermen Sunday were rescued from frozen Lake Winnipeg after their boat was marooned two days by shifting ice-floes.

Rescued were Clifford Joseph, 26; Jarvis Gorman, 19; and Samuel Thomas, 17, all of Victoria Beach, Man. They and three others were stranded when below-zero weather swept over the province, turning the lake into a frozen trap.

Meanwhile, another fishing vessel caught in the early onslaught of winter is believed to have been located farther up the lake. It was separated from four others Thursday after it ran for port during a blinding snow storm. Two men were reported aboard the craft.

Snow Turns Back English Mayor

Encountering the weekend blanketing barrier of snow west of Toronto early Sunday, Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and party of Peterborough, England, abandoned their trip to Niagara Falls.

Drifts were reported three feet deep in the area of the Canadian Falls city, and in other sections of the Welland peninsula two feet of snow fell in five hours during the weekend.

The unseasonable advent of winter, hard on the heels of autumn, was persuading the visitors this morning to consider booking a passage home earlier than they had anticipated.

Mayor Chamberlain and Alderman E. V. Martin and their wives had brought with them suitable clothing, but the appearance and bite of winter was in the air, chilling ideas of getting around.

For the present they have some personal engagements for the next few days, and for the immediate present decision was suspended as to the prospect of getting off for home.

Naturally they were disappointed in having to forego the visit to the famous falls at Niagara, and also the greeting which had been extended to them in the Ontario border city.

Tehran College Closed Till Riots Stop

By PHILIP CLARKE

TEHRAN, Nov. 5 (AP)—Torn by Communist agitation, Tehran University shut down Sunday until further notice. Hundreds of armed police barred the doors.

A crowd of students estimated to number 1,000 milled around outside. Angry and defiant student leaders harangued the crowd, denouncing the shutdown order, but the meeting broke up without incident after agreeing to meet again today.

In another part of the city, however, about 500 anti-Communist students from Alborz College marched on the headquarters of the Communist-directed Partisans of Peace. En route they met about 500 pro-Communists and fist-fighting broke out. Police quelled the fighting in short order.

Tehran University, 17 years old, has been a seething hotbed of Communist-led disorders in the last few weeks. Underground Tudeh (Communist) Party agitators found it a fertile field, appealing to the patriotic fervor of the youths by stirring anti-western feelings.

Will Stay Closed.

Dr. Ali Aker Siasi, president of the university, announced the shut-down in a letter to the Majlis (parliament) Sunday. He said it would stay closed until the government acts to restore "the calm and quiet atmosphere needed for teaching and study."

The immediate reason given for the shutdown was a student raid on the university director's council last Wednesday, purportedly to demand lower tuition fees. Some 30 to 40 youths barricaded the council meetings for eight hours, virtually imprisoning 15 professors. All 15 submitted their resignations Sunday.

Other students invaded the Finance Ministry and said they would camp there until the ministry restored foreign scholarship funds cut off by government austerity measures. These measures stem from a loss of oil revenue caused by shutdown of the big nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Yanks Reinstate Geo. Ratterman

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5 (AP) —Quarterback George Ratterman was reinstated today as a member of New York Yanks in the National Football League but fined $2,000 by NFL Commissioner Bert Bell.

Bell said Ratterman was fined for "action detrimental to the welfare of the National Football League and of professional football."

Ratterman was reinstated "under his existing three-year contract."

Ratterman, former Notre Dame star who began his pro career with Buffalo in the now defunct All-American Conference, quit the Yanks last summer to play with Montreal Alouettes of Canada's Big Four football circuit.

The NFL and Ted Collins, owner of the Yanks, sued in New Jersey seeking to enjoin Ratterman from playing in Canada. But the judge refused to continue a temporary injunction on the ground that he lacked sufficient information.

As a result, Ratterman was permitted to play with Alouettes.

Threatened with another legal suit, Ratterman recently quit the Canadian League and announced his intention to seek reinstatement in American football.

UrgesAtomicWeapons Be Used In Korea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.) today urged use of atomic weapons against the Communists in Korea—and said the possibility of retaliation by Russia is "too absurd to consider."

Johnson, a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, spoke out against the background of the latest series of atomic tests in Nevada. He declined to discuss information he has about the outcome of those tests, except to say they showed "great progress" in building America's atomic might.

The French are trying to keep the issue out of the UN.

Main Points

The main points of the arms census are expected to be:

1. A UN demand upon all countries for a complete accounting of all troops and weapons.
2. An ironclad system for sending inspectors into any country to make first-hand verification of the figures submitted.

In the past Russia has agreed in general terms to accept a system of inspection of atomic facilities, but her terms were never spelled out in concrete form.

The Russian idea—as stated in previous declarations—was for inspectors to be admitted periodically to established facilities. The Russians never have said they would give completely free access to inspectors to travel about the Soviet Union at will.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5 (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 4 13/32 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1/32 from Saturday's close. That is, it took $1.04 13/32 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.92-5/16, down 3/16 from Saturday.

Seven Accidents Reported On District Roads

Slush-covered roads resulted in seven accidents on local highways over the weekend. None of them was serious and there was only one injury.

The stretch of Highway 28, between the Millbrook turn and the five-mile-turn (Berry's Service Station), had at least six accidents Saturday.

John C. Cole, 51, Buffalo, was bruised and shaken up shortly before noon Saturday when he was thrown out of his car after it went into a spin. Cole told provincial police that he was going north on Highway 28 and was temporarily blinded when a passing truck splashed slush on his windshield.

His car went out of control, skidded and went into a spin. Cole was thrown out of the driver's side of the car and landed in the right-hand ditch. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a muscular injury in the back and he was released Saturday night.

The traffic tieup caused a second accident. Melvin J. Holmes, 32, Brown St., broke over the crest of a hill, just north of the Millbrook turn driving a Smith transport.

Highway Cluttered

Holmes saw three vehicles parked on the highway just over the hill, where they had been left by motorists assisting the injured Buffalo man. There was also a number of people on the highway.

He applied his brakes but the transport-trailer skidded on the road. Rather than plow into the cars Holmes drove into the ditch where the transport turned over, spilling out some of its heavy load of copper wire.

About $400 damage was caused to the truck and $700 to Cole's car.

A Dutch immigrant, Herman Van Wijk, 30, Hunter St., escaped injury Saturday afternoon when his car skidded in the slush and turned over on its left side. The accident occurred just north of Berry's Service Station.

Damage was estimated at $200.

Three other accidents were also reported on that stretch of highway Saturday and they were investigated by OPP Constables A. R. Pollard and Ralph Tremills.

Three Cars

A three-car collision Sunday afternoon on Highway 7, 5½ miles west of Norwood, resulted in property damage but no injuries.

Francis Swanston, 28, Hamilton, was driving along the highway and was unable to brake his car in time to avoid running into the rear of a second car, driven by Margaret Howey, 39, Welsley St., Toronto.

The impact jarred the rear end of Swanston's car around to the left and it collided with the oncoming car of Walter Cox, 30, Aylmer St. The left front of Cox car received about $250 damage.

OPP Corporal Ray Pope and Constable Tom Fitzpatrick investigated.

ing for the six surviving children: Vicey, 15; Irene, 13; twins Claude and Clayton, 10; Gordon, 9; and Clarence, 6.

About seven o'clock Saturday night Morris was put to bed. At eight pm, the screams of the boy brought his parents rushing upstairs to find the bedroom a mass of flame and smoke.

Mrs. McConnell and her husband tried several times to reach their son, but were unable to. It was in these efforts that Mrs. McConnell suffered serious burns to her head, hands, arms, neck, and face.

Everything Lost

In a short time, the whole of the house was in flames. Sacks of vegetables, dozens of quarts of fruit preserves—all their winter food—were lost in the fire, as well as most of their clothing.

Mrs. Ramsbottom took the McConnells into her home and gave first aid to Mrs. McConnell. A second neighbor, George McEaphron, drove the badly burned woman into Bancroft.

The father of the dead boy is a lumberman and carpenter.

Funeral service will be held at Hermon United Church at 2 pm Tuesday, and burial will be in the church cemetery. The Rev. Kingsley Cutler will officiate.

said it is a common Red tactic to hit an Allied outpost or advance position with a numerically superior force.

Across the peninsula Allied units pushed forward nearly two miles Monday in a limited objective attack northwest of Kansong on the east coast. Other attacking UN units occupied a hill against light Red resistance south of Kosong.

Only action reported from the central front was a platoon-sized Red attack southeast of Kumsong. The attack was repulsed.

BBs Hit Train, Police Chief Issues Warning

Police Chief John Thompson served notice today, that his department will be cracking down on teen-agers who are pelting passing trains with BB shots as they pass through Jackson Park.

Chief Thompson's warning was prompted by a complaint of CNR conductor Milton Oughtred, 180 Lindsay St., S., Lindsay who reported that an air rifle pellet smashed a window in a caboose Thursday afternoon.

Seeing a gang of boys in Jackson Park in the direction from where the shots appeared to be coming, Mr. Oughtred said he gave chase and caught up with two boys and took their air rifles away from them.

Happens Often

Mr. Oughtred told Constable Sherman Kellele who investigated that showering of passing trains with BB shot is a common occurrence when there is no school.

Mr. Oughtred was unable to say definitely whether the two boys he apprehended were the ones who fired the shots. The boys, 14 and 15 years old were given a good talking to by Police Chief Thompson Friday afternoon, and their air rifles are being held at the police station.

Chief Constable Thompson said he is through giving warnings. A policeman will be on duty in Jackson Park Saturday afternoon and if there is any recurrence of Thursday afternoon's shooting at trains the boys involved can expect to be prosecuted.

Driver Charged After Accident

A charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol was laid against Cyril Cooper, 28, of 759 Snelgrove Ave., following a two-car accident on Water St., Saturday evening.

Cooper appeared in police court today. He did not enter a plea and his request for an adjournment to November 8 was granted.

William Storey, 751 Brown St., told Acting police sergent Gordon Trennum who investigated the accident that he was driving south on Water St., when the accident accurred just below Antrim St. as he was passing a parked car.

Cooper who was driving north on Water St., claimed another car crowded him over, resulting in the collision with Storey's car.

Neither Cooper nor Storey obtained the number of the car which Cooper blamed for the accident.

Liberation Army Ready Strike In Egypt

CAIRO, Nov. 5 — (CP).—The leftist weekly Algambour el Masri said today a British tank with four men "disappeared" on Sunday in the troubled Suez Canal zone between Port Said and Kanatar. The paper said they "probably were captured by liberation battalions."

A British army spokesman said he had received no report of any such incident. He added that there has been "a certain loss of arms" among British troops in the Canal, but that "this has not exceeded 10 weapons so far."

In what appeared to be a drive to root out the Egyptian underground in the canal zone, British troops ringed the village of Serapeun yesterday and combed the hamlet for hidden arms. A British army spokesman said the searchers found a few guns.

Cairo newspapers carried banner headlines today saying "Egypt's liberation battalions have gone into action in the canal zone."

More Troops Arrive

The British authorities poured more troops into the area to bolster the garrison. The troopship Empire Medway unloaded several hundred Army and RAF personnel.

The British continued to expel Egyptian trouble makers from the zone. Two Egyptian foremen at the ordnance depot at Geneifa were thrown out on charges that they threatened workers employed by the British. In the last four days 26 Egyptians have been expelled from the zone.

In another drastic move to hinder British control of the canal area the Egyptian government announced Saturday night that any Egyptian worker still on the British Army payroll by November 30 will be charged with "high treason."

The director of one of the Egyptian underground groups, Field-Marshal Aziz el Masri Pasha, said today he is awaiting Egyptian government orders before launching a full-scale liberation attack on British troops.

"Arms are plentiful," he declared.

His statement came on top of an Egyptian protest to the International Labor Office claiming "savage violation of human rights and freedom of Egyptian labor" by British military authorities in the Suez Canal zone.

The protest, in an official note, accused British authorities of "taking arbitrary measures" to stop large numbers of Egyptian workers from leaving military employment.

Warns British

El Masri warned the British to "stop their criminal aggression"—otherwise "they will pay most dearly for every drop of Egyptian blood they spill in the canal zone."

The retired commander-in-chief of Egypt's army, El Masri is directing one of several underground groups active against Britain since the Egyptian government last month abandoned the Anglo-Egyptian treaty and the agreement between the two countries on government of the Sudan.

El Masri also said today that he is willing to co-operate with the "national resistance movement" sponsored by the powerful and fanatical Moslem Brotherhood Association and other extremist political organizations.

First Winter Snowstorm Leaves 17 Deaths In Wake

By The Canadian Press

Heart attacks and traffic accidents in southern Ontario's first big snow storm of the year helped to swell the number of violent deaths during the weekend to 17 in eastern Canada.

A Canadian Press survey showed that five persons died of heart attacks during the storm. Traffic accidents accounted for six lives lost and a fi.e for two. A hunting accident and a railway acident each killed one person. A fall in a bathroom and carbon monoxide poisoning resulted in two deaths.

Ontario had 13 persons killed, New Brunswick one and Nova Scotia, three.

In Ontario, Blake Huycke, a Napanee service station employee, died of a heart attack while trying to pull a car out of a ditch. Three men in Toronto died while shoveling away the heavy snow. They were George Park, 45, Hugh Lister, 43, and Alex Groszic, 70. William Henry Hoffman, 73, of Port Colborne also died of a heart attack while clearing snow.

Traffic Fatalities

Hugh McIlroy, 33, of Stratford was run over by an ambulance in a traffic accident at Kitchener. Keneth Jones, 16, was killed when he was knocked from his bicycle by one automobile and dragged beneath another. Another youngster, Glen Sidore, 10, was killed at Odessa, 12 miles west of Kingston when a truck crushed him against the rail of a bridge.

Trucks were involved in two collisions with autos resulting in two deaths in Ontario. Hugh McDonald, 33, of Westhill was killed at Barrie and Donald F. Brown, 19, of Oshawa at Bowmanville.

Hugo Hill, a railway section foreman, was kiled when his motor jigger ran into the rear of a halted train at Auder, 170 miles north of Port Arthur. An 80-year-old patient in a Windsor mental hospital, George Hughes, died from a fall on the floor of a lavatory. Howard Hill, 17, of Orillia was killed 15 miles east of his home when a shotgun accidentally discharged in a hunting accident.

In New Brunswick, Joyce McLeod, 19, of Little Bridge died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the back seat of a parked car near St. Stephen while her sister sat unharmed in the front seat.

Two children in Sydney, NS, died when fire destroyed a three family home. They were John, five months, and Edward, 3, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carocci. Stanley Cunningham, 36 of Northwest Point, NS, was killed in a three-car crash on the Barrington Passage causeway.

Revolver Theft Brings $25 Fine

COBOURG, Nov. 5 (ENS). — Three Cobourg women were picked up by police on drunk charges and fined in police court. One of them had worked at one time in a Salvation Army institution in Toronto and Lieut. D. W. Rea of the Salvation Army requested that she be remanded out of custody and that he would pay her way back to Toronto to her old job. The magistrate granted his request.

Fred Brant of Lindsay, picked up on a vagrancy charge, was sentenced to five days in jail, dating back five days to his arrest, and directed to return to Lindsay and report to the Children's Aid inspector in that town.

Malcolm Burd of Cobourg was fined $25 and costs on a charge of theft of a revolver from F. A. Berger of Campbellford. Burd was working for a moving concern and when the revolver was missing he was apprehended in Cobourg.

Burd told the magistrate that he picked up the revolver to look at it when he was loading household goods into the moving van, and that he shoved it in his pocket and forgot about it when he took his coat off. He remembered it when he returned to Cobourg and as he had a truck trip to Niagara Falls next day didn't get a chance to return the gun.

Snow Gives OPP Busy Week

COBOURG, Nov. 5—(ENS)—Weekend snow kept the provincial police on the hop investigating accidents. Snow Saturday morning made visibility poor and several minor accidents occurred on Highway 2. A number of collisions, due to slippery pavements, occurred in town but nobody was hurt. The Dale turn, near Port Hope, was the scene of a spectacular crash at noon on Sunday and, although damage to the cars involved was heavy, nobody was hurt.

A party of deer hunters were turning at Dale on to No. 28, in a car driven by Frank Hodge of Newmarket when the car was in collision with a southbound automobile driven by Clifford Magahay of Lindsay. In the car were Mrs. C. Magahay, Mr. and Mrs. James Magahay and Mr. and Mrs. L. Bell of Reaboro. The car from Lindsay only had been driven 140 miles before the accident. Provincial Constable Bill Baluk of Cobourg investigated.

Sunday morning's high winds brought down part of a large tree at the corner of University Ave. and Division St. The limb took hydro wires with it and deprived the east end of electric power for almost two hours.

Man Fined $100 On Driving Count

LINDSAY, Nov. 5—A Toronto man, Fred Anderson, was charged with driving while his ability to do so was impaired by the use of alcohol in Lindsay court Friday and fined $100 and $30 costs.

The accused was involved in accidents with two Fenelon township men in Fenelon Falls on the evening of Oct. 7. Total damage of the accidents amounted to $328.

One witness, Douglas Junkin, told the court that he was driving towards Fenelon Falls on the evening mentioned when he met a car driven by the accused on the left turn to the south on the main street of the village. He said that the two cars sideswiped on the curve and the car driven by the accused proceeded until it struck a second car. The witness said that the damage to his car amounted to $10.

The other witness, Elmer Goodhand, testified that he was following about 50 feet behind the car driven bythe first witness when he saw the two cars come very close together. He said that he was unaware at the time that they had collided. The oncoming car had proceeded and had collided head-on with his car causing $280 damage.

Smelled of Alcohol

Both witnesses testified that the accused smelled of alcohol.

Chief Gordon of Fenelon Falls said that the accused smelled of alcohol and that he was driving a rented car. Damage to his car amounted to $33.

The counsel for the defense, J. K. Winters, Toronto, called on John Winters, Toronto branch manager of Direct-Winters, as a character witness. Mr. Winters said that the accused was an employee of the firm and in the years he had worked there had never missed a day nor had he known him to take a drink.

Crown Attorney L. W. Jordon asked that a substantial fine be given. Magistrate E. A. Gee concurred and set the fine of $100 and $30. Previously this court had never set a fine higher than $50 on this charge.

Seven-Inch Snowfall At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5—(ENS)—Seven inches of snow blanketed the Campbellford area on Saturday and Sunday. Temperatures dropped to below freezing, much to the dismay of many motorists who were caught without anti-freeze in the radiators of their automobiles.

No serious accidents were reported as a result of the snow, but streets were slippery and motorists used caution in their driving.

Discuss X-Ray Uses At Chiropractic Meet

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5—(ENS)— Sixteen chiropractors from Peterborough, Campbellford, Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Oshawa, Whitby and St. Catharines, met in the Empress Hotel on Sunday for their monthly discussion period.

Dr. A. Homewood, an instructor in anatomy at the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College in Toronto addressed the group, telling them of X-ray technique and interpretation as applied to the practice of chiropractic. This differs to some extent from X-ray technique used in the medical feild.

The members enjoyed a chicken dinner, and an informal discussion period after the business portion of the monthly meeting ended.

Survival Value Of The A-Bomb

Recent tests near Las Vegas, Nebraska, have taken some of the horror out of the atom bomb. There is a little fellow among them, designed for use in support of ground troops, and a soldier can be as close as ten miles to the explosion and not get his feet singed. However, even the smallest atom bomb is still a fearful and dreadful thing. The explosion set off on Thursday shot a cloud into the air which was a mile in diameter, and created gusts which ruffled clothing of reporters thirty miles distant. The atom bomb is losing some of its horror because it is proving manageable, scientifically, socially and militarily.

* * *

Science is using atomic energy, or by-products of it, for all sorts of beneficial purposes, notably in medical research. States are keeping their atomic piles within close controls; not every fool or madman can tinker about with it. Fortunately for society the process of converting atomic energy into an explosion is so large, expensive and intricate that no private citizen or group of citizens with a reforming or destructive zeal can let an A-bomb loose on neighbours. Military scientists and commanders are cautiously accepting atomic explosions to be neither the beginning nor end of military tactics. They are learning two things about the bomb: that as an offensive weapon it has limits, and defence against it is possible; secondly, that when both sides are prepared to use it, its handicaps become as apparent as its military advantages. The A-bomb may thus be suspended between them, as gas was in the last war, and never used offensively again. That is a hope, anyway, if not a probability.

* * *

When the Duke of Edinburgh addressed the British Association this autumn he asked: "What use is science if man does not survive?" It is the most important question of our time. The total of scientific knowledge and technical progress which has made the A-bomb possible is a tremendous achievement. That progress should not nor could not have been prevented, for the pursuit of truth in itself cannot produce anything evil. It is in the application of scientific achievement that society makes the choice between beneficent and destructive uses. What is the survival value in atom physics? Past developments in science have increased the wealth of nations, their living standards, their supplies of food; and a superiority in power, or an ability to survive in war. The survival value of the A-bomb is now being tested by the military and weighed by the civil. There is a hope that science, diplomacy, military strategy and human sense are combining to make atomic energy a thing for good and not for evil. There is reason to believe that man will survive his own ingenuity.

Oh! To Be A Congressman

This is one of the occasions on which we look with some yearning on the pleasant paths along which certain United States Congressmen are led by the call of duty. These men are members of Senate and House of Representatives committees, and when Congress takes a recess, they feel called upon to go abroad in the service of their country. The country, naturally, pays the cost of these tours of duty. And with Congress taking the rest of the year off, "official business" has cropped up in several faraway lands.

Two members of the House Interior Committee, for instance, feel that duty calls them to the Pacific. This committee is chiefly concerned with domestic matters, but the two Congressmen pointed out to the Air Force that they had to inspect the Pacific territories entrusted to the U.S. under the peace treaty. And to show that they did not mind going the long way around, they headed for the Pacific by way of Paris, Geneva, Cairo and Bangkok. As further evidence of devotion to duty, one said he hoped to return in time to make another trip, to the Virgin Islands, in December.

Another group is scheduled to visit the Pacific, made up of six members of the House Appropriations Committee. Members of the House Banking Committee are arranging a forty-five day visit to South America; it has been suggested in Washington that they are doing so in order to be able to take a long-range view of United States banking problems. South America is very popular; it will also be visited by members of the House Commerce Committee and the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Members of other committees are arranging trips to Europe, the Riviera, the Near East, and other Mediterranean areas. Quite a number of these, members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, undoubtedly have more urgent reasons for travelling than others—specifically, than the Congressional delegation that has already taken off for a two-month cruise around the world. This official trip is sponsored by the House Expenditures Committee, whose primary responsibility is keeping a watchful eye on Federal expenditure.

It is interesting to note that at this time of the year, official business invariably is most pressing in the sunnier parts of the world. There must be some sort of a cycle operating, because in the blazing heat of midsummer it becomes most pressing in such places as Alaska and the Scandinavian countries. And with the first snow flakes flickering past our window against a grey sky . . . oh, to be a Congressman.

Vacuum In Abadan

The British have left Abadan and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company is no longer operating in Persia. The effect on the city of Abadan, a creation of the company in the farthest corner of Persia's poorest province, is momentous. How could it be otherwise? The Company not only produced the oil and managed the world's biggest refinery, but it has also run all the public services, such as transport, fire brigade, water, sewage, housing, health, catering and amusements. It was a company town and now the Company has left. What happens in Abadan will be instructive to other governments which are thinking of driving the "foreigners" out.

Abadan was run by the Company with honest inflexibility. It had built over the last twenty years 6,000 spacious brick houses for Persian employees—but there were 30,000 of them, so the majority continued to live in dismal hovels. The good houses were awarded on a rigid point system—to the best, most faithful and senior workers. A labourer needed as much as twenty years' service before he qualified for a house. The Company decided on points whether a worker's relative should have a company-provided coffin of oak or of plain white wood. So omnipresent in Abadan was the Company that it was a state within a state—and really the only public service the Persians provided themselves was the policing. Even the police used Company cars and trucks, and the assistance of the Company's own security department.

Now the Company has gone, the refineries are not operating, and the Persians in Abadan, formerly resentful of the superior attitude of the British colony and jealous of their privileges, have to fall back on their own resources, which are pitifully small, or on the central Government, which is very remote, inefficient and lax. Abadan is an unhappy city now. Unless the Persian technicians and administrators, trained by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, can ride on the momentun created by the A.I.O.C. until other foreign help is received (or the British come back) Abadan will become a ghost town, invested by vultures, rodents and misery.

The Cominform Declines

Not much is being heard of the Cominform these days, for the very good reason that Russia has lost faith in it. The fourth anniversary of its establishment was passed by recently without celebrations.

It was set up under Zhdanov as a direct propaganda and satellite-welding counter-machine to the Marshall Plan, but it failed to effectively counter Marshall Aid either actually or in the imaginations of the Russion and satellite people. When Zhdanov died suddenly earlier this year, no successor has been named to replace him as senior Soviet delegate. There were nine members of the Cominform. Yugoslavia has broken away; the Communist parties of the two outside the Eastern orbit (France and Italy) have withered, and the remaining six, the East European satellites, are now bound to Moscow by the power of the police and not by ideological bonds.

It is believed by some observers that the World Peace Council has been engineered as the successor to the Cominform. One of them, Edward Crankshaw (whose authoritative articles on Russia and East Europe appear from time to time on this page) calls attention to an article in Pravda by a former French Minister for Air, Pierre Cot. "In his analysis of the tasks which confront the peace movement M. Cot uses terms indistinguishable from those used by Lenin and Stalin in their analysis of the tasks confronting the Communist Party". Mr. Crankshaw believes that the World Peace Council is preparing what amounts to a new Popular Front approach by working together with pacifists or "neutralists" wherever they may be found, instead of condemning all those who do not follow the party line.

The World Peace Council's objective may be disruptive and its tactics devious; but it is a feeble substitute for the formerly blatant and menacing Cominform. The plain facts of the matter are that Marshall Aid has succeeded, that West has won the Cold War, and Russia is having to start all over again on another tack.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

BAROQUE music: this is a phrase that we are hearing with increasing frequency these days. Musicians of the old school sputter at the mention of it; what is the point of bringing in a new word when we have managed for so long without it? I can imagine what Sir Hugh Allen would have to say to it! Ten years or so ago it was almost unknown in the English-speaking world, though it had already gained some currency in Germany. Well, I was a bit skeptical when I first heard mention of the word Baroque in connection with music, but I am now completely won over to it because I find it so convenient. This word was originaly a jeweller's term, but after a while it was applied to a certain heavily ornamented type of architecture common on the continent of Europe, especially in Spain, Germany and Austria during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Like the word Gothic as applied to an earlier period of architecture it started as a sort of nickname: the Goths never built cathedrals and the baroque artists would doubtless be puzzled at the word baroque, which so far as I can ascertain came into use after the baroque period.

✧ ✧ ✧

BAROQUE art was an outcome of the Counter-Reformation, when the Roman Catholic church made a mighty effort to put its own house in order. Churches were built in a new style, flamboyant, gaudy, grandiose. Baroque art was much influenced by the art of the theatre, which had become interested in spectacular scenery and elaborate stage devices. Unfortunately it is impossible to assess this type of architecture without making a visit to the continent of Europe, especially the areas that I have mentioned above. One of the strangest accidents of history is that this style of architecture never really caught on in the British Isles, where the Palladian tradition of Wren continued a more sober classical style right through the eighteenth century. In fact it is alleged that the only extant example of the true Baroque style in the British Isles is the porch of St. Mary's Church, Oxford, with its barley-sugar pillars. Thus there is bound to be a certain prejudice against the use of the word Baroque in music in English-speaking countries, where the term is much less significant.

✧ ✧ ✧

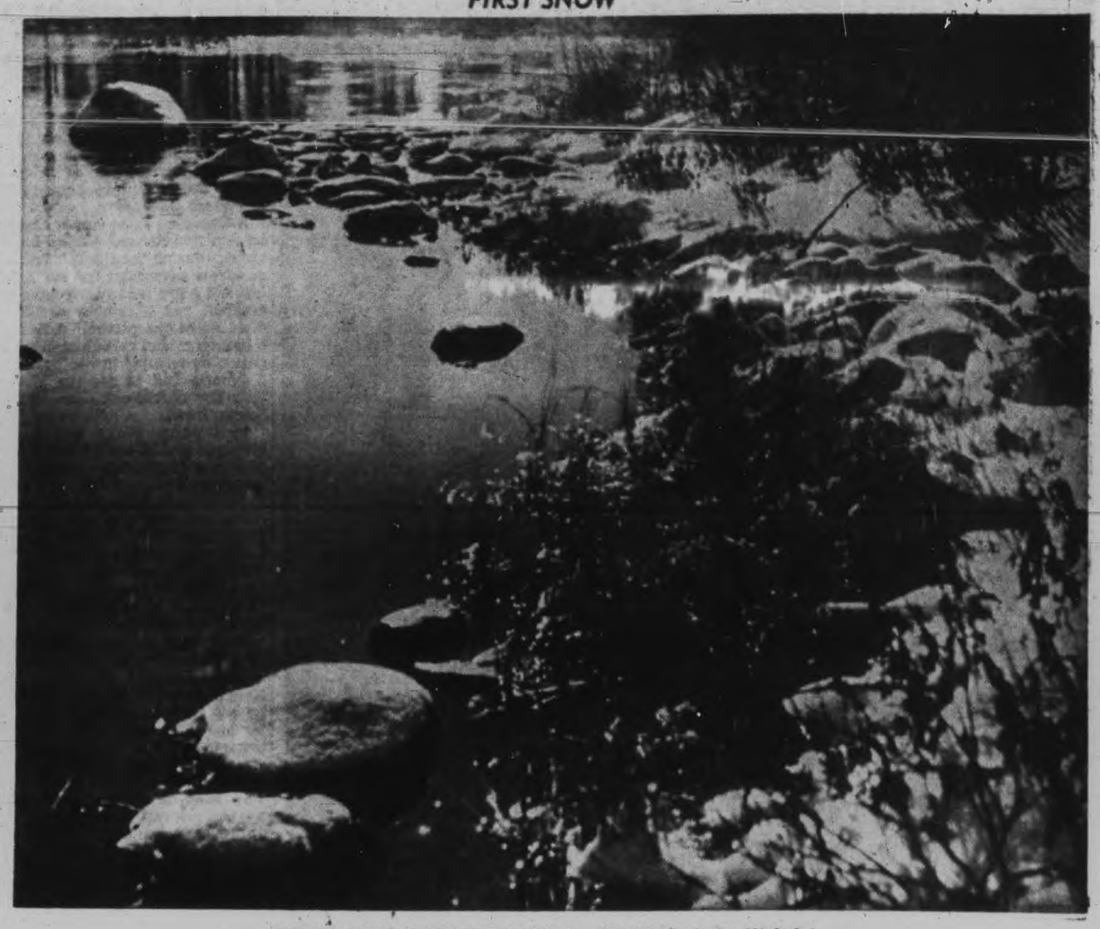
WHAT, then, is the use of the word Baroque as applied to music? All musical historians agree that a profound and more or less clear-cut change came over music at the beginning of the seventeenth century. This change started in Italy, at that time in the vanguard of musical and artistic progress, and spread more or less rapidly to other countries. It reached England about fifty years later, and we can note the dramatic change between the music of Orlando Gibbons, last of the great Rennaissance polyphonists, and Henry Lawes, Pelham Humfrey and Purcell, representatives of the "New Italian Style", as it was then called. This style held the field until the middle of the eighteenth century, when the foundations of the new "Classical" style which found its apogee in Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven were laid by men such as J. C. Bach (son of the great Johann Sebastian Bach). In spite of the wide divergency between individual representatives of this "Baroque" period we find a remarkable overall oneness of purpose and style and a decided break between its preceding and succeeding periods.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHAT, then, was the change from the Renaissance to the Baroque style? It consisted of several elements. In the first place Renaissance music was centred in the church. To be sure there were the madrigals, many of them composed in the same polyphonic style as the masses and motets, though it must be admitted that the "ballets", composed in a simpler homophonic style, look forward to the baroque period. In the baroque period itself the secular theatre, devoted to the entertainment and aggrandisement of princes, began to be of importance. The baroque period also saw the first beginnings of opera. The increasing importance of instrumental music was also mirrored in the development of style. In the renaissance period nearly all the music written was in a vocal style, though the vocal parts could be and frequently were played by instruments. Except for the keyboard pieces of the Elizabethans there was hardly anything specially written for the technical capabilities of any particular instrument (the songs of the lutenists really belong to the early baroque period). The baroque composers, on the other hand, studied the idiosyncrasies of the various instruments and it was not long before Monteverdi and to a lesser extent Purcell were writing idiomatically for them and foreshadowing some of the later developments in orchestral colour.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE period began with a drastic simplification of texture. Gone was the old interweaving of voices. In its place we find a melody supported by a bass, with the harmony filled in by the harpsichord. This new music was simple, straightforward and homophonic. Frescobaldi adapted the old polyphonic style to his own particular needs, but he was a law unto himself. His complete keyboard music has recently been published in Germany, and much of it is very fine, reaching out a hundred years towards Bach.



✧ ✧ ✧

TECHNICALLY speaking this period is responsible for several innovations. The recitative and the da capo aria, the fugue, the suite, the overture, the thorough-bass and several dance forms. It is worthy of notice that most of these innovations were of an "architectural" character. In the early part of the period the only chance of extended development in instrumental music lay in the variation form (already used by Renaissance composers) and the ground bass, itself a type of variation. More important than all these, and lying at the root of them was the development of tonality as we know it today and the dropping of the old church modes, which have survived to the present day only in the unwritten oral tradition of country folk in such songs as Greensleeves, what shall we do with a Drunken Sailor and the Skye Boat Song. Side by side with this composers started to exploit the possibilities of modulation, a development that was of such supreme architectural importance in the classical period. Church choristers may see nothing particularly striking in the sections for full chorus in Purcell's well-known anthem "Rejoice in the Lord Alway", but it displays a freedom in modulation to related keys (relative minor, supertonic, dominant) that is in sharp contrast to the practice of Byrd, Palestrina and Gibbons. Here we feel that each cadence contributes to the architecture of the whole.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is not generally recognized that Bach and Handel, who represent the apex of the Baroque period, the summing-up, so to speak, were already in their time beginning to be "old-fashioned". A new style, the "gallant style", was supplanting the solid style of the late Baroque of Bach and Handel, and though it was difficult to see it at the time it was to serve as a springboard for the Classical period of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. But that is, as Kipling said, another story.

Amateur Cloak-And-Dagger Doings

(CALGARY HERALD)

THE Optimists Club of Calgary seems to take a pretty exalted view of itself, even to the extent that it thinks it can administer military security and impose military censorship.

The Optimists Club should forthwith put away its toy sword and stop playing brass hat. It not only makes itself look ridiculous, but it is playing with a dangerous principle.

A Company Sergeant Major who has served with the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricias in Korea made a speech to the Optimists in the Palliser hotel a few days ago. All we or the general public know about that speech is its title, "Experiences in Korea."

There has been no public report of the CSM's remarks, which we are sure were interesting, because when the newspaper reporters tried to get into the room to listen, they found the doors were locked against them.

The reporters failed even in their attempts to get a second-hand report of the speech, and were fobbed off by Optimist club officials with the lofty and deliciously cloak-and-dagger remark that the talk was not to be reported "for security reasons."

Just who do the Optimists think they are? If the warrant officer made any statements breaking security, which we do not for one moment think he did, because CSM's are usually the best soldiers you'll find anywhere, the Optimists had no more right to hear them than 14,000,000 other Canadians. Military secrets are just as surely revealed if made to a few dozen optimistic Optimists as they would be if broadcast on an international radio hookup. Has the Calgary Optimists Club been checked for security?

If the Optimists want to hold all their meetings in secret and behind locked doors, they have every right to do so. But they have absolutely no right whatever to assume this ludicrous pose of protecting military secrets. The military is quite competent to look after security, and sometimes itself is a little over-zealous.

It must be stressed that there is no military censorship in Canada, even if the Optimists foolishly think they have the power to impose it.

There is quite enough, and probably too much censorship already operating in a quiet way about the Canadian troops in Korea. Ralph Campney who is parliamentary assistant to the Minister of National Defence, said in the Commons this week that troops returning from Korea are not sworn to secrecy. Mr. Campney was either choosing his words very carefully indeed, or he had better check again.

Canadian troops from Korea may not be actually sworn to secrecy, but they are thoroughly briefed, even given mimeographed forms, about what they can and cannot say, to the press or anybody else, and by the time they have discussed Korean weather and Korean fleas they have just about exhausted the list of permissible small talk. Some of these prohibitions are doubtless necessary, but we'll wager an old cowboy hat that mixed up in it all is a lot of blithering nonsense masquerading as "security".

Letters To The Editor

ADVICE TO HUNTERS

Sir: Just a word of warning from an old deer hunter, as the deer hunting starts. I would like to warn all deer hunters, to be careful how they handle their guns and be sure to know what they are shooting at. A few years ago a guide was shot as he was going through the brush; the man that fired the shot did not see what he was firing at; just because he heard the brush cracking he fired in that direction and killed his guide.

And if you happen to get lost, for pity's sake stay right where you are, because you are sure to travel in the wrong direction. Some one will be sure to find you.

URGES MAYOR SWANSTON TO RECONSIDER

Sir: I am very sorry to hear that there is some talk that Mayor Swanston may not be going to have the honour of holding office for the coming year. I know I share the views of many that he should be our mayor for 1952. Mayor Swanston has worked through the difficult period leading to the completion of the new Civic Hospital and the City Hall. He certainly deserves another year in office. I think too, he has earned it because of his excellent record as mayor. I hope he will reconsider his decision to drop out of the running. His business experience and services should not be lost to the city at this time. Mr. Mayor, may we not have the satisfaction of knowing you will stand for office again? I would like to see further expression of opinion in the Examiner.

AN INTERESTED CITIZEN.

DOES PETERBOROUGH HATE CHILDREN?

Sir: Will you please find space in your paper to answer me one question?

IS IT A CRIME TO HAVE CHILDREN IN PETERBOROUGH?

If not, why is it that every time we apply for tenancy of a house or bungalow we are told "no children"?

Last week there was an advertisement in the Examiner of a 6-roomed home to rent. On ringing up my husband was told all the details, then asked "Have you any children?" When he said "Yes, two little girls", immediately he was told "Oh, they didn't want children, only adults".

Adults! in a 6-roomed house! Probably some one working all day and spending just the evening and night in the house. Do not young families need a home more?

I wonder if the owners of the houses ever had a family? If so were they so badly behaved that they think all children are the same?

What about the ones who say: Adults only, abstainers and non-smokers? What they want, but have not the courage to say, is some one to bow to their will all week—and hand over the rent money at the end of the week. I neither drink nor smoke myself, but I don't expect every one else not to.

The box number advertisers don't even bother to answer at all, in spite of the fact that I always enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

The part that really amuses me is this—most of these people consider themselves good Christians. Well, it was Christ himself who said "Suffer little children to come unto me". As far as Peterborough is concerned they can apparently go to H—— and no one would care.

Yours truly,

I. OLSON.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1: 31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest hereof thou shalt surely die. Ontario Mental Hospitals Very Overcrowded—Jolliffe

By The Canadian Press

A charge that Ontario mental hospitals are "desperately" overcrowded was voiced Saturday night in a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address by E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader. He addressed a meeting in Espanola, 80 miles southwest of Sudbury, after speaking Saturday in Sault Ste. Marie. Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, carried his campaign to Sudbury Saturday and today goes to Sault Ste. Marie. Premier Frost, seeking re-election of his Progressive Conservative government, spoke Saturday in the Muskoka district town of Bracebridge.

Mr. Jolliffe said accommodation in mental hospitals is so scarce that "several thousand" persons must wait for admission. Sometimes, especially in northern Ontario, they spent months of the waiting period in district jails.

Build More Hospitals

If elected, his party would build additional mental hospitals. It would also launch a construction program for general, convalescent and isolation hospitals. Then, when a sufficient number of hospitals had been built, it would bring in a contributory hospital care plan.

In Sault Ste. Marie, he said a CCF victory will bring about price controls by forcing the federal government to reconsider its "whole policy of inflation and high prices."

Pledges Better Deal

Mr. Thomson said that if the Liberals win, he will appoint Leo Landreville, Sudbury lawyer, mines minister. He promised the north a "better deal" by increasing its share of mine taxes.

He also pledged his party, if elected to enacting legislation to prohibit export of wood products to manufacturing plants outside the province. The last Liberal government in Ontario had been negotiating with a company that sought to manufacture wallboard in northern Ontario but, when the Progressive Conservatives came to power, the negotiations were broken off.

Premier Frost described the opposition parties as going before the electors with "a hogshead full of promises and a thimbleful of performances." He said Mr. Thomson is like a hired man "who sits around and talks on your time, who would tell you how to run the world, but who never works."

Mr. Frost said his government has been blamed for squandering money. It was true that in Muskoka district alone, the government had spent money on rural electrification, hospitals, community centres, roads and education.

"If that's squandering your money, I'm glad to have squandered money to improve your standard of living."

Canadian Team Wins 3rd Trophy

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—The 63rd United States National Horse Show goes into its next to last day today with Col. Humberto Mariles of Mexico leading in the international jumping competition and a ding-dong battle between an Indiana and Pennsylvania horse for the prized open jumping championship.

Mariles accounted for his fourth international event last night at Madison Square Garden, putting Mexico ahead in the number of events won, after Canada had taken its third trophy during the afternoon. With 10 international events concluded, and three to come, the United States equestrian team, Brazil, and Ireland, have won the other three events.

In the afternoon, the Canadian team of Lt.-Col. Charles Baker, Jr., Tom Gaylord and W. R. Ballard, all of Toronto, rode faultlessly in single file to capture the last of a three-day low score competition and take the challenge trophy donated by President Videla of Chile. The team had only one-half fault for three days of competition. The US team, winner of the event last year with five faults, was second with a combined total of 21 faults.

Sharing the interest is the red hot battle between two former open jumper champs, All Afire, from the Millarden Farm, Annville, Pa., and Velvet Lassie, owned by Mrs. Hubert Thomas, Indianapolis. They are tied with 17 points apiece.

Toronto Milk May Increase

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP) — A Toronto paper says today the retail milk price in the Toronto area may soon be increased to 22 cents a quart. It now sells for 21 cents delivered, 20 cents cash-and-carry.

Bargaining on a price to be paid to producers starts this week between the Toronto Milk Distributors' Association and the Toronto Milk Producers' Association. Producers now receive $4.20 a hundredweight.

The paper's newspage story says "some indication of the likely outcome" may be seen in recent action at Hamilton.

"Distributors and producers in that area now have an agreement before the board calling for a price of $4.75 per hundredweight, which would bring the price to the consumer up to 22 cents per quart."

Aussies Really Worried

Find Inflation Hits Record Heights

By LOUIS L. LECK

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP) — Latest official figures indicating inflation's steady increase in Australia have the population really worried.

A rise of six per cent in the cost of living from July 1 to Sept. 30 forced up the basic wage from £9, 13s. to £10, 7s. a week in Sydney. An office boy at the big lead mine at Mount Isa earns £12, 9s. a week, and a fly-sprayer on a whale chaser earns £30 a week.

Inflation has been creeping up on the Australian people faster than ever for more than a year. Based on 100 as the average for the period 1923-1927, the official cost-of-living index stood at 91 in September, 1939. It rose to 142 in 1949, 164 in 1950. For March this year the figure was 171; for June, 183; for September, 194.

Up 35 Per Cent

What worries Prime Minister R. G. Menzies most is that since he took office in December, 1949, the cost of living has increased by about 35 per cent. The Australian system of fixing basic wages means that increases in the cost-of-living index are automatically reflected in the basic wage.

It's the old spiral of higher wages meaning higher prices, meaning still higher wages.

Some trade-unionists accept the fact that automatic adjustments in wages do not keep pace with rising living costs, but they are not prepared to accept the proposition put forward by some employers that the only way to break the vicious circle is to stop raising wages.

Against Price Control

On the other hand, employers are cold toward's the Labor party's proposition that the proper action is strict control of prices. Employers say price control is useless without a wage freeze and all the controls that go with it.

Basically, rising prices here are part of a world-wide inflationary trend which has affected most other countries. But there are special factors intensifying the problem in Australia. One is the steep increase in Australian wool prices. Another is the increased immigration total, running at about 125,000 immigrants a year.

It is estimated that every immigrant involves a capital expenditure of about £1,000 before he starts to add to the national income. And pressure of immigration on housing, transport, and to some extent on food supplies, is considerable.

Short Of Basic Supplies

Australia also is chronically short of coal, steel, electric power and transport facilities. These shortages have prevented production increasing as fast as is necessary to cope with the inflationary effects of higher export incomes and immigration.

Also looming large is the defence and development program. During and immediately after the Second World War the public works program of roads, railways, irrigation schemes and the vast snowy mountains hydro-electric plan was allowed to elapse. But since the war the need for these public works has become urgent. So has the need for diverting a proportion of productive capacity to re-armament.

Wages And Hours

In 1949 the commonwealth arbitration court reduced standard working hours in industry from 44 to 40. In 1950 it increased the "real basic wage by £1. (Under the Australian system this £1 increase was related not to the price level but to the capacity of industry to pay. However the increase has since been subject to changes in the cost of living).

There is no unemployment in Australia today nor has there been for several years. Consequently the basic—and generally lowest paid industries—have been starved of labor while less essential industries have been able to attract workers by paying considerable margins over the basic wage.

These are the factors operating to increase inflation.

The policy of the former Labor government of John Curtin and J. B. Chifley was to curb inflation by controls, of which the most important were wage pegging, price control, subsidies on basic food items, and control of credit and land sales. Only credit control remains on the books.

The Menzies government has found it desirable to re-impose control of new capital issues and in the budget recently increased taxation rates steeply. Meantime the little man watches the climbing index with fear and puzzlement.

US Playwright Uses Socrates To Present Democracy's Worth

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—Turning to Athens in the fifth century before Christ, playwright Maxwell Anderson presents in his new play, "Barefoot In Athens," a strong case for the virtues of democracy as the free nations of the world know it in this twentieth century.

Pivoting his plot on the philosopher Socrates, Anderson's argument for democratic principles is that despite the many defects that may crop up in a democracy, it is still a much better system than any totalitarian government.

Socrates, played by English actor Barry Jones with humorous understanding, is pictured as a fellow who likes to say what he pleases. He refuses to be gagged, even when it means war with Sparta.

And, with an implied parallel to some of the restrictions and censorship that exist in totalitarian countries of today, Anderson pictures Socrates as a man willing to face charges of treason and sentence of death rather than give up his right to speak freely what he thinks. He prefers to go to his death rather than leave his native Athens when he learns that nowhere in his world can be found freedom of speech.

Uses Modern Language

While he uses historic characters of long ago to argue for freedom and democracy, Anderson's characters expound the principles of Socrates in modern language.

The play has its share of sexy facets with Lotte Lenya, a Viennese actress, playing a very lovely Xantippe. George Matthews is a forceful King of Sparta.

PCVS Trounces Belleville In Senior Grid Fray En Route To COSSA Finals

Below freezing temperature and five inches of snow didn't bother PCVS' Garnet and Grey seniors to any extent Saturday in Belleville as they continued on their way to the COSSA finals.

Coach G. B. (Bev) Goulding's charges, without shovels or scrapers, ploughed their way through the snow to lace Coach Red Townsend's Belleville Collegiate for the second time this year, this time 39-0.

In the first game this season, the PCVS line faltered in the first half, allowing Belleville to stay close. But Saturday in Belleville the line stopped Belleville cold and didn't let them carry the ball across the centre stripe.

Lanky Paul Frise, husky Stan Facendi, Jim Telford, Hugh Outram and Larry Forbes pounded the equally-large Bay of Quinte line to submission by the fourth quater. Then the whole Belleville team collapsed under the steady PCVS pressure.

Kept Rolling

Noticeable improvement was made by the alternate linemen such as Gary Gilders, Doug Graham, Jim Wilkinson and Jack King. Hardly any difference could be seen when the second string was sent in while the first liners sat out to get warm.

The line chalked up four blocked kicks in eight attempts by Belleville and snared no less than five costly Belleville fumbles. Frise even knocked down a pass as it was on its way over the line.

Good Backfield

While the line was doing its work, the PCVS backfield, in spite of the cold, had an exceptionally good game. Quarter Bryan Young played another excellent game in running, kicking and passing.

But the ground-gainer was the driving full back, Murray Grafstein, who averaged about 12 to 17 yards on each power play and four yards through the centre.

Warren Brown and Buster Jensen found the plunging easy behind the blocking linemen who were taking out their men on each play with the precision of champions.

Dave Langhorne, who alternates with Young at quarter, again proved his ability to handle the team. His play was especially noticed in the fourth quarter as he jogged through the line on numerous occasions. Earlier he had split the posts with a short placement for three points.

Belleville gave up after the first PCVS plays. They fumbled twice in the cold snow and each time PCVS recovered. Brown and Jensen then plunged for yards before Young passed, one [illegible] completed, to Bob Craw for five yards. Craw scampered down the sideline to score. Young converted.

Early in the second quarter, Grafstein went for first downs three times but the drive fell short and Young kicked for a point. A fumble recovered by Grafstein at the Belleville 30 placed PCVS in position for a second point by Young.

PCVS started a second TD rush before the half from the centre line. Young first ran for 20 yards, then Grafstein for five. Young broke into the clear on a quarterback sneak to score the final points, 13, in the first half.

Kept Rolling

Young started a 26-point scoring parade early in the third when he ran back a kick for 35 yards. Grafstein escaped for 22 yards on the next play and Young followed up with a run around left end to score. He fumbled the snap on the convert but calmly drop-kicked the point with three men rushing him.

Brown, Young, Langhorne and Jensen placed the ball in scoring position within three minutes. Brown went over standing up to make the score 24.0. The Garnet and Grey pressed again but were forced to kick for a field goal from the 16-yard line. Langhorne neatly placed the ball over the cross-bar. Then Belleville completely collapsed.

Bob Craw intercepted a Belleville pass at the Belleville 54-yard line and before the Bay of Quinte players had realized what happened, he had scooted up the sideline to score. Langhorne finished the job on the convert.

Belleville blocked a low kick on the kick-off and PCVS recovered only to fumble. Belleville then fumbled. The ball was kicked up the field by six PCVS linemen, mostly by Gary Gilders, and Doug Graham fell on the ball behind the line.

It shot out of his hands and Jensen dropped on it for the final major. Langhorne added the 39th point.

Cobourg Blanks Orillia 20-0 On Snowy Field

COBOURG, Nov. 5.—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts climaxed their ORFU Senior B home schedule with a 20-0 win Saturday over Orillia Blue Bombers.

The game played on a snowy, wet field, kept Cobourg in the race for first position in the standing. Tuesday night's game in Oshawa will be the do-or-die test for the Gallopers. A win for either team means first place and the right to play Hamilton-Dundas, Panthers in the first-round play-offs for the title.

A first half punch settled the issue as Cobourg took advantage of a penalty to Orillia on the Bombers' 27-yard stripe to score an early touchdown in the first quarter. In the second they added another touch. Art Jones' conversion and a single gave the Gallopers a 13-0 lead at half-time.

Works Hard

Ernie White, Orillia's passing and plunging star, was a work horse for punishment, but he could not penetrate the Ghosts' defence in close. His passed to Wilds were either hurried by a charging line or else ended incomplete.

For the Ghosts, Coon Medhurst was used often but Orillia were watching him and he took a rough ride. Campbell, Cooper and Lenahan were the brighest stars of the Cobourg galaxy.

The tense feeling between the teams was demonstrated in the second quarter when the Ghost defenders pushed an Orillia runner after he was out of touch and sent him to a fence marking the sideline. He came up fighting and when Cobourg trainer, Johnny New, joined in, players on both sides started milling and shoving. New received a fist in the face for his pains, but few bruises came out of it otherwise.

JERSEY JOE MEETS THE VETS — The heavyweight boxing champion of the world, Jersey Joe Walcott, invaded the north end of the Montreal Forum recently between falls in the Darnell-Rogers wrestling match he refereed, and sat among the World War 1 wounded veterans, quartered at Ste. Anne de Bellevue military hospital, who are the regular guests of promoter Eddie Quinn. At left is Joe Shears, old-time boxing star, who is regularly in charge of the veteran group. The crowd of 10,000 cheered Jersey Joe loudly for his thoughtful gesture.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Chilled fingers grasp the rifle.
For the watch is cold and still;
Then the hounds bay out a big one
Over the crest of the hill:
There's a crash in the brush by the runway,
White flag on a rump is seen—
But the bounding buck swerves to the right
And is lost in the deep ravine.

Yes, sir (and you, madam) we'd be out there on a watch today but a recent lacrosse trip west ruined our chances of any more time off this season. Ah, well, we'll miss the thrill of the hunt and the fill of venison—but we'll also miss the frostbite.

Since the veteran ball secretary, Bill Snyder, died, the OBA has been having a lot of trouble. A raft of playdown clubs have been kicking violently on various series, a bunch of protests have been launched—and disregarded—and many clubs have calmly ignored OBA edicts completely. Including the powerful senior Intercounty League. Belleville writer claims the Picton management says what should happen is for Eastern Ontario to form an overall baseball association of its own and forget the OBA. "That suggestion," says the scribe, "should meet with unanimous approval in a lot of quarters down in this neck of the woods." It may come to that, yet.

Prices On The Puckists

Not much amateurism left in hockey these days. The OHA junior "A" council, with the probable okay of the OHA, is now putting a maximum value of $10,000 on a junior club franchise and setting a scale of prices of $500, $1,000 and $1,500 for one, two or three years of junior "A" experienced players. Future franchise purchasers would need the majority approval of other junior "A" clubs. A new club would get first chance to buy the old club's players, like beef on the hoof. The junior setup has also asked the OHA to ditch the new icing-the-puck rule. Apparently, it makes for two many play stoppages.

Toronto scribes last week blamed Maurice Richard for starting fights with the Leafs in Toronto and Montreal, and said Flaman bested him in the bout at the Forum. However, Montreal writers have a different tale, saying Toronto pucksists were to blame and that not only was Flaman soundly beaten by the trigger-tempered Rocket but the latter also knocked Juzda colder than 42 below. Juzda (sometimes know as the Beast) did do a bit of damage on an indignant Bouchard, biting big Butch's finger and leaving teeth marks. Tch, tch. As for the Rocket, they'd better keep a sharp eye out as he's not only a strong chap and very fast in a scrap, but he is an aggressive type who fears no one. Too bad the NHL hasn't a dozen colorful and capable performers like him.

Saints Take The Cup

Local grid squads were not scored upon in three weekend games out of town. St. Peter's captured the Catholic Conference senior "B" crown in Toronto by whitewashing St. Mike's 17-0 to make it two straight in their best-of-three series, having won the first one 16-0. Fifth victory is a row for Johnny Lynch's Saints, who concluded their season Saturday. Their line proved too strong for St. Mike's in both playoff tilts. The junior "B" SPS fellows, who have been rolling right along, also, this autumn have drawn a bye into the COSSA "B" finals, since Belleville defaulted to them. They'll be playing the winner of the Georgian Bay-Niagara district survivor in the final here Nov. 17.

Al MacQuarrie's junior PCI-ers wound up their campaign on a happy note in Lindsay, winning 5-0 in a blinding snowstorm. Off to a poor start nearly two months ago, the Garnet and Greys were improving plenty in the late stages of the schedule. In Belleville on Saturday, wretched football weather failed to halt Bev Goulding's senior "A" PCVS pack from steamrollering 39-0 through the Quinte crew. All of the play was in the Belleville area and the homesters collapsed in the final quarter as the Peterborough line punched them full of holes and the scatbacks slithered through to rack up the count. A fine all-around show by the Collegians, who now take on Oshawa here Saturday and should be in the COSSA final here a week later.

Count Fleet Hurt In Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP). — There is some doubt whether counterpoint will race again this year but that doesn't figure to keep him from being named the top three-year-old and horse of 1951.

Although he won the race, the C. V. Whitney Count Fleet colt came out of Saturday's $50,000 Empire City Handicap at Jamaica with a crack in his left hoof.

"It may be a quarter crack," said trainer Sylver Veitch today, "but we won't know until the veterinarian cuts out part of the foot today."

Veitch had planned to start the colt Saturday in the $50,000 Butler Handicap at Jamaica, then the Pimlico Special on Nov. 16.

But now the injury has changed all of his plans.

There isn't a horse among the three-year-olds that holds a better claim to the divisional title. And that goes for Greentree stable's Hall of Fame, a mid-summer sensation with victories in the Arlington classic and American Derby; Brookmeade stable's Bold, victor in the Preakness; Jack Amell's Count Turf, first home in the Kentucky Derby, and George Widener's stake-winning Battlefield.

Pittsburgh Divides Two Weekend Games

By The Canadian Press.

Frank King Clancy's Pittsburgh Hornets dropped their first game, Saturday, when Providence Reds edged them 2-1, but the Hornets came back strong Sunday to shade Indianapolis Capitals 4-3 and retain their lead in the western division of the American Hockey League with 18 points.

Cleveland Barons in second spot with 15 points, routed the Providence Reds 5-2 Sunday, and drowned St. Louis Flyers 4-2 on Saturday. This extended their winning streak to seven.

In other weekend tilts Cincinnati Mohawks defeated St. Louis 3-2 Sunday and shaded Syracuse Warriors 3-2 Saturday. Buffalo Bisons beat Syracuse 2-1 Sunday and Hershey Bears routed Indianapolis 5-2 Saturday.

OHA Executive Upholds Nylon Players' Suspension

TORONTO, Nov. 5. (CP)—The executive committee of the Ontario Hockey Association Saturday night ratified action, taken in Kingston, Oct. 10 by the OHA sub-committee, suspending for different periods the manager, coach and 12 players of the Kingston Nylon Senior B Hockey Club.

They were charged with throwing a three-game playoff series to Peterborough last spring. The manager and coach each received life suspensions. Two players were suspended for one year while 10 other players received two-year suspensions.

The committee said in a statement: "The executive committee, having heard the full report of the sub-committee with reference to its investigation of the charges concerning the manager, coach and 12 players of the Kingston Nylon Hockey Club, finds that in its opinion the said persons were concerned in an arrangement to permit the Peterborough Hockey Club to win a play-off series in the season 1950-51 so that the Nylon club could qualify for Senior "B" competition instead of Allan Cup competition."

Suspensions Given

Suspended for life Oct. 10 were manager D. L. McKnight and coach George Patterson. Players Rawlind Aitken and Edward Plumb received two year suspensions. Players given one-year suspensions were: Jack Stone, Ken Murphy, Walter Gerow, Ken Partis, Jack McKeown, Freddy Harrison, Joe Watts, Glynn Udall, Robert Joyce, Kenny Poots, Douglas Patterson and Jack Armstrong.

The executive committee said it is prepared to hear any who wish to appeal against the decision.

John Roxburgh, of Simcoe, OHA president, said there was no doubt the team was guilty of throwing the games.

"They had the idea they wouldn't get anywhere in the Allan Cup playoffs."

At the same time, the committee emphasized that the Peterborough club had no knowledge of the Kingston plans.

Layton Claims Chop Legal Not Worrying Over 2 Refs

Lord Athol Layton is shown here demonstrating—but gently—his judo slash or chop to the neck of a referee. Layton maintains this is a legal blow in wrestling but most referees, opponents and fans disagree. Since a similar slash by Athol earlier this season put Whipper Bill Watson in hospital, officials take a dim view of the wicked slash used by the tall Britisher.

Two referees will be the ring at the Brock this Tuesday night when Layton meets Zorra, the French Tarzan, in a rematch in the main bout. They will be watching, among other things, for the judo slash by his lordship, and they will be checking to see that Zorra—master of the French "savate" uses only the flat of his feet in many various kicks, use of the toe being illegal.

After the wild and woolly match this pair staged here last week, a sellout crowd is expected for the rematch.

The semi-final will feature the former Masked Marvel, Lou Newman—minus his hood—against the Irish Strongman, Timothy Geohagen. The opener brings together Dangerous Dan O'Connor and Sonny Kurgis.

PCVS Juniors Eke Win Over Lindsay

Coach Al MacQuarrie's junior Garnet and Greys picked up some football experience which could be provided only by Mother Nature, playing in a blinding snow storm.

The Garnet and Grey survived Saturday a snow storm in which the flakes were "as large as ink bottles" and won their second game, 5-0, this year against Lindsay Collegiate in Lindsay.

The only score of the game came in the first quarter when the Garnet and Greys caught Lindsay napping with a quick kick. This placed Lindsay deep in their own territory in six inches of snow.

Gary Kearns, Jack Corbett and Barry Hollingsworth ploughed their way through the snow and the Lindsay team in straight runs and plunged until Hollingsworth went through centre to score. It went unconverted.

Good Hoofing

Corbett's punting in the first quarter and part-way through the second held the pressing Scugog gridders off. He outdistanced the Lindsay punters by 20 yards on each kick.

Only once more did PCVS have a perfect chance to score, then in the second quarter when Corbett passed to Kearns in the clear. His short legs couldn't carry him over the deep snow and he was caught before crossing the line.

When the teams came out for the second half, they were met by a blizzard. At times if the referee and headlinesman moved more than 10 feet away from the ball, it was out of sight.

"When the play was on the opposite side of the field, we could hardly see the players," said Coach MacQuarrie. "I never saw is snow like that before in my life."

The victory for PCVS was their second this year. They were just beginning to show signs of playing good football. It gave them a record of two wins, three losses and a tie (that five-all in the Lindsay-PCVS game at Morrow Park).

This is the first time in five years that the junior Garnet and Greys have not reached COSSA finals. Last year the juniors won the title for the third straight year, but only three of the championship players were eligible for junior play this year.

British Team Fades Before US

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 5 (AP) —The crating job captain Arthur Lacey of Britain's Ryder Cup golf team, hoped to have done on the international trophy has been postponed. Uncle Sam's crack professionals saw to that Sunday when they ran off with six of the eight singles matches and tied another to clinch the two-day competition by a 9½-to-2½ score, second highest margin since cup play began in 1927.

When the Britons arrived in the US two weeks ago Lacey said they had brought the best-balanced, finest conditioned squad ever to cross the Atlantic.

But captain Sam Snead touched off the winning spark with a flurry of birdies and pars and his tournament-tested mates quickly fell in line with some strong play that made a shambles of the competition.

Snead handed the 7,007-yard course's par 72 a five-stroke lacing with a morning 67 to shoot four holes ahead of Max Faulkner, current British open title-holder. In the afternoon Sammy was one under par for 15 holes to close out the match, 4 and 3. He brought down the British champion with a final volley of three threes.

Hopping on the victory band wagon for the United States were open champion Ben Hogan, Jackie Burke, Jimmy Demaret, Lloyd Mangrum and Stewart (Skip) Alexander.

Plan Indian Trophy

CAUGHNAWAGA INDIAN RESERVE, Que., Nov. 5 (CP). — A trophy is going to be awarded annually to Canada's best all-round Indian athlete, a government official announced Sunday. Medals will go to outstanding Indian athletes in eight regions across Canada. The trophy and medals are to be named after Tom Longboat, famous Iroquois runner who scintillated on Canadian and international cinder paths at the turn of the century.

St. Peter's Gridiron Squad Blank St. Mike's 17-0 To Capture Conference Title

Through snow, mud and slush St. Peter's smeared their annual rivals, St. Michael's College of Toronto, 17-0 in Toronto Sunday for the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" championship. This year DeLaSalle Oaklands dropped out of senior "B" play and the other two teams decided to play a challenge series, best of three, for the title. St. Peter's easily romped through St. Mike's in the first game here a month ago for a 16-0 win and finished off the set 17-0 in Toronto on a snow-covered field which was patched with muddy places.

Line Stood Out

Runs, plunges and no passing made the game rather unspectacular but the playing of the St. Peter's line which baffled St. Mike's in the first game again stood out. Clarke, Sullivan, Kirkley and Byrne again helped stop the Toronto college boys cold.

John Jones stepped into the plunging shoes of Carl Brioux who found the digging in difficult on the mucky field. This was the first game this season that he has failed to lead the Saints on the ground attack.

Jones, a much-lighter backfielder, used his shiftiness to dodge for lengthy gains. Throughout the game he broke loose into the St. Mike's secondary for gains of 10, 12 and 15 yards.

Jones Drives

St. Mike's found the Saints difficult to crack when they first had possession and were forced to kick. Almost immediately Jones began to work. He first plunged for 20 yards, then 14 yards before Jack Richardson made six on a plunge. But Toronto strengthened to stop the parade.

St. Mike's still found they couldn't penetrate St. Peter's defence in the second quarter and kicked. Richardson gathered the ball in and ran back to the Toronto 45-yard line. Jones on three successive plunges totalled 33 yards. Brioux then plunged for 11 placing the ball on the St. Michael's 12 yard line. From there Jones took over for a nine-yard rush and Richardson topped off the 45-yard march for a touchdown on a quarterback sneak. He also converted for the extra point.

Rolled Again

Early in the third quarter after standout playing by St. Peter's junior, Paul Byrne, and senior, Carl Brioux, the Saints began to roll a second time when star lineman, Jim Clarke, grabbed a second down fumble by St. Michael's and romped for 15 yards, placing the ball on Toronto's 15-yard line. Frank Farley and Brioux picked up 12 yards and then Jack Richardson went over for his second major score. This time the extra point attempt failed.

St. Michael's rallied briefly at the end of the quarter when McCallum and Seymour broke away for two long end runs, making two first downs. But again the attack was stopped.

Fumbles played a large part in the fourth quarter play as St. Peter's for the fourth straight period forced St. Michael's back. John Jones and Jack Richardson in four plays carried for 57 yards and then St. Peter's lost the ball but not for long. They miscued and Brioux on an eight-yard rush started the last scoring play. Jones plunged twice for 11 yards then topped off his afternoon performance by scoring the final major. Jack Richardson kicked the extra point.

P of W Team Captures Senior Crown

Prince of Wales won the senior championship of the Public School Soccer League this season. They won six games and lost but one for a total of 12 points throughout the autumn schedule. It was the highest mark in the senior section of the school circuit and, since there were no playoffs, Prince of Wales automatically wins the league title and the Kinsman Trophy.

The victorious players were: Junior Allen, Art Carl, Fred Boyce, Bill Bebee, Jack Peirson, Jim Sutherland (captain), Fred Chambo, George Downer, Randall Bowes, Ronald Oliver, Gordon Hunt, Earl Robbins, Ken Johnston, Ken Aulbrooke and Bill Douglas.

The weekend soccer squad played good football consistently throughout the season, showing a good knowledge of the code for their age, playing fast on the offensive and checking well, besides getting neat goaltending. Prince of Wales proved quite clearly they were worthy school senior soccer winners this season.

Pheasants Plentiful

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Lincoln county game warden Roy Arbuthnot, referring to the pheasant season here Oct. 25-27, said "there are a lot more birds around now than there have been in years past." A fourth day's shooting is permitted Oct. 31.

Mustangs Battle Varsity To 13-13 Tie

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—The battling Mustangs from the University of Western Ontario slowed down the championship march of the University of Toronto Blues in the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union Saturday.

The Mustangs came from behind twice to wind up in a 13-13 tie with the Blues who stretched their unbeaten string this season to five games. But the Blues still found the Western field a jinx. They haven't won here since 1936.

The tie cut Varsity's margin in the standings over the second-place McGill team to a single point to carry into the final scheduled game against the Redmen in Toronto next Saturday.

The Blues were lucky to take home their one point on the tie.

The Mustangs missed two convert attempts which would have given they a win and they bobbled another chance late in the game when Varsity intercepted a first-down forward pass 22 yards from the Toronto goalline.

Have Lead Twice

Each team took over the lead twice in the see-saw battle on a soft field. Snow which fell overnight melted during the first half when the sun came out.

But Obal kicked the Mustangs in front in the first quarter with a single point. Varsity struck back to take command in the second with Bill Bewley's touchdown which Jimmy Bell converted. The Mustangs rubbed that out on Murray Henderson's touchdown only to have Al Haig kick a single to send the Toronto club into the second half with a one-point lead.

Singles by Obal and Jimmy Carroll put the Mustangs out in front in the third quarter. Varsity started the fourth with a touchdown dash by Bob Dale converted by Bell. Western tied it up on a 25-yard run by Don Beatty, who picked up the loose ball and ran for a touchdown on a blocked kick.

Bruins In Second Place After Curbing Hawks In 4-2 Weekend Victory

By The Canadian Press

If folks can spare a moment from this warmed-up football season to take a look at the National Hockey League standings today they might get a big surprise. Yes, that's Boston up there right behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. The once-mighty Bruins who haven't been doing so well in recent years, climbed over Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs on Sunday night to take the runner-up spot with a 4-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks. And they are within striking distance of the Wings who make a habit of going ahead early and staying there.

The Wings had a comfortable weekend—a 3-2 decision over the Canadiens at Montreal Saturday and a 4-2 victory over the straggling New York Rangers at Detroit Sunday night. The other weekend game saw Toronto drop its fourth straight Saturday night game this season—a 2-1 loss to the Rangers.

Feature of the weekend was the showing of Maurice Richard, brilliant Montreal right-winger who rapped in the 300th and 301st goals of his NHL career. The Rocket had been looking for the charmed 300th all last week and the feat was accomplished before a full-house tome-town crowd of 14,524.

Second In History

It made him the second man in the 34-year history of the NHL to score 300.

The Wings demonstrated that they aren't a one-line club in their weekend victories. At Montreal, Red Kelly scored two and Glen Skov once while in the Sunday night home encounter against the Rangers, their marksmen were Gordie Howe, Marty Pavelich, Fred Glover and Vic Stasiuk.

Rookies Wally Hergesheimer and Hy Buller looked after the Rranger scoring.

Boston came from behind to take their victory with veteran Milt Schmidt scoring one and assisting in another.

The Hawks managed to get the first goal on an NHL opponent for the first time this season when Gus Bodnar scored at 4.20 of the opening period. But the lead didn't last long.

Ties Up Game

Adam Brown tied it at 12.16 with the Hawks short-handed. Less than three minutes later Ed Sandford made it 2-1 and the Bruins didn't look back. Schmidt got the third Bruin goal in the second and Brown completed the Boston scoring late in the final session with goalkeeper Harry Lumley out of the nets.

Jim Conacher netted Chicago's second goal late in the second period.

Two of the three goals scored at Toronto came with the clubs a man short. Toronto's Tod Sloan netted at 6.26 of the first period with Gaye Stewart in the penalty box and Nick Nickoski made it 1-1 two minutes later when Jim Thomson of the Leafs was serving a high-sticking penalty.

Jackie McLeod ended the scoring at 8.35 of the third session.

OHA Executive Hears Requests

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP).—The executive committee of the Ontario Hockey Association, at a meeting here Saturday, heard requests from member clubs for rulings on matters pertaining to OHA regulations, and appeals from two players.

James Farelli, of Capreol, asked that his application for a release from a Fort William club to play with Galt be withdrawn. He said he wanted to play with Kitchener and his request was granted.

He said he had signed a contract with Galt but not a playing card.

The OHA recognized his withdrawal.

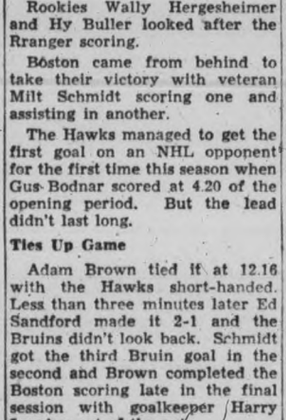
Melville Mullen of Toronto, suspended by the OHA when he failed to answer two summons to appear before them, appealed for reinstatement.

Mullen played two years with St. Catharines' Junior A club. The committee was told he was released to play with Guelph but it was discovered he was over the junior age limit of 21.

He was then released to a commercial team in the Toronto Hockey League and played several games before his suspension.

The OHA agreed Mullen would be reinstated immediately he reimbursed advances to him by the Toronto team.

Hockey's Big Seven



By The Canadian Press.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens, who picked up two goals Saturday night, and team-mate Elmer Lach, who was credited with two assists, are deadlocked for first place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race. Both have 12 points.

Richard leads the league in goal-getting—nine — and Lach tops the roster in the assist division—10.

Three players are tied for third place with nine points.

Hint Eisenhower Dissatisfied With Re-arming

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (CP)—General Eisenhower flew back to the United States Saturday with a fresh disclaimer of political ambitions, and amid indications he may step swinging into a Washington clash over the speed of rearmament.

"I have never had any political aspirations—period," the Supreme Commander of the Allied powers in Europe told reporters on his arrival at New York from Paris.

He wouldn't even say whether he was a Democrat or a Republican. Asked whether it would be correct to say that "come what may, you will not be a candidate for the presidency next year," Eisenhower replied:

"Of course you can't say that. I will not indicate political leanings of any kind. I'm doing a job. That's my statement."

While the General thus shut off political questions, and said the progress of European defence is partly encouraging and partly discouraging, the stage was being set for the talks he will have here with President Truman and other leaders today and Tuesday.

Very Dissatisfied

Informed officials passed the word that Eisenhower is deeply dissatisfied with the rate of military buildup in Europe, and also wants Washington to join in creating a small, battleworthy military force there in six months or so.

This schedule would be far ahead of the long range, full strength defence plans now envisaged. To put it into effect, Eisenhower is expected to press for some changed procedures in US arms production and distribution. Some officials predicted he would bear down hard to get these changes ordered during his Washington talks.

"I have come home on the military side," he said at New York.

"I am on a job in which the United Sattes has invested worlds and worlds of treasure, time and thought, and for me to imply any political or partisan leanings would be a dis-service to the country."

Last of Festival

LONDON, Nov. 5—(Reuters)—Speeches, cracking fireworks and a beauty queen contest Saturday night marked the closing of the Battersea Park Funfair—and the end of the 1951 Festival of Britain.

The big amusement park on the banks of the Thames river was the last principal festival attraction to shut down.

End Treasure Hunt

DETROIT, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Police ended a "treasure hunt" Saturday after recovering more than $12,000 cached in hydrants, lunch pails, tin boxes and autos by three youths who took the money from the attic of Dr. Max F. Newman. Police Inspector Vern Bailey said the physician refused to press charges against the youths, one of them the doctor's 13-year-old foster son.

FEELING ALL

DRAGGED-OUT?

Do you wake up in the morning feeling tired and dragged-out? Do you have a dull head, and force yourself to keep going at a job that seems to be just plain drudgery?

It may be there's just one thing preventing you from feeling fit as a fiddle with a happy outlook on life. Like as not your trouble is due to sluggish kidneys, or just a case of plain constipation. Kruschen Salts is specially made to help correct those very conditions. Kruschen contains laxative and diuretic ingredients similar to those found in well-known mineral springs. Which means that Kruschen helps both bowels and kidneys to get rid of waste matter—gently, yet effectively.

It's worth trying anyway. Half a teaspoonful is all you need in a tumbler of hot water each morning before breakfast when needed. Millions of people use this aid to better health. Try it yourself. Get a package of Kruschen Salts today.

Actress Says Hollywood Dating Different

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5 (AP)—Dating in Hollywood is different than in Dubuque, and not only in the Payton-Tone set.

A view of the more normal social life in the movie town is offered by Vera-Ellen, the dancing doll who has managed to elude marriage in seven years here.

"I've though aboutt getting married several times," she said. "But instead of thinking about it twice, I've thought about it 10 times and end up not doing it. The reason is that I had one unhappy marriage and I know how miserable it can be."

Vera-Ellen has been linked with such names as Rory Calhoun, Rock Hudson and Richard Anderson, but has never gone steady. "I don't believe in it," she said. "If you're going to go steady, you might as well get married."

No Time

As a matter of fact, she continued, a Hollywood gal, doesn't have too much time to devote to hunting a husband.

"When I'm in a picture, I don't have much time to go out," she explained. "I have to be up at 5.15 in the morning, and that doesn't allow much night life."

Many a bachelor girl complains about the dearth of single male talent in Hollywood, and Vera-Ellen agreed. Many eligible males are too awed to ask a film celebrity for a date.

A hazard with the Hollywood males: "Sometimes you can't be sure whether a fellow is taking you out for the pleasure of your company or because he wants to get his name in the gossip columns."

Snow Blankets New York State

ALBANY, NY, Nov. 5 (AP)—The freak pre-winter storm sweeping across New York state dumped up to 12 inches of snow on some western communities Sunday and sent the temperatures nose-diving to near zero in eastern and central portions of the state.

Eight persons have died since the frigid, snowy weather arrived. Four of the victims were killed Saturday in an automobile-truck collision on a slushy highway near Whitney Point, Broome county.

The 12-inch snowfall was reported north of Buffalo—at Kenmore, a suburb of Buffalo, and near Niagara Falls.

Niagara river bridges connecting Grand Island and Niagara Falls were closed for three hours because of the snow. Buffalo had only flurries on top of the nearly four inches already on the ground.

The weather bureau said cold air coming in over the warmer water of Lake Erie dropped the snow along the lake shore. Sunday night the storm swung south of Buffalo.

Eva Faces Operation

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 5 — (AP)—Eva Peron, wife of Argentina's president, was reported Sunday to be in condition satisfactory for surgery at the President Peron Polyclinic Hospital where she is undergoing a series of examinations. The government announced Saturday night she would undergo an operation. The announcement was the first official indication that one of the most politically powerful women in the world might be suffering from something more serious thar acute anemia.

4 Children Slain

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 5—(AP)—A mother of four children cut their throats with a kitchen butcher knife in their beds here Sunday, police reported. All were dead when officers arrived at the home at 6.40 am. Mrs. Hilda Schafer Kanzie, 35, was booked on a charge of suspicion of murder.

Frenchmen Wince

PARIS, Nov. 5—(Reuters)—The price of cigarettes and tobacco will jump 20 per cent in France today, bringing a pack of 20 cigarettes to the equivalent of about 18 cents.

County Asks For Approval Of Province To Build New Lakefield High School

Municipal Board Validates Money Bylaw For Norwood High School Drawn Up Incorrectly By County Council

County Council on Saturday night gave the first two readings to a bylaw permitting them to issue $330,000 in debentures, covering the cost of the new high school planned for Lakefield. And council was informed that the Municipal Board has validated the $390,000 debenture bylaw for a similar high school in Norwood.

Reeve W. C. Grant of Lakefield says the school board of the Lakefield high school area is ready to call for tenders from contracting firms as soon as the Municipal Board approve the project.

Third and final reading will be given after the Municipal Board has given its approval.

The debentures will cover the cost of the site, the construction of the school and the equipment. They are for 20 years and interest on them is 4½ per cent.

Area Covered

The school will be built on a seven-acre property in the west of the village. Municipalities in the Lakefield high school area are the village of Lakefield, the townships of Chandos, Burleigh-Anstruther, Harvey, and parts of the townships of Smith and Douro. Part of Dummer township will join the area on Jan. 1.

Purpose of the county issuing the debentures is that the county, with its greater credit rating, can borrow money for less than a small municipality, such as Lakefield or Norwood.

Nobody opposed the bylaw and it received its first two readings with almost no comment.

A letter was received from Lorne R. Cumming, chairman of the Municipal Board, in which he stated that the Board had validated the $390,000 debenture for the high school in Norwood.

Incorrectly Prepared

The bylaw was drawn up irregularly. It was passed in county council before all the municipalities in the Norwood high school area had sent in formal resolutions requesting the county to issue the debentures.

However, a section of the Municipal Board Act permits the Board to validate bylaws that have been drawn up incorrectly. And county council used this legal loophole to set the matter right.

After the bylaw was passed, all the municipalities forwarded formal resolutions as required.

"This is a definite irregularity," said Mr. Cumming, "but one which is not fatal to the validity of the bylaw, the county council having acted in good faith on the assurance of the reeves in a majority of the municipalities that formal resolutions would be filed with you."

"It seems that all this excitement we've had didn't amount to anything after all," commented Reeve Willard G. Waterman, North Monaghan.

Eastwood Construction Co., building the new high school in Norwood, received some $69,000 which had been held up pending the Municipal Board's decision. Work resumed last week after a three-week delay.

The three-week work stoppage is estimated to have cost $6,000. And three valuable weeks of good building weather were lost.

AVOIDED DOG, HIT POLE

Attempting to avoid hitting a dog which ran in front of him, Don Fitzsimmons, 577 Armour Rd., struck a patch of ice and his car skidded into a hydro pole on Armour Rd., Sunday evening. Approximately $180 damage was done to Mr. Fitzsimmons' car.

Skiing Season Opened Bethany Sunday

Skiers zoomed down the slopes at Bethany Sunday for the earliest skiing on record as Friday night's six-inch snowfall sent Ontario's sporting world spinning.

While football teams from the high schools were in the last stages of the regular league play, five members of the Peterborough Ski Club opened the skiing at Bethany. After they had packed the eight inches of fluffy snow, they reported that the skiing was good.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. James Craig, Cyril Monkman, Ian Blaiklock and Dave Johnson.

Peterborough football teams found the snow-packed fields good also, winning all three games, PCVS seniors 39-0 over Belleville, PCVS juniors 5-0 over Lindsay, and St. Peter's 17-0 over St. Michael's College.

Wheel Damaged Train Returns

Breakdown of 8 a.m. CPR train Saturday resulted in cancellation of the trip. Between 60 and 70 passengers had their money refunded.

The engine broke down when it threw a tire off one of the drive wheels about three miles out of the city. Passengers felt three fairly heavy bumps, and the train stopped.

A call back to the depot brought a freight locomotive to the scene about 11 a.m., and by 11.30, the passengers were back in the city. Some of them were bound for the Argos-Roughriders football game in Toronto, and a few were planning to attend the OHA meeting there.

The breakdown held up the noon train from Toronto, and made it about an hour late. A repair crew was sent out to fix the damage and run the engine onto a siding to clear the track.

Parking Regulations

The attention of all motorists is called at this time of year to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic bylaw regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on the city streets. Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on a city street for longer than six consecutive hours.

The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police will be made necessary with the first snow fall, in order that city workmen may proceed with their work of removing snow from the streets.

County Council Adds $20,000 For Road Work

An over-expenditure on county roads caused the Peterborough county council Saturday night to pass a supplementary bylaw for on extra $20,000. This will tide the county roads committee over until the new year.

The 1951 appropriation for county roads, suburban area roads, bridges, was $180,000. The Department of Highways give a grant of 50 per cent on roads and 80 per cent on bridges.

Several unexpected expenditures caused the committee to spend more than they had budgeted for, explained Reeve Dick Stewart, Otonabee, chairman of the committee.

Some of them he listed:

Raised Wages

A wage boost last April to county workmen, adding up to an extra expenditure of more than $7,000.

Overhaul of the Sicard truck $5,629.

Overhaul of the rock crushing machine $4,518.

Insulation of the new garage $3,600.

A loss of anticipated revenue of more than $7,000.

Extra work done to get the roads into condition last spring.

Reeve James Gifford, Ennismore, said that from the standpoint of maintenance the county roads are better than last year.

He said there was a backlog of work to be done on the roads because last year was an austerity year, and the roads deteriorated badly. There are 133 miles of county roads, he said. This year 25 miles were gravelled; 30 miles should have been done.

Mr. Gifford said he attended the Good Roads Association and he was of the opinion that more than 50 per cent of the municipalities are in a similar position.

He hoped the full $20,000 would not need to be spent, but he added that it is better to ask for a larger sum to be on the safe side.

The supplementary expenditure will be subsidized by the department.

R. R. Dyer Heads Tool Engineers

R. R. Dyer was elected chairman of the Peterborough branch of the American Society of Tool Engineers at the branch's first meeting Friday evening.

Guest speaker of the evening, Harry Whitehall, Galt, district captain and organizer for ASTE in Ontario, Mr. Whitehall also conducted the election of officers.

Len Hansler was elected first vice chairman; Gordon R. Pagem, second vice-chairman; George W. Kennedy, third vice-chairman; Earle H. Wellman, secretary; Ken T. King, treasurer.

Mr. Whitehall explained the operation of national headquarters of ASTE at Detroit; told of services available to members and some of the accomplishments of the society in the past few years.

His talk was concluded by a short discussion period. Mr. Dyer, the new president, announced that the charter meeting would be held Nov. 16 at the Kawartha golf and country club. He said that several members of the national executive members would be present.

Cars Hit On Ice Slight Damage Done

Both vehicles were slightly damaged when they collided at 2 a.m. Sunday at Park and Chamberlain Sts.

Walter Bucknell, 47 Jackson Ave., told police he was driving north on Park St., and due to the icy road was unable to avoid crashing into the rear of a car driven by G. E. Hutchinson, 224 Perry St., which had just turned north on Park St., from Chamberlain.

Constables W. A. Scott and Jack Wilson who investigated reported that Mr. Hutchinson said he had stopped for the stop sign at Park and Chamberlain Sts., before turning north on Park St.

Bare Market Square Swept By Icy Wind, People Protest

There was a cold raw wind sweeping across the open snow-covered market at Rink and George Sts., Saturday morning but buyers and sellers alike were plenty steamed up over the lack of facilities and protection as they sloshed around in slush up to their ankles.

"I'd be willing to pay up to $1 a table if it was a good market. This is nothing," said Mrs. John Millar of Keene who has been coming to Peterborough Market for 14 years. Mrs. Millar said she is still paying the same price of 25 cents a stall as she was then.

"The city claims the market doesn't pay,' continued Mrs. Millar. "I think they would rather have us pay the same price as we did 14 years ago so they can have an excuse for moving the market away out here," she said.

No Protection

"There is no protection or facilities, everything is exposed," said Mrs. Percy Johnston, RR 1, Ida. "It's fine in summer and there's plenty of parking space but in the winter it's a different matter,' she added.

"This is no place to have a market with the breeze blowing right off the water", declared a lady shopper as she rubbed her hands vigorously.

Harold Doig of 521 Monaghan Rd., countered his criticism of the present set up with an offer of $1,000 to the city to help build a market buildings. "This town is big enough to have a covered market building and we're willing to give $1,000 to help it along," said Mr. Doig.

Drill Shed

Murray Payne of Newcastle had another suggestion to solve the winter market problem. "The drill shed at the Exhibition grounds would OK," said Mr. Payne.

Questioned regarding the possibility of using the exhibition buildings for Saturday market during the winter, Mayor Max Swanston told the Examiner it had been considered but that the exhibition board had turned down the proposal when the council approached the board on the matter early in the fall.

However, Mayor Swanston did say it had been suggested at the last meeting of the council committee and the county agricultural committee that the city garage on Townsend St., across from the market might be used.

"We have spent a lot of money remodelling it, lowering the roof and putting in a new floor and there is a possibility we might use it," said Mr. Swanston. It would accommodate as many people and tables as the old market building, Mr. Swanston added.

Runaway Horse Damages Auto

A runaway delivery horse ran into a parked car on Bethune St., about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Considerable damage was done to the car but the horse kept on going.

M. MacMartin, 540 Bethune St., the owner of the car, told police his car was parked in front of his home, when a runaway horse pulling a milk or bread wagon racing east on Edinburgh, swung south on Bethune St., and skidded into his car.

Mr. MacMartin's brother who saw the accident was unable to identify the wagon, other than to say it was yellow colored bread or milk wagon.

Acting police sergeant Gordon Trennum and Constable Sherman Keliele investigated.

Synchronized Swim Club Invited To Attend Olympics

The Peterborough Synchronized Swimming Club has been invited to demonstrate as a team synchronized swimming at the Olympic games in 1952 in Norway.

Recognized as the top synchronized swimming club in Canada and second only to Detroit in North America, the invitation by the Olympic committee was given the Peterborough club by Mrs. C. R. Seller, Montreal, chairman of the Dominion association.

Mrs. Seller, attending the international conference here on the weekend, told Mrs. Pansy Forbes, club coach, "It would be wonderful if your team could go."

Preventing the club from attending is the fact that they will have to pay their expenses. The club's amateur standing has kept the members from attending many swimming meets and to those they have attended, the girls have paid their own expenses.

If they did go, the Olympic games would include special hours for the Peterborough team.

In the YMCA pool Saturday night Beulah Gundling, the United States outdoor national champion; Connie Todoroff and Ellen Richard, US duet champions, demonstrated their abilities before club representatives from the US and Canada.

Synchronized swimming rules, to be presented to the Olympic committee, were drawn up at the conference.

Synchronized, swimming clubs from Ohio, Iowa, Michigan and New York States, and from Ottawa, St. Catharines, Hamilton and London had representatives at the conference.

The 75 delegates were welcomed Saturday by Mayor Max J. Swanston and James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

After the welcome the chairmen from Canada and the United States, Mrs. Seller for Canada and Mary Derosier for the United States Amateur Athletic Union committee, led a discussion in rules and regulations which included some new figures introduced.

At the conference Saturday afternoon in the YMCA, Jane Houghton, Detroit, vice-chairman of the US committee, spoke on "Showmanship" and Beulah Gundling on "How to Put Routines Together."

Evidence In Trial Of M. Wood

Accused Infers Blowout Caused Swerve, Hit Russel

Evidence in the trial of Melvin Wood, 21, Harvey St., charged with manslaughter and dangerous driving, was all in by noon today. Both Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, and Defence Counsel T. J. Carley, KC, will address the jury and the charge to the jury will then be given by Justice W. F. Spence.

The case should be in the hands of the jury by late this afternoon.

Wood entered the witness box to testify on his own behalf. He inferred that it was a blowout that caused his car to swerve and fatally injured Lorne Russell, 21, Oshawa.

He said that on the afternoon of June 16 he went downtown with his brother-in-law, Clayton Eason, who lives on Water St. N., immediately north of the McNaughton and Sugden garage.

Bought Beer

After parking Wood's car in the market square they went to a movie, Wood said, and got out by 5.30 pm. Then they went to the brewers' warehouse and each bought 24 pints of beer which they put into the car.

"We went to a beverage room about 5.45 pm," said Wood. "I had consumed no liquor up to that time. We sat down and each of us had about five glasses of draught beer. And we left the hotel at 6.25 pm."

He said he experienced no difficulty in driving the car and thought his condition was normal.

When he approached the garage on his left, only a couple of hundred feet away from Eason's home, he speeded the car up to 35 or 40 miles an hour to pass another northbound car.

Pulled To Left

"I turned left to pass the car and was just getting up nearly even with it when I heard a bang," Wood told the court. "It sounded like a blowout. The car was pulled to the left and then I turned sharply to the right as hard as I could. I guess it was part of the right fender and the door that hit Russel."

Wood said he had seen Russel walking north along the west side of the highway, less than half a mile north of the city.

"He may not have been on the pavement but he was very close to it," said Wood.

"What could you have done to avoid hitting this man?" asked Defence Counsel Carley.

"Nothing," replied the accused man. "There was this bang and then the car swung left. I pulled to the right as hard as I could."

He said the car went northeasterly across the highway, sideswiped a hydro pole which was broken off at the base and came to rest at right angle to the highway against some trees and building materials.

Waited For Police

"I got out of the car and looked across the highway and saw a man was hurt, so I went over and asked if he was hurt," said Wood. "But there were a couple of women there who were fanning him and they said they would look after him. So I just waited around till the police came."

He denied that 112 feet of tire marks showing on the west shoulder of the highway, south of the garage limits, was made by his car.

"I was on the pavement all the time," he said.

"What were you in such a hurry for," asked Crown Attorney Bradshaw, "did you know it was a 30-mile-an-hour speed zone?"

"Yes, I knew it," replied Wood.

Wood was also sharply criticized by Justice Spence for passing a car at that speed when he only had a couple of hundred feet to go to turn into his brother-in-law's driveway.

Eason, the only other witness called by the defence, corroborated Wood's story.

But Crown Attorney Bradshaw showed Eason a signature he had put to a statement in a police notebook in which Eason admitted drinking in a beverage room from 3-6.30 pm.

"I was excited," was Eason's only explanation.

Caught Napping

The only sidewalks that were left loaded with snow Saturday and part of Sunday were in front of the old and the new city hall. Both buildings were shut tight, with the exception of the police department in the new building. By today the city had caught up with the rest of the downtown dwellers and shovelled off the snow.

Horse Plows Out As Snow Sticks 22 Days Early

City snowplows were at work Sunday clearing sidewalks as temperatures stayed in the freezing zone.

Altogether seven inches of snow fell between Friday afternoon and Sunday morning. Friday's fall of six inches was the larger; an inch fell Saturday night and Sunday morning.

"We didn't expect this snow to stay," remarked city engineer E. A. Chalmers. "Last year it melted the next day and we didn't have to remove it. This is exceptional weather."

If snowplows were called out at this time every year, he said, it would be expensive. "We're trying to spend as carefully as we can, and if we called them out this time each year, the contractors would add quite a bit."

Last year, the first plowing was done on November 26, and normally, city sidewalks are not plowed until the end of November.

"By the way," Mr. Chalmers said, "the city doesn't let contracts for street plowing, just for sidewalks, and half the contractors haven't their horses yet."

CAR OVERTURNS

Driving south on Armour Rd., about 2 a.m. Saturday John H. Stewart was blinded by the lights of an approaching car at the CPR tracks. He told police that his car went off the west side of the street and overturned in the ditch. The car was damaged slightly. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Hunters Many Deer Few Opening Day

Conditions Right Few Deer Shot As Dogs Not Released

APSLEY, Nov. 5 (Staff).—Today's opening of the deer hunting season has everything in its favor—cold weather an eight-inch snowfall and bush sideroads in good wheel condition—but deer? Hunters were a bit disappointed.

They blame the scarcity of moving game to hunters being reticent about releasing their dogs this year. Deer—and they feel there are plenty of them — are herded up and browsing in the swamps.

The first carcass on a southbound car seen was a dressed hog a farmer had strapped on the fender.

Hunters' Cars

At the Haultain-Eel's creek depot, there were many cars and trucks and indeed hunters' vehicles of all kinds were parked everywhere along the roads. One party of Peterborough hunters had shot four animals and all were in good condition.

Farther up the highway, Jack Paris, Young's Point, was loading a doe on his car. Wally Cruickshank and Art Dowden, both of Toronto, said Jack had shot his deer while sitting on a runway in a camp chair. The animal dressed about 180 pounds.

A conservation officer had patrolled a great length of Highway 28 this morning and reported many cars as far north as Paudash and Ox Bow lakes and close in to Bancroft.

Flying Squad

A flying squad of game wardens is busy roaming the district in all directions and they report things under control this morning.

In general experts say that little or no use of dogs this morning has resulted in a light shoot. Hunters seem to feel that it is smarter to do tracking rather than release dogs and provide shooting for pot-hunters.

Dogs will come into the hunt picture later when the first rush of hunters is over and owners of dogs feel they will not be used as much by the casual hunter.

Iran Trying To Cut Down Government Expenditures

By LEOPOLD HERMAN

TEHRAN, Nov 5 (Reuters)—Iran, faced with graver financial and economic difficulties than ever before, is trying to cut down Government expenditure.

Recent efforts to solve the crisis, however, have met with strong criticism in political and financial circles in Tehran on the ground that they offer no real remedy.

The government has been attacked by newspapers of varying shades of opinion for its mishandling of financial and economic policy.

One of the latest government decrees, seeking to save about $17,000,000, restricts salaries of high-level officals, limits employment of additional civil servants, cuts down on government transportation expenses, curtails building of government offices. It controls expense accounts of Iranian diplomats, holding them to a maximum of $14 a day regardless of circumstances. It also decrees a 15-per-cent economy cut in government expenditure for the last six months of the current fiscal year.

Lukewarm Reception

But the decree has had only lukewarm reception, even in circles which have hitherto supported the government.

A further outcry came when the government tried to help balance the budget by raising the tax on tobacco and cigarettes, increasing the retail price by 25 per cent.

Atish, a right-wing newspaper which has generally been a fervent supporter of the government, said: "Our people must make heavy sacrifices in this national campaign but there are various ways of doing things and the government must consider the plight of those classes which will suffer as a result of its ill-considered decisions."

Can't Be Delayed

It is felt that, despite the floating of an internal loan and government assurances regarding the stability of the Rial which is backed by gold and by the crown jewels, firm and far-reaching financial and economic measures cannot be long delayed.

Because of the stagnation of the oil industry, Iran is faced with unemployment in Abadan and the oil fields. In addition, Iran must now find some $47,500,000 a year to pay its employees, plus the salaries of any foreign experts she may engage.

She must also find about $140,000,000 a year for essential capital expenditure in the industry, stores and materials, and health and training facilities.

The current tide of nationalism still leaves great numbers of Iranians with the feeling that the mere fact that the oil industry is now theirs will solve their country's ills.

How Many Men Held By Reds War Prisoners?

By DAVID O. TYSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—How many UN troops are in Chinese and North Korean prison camps? Who are they?

Korean truce talks may bring the answers.

Only 173 United States servicemen are known held by the Communists. But 10,753 Americans are missing in action. Many are believed prisoners.

Next-of-kin must wait for word until the Communists agree to a man-for-man release by both sides, release of all prisoners by both sides, or allow the UN some access to its captured troops.

The US Defence Department has a rough estimate of the number actually held but isn't giving the figure because it might raise false hopes in relatives.

The Reds aren't saying, either, but unofficial estimates place the number at about 10,000 UN troops, 4,500 of them American, probably held in North Korea.

The UN held 166,931 Communist POW's at last reports, 148,234 North Koreans and 18,697 Chinese. The name, grade, serial number and mailing address of all have been reported to the International Red Cross Committee in accordance with the Geneva Convention.

The Chinese Nationalist Government was a party to the Geneva Convention, but the Communist Government is not. Neither is the North Korean People's Republic.

The Peiping radio has broadcast the names of more than 1,000 American troops captured, but the army says the names are suspect.

Sometimes, the army says, groups of UN troops captured in the front lines are given 10 minutes to write a note back home. The notes are then bundled up by the Communists and left on the ground to be picked up by advancing UN forces.

The International Red Cross Committee, entirely a Swiss organization, with headquarters at Geneva, has representatives in South Korea inspecting UN prison camps but attempts by the committee to gain access to UN prisoners in North Korea have failed.

Paul Reugger, president of the committee, flew into Peiping last May in a Swiss plane painted white and left medical supplies which he asked be sent to UN prisoners. No assurances were given they would be.

Karpuk's Dash From Ottawa Bench To Stop Touchdown Runner Fails To Prevent Argo 23-18 Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Unless something wackier pops up in a hurry, the spectacle of Pete Karpuk scrambling off the Ottawa Rough Rider bench and on to Varsity Stadium field to stop a guy on a touchdown run will rate the tops in a somewhat goofy football season. His move may not have been ethical, but it certainly was original.

The Karpuk caprice was perpetrated before 21,844 screaming fans in the Toronto Stadium on Saturday afternoon. It was the highlight of the Ottawa-Toronto Argonauts suspense-filled Big Four schedule windup and the choice conversation piece of a loaded weekend of crucial" games on the Canadian senior front.

But Karpuk's flight was just one bit of fancy-Dan weekend goings-on. Coach Ansis Stukus of Edmonton Eskimos outfitted his squad in $3.25-a-pair "weather shoes" and the boots, similar to winter overshoes, were credited as an important factor in the 15-11 first-game victory over the Saskatchewan Roughriders in the best-of-three Western Canada final.

Strategy Backfires

Karpuk's strategy backfired as the furious Scullers bulldozed to two electrifying touchdowns in the final 1 minutes for a 23-18 victory and a first-place Big Four tie with the Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Tigers romped over the also-ran Montreal Alouettes 31-6.

The three-way deadlock will prolong the playoffs until November 17—one week before the Grey Cup final—and the Eastern Canada suden-death final against the Ontario Rugby Football Union champion until sometime during the week of November 18.

The two-game total-points ORFU playoff got under way on Saturday night at Toronto and this one foxed the experts. The underdog Toronto Balmy Beach whipped through to 23-15 victory over the favored Sarnia Imperials.

Now, the all-Canadain Imps must hustle at Sarnia Saturday to wrap up the championship.

The Intercollegiate Union race tightened up. University of Toronto Blues, unbeaten in five games, were held to a 13-13 tie at London by the University of Western Ontario Mustangs and the second-place McGill Redmen made it 19-2 over Queen's at Montreal.

The Toronto game, one of the best in many years, bundled most of the drama into the last quarter, sparked by Karpuk's startling intrusion, and a dropped Ottawa forward. Behind the Toronto line in the final seconds. The miscue, by Joe Asquini, meant the difference between the Argos climbing into a triple first-place tie or joining Montreal as the Big Four Union also-rans.

Curtis Intercepts

It started when Argonauts' Ulysses Curtis intercepted an Ottawa forward on the Argo 45 and legged down the sidelines with no one between him and the Ottawa line until he passed the Ottawa bench at midfield. Karpuk dashed on to the field and grabbed the speedy negro, putting him off stride and making him an easy target for fast-approaching Rider tacklers.

Curtis was downed on the Ottawa 25 and the fireworks started with fans, club officials and the players getting into the act. When order was restored the officials moved the ball half the distance to the Ottawa line and slapped a three-minute penalty on Karpuk—a ruling according to the book when one club has 13 men on the field.

The rule book does not specifically cover a situation where a plawer dashes from the bench to make a tackle.

The red-hot and fighting-mad Argos then went on their touchdown drive—and the ball game.

ESKIE LINE COACH—Edmonton Eskimo line coach George Brown plays regular tackle spot. Six feet three and weighing 225 the 26-year-old graduate of Texas Christian University—where he played four years— signed with the Eskies in the off season. He turned professional with New York Yankees two years ago.

Bauer Sparks Dutchmen To 7-3 Victory

By The Canadian Press.

Bobby Bauer left the ranks of the "retired" Saturday to see what could be done about winning a hockey game. He jumped right into a victory.

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen were in a three-game losing streak, so the 36-year-old former star of National League days laced on a pair of skates. Bauer scored only one goal, but he gave Dutchmen that "extra something" and they went on to trounce Sarnia Sailors 7-3 in their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A tussle at Kitchener.

Meanwhile Paul Miocinovich scored four goals to lead Hamilton Tigers to a 12-0 victory over Brantford Redmen and Stratford Indians defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 7-3 in other senior games Saturday.

Toronto Marlboros forged into the OHA Junior A League lead by downing Galt Black Hawks 9-4 while Guelph Biltmores battled to a 3-3 tie with Toronto St. Michael's in a doubleheader at Toronto Sunday.

Marlboros now hold a one-point edge over the Bilts.

Saturday night when action in the junior wheel saw Marlboros outscore Waterloo Hurricanes 8-5, Galt blank Barrie Flyers 5-0, St. Catharines edge Windsor 5-3 and Oshawa Generals tie Kitchener Greenshirts 4-4.

Plenty of Support

At Kitchener, Bauer, a native of Kitchener, who earlier had resigned himmself to a coaching job, got plenty of support. Ed Stankiewiecz came up with a terrific performance and batted in three goals. Others came from Doug Verity, Jim Pernfuss and Art Hurst.

Bauer's goal came in the final period on a tremendous solo dash through the entire Sarnia team and brought back memories of bygone days when he was a big cog in Boston Bruins' big line. The victory left Kitchener in fifth place of the six-team loop.

Mosienko, Fraser and Glaab scored for Sarnia.

Murray Comfort with two, Pete Pidsodny, Fred Kankoski, Murray Dunnette and Ronnie Kemp, each with one, added tallies in the one-sided Hamilton-Brantford game. The win enabled Tigers to retain first place.

Potent Combination

The potent scoring combination of Mickey Roth and Dinny Flanagan carried Indians to their win. Flanagan scored twice and helped on each of Roth's three goals. Indians' other two markers were scored by Jack White. Bill Allum, Andy Grant and Ray McCallum tallied the Mercury counters.

Chuck Henderson and Ken Laufman, two of the junior league's top point-getters, supplied Guelph with two third-period goals to enable them to tie St. Michael's. Andy Bathgate scored the first Bilt tally. Bill Lee accounted for two St. Michael's goals and Jim Logan the other.

Danny Poland scored twice, Eric Nesterenko, Parker MacDonald, Chuck Lumsden, Ron Stewart, Don Peart, Ron Ingram and Ted Reid once each, for the Marlboro cause, with Ken Wharram, John Sleaver, Bill MacIntosh and Wally Gardiner supplying the Galt goals.

John Lumley scored a pair for the Dukes Saturday in Waterloo. Wally Maxwell, Poland, Earl Balfour, Nesterenko, MacDonald and Stewart added the others. Hurricane goals were credited to Charlie Brooker, Connelly, Mader, Paul Oliver and Roger Maussonneuve.

Chuck Marshall's three goals for Rury Pilous' Teepees, scored after teammates Pierre Pilote and Ralph Markarian connected once, proved to be enough to down the winless Windsor Waifs. Bob Brown, Elmer Skov and Ken Collins scored for the Spits.

STAR QUARTERBACK — Glen Dobbs, 30-year-old quarterback with Regina Roughriders was chosen for the Western Interprovincial Football Union All-Star team this season. Out of football last season he won All-American honors at Tulsa University. He turned professional with Brooklyn Eagles in 1946 and sat out last season to broadcast football.

Paul Martin Pledges Material For Highways

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP) — Members of the Canadian Good Roads Association, worried about shortages of steel and concrete for highway building and maintenance, are happier today.

Saturday they heard Health Minister Martin say that the government will give every consideration to an association request for "a fair and adequate proportion of materials in scarce supply."

The association wound up its three-day convention by electing new officers, passing a number of resolutions and deciding to set up a national Highway Research Institute.

Cost of the highway institute is expected to be between $35,000 and $100,000 a year. Details of the research group — personnel and money—will be handled by the executive.

The association wants the institute to be independent of both government and industry. Its job would be to collect and distribute information on highway construction, finances, accidents and traffic laws.

New president of the association is M. D. Rawding, Nova Scotia highways minister. E. G. Garson, British Columbia minister of public works, is first vice-president.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Date and venue for the eastern Canada football final between the Big Four winner and the Ontario Rugby Football Union champions have not yet been set, but it probably will be played Nov. 21.

Wes Brown, secretary-treasurer of the Big Four, said Sunday night at Ottawa the venue would be up to the ORFU winner this year — either Sarnia Imperials or Toronto Balmy Beach. And it is up to the Canadian Rugby Union to set the date which, because of a double playoff necessitated by a three-way tie in the Big Four, would this year have to be squeezed into the week of Nov. 18. It probably would be played Nov. 21.

The one-game eastern playoff decides the eastern representative in the Grey Cup struggle against the western champions at Toronto Nov. 24.

Hamilton Junior Tiger-Cats won the right to represent Ontario in the eastern Canada junior football final Saturday as they walloped Windsor Ako 18-5 in a sudden-death game for the provincial title at Hamilton. Tiger-Cats meet Notre Dame De Grace, Quebec champions, next Saturday with the winners to clash with the west for the Dominion final.

The Maritime Major Hockey League at a meeting Sunday in Sydney decided to abolish 10-minute overtime periods and tossed out the new icing the puck rule which required a player to work the puck up to his own blueline.

The decision of the icing the puck is in agreement with the Quebec Senior Hockey League, the only other circuit in major play this season, which voted against the new rule more than a week ago.

At Aurora, defending champion Trinity College School of Port Hope whipped St. Andrew's College team 22-6 on a snow-swept field Saturday. By the win, Trinity College won the Little Big Four junior football championship in three straight games. They defeated Ridley 33-12 and Upper Canada 8-6.

At Camden, NJ, Call Over, a chestnut colt from the Bedford stables, sloshed through the slop at Garden Park Saturday to win the $50,000 added Trenton Handicap in a tremendous turf upset that saw the beaten odds-on favorite, Hill Prince, wind up a dismal fourth. Call Over flashed across the finish line of the 1⅛-mile test a head in front of Inseparable, from the Hasty House Farms. Post Card, a 15-to-1 shot wound up thrd, a head back.

Prairie Actress Has British Role

REGINA —(CP)— Francis Hyland of Regina, 23-year-old actress, now has the proud record of making the jump from Saskatchewan drama festivals to the London stage.

From touring the prairies with university drama groups she has advanced to an important role in "The Winter's Tale," appearing as a feature of the famous Edinburgh festival.

She stepped into the role of "Perdita" when "Winter's Tale" opened at the Lyceum Theatre, owing to the illness of Virgina M. Kenna.

Miss Hyland was assisted by the I.O.D.E. when she went abroad for a two-year course at the Royal Academy of dramatic art in London. She was discovered there by Daphne Rye, casting director of Tennant Productions, Limited, at a public matinee given by the students last year.

After seeing her again in a television performance of "Deep Are The Roots," Miss Rye engaged her to play "Stella" in the London production of "A Street-car Named Desire" with Vivien Leigh.

200 Masqueraders At YW Gym Children's Party

All Hallow Eve may have been last Wednesday by the calendar, but Hallowe'en wasn't over until Saturday for 200 children who went in costume to the YWCA Gym party and had a glorious frolic. Some won prizes for their costumes, others honorable mention and each received a lollipop. Those attendindg gymn and ballet classes were allowed to bring their friends as guests.

A goblin story was told them by the Queen of Hearts (Mrs. Irene Campbell) and they were entertained with a ballet of mechanical dollars and love birds. The 16 "ghosts" who escorted the guests across a precarious "plank" into the gym, and later conducted them on a thrilling "ghost walk," became capricious for a few moments and danced a high kick number.

Prize winners were: Linda Anderson, Patsy Tobin and Earline Belanger as bride, groom and flower girl; Nancy Girven, gypsy; Alma Boate, Martha Washington (made out of her grandmother's costume); Garry Vinette, cowgirl; Marina Zakos, gypsy; Diane Zakos, Spanish girl; Bonnie Burnley, Aunt Jemima; Yvonne McCue, nurse; Stephanie Bogle, a bunny that wouldn't stay in one place; Barbara Bogle, fairy.

Ila and Incka Moes, new citizens from Holland, were a sensation in authentic, embroidered Dutch dresses and hats and wore clogs; Sharon Gallagher was a fairy queen; Dale Maudsley, the Mad Hatter; Janice Crary, harem girl; Sharon Reiten, angel; Marilyn Harrison, bride; and two-year-old Maureen Glassford came as Cupid on New Year's eve.

There were so many lovely costumes that the following were listed for honorable mention:

Lorraine Foster, bunny; Christine Legon, gypsy; Roxy Glover, lion; Terry Fitzpatrick, sheik; Carol Edmondson, Indian maid; Sharon Collinson, drum major; Ricky Downs, cowgirl; Mary Hendry, Aunt Jemima; Sylvia Young, fairy; Judy Doughty, Indian; Donna Boorman, clown; Sally Sands, cowgirl; Sharon and Catherine Porter, witches; Glenda Head, clown; Eileen Hall, Irene Williams, and Diane Peel, Turkish girl and boy.

The prizes were given out by Mrs. L. Yeotes, who was assisted in judging by Mrs. W. G. Ovens and Mrs. J. G. Campbell. Mrs. M. McBride and Mrs. Muluchy were pianists, and Miss C. Littlefield, instructor, directed the entire party.

Mrs. McRae had laid the tea table in her dining room with a lovely white linen cloth with all-over cutwork embroidery and had a colorful centre bouquet and tall tapers around it.

Tea was poured by Mrs. G. S. Cameron, the first social sponsor of the Sorority in Peterborough. Senator Iva Falls, international member, was to have presided for the second hour, but was unable to attend at the last minute, so Mrs. Donald Anderson, president of Exemplar Chapter, filled in.

Discrimination Frowned Upon By B & PWC Guest

TORONTO, Nov. 5. — "There should be no sex lines in any kind of work," said Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, internationally known industrial engineer, speaking Saturday evening at the 21st anniversary dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club which held a provincial conference over the weekend—the largest in the history of the club. "Any job should be open to any one who likes it or wants it," continued Dr. Gilbreth.

Discrimination against women by men is not the only kind of discrimination the speaker warned. There can be discrimination of women against women; discrimination against youth, especially in the political field; discrimination against women in employment — "The calendar is not the gauge of age, some young people are terribly old, and some old in years will never be old in attitudes" she said. Also there is discrimination against handicapped people in employment. "And there is discrimination of women against men who refuse to allow fathers their right in bringing up children."

Although the Act recently passed by the Ontario Legislature requiring fair remuneration for female employees does not become law until January, many employers have already revised their payrolls, Miss Margaret Hyndman KC told the conference. As head of the committee which had pressed for such legislation Miss Hydnman argued that success would depend largely on women showing that they can and do earn the pay.

Miss Maude Bayley, Toronto, provincial chairman, presided.

The incoming board includes: Mrs. Margery Pewtress, Cobourg, president-elect; Mrs. Ethel Armstrong-Collins, Toronto and Miss Barbara McDonald, Sudbury, vice-presidents elect; Miss Lilas Trout, Brampton, treasurer-elect.

Diocese Executive And P-TA Leaders Meet Together

A joint meeting of the Diocesan Executive and the presidents of the Parent-Teacher units of the city was held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. H. J. McLarnon, King George Street.

Diocesan president, Mrs. J. F. O'Brien outlined briefly the need for a Diocesan Association. "It is only by Diocesan and Regional council working co - operatively throughout the diocese that we shall attain our purpose of getting an over-all pattern of the work to be attempted. In this way we shall accomplish the aim of our organziation, which is to bring together the parent and teacher for the betterment of the child."

It was related that the Association had already done a great deal in helping to rid news stands of indecent and demoralizing literature for children. The presidents were urged to bring this subject before their resnective units and solicit the help of the parents in this work.

The need for study clubs in every unit was discussed and suitable topics were recommended.

The Diocesan Executive is as follows: Honorary President, His Excellency Bishop Berry; Spiritual Director, The Reverend J. V. Masterson; president, Mrs. J. F. O'Brien; vice president, Mrs. W. H. Toal; secretary treasurer, Sister M. Cornelia; corresponding secretary, Mr. A. Morris;

Parent Councillors: Mrs. J. Hallihan, St. Anne's School; Mr. Austin Morris, St. John's School; Teacher Councillors: Miss Marguerite Collins, Sacred Heart School; Miss Hazel Guerin, Immaculate Conception School.

In order to introduce Parent-Teachers Associations into outlying diocesan areas a committee of organization was formed with Mrs. H. J. McLarnon as convener. The social and financial activities will be guided by a committee of ways and means with Mr. J. Hallihan as convener. Other standing committees were appointed: program, Miss Hazel Geurin as convener; Study clubs, Miss Marguerite Collins as general convener.

Guards Air Supply For Husband

WINNIPEG—(CP)—In the average family the wife's job is to keep her husband well fed. But pretty Mary Bieber goes a step further—she sees to it that her husband Carl keeps breathing.

Most of the time Carl works as a switch foreman with the railway. Then for three months each year he goes back to what he claims is his first love—diving. While he works far below the surface of the water, his wife maintains a constant vigil to see that his supply of air never stops.

Dressed in blue denim longs and jacket and rubber boots, Mary never leaves the boat while her husband is working. She guards telephone connections with Carl and keeps a weather eye on the three helpers, who man the air pump.

Before Carl enters the water, Mary and the helpers aid him in putting on the heavy warm clothing he must wear. This is followed by the rubber suit, 20-pound boots and a final good-luck kiss before the big metal helmet is clamped over his head.

Husband Trusts Her

"Unusual? Sure my job's unusual," says Mrs. Bieber. "But I like it and my husband feels he can trust me more than anyone else. He isn't wrong about that either."

Carl says he loves the business and wishes he could do it the year round. He first started diving nine years ago while in the Canadian navy.

Both he and Mary admit to a few narrow squeaks. One of the most frightening was last winter when he was working below the ice in the Assiniboine river. The swift current swept him off balance and he had considerable difficulty finding his way back to the place where he had entered the water through a hole in the ice.

Another time he was barely conscious when pulled to the surface. He ripped his suit in 60 feet of water while repairing submarine nets on the east coast.

Alumnae Tea And Bazaar Successfully Held Saturday

Though weather conditions were not conducive to tea-going on Saturday afternoon, the Purple and Gold Tea of the Civic Hospital Alumnae drew a very pleasing crowd to the YWCA. This fact speaks well for the Alumnae and also for the bazaar, held in conjunction with the tea, which is widely known for variety and originality of the goods offered.

Christmas table decorations in the form of small trees of clear and red celophane, fancy centrepieces, glowing candles and frosted twigs, came right in line with the first snowfall and sold very well. So did the aprons and doll clothes and the stuffed animal toys, that will no doubt make up in Christmas gifts.

A new idea was pilowcase lace in 43" lengths for sale. There were also hand-made chamois gloves. And a former member of the Alumnae now in Weston sent several lovely figurines which she had made and painted.

There was, of course, a good selection of fine home baking and home made candy.

Purple skirts with decorative jagged edges were effective on the bazar tables which were in u-formation at one end of the Green Room.

The nurse doll and her wardrobe complete from soap and washcloth to party dress and bonnet, which is the annual draw prize featured by the alumnae, was on display during the tea and tickets were selling well. The winner was decided at the close when president Mr. Roy Taylor drew out the ticket of Mrs. A. Trethewey, 586 Division St.

Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon did the tea table and it was lovely with a hand-crocheted cloth in ecru shade centred with an artistic arrangement of purple and gold 'mums. It was highlighted with purple and gold tapers and there was trailing ivy bordering the centrepiece.

Tea pourers were Miss A. Walsh, Miss C. Wilson, Miss V. Heyes and Miss A. Davidson, and servers were Mrs. E. Roberts, Mrs. A. Wellman, Mrs. G. Oliver, Mrs. P. Kingdon, Mrs. C. Lunn, Mrs. G. Wade, Miss J. Preston, Miss L. Ball, Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. G. Bryett, Mrs. I. Walker, Mrs. D. Snelgrove, Miss M. Greer and Mrs. H. Tranter.

Other members assisting at the door, selling tickets and at the bazaar tables were Miss B. Greatrix, Miss J. Gillespie, Mrs. D. Hill, Mrs. W. Jones, Mrs. E. Conway, Mrs. F. Fisher, Miss M. Pickens, Mrs. W. Clarke, Mrs. G. Wainwright, Mrs. A. Watson, Mrs. G. Morrison, Mrs. P. Howden, Mrs. T. Holyman, Mrs. J. W. Thornton, Miss J. Bulmer, Miss B. Barr, Mrs. J. Mortimer, Miss M. Nesbitt, and Miss D. Pidgeon.

Guests were delighted to meet at this tea Miss Evelyn Robson, the new superintendent of nurses at the Civic Hospital, who was receiving with Mrs. Taylor.

ONE WAY TO REDUCE the meat bill without reducing the nutritional content of meals is to use cheese. A cheese tray such as the one shown above is a real reputation maker.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cheese Is Tops For Flavor, Variety And Nourishment

There are some conscientious cooks with a haunting worry that their families are not being adequately nourished. Financial necessity makes cutting corners imperative when they buy groceries.

One way to reduce the meat bill without reducing nutritional contents of meals is to use cheese in place of meat.

One of my best friends is a dietitian and is married, but only practises her profession on her husky family. She serves cheese in attractive ways as the main protein item for dinner twice per week. I do the same at least once per week.

Our standbys are cheese souffle, cheese strata, a (layered bread and cheese custard casserole), Welsh rarebit, Scotch woodcock, and cheese croquettes. This latter dish is what started me off on this cheese talk. It requires deep fat, but this need not be considered an extravagance, for with careful handling, the fat may be fine-strained and used over and over again. As you know I am enthusiastic about peanut oil, and am using it in every conceivable way. It is wonderful for deep-fried foods, as well as the fat content in my whole wheat bread recipe.

Cheese Croquettes

(Make the croquette mixture well ahead of time for they have to be thoroughly cold to roll in crumbs.)

Make a thick cream sauce by melting 4 tablespoons margarine or bacon drippings and stirring into it 4 tablespoons flour. Stir in 1 cup hot milk or partially diluted evaporated milk until thick. Remove white sauce from heat and stir into it two beaten yolks of eggs and one-third to two-thirds cup grated sharp cheese. Stir until cheese melts. Fold in ¾ to 1 cup chopped processed cheese and ¼ cup chopped green or red pepper. Add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Spread on plate or platter to chill. When cold and stiff form into balls or cylinders and roll in very fine crumbs. Dip in egg beaten with 2 tablespoons cold water and roll in crumbs again. Fry in deep fat at 340 deg. Fahr., turning them over once, until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper and serve quickly.

I seem to be party-minded. I am party-minded, both on my own account and Kathryn's and yours, but because this next little offering calls for plenty of cheese I'm going to work it in here for I know you will like it. It will wow the gals next time you have to entertain the bridge club.

Cheese Frosted Loaves

Use both white and whole wheat bread for this. Remove crusts from ordinary sliced bread and cut slices in halves.

FILLING No. 1: Soften medium old cheddar cheese over hot water after it is sliced and moisten it with salad dressing until of spreading consistency. Add either chopped pecans or almonds to it. Spread on bottom slice. Top with another half slice of bread. Spread this with—

FILLING No. 2: Devilled or ground ham mixed with soft butter and a little finely chopped celery or drained pickle relish. Cover second filling with another half slice: Make one of these for each serving. Frost with white cream cheese made soft by creaming it with a little cream. Use your pastry bag and tube to flute some additional cheese around the top edges. Decorate top with green pepper cut into flower petals. Chill until serving time. Provide forks and serve with spiced pears or peaches or little cranberry mould.

DOROTHY DIX

Marriage Should Increase Affection Not Lessen It

DEAR MISS DIX: I intend to be married within a short time, and there is one problem that has been bothering me on the subject. Why doesn't the love shown by couples before marriage last? It seems to me, watching older people, that their affection for each other dies out. Could you please suggest a way to keep the affection we now have? P.A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are laboring under a fallacy; the love young people have for each other before marriage actually increases through later life in the vast majority of cases. What does lessen is the wild furvor of romantic bliss that keeps young Susie awake nights and takes poor Tommy's appetite away. Such a condition couldn't last forever, or the lovers would fade away.

Dorothy Dix

I have known countless couples who, after fifteen, twenty, twenty-five or more years of marriage, could honestly say they loved each other more than on the wedding day. This love is a deep emotion compounded of mutual respect, admiration, loyalty, and devotion with more than a dash of youth's enthralling passion. To the casual onlooker all these elements may not be apparent, but you will see them in the little attentions married people pay each other, the pleasure they have in each other's company, the pride in each other's accomplishments.

You'll Have Good Life

Don't worry about losing your mutual affection. The fact that it worries you indicates a desire to make every effort to promote a good life together. Don't lose sight of the essential values of marriage. Matrimony is a partnership. Both partners must have full realization of their responsibilities, of the obstacles to be encountered, and an earnest desire to maintain a happy life together.

Be mindful of your marriage vows. Determine to keep them to the letter and your wedding day will mark the beginning of a life in which each year will find you and your husband more in love than ever.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 15 and my best friend is the same sex. We have known each other for many years, during which we shared everything. Then the other night she struck me in anger because she was mad at someone else. She has never done anything like that before and she apologized. I didn't accept it then. What should I do? Should I pocket my pride and be friends again? ANN.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your friend's actoin in striking you was wrong, but she did apologize to you and you can ask anything more. You should have accepted her peace offering when she made it. Now you are in the wrong and must make the next advance, which I strongly urge you to do as soon as possible.

Human nature being as frail as it is, no two people can live in close contact without offending each other at least occasionally. If we never forgave these transgressions, probably no one would have a friend in the world. The essence of friendship is to realize the faults of others and overlook them. None of us, after all, is perfect.

Don't let a friendship of such long standing break up because of foolish pride.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How can I convince my mother to let me arch my eyebrows and shave my legs? I am 13 years old.

SANDY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Arched eyebrows on a 13-year-old girl would be ludicrous, to say the least. Let them follow their natural lines for a few more years anyway. As for your legs, shaving them will only make matters worse. If you have a superfluous hair problem, use a preparation made especially for the purpose. Your mother would probably consent to this.

Woman Directs Morale Boosting At Big Hospital

TORONTO — (CP) — Morale boosting is the specialty of Marietta Vincent, recreational director at the Cancer Memorial Hospital, New York city.

Mrs. Vincent came to Toronto for the Canadian Cancer Society conference. She told delegates about the recreational therapy centre which she established at the hospital about four years ago.

"Cancer patients feel defeated and that they've been knocked out of the picture," she said. "Giving them handicraft or something useful to do makes them think they can still pull their weight in the world."

4 Staff Members

Mrs. Vincent has four full-time staff members at her centre, and 40 volunteers.

"Rehabilitation is something new in cancer work," she said. "We help patients adjust themselves back into normal living and to become accustomed to artificial body aids."

Mrs. Vincent likes her work so much that a couple of months ago she literally married into it. Her husband is one of the volunteer workers on her staff.

"He was a stranger in town and wanted to do some good work," she said. "So he went to the Cancer Volunteer Society and they sent him to me."

What's Right?

You learn of a death in the family of a person you know well, but who is not a close friend.

WRONG: Wait until you happen to see the person to offer your sympathy.

RIGHT: Write the person a note immediately, expressing your sympathy.

Ketchup US National Dish Columnist Firmly Believes

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are a strange nation of people united by a democratic constitution—and a red cement called ketchup.

It is doubtful which has done more to hold them together.

Long debates have been held on what is the great American dish. Apple pie? Pumpkin pie? Fried chicken? Turkey with cranberry suace? The hamburger? The hot dog?

All these have their passionate defenders. But to any one who regularly travels these United States, there can be but one answer. The great American dish isn't a dish at all. It's a bottle, a bottle containing the flavor in widest favor—ketchup.

Ketchup, also known as catchup and catsup, is no more native to these shores than folks named Smith, Jones, Johnson or O'Houlihan. It is an immigrant. It originated in Malay. It was usually of mushrooms, unripe walnuts and ripe tomatoes, and was used to flavor soups, meat and fish.

Only after migrating to America, however, did ketchup come into its own. Here its ingredients are tomato puree, vinegar, spices and sugar.

All-Purpose Food

And the scarlet, gooey semi-fluid graduated from a flavoring substance into an all-purpose food. Your true ketchup fan today will eat it through a straw. He will douse it on everything from chicken-a-la-king to ice cream, and only an iron tradition keeps some enthusists from using it to cool their coffee.

In times of prosperity the poor man uses it to anoint everything on his full plate. In times of hardship ketchup is the poor man's surest fodder. He can go up to a cafeteria counter, ask for a cup of hot water, take the steaming cup to the nearest table, pump some ketchup in it—and he has a bowl of tomato soup for nothing.

Expensive Trick

"During the last depression," a Florida cafeteria owner told me, "that ketchup soup trick almost caused me to go broke. I think it started with a Yankee visitor, but he sure did spread the custom fast through the south."

What explains the overwhelming popularoty of ketchup? Many restaurant owners have a cynical answer.

"Because it's free," they say. "Anything that's free is bound to be popular."

But I don't think that is the real explanation. I think the reason is partly psychological—part of mankind's old quest for certainty in an uncertain world.

Is It Good?

A man goes into the average restau ant and orders meat loaf and hash-browned potatoes. When his loaded plate is brought, he looks uneasily at it. Doubt surges above his hunger. What is in that mysterious mess before him? Where did it come from? What is in it? He takes a tentative taste, and his doubt immediately deepens. Has the cook played a Hallowe'en trick on him?

He sighs, reaches for the ketchup bottle, and covers the plate from edge to edge. No matter what heady taste of glue the menu item had before, it is drowned in the all-enveloping flavor of ketchup, a flavor as changeless as the US Bill of Rights.

No, Americans don't turn to ketchup merely because it is free. They reach for it because it is the constant friend of people who must eat out in strange places.

Command Screening For Kenya Film

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—Shot in technicolor in Kenya's vast game reserves, the film, "Where No Vultures Fly," has been selected for Royal command performance.

The picture, made jointly by Ealing Studios and African Film Productions, was written and directed by Harry Watt who made "Target For Tonight" and "The Overlanders."

John Schlesinger of African Film Productions said the film was the outgrowth of a move to get away from the boy-meets-girl and the psychological type of drama.

"It was decided after a lot of discussion to film the story of a man in Kenya who made it his life's work to prevent the needless slaughter of animals," he said.

"Where No Vultures Fly" is more evidence of the interest being taken in Southern Africa as a location for big productions.

Minden Echo Sold Moves To Haliburton

LINDSAY, No. 5—Haliburton residents have purchased the Minden Echo. The new owners are Berkley Feir and son Creighton and Mr. Norie.

It is understood that the paper will be published in Haliburton as soon as a place can be secured.

The Echo has been published by Mrs. Loyla Webster during the past year. The first copy of the paper was printed August 24, 1884 and was published by Brown and Small. They were succeeded by J. H. Delamere who after several years ago sold out to R. H. Baker.

Mr. Baker published the paper for 14 years and then Wilbur MacArthur carried on until his death a few years ago.

New machinery and a press was purchased following a fire a few years ago that ruined equipment and destroyed many records.

Parked Car Hit Damage Totals $400

An uhidentified car or truck struck a parked car on the east side of George St., just above London St., damaging it to the extent of $400 sometime Friday night.

Robert H. Thompson, 144 London St., parked his car on George St., about 10 o'clock Friday evening and discovered the damage Saturday morning.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated and reported that it appeared the damage had been done by a truck.

Moonshine Raid

DURBAN, South Africa, Nov. 5 (Reuters) — Two Africans were killed and more than 30 injured in a battle with police, following a moonshine raid in the African quarter here Sunday. The fight began when a police officer investigating a suspected home brew joint shot down an African who attacked him.

Red Tape Prevents Mayor From England Visiting US

Municipal protocol appears to be preventing Mayor Chamberlain and his party from going on to Peterborough N. H. at the invitation of Carleton A. Wheeler who with Harold Robertson was here for the opening of the city hall.

Mr. Wheeler is the promoter of the proposed six Peterboroughs Clubs which are beginning to take shape as an effect of his efforts.

In a letter to the Examiner reviewing his trip to "quite a circle of correspondents," Mr. Wheeler wrote:

"Mayor Swanston and Councillor H. N. Young were on hand to greet the vistiors (from England), and in talking with me they were most pleased at the thought of being able to send the English visitors down to our Peterborough, N.H., (and probably Boston) in the official car that was placed at their disposal.

Made Arrangments.

"I at once telephoned Mrs. Wheeler that these vistors could be expected in "Our Town" on Tuesday the 30th, and would she please inform the various groups which had sent them informal invitations— some eleven groups in all, including: Rotary, Women's Club, Historical Society, Parent-Teachers Association, School Board, Goyette Museum, Noone's Mills, the American Guernsey Cattle Club, Father Crowley, Rev. McKee (Episcopal); Laymen's League and the Progressive Club.

"While I was telephoning at the hotel that Thursday night, the English visitors arrived, and a little later I welcomed them personally, and learned that they were looking forward with pleasure to visiting "Our Town," and seeing as much as might be possible of "The States."

"They brought me greetings from Dixon, Eyres and George Stennett, and RAF officer who visited N. H. in 1942, and whose photo of Main Street here was used by the (Peterborough) Transcript for its calendar this year. (These young Englishmen are members of the nucleus of a a club in Peterborough, England, one of the six).

Clerks Get Together.

"By morning, however, semi-officialdom, in the persons of our Town Clerk, Algie Holt, and their City Clerk, Mr. Outram, had set "at naught" the best laid plans of Mayor, Council and hospitable organizations from "Over There."

"The friends from Peterborough, England, were told that they had no right to accept any invitation that did not come through the Peterborough, Ontario, council (they had not accepted any, but had expressed their wish in the matter), and Mr. Holt told them the invitations from N. H. were not "official," and should not be considered.

"Why [illegible] Mayor Swanston and Councilman Young allowed themselves to be overruled by these "watchdogs of protocol," I do not understand. I had to wire Mrs. Wheeler that the visits were off and for her to inform interested organizations to that effect here in New Hampshire.

Still Hope For Trip.

"However, the visitors from Peterborough, England, continue to cherish hope that in some way it may still be possible to visit the U. S. A. before their return to England. They said they would try to get their passage, scheduled for the 9th of Nov., postponed to a later date, leaving them free to operate on their own, unhampered by their official hosts. I doubt they will be able to do this, but I sincerely hope they can."

Obviously, Mayor Chamberlain and his party may never have another opportunity of a trip to their New Hampshire counterpart, and they naturally wish to see as much of this country as possible, including a trip over the border. That is a sensible view of their prospects.

Mr. Wheeler affirms that he had a general invitation from a group of societies in N.H., but there was no official invitation from the town council, and that is where protocol injected its [illegible]nous authority.

Instead of feeling free to motor down to Peterborough, New Hampshire, as the first English mayor to arrive there, and also here, it appears that the vistors are effectually barred from going to the New Hampshire town.

It should be understood that none of this comment has come from Mayor Chamberlain and his companions. Carleton A. Wheeler sets out his version of the facts in the letter to the Examiner, and from all appearances he left this city last Sunday morning more disappointed than either Alderman Martin or Mayor Chamberlain. He had a community welcome ready for the guests, but he learned on the Saturday after the official opening here that it was one of these things that couldn't be done.

Brush and Palette Club Exhibits 93 Pieces Of Art

The Brush and Palette Club's second annual exhibition is bewildering. There is so much of it. Seventeen members are showing 93 pieces, mostly oils, mostly outdoor scenes. In the two upstair gallery rooms at the Public Library. There was a preview Saturday when a host of friends of the amateur painters, and other local brush people, came to see and praise.

When the eyes stop spinning, a general impression remains of fresh colours, pleasantness and of recreated local scenes. One of the virtues of such a group as this is that they are not copying old and external stuff, but looking at their own streets and countryside and making a good attempt at setting down these local scenes. Jackson Park, Stony Lake, autumn around Rice Lake, Peterborough streets, Haliburton—and the occasional recollection of summer holiday scenes in other parts — Quebec, Peggy's Cove. These are the subject-matter of their brushes and palettes.

Few have ventured into portraiture. Doris E. Clark has a study "Louise" and a distinctive image of a Shriner. Joan Leach has a portrait study "Laura," and Suzanne Dobbin a pleasant child's head and a nude study. There are numerous still lifes, of which I liked particularly Mary Cherney's Chinese Lanterns; some flowers (Suzanne Dobbin's Marsh Marigolds is effective in its green and yellow patterns; and this painter has a good White Horses study.)

Among the outdoor scenes these took my eye: R. L. Burnham's Lake Road, Doris Clark's Burleigh Falls (the colour is in blocs); D. E. Brown's Bridge at Jackson Park (by association with the bridge, slightly Japanese in treatment), M. M. Moore's scene near Lakefield (this member has a considerable variety in technique and exterior subjects); Olive A. Langley's Quebec Road scene (a good quality of light and clarity, some difficulty in perspective); Eva Copp's recognizable, many-stroked local scenes; Jessie Colling's patterned two pine stumps; Georgia Davies' detailed, sharp Peggy's Cove; Mary Cherney's miniatures; Vivien Graff's pleasant, sure Old Mill at Lang; Una Bullock is showing some asters, Georgina Hatton has two adept canvasses, Mabel Irwin a still life of some of the good things for the maw, Rosamond Blaiklock a spring bouquet.

The work of Gladys Elliott, who is showing 12 pieces, indicates a considerable accomplishment; notable are the Farm on the Otonabee, Back Channel, Stony Lake, and a familiar, authentic street scene.

It is a varied, unpretentious and friendly show; well worth an inspection. It is probably too early in the Brush and Palette Club's life, and too soon in the experience of most of the painters, to expect a selective exhibit.

Red Chinese Inefficiency Harms Industrialization

By FRED HAMPSON.

HONG KONG, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Communists have bungled industrialization in Communist China in a manner that would send any competent engineer into hysterics.

With a maximum of enthusiasm and a minimum of technical skill, the Communists have stumbled along like this:

They have sunk mine shafts where there is no coal.

Many factories were erected with inferior materials and had to be torn down and rebuilt.

They have built factories much too large for the raw material, power, market and skilled labor available.

Waste, inefficiency, grasping contractors and labor gang bosses took a 30 to 40 per cent gouge out of every building dollar in 1950.

All this, and more, is admitted by the Chinese Communist press.

Nothing But Errors

If you read the Red papers you get the feeling that the Communists made nothing but disastrous errors in 1950 which might wreck their industrial program.

The truth seems to be that they did little more than a 50 per cent job of industrial building. That is bad enough, but it won't ruin the Chinese Communists.

The Peiping mouthpiece, Jin Min Jih Pao quoted Chen Yun, chairman of the government committee on economic and financial affairs, as saying:

"The total work accomplished amounted to only 60 to 70 per cent of the financial disbursement made for the purpose."

How do the Communists propose to solve the problem?

Recently they started what they call a new democratic reform movement. Part of its purpose is to clean out reactionary elements in urban industry — including building.

A logical conclusion is that a good many of the poor contractors feudal labor bosses and bad planners have been liquidated.

Otherwise the problem will be solved by the same old formula, says Jan Min Jih Pao—more stringent government supervision over planning and building and more bureaux?

"We must train technical personnel," says Jen Min Jih Pao.

Which brings up another question: With what teachers?

Visit Memorial

CLAREMORE, OKLA., Nov. 5 (AP)—More than 3,000 persons gathered at the Will Rogers Memorial Sunday to pay homage to the memory of the late humorist on his 72nd birthday anniversary. Rogers was killed with aviator Wiley Post in a plane crash near Fairbanks, Alaska, on Aug. 15, 1935.

S. W. Cheshire CCF Candidate Durham County

Spencer Walter Cheshire, CCF candidate in Durham county, was born in Toronto 45 years ago, and has been a candidate of Cavan township for the last five years.

He joined the St. Clair CCF Club, Toronto, in 1933. Two years later he helped Ralph Staples in his Durham election campaign, and since then his interests turned from Toronto to this section of the province. He was campaign manager for William C. Grant in 1945.

S. W. CHESHIRE

Mr. Cheshire was one of the organizers of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Youth Movement (CCYM) in 1934, and has been actively engaged in various phases of CCF organization and development for more than 15 years.

Wide Experience

He is also interested in the Co-Operative movement. It was during the middle thirties that he joined his first Co-Op study club. His business experience includes clerical work with a large insurance firm, office and editorial work with a publishing company. During World War II he was free-lance writing, advertising vice-president of a union of gas, coke and chemical workers. After an experiment with a small manufacturing firm in Kitchener, he and his wife decided to make a living in the country, combining a reforestration project with growing Christmas trees, in the northeast corner of the county near Fraserville.

Mrs. Cheshire formerly a teacher of languages, then a proof-reader in Toronto was secretary five years of the CCF in Riverdale-Broadview. Mr. and Mrs. Cheshire have been foster parents to three children and are planning to adopt the little boy of four years they now have with them.

Pleads Guilty To Two Charges

After pleading guilty to charges of consuming liquor in a place other than his residence and causing a disturbance in a public place, Gilbert Jones, 56, no fixed address, was fined $10 and $2.50 in costs on each charge in police court today.

Magistrate W. R. Philp ruled that if the fines were not paid, the two terms of 10 days on each charge were to run consecutively, since the charges were laid on two separate days.

A charge of vagrancy, to which Jones pleaded not guilty on November 1 was dismissed by Magistrate Philp.

Talks Decide Village Future

BERLIN, Nov. 5. (Reuters) — United States and Russian officials met in West Berlin today for talks on the future of Steinstuecken, the outpost village which has twice been "liberated" from east German occupation in the last two weeks.

The Russian delegation, three men and one woman, reached the headquarters of the US high commission here after a half-hour ride from the Societ commission headquarters in east Berlin.

Steinstuecken, with its 200 inhabitants, belongs to west Berlin, but is separated from it by a mile-long corridor through the Soviet zone.

East German police occupied the hamlet Oct. 18 in a "lightning invasion" and declared it part of the east German territory. They withdrew on Russian orders after a protest from Maj.-Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, US commandant in Berlin.

A few days later east German police and Russian soldiers staged a two-hour "occupation" of the hamlet.

Lice Resist DDT Treatment Question Value In Typhus

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP) — DDT, formerly considered to be one of medicine's greatest weapons for the control of typhus, "now appears to be of uncertain value" in that respect, a team of US Navy and Army doctors reported Sunday.

Commander Herbert S. Hurlbut and two army colleagues announced that they had found Korean strains of body lice—potential carriers of typhus—which are highly resistant to DDT.

Typhus has been a dreadful fellow-traveler of almost every military campaign in history. There is an effective protective vaccine against it, but control of body lice which can carry typhus germs is considered the most practical means of protecting large groups of unvaccinated people.

The three scientists said military personnel in Korea treated with DDT dusting powder became almost as highly infested with body lice as they would if they had received no treatment.

First Found

The Korea lice are the first in which resistance to DDT has been found, Hurlbut told a reporter. Strains of house flies resistant to DDT have gradually developed in certain localities since DDT first was introduced generally about five years ago.

High hopes for DDT as a controller of typhus were originally based, Hurlbut said, on initial successes scored by US military forces against body lice among troops and natives in North Africa and Italy during the Second World War.

Hurlbut emphasized that there have been no outbreaks of typhus among UN troops in Korea and that all the men are protected by typhus vaccine.

Dr. J. J. Craig President Of Film Council

Dr. J. J. Craig was elected president of the Peterborough Film Council at the annual meeting and election of officers Friday at the Public Library.

Honorary president for the 1951-52 executive is His Worship, Mayor M. J. Swanston and past president, A. E. Borland.

William Graff will continue as secretary-treasurer and Miss Helen Watson as film librarian.

The 10 directors elected are: Lewis Bird, J. H. Cooper, W. Dineen, Miss June Fraser, Charles Hurst, Mrs. Gordon Langborn, the Rev. E. C. Moore, A. Pitchford, Mrs. C. H. Spearin, Sister Vicencia.

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Norwood Presbyterian church, and president of the Peterborough county film association was elected as county representative. Ron Ward continues as representative of the National Film Board.

Mr. Graff reported that there had been a decided increase in the number of films shown in the past year as compared to the previous year. From Sept. 1 to August 30 (1950-51) there were 1,047 films shown to 116,811 people. In 1949-50 the totals were 989 films shown to 9,287 people.

Mr. Graff also reported that Peterborough stands second in eastern Ontario in the totals of films shown and audiences. Kingston is first and Ottawa third.

Mr. Dinesen reported that there had been 9,926 films shown to 813,666 people in eastern Ontario during the past year. He said that eastern Ontario district had a total of $33,990 worth of equipment and films.

The following films were screened at the meeting: the last act of Carmen by the Vienna opera conducted by Joseph Krips; Wings to Alaska and Gibraltar.

Bitter Cold Strikes In US

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP)—Bitter cold tightened its icy grip upon storm-struck sections of the United States today after a weekend freak preview of winter weather.

From the Rockies to the Atlantic, freezing temperatures and wind-swirled snow embraced the land. Highways in some sections were turned into virtual death traps and at least 42 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

Chicago shivered today as the mercury sank to 12 above. The lowest temperature today was 9 below in Lone Rock, Wis. Other temperatures were Omaha 18, Minneapolis 7, Duluth 10, Bismarck, NB, 5 below. Temperatures were in the low 20s in New York State.

Snow covered much of the same area during the weekend and a new storm brewed today, moving south and east from Kansas toward southern Illinois and the lower Ohio valley.

Find Uranium Deposits

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 5 (Reuters) — Uranium deposits have been found in an old mine in west central Sweden, Harry Brynielsson, of Sweden's Atomic Energy Commission, disclosed today. "Further investigations must be made before we can say whether the deposit is rich enough to be worth mining," he added.

Labor Unions In Britain Warn Churchill

LONDON, Nov. 5—(Reuters)—British Labor unions watched warily Sunday night for signs that Winston Churhchills' newly elected Conservative Government will crack down on trade unionists when Parliament reconvenes Tuesday.

Facing a stormy political future Churchill is preparing a "cut government spending to the bone" policy for presentation to parliament. Labor fears it will be among the first called upon to practice the new government's gospel of sacrifice.

Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the 1,253,000-strong Transport and General Workers' Union, declared Sunday that there would be sturdy resistance to any attempt to cramp the style of the trade unions.

He said Churchill, with his slim majority, will find it difficult to carry on, and that he is "certainly not entitled to engage in any substantial departure" from the policies of Attlee's Labor Government which he defeated at the polls 10 days ago.

James Matthews, head of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers, said: "We will not tolerate the closing of one shipyard."

Give Few Tips

While labor unions were making their positions clear, industry was also offering a few tips to the new administration. The powerful Federation of British Industries said the government must create conditions in which industry can win the most output from existing resources.

In its monthly review, the federation calls on the government to consider whether the present burden of taxation is consistent with maximum effort and output and asks whether the incentive to work is not weakened at all levels by the present system of income tax.

Britain's Trade Union Congress, meanwhile, ran into some criticism for its statement last week that it would work amicably with Churchill. Delegates representing 28,000 coal miners passed a resolution at Swansea, South Wales stating that the TUC should have consulted rank and file first.

The resolution angrily referred "to the experionce with the Conservatives in 1921 (a year of depression and mass unemployment) and 1926" (the year of Britain's general strike).

Fined On Liquor Count

Charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence, George Frank Parish, 34, of Bridgenorth, entered a written plea of guilty in police court today. He was fined $15 and $2.50 in costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Must Put Back Land's Revenue H. R. Scott Says

No promises, but work for the best interests of the riding and the province—this was the keynote of the Hon. Harold R. Scott's address Saturday night to a political meeting at Keene.

Mr. Scott pictured for his listeners some of the aims of the department of lands and forests; aims that he hoped would make for a brighter heritage "for your children."

He had been accused of squandering the taxpayers' money, he said. "We've been criticized for spending all we're making." Some people have said that the department turned back $3,000,000 before his administration.

Return To Land

"The answer can be summed up in the words of my grandfather: 'What comes off the land must go back to it.'

"That's what I'm doing with your renewable resources—things like fish, trees, game and water," said Mr. Scott. "I'm making sure that what comes off the land goes back to it."

He cited the work being done on the Ganaraska river as an example of what his department is doing and helping to do.

"You've seen photographs in the newspapers of cakes of ice right on the main street of Port Hope. We're tyring to stop the flash floods in spring that carry those huge cakes of ice.

"At the headwaters of the Ganaraska, we are planting trees to hold the water in the soil," he said. This would not only cut out flash floods in time, but would bring back good speckled trout fishing in the river.

Trees Planted

In 1945, 10 million trees were planted from Lands and Forests nurseries. In 1951, 20 million trees were planted. "I want to see 60 or 70 million planted before I leave the department," said Mr. Scott.

"Peterborough city depends on the manufacture of electrical equipment; this equipment is useless without the water to power hydro stations. And we must have trees to hold the water and ensure an even flow the year 'round.

"With your permission," said Mr. Scott, "I'll go on squandering your money by putting back into the land what has been taken out of it. I think it will ensure a better heritage for your children."

Progressive Conservative MP for Peterborough West, Gordon K. Fraser, took Liberal leader Walter Thomson to task for some of his election promises.

"He ought to hire a band and sing 'Come Onna My House'," said Mr. Fraser. "Then he wouldn't need to repeat his promises.

"Mr. Thomson claims the Frost government has done nothing to increase the number of hospital beds in the province. He doesn't know what he's talking about. Since 1947, 14,474 hospital beds have been added to general hospitals and sanitoria in Ontario.

"Mr. Thomson also said the Frost government has done nothing for education. The Hepburn regime spent about $8,000,000 a year for education. The Frost government is spending more than $46,000,000," said Mr. Fraser.

William Ovens

First speaker of the evening was William Ovens, a former Mayor of Peterborough and president of the Peterborough Progressive Conservative Association. He was introduced by chairman Peter Mathers.

He spoke of the grants the provincial government gave to municipalities, commenting that he "knew of no fairer system of distributing grants than that practiced by our provincial government."

Grants totalling more than $25,000 had been given to Otonabee township, and more than $226,000 to Peterborough county. Assessment total in Otonabee had climbed to nearly $2,000,000, the mill rate was 55, and Mr. Ovens estimated that the provincial grants saved taxpayers about 16 mills on the tax rate.

Hot Time For Rulers

HONG KONG, Nov. 5—(AP)—Communist authorities in Shanghai are preparing a hot time for Britain's imperial rulers Nov. 15. A bonfire in the middle of the city will consume all rulers and measuring weights not marked in the metric system. The public burning will climax a campaign to eradicate what is called the "Imperialistic landmark of the British foot and yard system."

Two Labor Unions Charge Living Cost Index Too Low

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP)—Two labor unions said Sunday the cost-of-living index issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics is inaccurate, and that every point it is too low means a loss of $61,500,000 a year in real earnings to Canadian workers.

The claim was made by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of America and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America. They issued a summary of findings of a cost-of-living survey which they made recently.

The unions, recently ejected from the Canadian Congress of Labor because of leftist leadership, said living standards of wage and salaried workers in Canada have declined about 10 per cent since 1939.

They said the Bureau of Statistics index is 66 points lower than it should have been at Sept. 1 this year—189.8 instead of 256.4.

"Deficiencies in the DBS food, clothing and housing indexes account for about 60 per cent of the understatement, and failure to include the impact of taxation accounts for another 30 per cent."

The preliminary report by the unions on their cost-of-living survey did not give details of how the survey was carried out. The DBS index does not include income taxation or unemployment insurance contributions. Both were included in the union's calculations.

The unions urged a public inquiry into the method of compiling the DBS index.

All Saints' Women's Aux. Celebrates 60th Anniversary

Its members will have to show more zeal and enthusiasm if the church is to meet the challenges that are facing it today, the Rev. Maurice Flint, rector of Trinity Anglican Church, Toronto, warned in a sermon here Sunday.

Mr. Flint spoke at the morning service at 'All Saints' Anglican Church on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of the Women's Auxiliary.

"Today is a time of social change and unrest, with prejudice and distrust rampant among nations," declared Mr. Flint. "Moral standards are being challenged. The church is being challenged. In universities, men are challenging the works of God. Scientists often approach religion with distrust. God's servants in mission fields are being persecuted."

Imprisoned By Reds

As an illustration of the hardships missionaries in foreign countries are facing today, Mr. Flint cited that of one of his friends imprisoned by the Chinese Reds and held in solitary confinement for three months.

"We must do more than ever before if we hope to evangelize the world and reach all nations," said Mr. Flint. "We must enter into the task with zeal and enthusiasm and a sacrificial spirit."

The church is not nearly catching up with the increase in the population of heathen countries, the speaker continued. There are 500 million new heathers born in India every year. In the world today, there are 300 million steeped in Hinduism....220 million Mohammedans....and 270 million under our own church.

Using as his text, the 10th verse of the 4th chapter of the First Epistle of Timothy, Mr. Flint paraphrased the verse "Therefore we both serve and strive because we trust in the living God" to emphasize his thesis that it is not enough to merely serve as members of a church, unless we strive against all the forces challenging the work of God.

Turn To God

"It is not in the turning away from idols and the uncertain riches of this earth that is the Christian experience, but it is the turning to God that enables men to see the living God."

God is not an impassive spectator in the lives of men, but a living dynamic force, who is doing something for everybody and everything for some, continued Mr. Flint.

Mr. Flint drew on his 14 years' experience as an Arctic missionary to illustrate his statement that "the living God satisfies the longing of men throughout the ages." Sailors had taught an old Eskimo blasphemous language, and the old native, Koonoo, had a habit of uttering the words in church, said Mr. Flint, although he did not know what they meant.

However, after attending the mission services a few times, Mr. Flint said that Koonoo asked through an interpreter what it was like "to be sinking in sin," and was converted.

His conversion "may have been a lot of hot air," said Mr. Flint, "because their is hot air in the mission field as well as any other," but Mr. Flint added that he was convinced the old Eskimo was sincere and found in Christianity that which he had found lacking before.

Supper Club Hears Adamson

The guest speaker at the Friday Night Club in the YMCA was S. R. Adamson assistant works accountant at C.G.E. and a member of the Board of Education. The topic of Mr. Adamson's speech was, "Some Aspects of Vocational Training." He outlined the objectives of general education in the secondary schools as well as the two aims of vocational education, the development of basic skills and the formation of sound work habits.

Mr. Adamson explained that most students entered business or industry after leaving school. Those with vocational training usually become apprentices in the skilled trades. Those with academic training become clerical workers or else enter industry as untrained workers.

These students entering industry are faced with many problems in "bridging the gap" between the classroom training and the practical training. Mr. Adamson said that an organization, the Ontario Industrial Education Council, is in existence to give guidance to these young people entering industry. There is a local chapter of the council in this city. This organization strives to further the concept that education is a continuing process and that it does not stop when the student leaves school.

The speaker was introduced by Bob Oliver and thanked by Harry McNabb.

Punishment Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon which was read in First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was "Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins? Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord." (Lamentations 3: 39, 40.)

Selections from the Bible included the following from Matthew 27: 1, 3-5: "When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death: Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, Saying, I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following: "Judas conspired against Jesus. The world's ingratitude and hatred towards that just man effected his betrayal. The traitor's price was thirty pieces of silver and the smiles of the Pharisees. He knew that the world generally loves a lie better than truth; and so he plotted the betrayal of Jesus in order to raise himself in popular estimation. His dark plot fell to the ground, and the traitor fell with it."

Sling-Shot Expert Amazes Tourists

FORT FRANCES, Ont.—(CP)—A 14-year-old boy and his sling-shot, and a parking-meter hitching post will likely be long remembered by a party of United States hunters who have returned to their Illinois homes from this northwest Ontario district.

The boy and his sling-shot drew their attention when they returned from a hunting sojourn in the Kenora area.

At Sioux Narrows the tourists stopped the young boy and asked where he had shot the four partridges he was carrying. They discovered there was no shot in the birds.

The boy demonstrated:

He drew a sling-shot from his pocket, aimed and precisely dotted and "i" on a nearby signboard.

The Americans next surprise came when they attempted to park on a busy down-town Fort Frances street.

Spying a vacant parking meter zone they began to head in. Before they could wiggle their car into position a horseman rode up, jumped from the saddle and tied his mount's rein to the parking meter.

Leslie Howard's Son Appears In First Broadway Role

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 — (AP) — When a British comedy called "To Dorothy, A Son," opens on Broadway later this month, the first night audience will make an inevitable comparison.

They will find that a young actor named Ronald Howard looks very much like the late Leslie Howard. Same tall, thin structure; same long, narrow, sensitive face, high forehead and blonde wavy hair. Same affinity for a pipe.

"They will also find, I'm afraid, that the resemblance ends there," said the son of the great British actor.

"My acting is neither the same nor as good. Father, as you know, was a past master at the throw-away, at the line that slides gently away with a look. He was ever the relaxed, detached, gently amused Englishman. And that's what he was off stage, too.

Haven't Subtlety

"I'm rougher as an actor, naturally. I still have a kind of stumbling excitement. I haven't found his subtlety yet. I keep hunting it under tables and in cigarette boxes and other bits of stage business."

Ronald Howard, 33, spent most of his adult life before the war trying to decide between journalism and the theatre. He worked for a time as a reporter in London. He also did some British repertory work, with no persuasion from his father, under the name "Ronald Martin."

He served 6½ years in the British navy, met a wren in Ceylon and married her back in England. They have two children. Unable to find a good newspaper job after the war, Ronald settled on the theatre, took on more repertory work and acquired enough confidence to use his real name.

In Movies

He has made half a dozen British movies, the latest of which is J. Arthur Rank's "The Browning Version." In that, young Howard plays a gentle, dreamy schoolmaster—the kind of role his father played to perfection.

Father and son made only one appearance together. That was in 1940 when Leslie Howard was doing propaganda broadcasts on British life which were beamed to North Africa. Ronald was then a sailor.

Three years later Leslie Howard was lost on a plane which disappeared on a flight from Lisbon to London.

Slaughter Of Innocents On Highways Must Be Stopped—Justice

Gets Four Months For Dangerous Driving, Two Months For Leaving Accident; Two Terms Will Run Consecutively

Justice W. F. Spence today sentenced 43-year-old Gladys Long, Montreal, to six months in reformatory after she was convicted on charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. A Peterborough county jury deliberated for six and a quarter hours before returning a verdict of not guilty on the more serious charge of motor manslaughter. Justice Spence gave Miss Long four months for dangerous driving and two months for failing to remain at the scene of the accident. The sentences will run consecutively.

The Justice said that the present "slaughter of the innocents" on Ontario highways must stop.

"Automobiles are dangerous things," he said, "and people who drive them are saddled with a great responsibility. People are being maimed and killed on our highways as a result. This must stop."

Boy Killed

Miss Long was charged after a fatal acident about 3 pm, June 9, on Highway 7, more than a-mile and a half west of Peterborough. Ten-year-old David Sanderson, together with a younger companion, was walking up the east side of the highway when he was knocked 77 feet and almost instantly killed by a passing car.

The car was allegedly driven by Miss Long who, witnesses said got out of her car some 500 feet north of where the boy was lying. She examined her car and then drove on to Lindsay.

Mental Anguish

Justice Spence said he didn't think he needed to emphasize the punative or reformative aspects of the sentence. A letter written by Miss Long to the Sandersons, shortly after the accident, was an indication that she was suffering acute mental anguish.

In her letter she said she was unable to sleep without sedatives, eat without nausea, and was un-

SPOILS OF THE HUNT WERE SCARCE, for the most part, throughout the Kawartha deer country on Monday, opening day. Though signs of game are plentiful, dogs were held in check and deer did little travelling from their usual browsing grounds. To most seasoned hunters it was a good thing; they did not want to see a wholesale slaughter on opening day. Three of the more fortunate hunters are shown Above dragging a freshly-killed doe down the trail beside west bank of Eel's Creek towards their camp. They are Gord Wiley, Vic and Max Doughty, all of Peterborough. Four others of their party bagged a total of four deer on Monday morning.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Plan Drastic Move As Britain Faces Bankruptcy

LONDON, Nov. 6. (CP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today his new Conservative government found Britain on the road to "national bankruptcy." He warned the nation it is entering a period of emergency during which he will be forced to take "exceptional measures." "We are convinced," he told the House of Commons, "that it is necessary to present the facts plainly to the nation in order that everyone might realize where we stand."

In addition to stringent financial action, Churchill said he will ask soon for a secret session of Commons at which he will give it full information on the country's defence position.

On finances, Churchill said:

"We do not believe that a full and frank statement of our position will aggravate the loss of confidence abroad which has been taking place." He said figures he cited "mean in short that we are buying much more than we can afford to pay for from current earnings and this can only in time lead to national bankruptcy."

Churchill did not specify just what remedies he has in mind, but said:

"We feel that a solemn resolve by parliament and by the British people to set their house in order without delay and the measures necessary to give effect to this resolve will act as a tonic to our credit all the world over.

Grave Matter

Churchill described the nation's financial position as "the gravest matter I have to bring before the House"—so bad that "confidence in sterling is impaired."

He said unless "present trends and policies" are reversed the gold-dollar reserves of the sterling block might slump more than £600,000,000 in 1952.

These reserves are the entire dollar capital of the countries using the pound sterling as the basis of national currency. The reserves now are down to slightly more than $3 billion.

Churchill said Britain has a deficit crisis worse than that of 1949 and is running into debt abroad at the rate of £700,000,000 or nearly $2,000,000,000 a year. The pound was devalued in 1949.

He said the deficit crisis is not only worse than 1949 but "in many ways worse than in 1947." He referred to financial help from the United States in those years, saying:

"Do not let us forget during the last six years the immense financial help loaned or given us by the US government and our dominions. Without this the true fact of our situation would have been brought brutally home to all parties and classes—and it may be coming home by now."

Defence Threatened

Churchill moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The speech declared that rising inflation "threatens the maintenance of our defence program."

The speech declared also the government's determination to nullify Labor's nationalization of the iron and steel industry. It voiced British determination to

Secret Police Head Makes Stalin Speech

LONDON, Nov. 6 (Reuters) — Not Stalin but another top Soviet leader, Lavrentie Beria, head of secret police, made the traditional revolution anniversary speech in Moscow today, Moscow radio reported.

The ceremony—34th since the 1917 uprising brought the Communists to power—opened in the Moscow Bolshoi Theatre before a select audience of Russian notables—politburo members, party and government officials and Red army officers.

Many western observers figured the key speech would contain important Russian policy statements, perhaps countering the peace plan which President Truman is expected to broadcast on Wednesday night.

In his opening remarks, Beria said the Communist system is achieving "new successes every day."

US War Threat

It was 2Stalin's energy and knowledge which gave the correct line for the great victories, Beria asserted.

"There are two centres of attraction in the world now," he said, "the Soviet Union on one hand—the USA on the other hand—the centre of imperialism and aggression."

"The imperialist camp headed by the United States and Britain are striving to unleash another war to enslave the peoples of the world," he declared.

Beria said Russia has "all types of the most up-to-date weapons to inflict a crushing blow on any aggressor who....should attack our fatherland."

On the domestic scene, he said Russia now produces as much steel as Britain, France, Belgium, and Sweden together, as much cotton as India, Pakistan and Egypt, and coal output is rising by 24,000,000 tons a year, oil by 6,500,000.

Reds Don't Want Formal Truce

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 6 (AP)—The United Nations' Command spokesman said today the Communists want to call off the fighting in Korea without signing a formal armistice.

The UN, he said, will have none of that.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, the spokesman, said the Reds tipped their hand Thursday when they rejected the latest Allied proposal. That was an offer to set aside the stalemated cease-fire buffer-zone issue for the moment and take up other items that must be settled before a formal armistice can be signed.

The Reds demanded, Nuckols said, immediate "final, formal solution" of the buffer-zone matter before proceeding to the rest of the agenda.

Nuckols said this would in effect allow a de facto cease-fire—an end to the fighting without formal agreement—and let armistice talks drag on indefinitely.

New Research Building

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—(CP)—The Defence Department today announced plans for a new research building at Downsview, in the Toronto area, to house the Defence Research Medical Laboratories. The building will cost more than $1,000,000.

Truman To Make Important Broadcast

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Truman will make what is expected to be a highly significant foreign-policy broadcast Wednesday night (10:30 to 11 pm EST) from his White House office.

It will be carried on all major radio and television networks. It coincides with the opening of the sixth general assembly of the United Nations in Paris.

(The address will be carried by the CBC on its trans-Canada and Dominion networks.)

Although no further details were given here, it has been speculated both in Washington and Paris that Truman may outline a new disarmament program.

Issue Ruling To Cover Karpuk Incident

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—Dave McCann, chairman of the rules committee of the Canadian Rugby Union, said today that the CRU doesn't intend to be caught napping on a second "Karpuk incident."

He issued this statement:

"With reference to the illegal play that took place in the Argonaut-Ottawa game last Saturday, the chairman of the rules committee of the CRU has sanctioned the following specific ruling to eliminate the necessity of a referee adjudicating upon a possible similar situation.

Outline Penalty

"If any player or players of the defending side deliberately enters on the field while the play is in progress and interferes with any player of the attacking side, even without direct contact, the penalty shall be as follows:

"1. The disqualification of the offending player or players from further participation in the game;

"2. The ruling off for not less than five minutes one player of the offending side for each player so disqualified.

"3. The awarding of first down to the attacking side on the defending side's one-yard line.

"(Note: In the event of the offence occurring at the end of the second or fourth periods where the normal expiration of time remaining would be insufficient for a complete series of three downs, the attacking side shall be permitted to complete that series of downs.)"

Communists Push Allies Off Third Hill

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 6—(AP)—Chinese infantrymen captured a third hill on the expanding western front today and held two other peaks against Allied counter-attacks.

The Communists won three other hills but lost them again.

Their three-day-old offensive spread through drizzling rain over a 20-mile sector. Supported by their heaviest display of armor in months, they hit United Nations' forces from points west of Yonchon—eight miles north of the 38th parallel—to the hills north of Chorwon, western anchor of their old iron triangle.

In the centre of this sector, waves of Reds struck from two directions behind a heavy barrage and captured their third peak. The attack opened with a heavy concentration of fire from mortars, artillery, tanks and self-propelled guns.

The assault drove Allies from their muddy foxholes atop the hill northwest of Yonchon.

Wood Gets Six-Month Term On Dangerous Driving Count

A sentence of six months in reformatory was today imposed on Melvin Wood, 21, 548 Harvey St., found guilty on a charge of dangerous driving. Shortly after midnight a Peterborough county jury reported that they were unable to reach a verdict on the motor manslaughter count, but they found him guilty on the lesser charge. The jury deliberated for six hours and 38 minutes and brought in their verdict at 12:11 am. Wood was charged after his car last June 16 struck and fatally injured 21-year-old Lorne Russel, Oshawa, as Russel was walking along the west side of Highway 28, nearly a half mile north of the city.

Sentence was pronounced shortly after 10 am today after both Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, and Defence Counsel T. J. Carley, KC, addressed the judge briefly.

Asks Stiff Sentence

Mr. Bradshaw said that without a doubt the cause of the accident was alcohol. And he asked for a stiff sentence.

Mr. Carley asked for a lenient sentence because of Wood's youth and his responsibilities as a husband and parent.

In passing sentence Mr. Justice W. F. Spence, presiding at the criminal assizes, said he had a right and duty to regard Wood's offence as a very serious one. The Justice said Wood had gone out drinking beer on a Saturday afternoon without thought of his responsibilities as the driver of a car.

He said he decided to scale down the sentence after hearing Mr. Carley's representation.

"To do crazy things is perhaps one of the chief marks of youth," said Justice Spence. "But it must be realized that autos are dangerous and youths must assume responsibilities beyond their years when they drive them."

Will Keep Troops In Suez British Warning To Egypt

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—The British government served notice on Egypt today it intends to keep British troops in the critical Suez Canal zone despite Egypt's junking of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty. In a note delivered in Cairo, Prime Minister Churchill's government told Egypt it will continue to carry out the policies first laid down by the recent labor government.

The note declared that Egypt's action in voiding the 1936 treaty and the agreements on joint administration of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan are "illegal and without validity."

In the note today, Britain offered to reopen negotiations for revision of the 1936 treaty under which Britain first stationed troops in the canal zone.

To Side With Russia

Meanwhile in Cairo, indications mounted that Egypt is preparing to break with the west and side with Russia for Communist support against Britain in the tussle for control of the Suez Canal.

Press reports here and dispatches from the United Nations session in Paris pointed to a swing to the east as gunfire crackled again in the troubled canal zone.

A band of Egyptian guerrillas opened up on two British sentries near Ismailia in the zone, but fled when the Britons returned the fire. Nobody was hurt. British spokesmen also reported that an army truck was fired on outside

Bad Snowstorm Said On Way

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—The season's worst snowstorm was expected today to hit Toronto any hour. Traffic officials predicted it would cause serious tie-ups in the business section.

The weatherman said the storm already had swept through Windsor and was travelling "straight to Toronto at a pretty good clip." He predicted there would be from three to five inches of snow.

The snow might follow freezing rain and slippery streets. It was expected to fall through the night, with possible lighter flurries Wednesday.

Monday night the temperature dropped to 17 above in Toronto, the coldest Nov. 6 since 1853 when it was 18.

London had the lowest temperature in the southern section, and Gravenhurst the coldest in the north. Both registered one degree below zero.

A heavy snowfall around Orillia on Lake Simcoe was blamed for the heart attack death of George A. Mitchell, 59. He died on his way to work Monday after walking through heavy snow across a field.

Course Of True Love Proves Rugged For US Airmen Stationed In England

BURTONWOOD, ENGLAND, Nov. 6—(Reuters)—Regulations guaranteed to discourage all but the most sincere of love affairs have been put into effect for American airmen of the 59th depot wing here.

Look what a prospective bridegroom must go through before he can tie the knot:

He must know his girl for at least three months.

His marriage application must be accompanied by a security check of the bride-to-be. The check can't be completed in less than 60 days.

The application also involves an interview with the chaplain, application forms, acquiescence forms and a talk with the commanding officer.

Then there must be a report of physical examinations of both the bride and groom, plus x-rays and blood tests.

For all airmen below the rank of sergeant with less than seven years service, bank accounts must show $900 balances.

And, if the prospective bride is a widow, the airman will have to show he has $450 in his bank account for each child she has.

Four US Railroads To Strike Thursday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen today called a strike on four major railroads to begin at 3 pm (local standard time) Thursday.

President David B. Robertson said a work stoppage is "the only course left open to obtain long overdue increases in wages and improved working conditions."

All major railroads have been under government seizure for some time. This makes the employees technically government workers, and the government quite probably will seek a court injunction to stop the strike before it begins.

The strike was termed a "progressive" one meaning that while the walkout initially was to affect four key railroads and their subsidiaries, other rail systems could be struck later.

Lindsay Hunter Slips On Ice Shoots Himself

William F. English, 47, RR 4, Lindsay, died Monday afternoon shortly after he slipped on an icy road in Harvey Township and shot himself in the forehead. It was the first fatality in Peterborough County since the deer hunting season opened on Monday morning.

Mr. English, a farmer, was found by another Lindsay hunter, in a pool of blood on a little-used road a mile north of Nogies Creek.

He died while being rushed to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, by Dr. B. E. Kelly, Bobcaygeon.

An ardent huntsman, English had started out looking for deer as soon as the season opened Monday morning. He had already shot one deer on the Galway road, north of Bobcaygeon, and was trying his luck in the Nogies Creek area.

Patrolling Road

He and his brother, Clayton English, were patrolling the Nogies Creek road ready to bag any deer that were flushed into the open. Clayton was down the road a quarter of a mile when he heard a shot in the general direction of where his brother was hunting.

The time was about 4 pm and Clayton decided it was time to go home. He walked up the road where Gratton Thibodeau, Lindsay, had found his fatally-injured brother.

Mr. English died before reaching hospital. Dr. T. W. L. Broadfoot performed an autopsy and found that a slug from a 12-gauge shotgun had penetrated his skull. An inquest is considered unlikely.

OPP Constable Roy Feeley investigated.

Mr. English leaves a wife and a daughter Lois, 20.

Britain Faces Serious Floods

LONDON, Nov. 6. (Reuters)—Serious floods today threatened many part of Britain following recent torrential rains.

Rivers spilled over their banks and roads and farmlands were swamped.

Three of the main rivers, the Thames, the Severn and Avon, were rising rapidly to the danger line. Some land at the upper reaches of the Thames was already under water.

Floods six feet deep were reported in Wales and in Somerset in western England.

There were scenes of desolation and destruction at Kintore, Aberdeenshire, in northern Scotland, today when the river Don swept over the surrounding country in the worst flood for 24 years.

The waters poured through Kintore's main street and miles of low-lying farmland in the area was completely submerged.

Old Age Pension Subject To Tax

OTTAWA, Nov. 6, (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said Monday in the Commons that the federal old-age pension of $40 a month, starting January next, will be subject to taxation.

He told George Cruickshank (L. Fraser Valley) that the pension will be regarded as income for tax purposes, but probably few of the pensioners will fall within the income tax brackets.

The pension will total $480 for a single person. The income tax exemption for a single person is $1,000.

Setting Bad Example

MP Gets Severe Scolding For Boasting Of Smuggling

OTTAWA, Nov. 6 — (CP) —In a brief, spirited exchange, a Newfoundland member of parliament scolded a New Brunswick member in the Commons Monday night for boasting that he is a smuggler and intends to remain one.

W. J. Browne (PC-St. John's West) told A. Wesley Stuart (L.-Charlotte) that he does not think it right for a parliamentarian to boast about smuggling goods from the United States, as Mr. Stuart did last week in the throne-speech debate.

Mr. Stuart who had made his declaration in complaining about the differential between Canadian and American prices, jumped to his feet and asked Mr. Browne if he never had brought anything into Canada across the border.

Certainly, replied Mr. Browne. He had been to the United States recently and had taken advantage of the "generous" customs exemptions on returning home.

Mr. Stuart rose again: "Did you ever bring anything that you did did not declare?"

Mr. Browne protested that he did not think one member should "cross-examine" another about "his whole lifetime."

"Even if I did," he went on, "it's not necessary for a member of parliament to get up and say that sort of thing when he knows the people in his own constituency might be liable to arrest.

Lots of Variety

A-Bosses Have Developed Staggered Sizes Of Bombs

LAS VEGAS, NEV., Nov. 6—(AP)—The United States' atom masters have developed an assortment of bombs of staggered sizes and staggering reactions that may in time make conventional weapons obsolete.

Awed observers were unable to draw any other conclusion as the first phase of the Atomic Energy Commission's fall test series at Yucca Flat came to a smashing finale Monday with a full-scale A-bomb explosion.

Test manager Carroll L. Tyler and scientific chief Alvin C. Graves were not fooling when they said the series would include "a number of experiments." No two blasts in the set of five just finished appeared identical—and the last one topped them all.

It seemed to have all the attributes of previous major A-bombs, including a flash and fireball that persisted 10 seconds.

The blast rocked the Nevada Desert for miles and was heard 235 miles away in Richfield, Utah.

The blast concluded the first phase of the AEC's fall series which, Tyler said, has been devoted primarily to "development tests."

The second phase, dealing mainly with the effects of weapons, will probably begin next week.

The first phase embraced the detonation of bombs ranging from the tiny tower shot—perhaps the first baby A-bomb—on Oct. 22 through steadily increasing, plane-delivered bursts of Oct. 28, Oct. 30 and Nov. 1, to Monday's big bomb drop from a B-29 flying above 30,000 feet.

Auriol Urges Big 3 Meet In Paris During UN Session

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—France's President Vincent Auriol suggested today that President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin meet for private talks in Paris during the session of the United Nations' general assembly opening today. The suggestion was made in a speech prepared for delivery before the 60-country assembly's initial meeting. Auriol did not mention the American, British and Russian leaders by name, but referred to them as the "distinguished men to whom all anxious eyes are turned."

He said he feels sure, if they came here to consider their differences in private and within the scope of the UN, that progress could be made toward easing current world tensions.

Truman has replied to previous suggestions for a big-four meeting by saying that he would be glad to meet Stalin in Washington.

No Sign of Change

Stalin, on the other hand, never has been willing to go so far from Russia. There has been no indication that either leader has changed his mind.

The UN delegates, however, gathered for a session which even before Auriol's suggestion was being described as decisive for peace.

Here is the way the French President put his suggestion for a big-four meeting:

"I will make bold to say that if the distinguished men towards whom all anxious eyes are turned were to come here to attend this session, not of course to participate directly in your proceedings, but to establish human contact with each other, to exchange ideas personally, to consider their differences without any agenda or public debate, and to try within the scope and in keeping with the principles of the United Nations jointly to reduce the disagreements which paralyze the world—if this should happen, we would welcome them with a joy which I am convinced would become world wide."

Auriol reaffirmed France's faith in the UN and at the same time pledged his country's co-operation in efforts to build a strong collective-security system.

And with the US reported ready in the face of almost certain Russian opposition—to propose a world-wide census and sweeping inspection of atomic weapons and other armaments, Auriol declared:

"We have no fonder wish than to see the establishment of a permanent and simultaneous control in all countries of all armaments, whether conventional or atomic."

Safety Deposit Boxes Looted

ST. JEROME, Que. Nov. 6 — (CP).—Provincial Bank officials today worked on the difficult task of assessing the loot, estimated in the vicinity of $200,000, taken from some 50 safety deposit boxes rifled in their branch here during the weekend.

St. Jerome is about 25 miles north of Montreal.

First reports that the loot may exceed $200,000 were said to be exaggerated by Gaston Levesque, general superintendent of the Bank of Montreal.

However, a spokesman for the provincial police said: "We may hit this figure when everything is tallied, if that is possible."

The break-in was discovered by manager Leopole Talve when the bank opened for business on Monday.

The vault had been forced open, probably with an electric drill. All deposit boxes had been smashed open by a sledge-hammer.

In a case where safety deposit boxes are looted, the customer, not the bank absorbs the loss, unless he is covered by insurance.

Captures Prisoner Shovel Weapon

WITH THE 25TH BRIGADE IN KOREA (CP)—Pte. Howard Paul, 21, of Maliseet, NB, captured a prisoner in Korea recently—with a shovel.

The member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry left his company's position to fill some water bottles. Passing through a small Korean village he spotted a Chinese soldier carrying a shovel.

Paul yelled at the Chinese to stop, then suddenly realized he himself was unarmed. There was a short scuffle. Paul grabbed the shovel and whacked the Chinese over the head.

Then he calmly filled his water bottles and walked his stunned prisoner back to the Canadian lines.

Charge French Canadians In Most Exposed War Spots

OTTAWA, Nov. 6. (CP)—An independent member from Quebec was challenged in the Commons Monday to prove a statement that French-Canadian troops in Korea are picked to serve in the most exposed positions and to carry out the most menial chores. The statement was made by J. E. Gagnon, a 42-year-old merchant, who represents the constituency of Chicoutimi.

The challenge came from Jean Lesage (L - Montmagny-L'Islet), parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Pearson, who said that all United Nations forces in Korea are given equal treatment.

The exchange came during otherwise quiet debate on the Speech from the Throne. Both spoke in French.

Mr. Gagnon said that Canada cannot assure her defence without the help of French-Canadians. Yet it was humiliating to see the way French-Canadians were treated in the armed forces.

Canada's constitution, he said, should be respected and both French and English should be regarded as official languages in the defence forces. He was anxious to know whether the French-language units in the Canadian 27th Brigade, now on its way to Europe, will be given orders in French.

Most Exposed Sections

He said he also wondered whether they will be singled out as were the French-Canadian troops in Korea to serve in the most exposed positions and to do the most tedious chores.

Mr. Gagnon went on to call for adoption of a national flag and a national anthem and to urge appointment of Canadian diplomatic representative to the Vatican.

Mr. Lesage, 39-year-old lawyer asked permission to ask a question. He said Mr. Gagnon's statement was "very serious" and he wondered if the source for the statement could be given.

Mr. Gagnon replied that his statement was true; that it was based on reports given him by soldiers returning from Korea.

Mr. Lesage angrily shouted that he challenged Mr. Gagnon to prove his statement before the Commons or withdraw it.

Mr. Gagnon shouted that he had nothing to withdraw.

In the noisy exchange Leopold Langlois (L-Gaspe), 38-year-old navy veteran of the Second World War, interjected in French and asked where Mr. Gagnon had served during the war. There was no reply.

Mr. Lesage said that all troops serving with the United Nations in Korea are given equal treatment. One had only to glance at the casualty lists to see that the losses were proportionate to the number of troops serving from different countries. This applied to Greece, Turkey, France and others.

The incident ended when he said that the statement that French-Canadians were singled out for service in the most exposed positions could have "excessively-dangerous" international consequences.

US Youth Felt Terrible Urge To Kill Someone Ordered Deported From Canada At Once

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 6 (CP) —A United States youth who says he has a terrible urge to kill was ordered deported Monday. He came to Canada a week ago to "start a new life."

The youth was not identified but told police he came from Casey, Ill. He is about 19 or 20.

The youth, with "abnormally large" hands, told police he wanted to strangle someone—"preferably a woman." He roamed a park here Saturday night but could not work up enough nerve to attack anyone.

Dr. E. S. Goddard, a psychiatrist who talked to the youth for 40 minutes Monday, said he was not insane but was troubled by a past that included a broken romance, a police record, short periods in mental hospitals and a boys' training school and a poor home life.

He was picked up Saturday near the edge of the park bleeding from a cut on the head. The youth said he fell. Police thought he had been robbed and questioned him. The youth then told of his desire to strangle a woman.

Plan Drastic

continue a firm policy both in Iran and Egypt.

Churchill called again, as he has been doing for two years, for an attempt to abate the cold war "by negotiation at the highest level from strength and not from weakness." He said he and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden "still believe in a supreme effort to bridge the gulf between the two worlds."

"Never," thundered Churchill, "must we admit that a third world war is inevitable."

"Weak Speech"

Former prime minister Attlee, now leader of the Labor Party opposition in the House of Commons, described the throne speech as "one of the thinnest that I have ever seen."

"It exhibits no clear line of policy whatever except negation," Attlee said, "and the principal items to be laid before us in this session consists of an endeavour to undo the work of previous parliaments."

The throne speech said the government will:

1. Stand pat in Egypt and press for a Middle-East defence plan.
2. "Try to repair the injuries (British) rights and interests suffered in Iran."
3. De-nationalize the steel industry taken over by the Socialist government.
4. Attack cartels and monopolies.
5. Take drastic action against growing inflation.
6. Strengthen home defences.

The speech from the throne is usually read by Britain's monarch. But because the King is still convalescing from his lung operation, today's address was read for him in the House of Lords by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Simonds.

A forecast in broad outlines of the reigning government's plans for the country, the speech is written for the King by the cabinet.

Commonwealth governments would be invited to confer on action to close the present precarious sterling gap, the speech said.

Running at the rate of about $1,680,000,000 a year the gap affects Britain's position as banker for the whole sterling area.

Gravest Problem

The throne speech said that a "full disclosure must be made to the nation" of the recent serious deterioration in Britain's economic affairs. It described the problem as "overshadowing all other domestic affairs."

After a special cabinet meeting Monday night, the government was reported to have laid drastic plans for a fight to stave off another devaluation of the pound.

The reports said Churchill is ready to slash imports by as much as one-quarter, ask all sterling-bloc countries to cut their gold and dollar spending, appeal for more financial aid to carry out the huge rearmament program and retain her tight controls over trade with European countries.

The plans also included a boost in the production target by about four per cent of the national income, and possible suspension of the five-day week in key industries, coupled with a wage-incentive system for the workers.

Such an attempt to get the country back into the black would likely mean less available food, gasoline rationing, harder work and a general increase in the austerity program.

The speech condemned Egypt's abandonment of the 1936 Anglo-Egypt treaty and the 1899 Sudan condominium agreement as "illegal and without validity."

It said Britain, the United States, France, and Turkey will "press forward with their proposals for joint defence arrangements in the Mid East."

Meanwhile, it said, Britain "will maintain its position in the canal zone under the terms of the 1936 treaty, and will safeguard the international highway."

It said also that "nothing can be allowed to interfere with the rights of the Sudanese to decide for themselves the future status of their country."

Support UN

The speech said the government "will faithfully support the United Nations as a world instrument for peace and security."

"They (the government) will continue to play their part in Korea, with the aim of restoring peace and well-being," it said.

The government's first duty, the speech said, will be to work with the commonwealth, the United States, and Europe in a supreme effort to build "a more tranquil and prosperous world."

Other points from the speech:

1. Parliament will be asked to keep in force some of the emergency regulations which otherwise would expire next month. All such controls will be reviewed, however, with the "aim of reducing (their) number."

2. The government will consult industrial and trade-union leaders in an attempt to ensure "the best use of the existing labor force."

Promote Flexibility

3. The government will "seek to promote flexibility" in industries such as coal mining and railroading, which will remain under state ownership.

4. Other Commonwealth governments will be invited to discuss joint action to remedy Britain's adverse balance in international trade.

5. The new ministers will "do their utmost" to stimulate the building of badly-needed houses.

The speech said the King was "deeply moved by the warmth of the reception" received by Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, on their trip to Canada and Washington.

It was the first time in 16 years that the British King has been unable to deliver his address from the throne in person.

Royal Couple Begin Last Part Of Trip

FREDERICTON, Nov. 6 (CP). The Royal couple and the first cool breath of winter arrived in New Brunswick together today.

The train carrying Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh into the Maritimes on the last leg of their tour pulled into Campbellton, on the north shore, shortly before midnight.

Despite freezing temperatures and a stiff breeze the Royal pair came out on the train's rear observation platform twice to greet the chilled crowd of 4,000 persons. Many in the crowd had waited shivering for three hours in hopes of catching a glimpse of the Princess and her husband.

They were not disappointed.

Both bare-headed— the Princess wearing her fur jacket and the Duke in a blue lounge suit—they came out to receive their first Maritime welcome from Mayor L. E. Renault.

They extended their thanks, then stood waving and smiling for about three minutes before ducking back inside to the warmth of their car.

Cries of "We want the Duke" came from the crowd, which apparently considered it too chilly to ask for another appearance from the Princess.

Both Return

Again the crowd got what it wanted, and more.

Both the Princess and Duke came out on the platform again as the train pulled away from the flag-bedecked station.

A huge searchlight focussed on them as the train chugged away toward Fredericton and the first major stop in the Maritimes. Arrival was scheduled for 10 am AST.

The good-bye was shouted by thousands who turned out at the small cities and towns of French Canada along the Royal train's 400-mile route down the St. Lawrence River south bank.

Most of their stops were brief, but in some cases the contagious enthusiasm of the welcoming throngs stretched the visits above the scheduled 10-minute maximum.

In Rimouski they were presented with a specially-wrought pottery vase in gratitude for assistance from the United Kingdom following the May, 1950, fire.

At Levis, a scheduled 10-minute stop became a 25-minute ovation from the crowd of 7,000.

The happy couple gave out greetings in French to whoever approached and Prince Philip shook hands at random.

Strongest pointers to likelihood of moving in with Russia—and perhaps signing a friendship pact—came from the Paris UN session and in local newspapers.

Secret Mission

The paper Al Nida said today that a "high Egyptian personality" has just left for Russia on a "secret and important mission." The paper said it would have far-reaching results on Russo-Egyptian relations.

In Paris, Egyptian Foreign Minister Salah El Din Pasha has a date today to see Russian delegate Semyon Tsarapkin. Egypt broke a precedent Monday night to vote for Russia's unsucessful move to bring Communist China into the UN.

Diplomats here figure there may be something in the wind despite Egypt's repeated assertion that political and religious traditions would prevent the country from ever going Communist.

Dollar Down

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 — (CP)— The American dollar today opened at 4½ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1/32 from Monday's close. That is, it took $1.04½ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.92⅝, down 1/16 from Monday.

Operation Successful

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 6 (Reuters) — Eva Peron, wife of the Argentine president, was successfully operated on today, an official broadcast said. No details of the nature of the operation were given, but Argentine news agencies said it lasted three hours 20 minutes.

able to forget the events of that day.

"No punishment that the court could inflict would equal it," he said.

No Criminal Record

He said she had no criminal record and had hitherto led the life of a young businesswoman who had contributed generously to her family.

But Justice Spence said he could not understand what made Miss Long leave the scene of the accident. He could only surmise that it was no well-considered plan but a case of "panic."

Otherwise it would be the act of a "brutal and callous person." If he believed that, he would have complied with the request of Crown Attorney Bradshaw, KC, for a heavy sentence.

That Miss Long had made no attempt to hide her car after it was damaged in the accident was a factor in her favor, he said.

Couple Bicker As Husband Jailed For Year

COBOURG, Nov. 6 (ENS) — William See of Kingston was sentenced to 12 months definite and two months indefinite in the reformatory when he pleaded guilty to theft of a car. His wife, Zona Irene, had been charged with car theft but it was reduced to joy riding.

The pair were picked up near Oshawa on October 26 by Melborne Woodcock and arriving at Cobourg all three went into a hotel for some beer. See and his wife came out ahead of Woodcock who remained to watch the television. When he emerged from the hotel his car was gone and later it was picked up at Napanee after an accident and See and his wife were charged with car theft.

"I told him when he got into the car for his coat and then slid behind the wheel and started it up, that he would get into trouble. I partly slipped under the car as he pulled away while I was talking to him and I climbed in the car to save myself," Mrs. See, who is 18 years of age, said.

"That is not right. She didn't slip at all. However I'll take the rap for the whole thing and I ask the court to put her on probation," said See.

"That's big of you," Mrs. See snapped at him.

Lieut. D. W. Rea of the Salvation Army said that the girl's background could have been better but that her grandparents, who were highly respected people of Kingston, were willing to take her and her two children into their home.

"I am going to place you on suspended sentence for two years but don't think that you are going to get off easily. During the two years suspended sentence you will stay in Kingston with your grandparents on a $500 bond for good behavior and you will be home every night by nine pm and you are to get a job and help support your children. If you get into any trouble you'll be brought back here and sentenced," the magistrate told the woman.

See was also charged with dangerous driving and given 15 days in jail to date back to the time of his arrest. On a charge of driving without a license he was fined $10 and costs or 10 days, jail terms to run concurrently.

Donald Simpson and Lawrence Loussier of Toronto, were found guilty on a charge of stealing 12 pounds of butter and a pound of tea from a CNR boarding car on a work train located at Grafton. It was revealed that they sold the goods to a hotel in Grafton and were later picked up by provincial police as they were walking along the highway near Grafton.

A further remand of a week was given Arthur Rozelle and Harry Dove of Stratford and Oshawa, respectively, on two car theft charges, one of them a Port Hope automobile.

A HEAVY SNOWFALL which blanketed the rolling Laurentian hills failed to keep the Royal couple indoors. In the photo above they are shown driving to the Trinity Anglican Church at Ste.. Agathe des Monts.

British Visitors Not Coming N. H. Laments

"The British are not coming," the opening sentence in a column of news and comment in the Peterborough (N.H.) Transcript indicates the expectation in the New Hampshire town of a visit from Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and party from Peterborough, England.

"That was the word flashed back from Peterborough, Ontario, Friday (Oct. 26) afternoon, after plans were being hastily assembled to greet the touring Peterborough, England, mayor and alderman.

Selectman Forrest Mercer and town clerk Algie Holt were in the Canadian city to represent "Our Town" at dedication exercises of a new City Hall, and along with Prof. Carleton Wheeler and his aide, Harold Robertson, tried to get the dignitaries to favor us with a visit.

But their schedule was all mapped out prior to their arrival, and after first saying "yes, we'll come," they had to retract when they found other plans had been made for them. All of which disappointed many. But then, maybe they'll come anyway. Prof. Wheeler has it figured out that they may slip away from Canada quietly one of these days, and come down here. . . As for the dedication, both Algie and Forrest were called upon for speeches at the Friday evening banquet, and were treated like visiting dignitaries should. They had nothing but praise for the hospitality, the city, and everything else when they returned. More international exchanges like this could work wonders on some of the world's ills. . ."

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life

Barnyard Spectacle

Chickens have the nasty habit of pecking each other's eyes when they get into a tiff. And once the flock sees blood they all pile in and make it a free-for-all. One farmer made them cut out the rough stuff by making "spectacles" of aluminum foil. No more trouble!

We never know who will think up what new use for aluminum. But we do know that the demand for this light, strong, non-rusting metal keeps on going up and up and up. That's why Alcan is busy on new dams and power plants and smelters to further step up supply. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Deer Season Lowers Rotary Attendance

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 6 — (ENS)—Deer hunting season cut attendance at the Monday noon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club by more than a score Monday. A business meeting with reports by various committee heads comprised the agenda after the noon meal.

Chairman of the crippled children's committee reported little work to do in the town. At one time the club was quite active with child welfare work, but in recent years the need for this type of work has declined locally, leaving the funds of the club available for other avenues of welfare and community service.

Two officials of the Salvation Army will be guests at the meeting on November 12, at which time a larger attendance is expected.

Raise Food Allowance

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—Ontario has approved a 15-per-cent increase in food schedules to relief recipients, effective immediately, Health Minister Goodfellow announced Monday. Present schedules are from $3.82 for a single adult to 63 cents a week for an infant. In addition, free milk is provided for relief recipients—from 3½ quarts a week to six quarts.

WA Told Of Formation Church Boys' League

BETHANY, Nov. 6 (ENS). — Mrs. Robert Morton entertained the members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican Church for their November meeting, which had an attendance of 14. Mrs. J. J. Hamilton presided, opening the meeting with prayer. Mrs. T. S. Gault read the scripture lesson. Mrs. Roy Jarvis gave the secretary's report.

Mrs. H. Rayson, leader of the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, stated that the girls were busy making a crib quilt for the Mission bale and some small articles to sell at the bazaar. The girls also sent in numerous articles in Christmas wrappings to be included with the Christmas bale to be sent to St. Faith's Bishop's Messengers.

The president reported the organization of the Church Boys' League, a group of junior boys with the Rev. T. S. Gault as their leader and Mr. H. Rayson and Mr. E. Lamb, assistant leaders. This newly organized group is also making small articles for sale and made quilting frames for the Junior Girls' quilting.

The bazaar, to be held November 17, was the chief subject of discussion, and committees were formed for the different work. Chicken pie will be the main course with the usual accompaniment of salads, cakes and pies. Mrs. W. Phillips and Mrs. Mervin Smith brought in several completed articles for sale.

Mrs. T. S. Gault read a chapter from the study book, "The Moslem World," and closed the meeting with prayer. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Jarvis.

Recall Heritage Pastor Exhorts

ROSENEATH, Nov. 6 (ENS)— "We should remember that our heritage is one of no mean worth, for it has been preserved at tremendous cost, and heroic sacrifice," said the Rev. E. C. Kelloway, pastor of Trinity United church, Cobourg, as guest speaker at an Armistice Day service at Alderville United Church on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Kelloway chose as his subject "Memories and Rededication." The speaker said: "The true significance of the sacrifice made by men and women in 1914-18 and 1939-45 will be realized when we, who are the beneficiaries of their sacrificial devotion, determine that this shall be not only a day of memories, but also a day of rededication—rededication to the underlying principles of Christian democracy, which were the realities for which they gave their lives."

Thirty members of Cobourg Legion also attended the service, conducted by Rev. J. N. Lovelace, assisted by a former pastor, Mr. H. Lander, Coldsprings.

In an address of welcome to the members of the Legion, Mr. Lovelace said: "It takes a man with real courage and love of country to face modern weapons of war, you faced Hell so we might have Heaven on earth."

A mixed choir with Mrs. James Bigwin Jr. at the organ, sang two anthems "At The Battle's Front" and "Holding Us Forever More."

Following the service at the church, all marched to the Alderville cenotaph, situated on Highway 45, where a brief service was held and the placing of wreaths on the cenotaph by the following: Mrs. Ernest Crowe in memory of Wilbur Chubb; Mrs. Sam Beaver in memory of her son, Arthur Beaver; Alfred Simpson in memory of his brother, Archie Simpson; Mrs. Thomas Marsden in memory of Robert Franklin; Mrs. Alfred Simpson in memory of her brother, Henry Musgrave; Mrs. Moses Smoke, Jr., in memory of Robert Tobico.

The Legion's color party were: Harvey Hilliard and George Taylor. Last Post and Reveille were sounded by bugler Sidney Merry.

Is It Wise To Ignore A Libel?

The Labour-Progressive party has published a pamphlet called Who Wants War?, which attacks the government for sending Canadian troops to Korea. We have not seen the pamphlet, but we are assured that it is violent and abusive in tone, contains many libellous caricatures of Canadian statesmen, and goes beyond the bounds of decent political comment. The Leader of the Opposition, Mr. George Drew, has invited the Government to consider this pamphlet, and to decide whether or not action for libel should be taken against its publishers; it is, in his opinion, a libel upon Parliament as a whole. Mr. St. Laurent, while acknowledging the truth of what Mr. Drew says, is doubtful if anything would be gained by a libel action.

* * *

Mr. St. Laurent is one of the ablest lawyers in Canada, and what he says about the folly of libel actions must be given great weight. We all remember that Mr. St. Laurent was anything but tender toward Communists who were implicated in the spy-ring during the war, when he was Minister of Justice, so it cannot be said that he is slack in his attitude toward subversive persons. But we wonder if he is entirely correct when he says that it may be left to the good sense of the Canadian people to discount the libellous statements in the L.P.P. pamphlet.

* * *

Public men, and politicians in particular, become accustomed to embittered criticism. If they are to remain in public life, they must do so, or they must live in constant torment. Very often they say, as Mr. St. Laurent has said in this case, that the public is too intelligent to be deceived by obvious untruths. Where these untruths concern one man's public conduct, we think that he is right. But when they concern a whole government, we are not so sure.

* * *

The political climate of the world today is hotter and stuffier than it has ever been before. Easy communication has meant that political controversy can go on between hemisphere and hemisphere almost as readily as in the House of Commons. Communists, who are very clever at creating discord, have been successful in increasing suspicion of governments everywhere; they have worked upon a section of the population—a section not previously much interested in politics, and living in an intellectual climate of ignorance, rancour and disgruntlement—in such a way that its highly-coloured and envenomed lies make an undoubted impression; they may not be fully comprehended or wholly believed, but they are half-believed, and they create a noisy distrust. To ignore a Communist libel which makes the whole of the Canadian Parliament appear as a war-mongering body is probably the best thing to do in this instance, but we do not think that the L.P.P. should be allowed to believe that it can repeat an attack of this kind without having to answer for it.

Quebec's Growth

Preliminary census returns show an amazing growth in the population of Quebec towns and cities. The total population figures for the province have not yet been released, so we can make no over-all comparison between 1941 and 1951, or between Ontario and Quebec. But the trend is unmistakable.

Quebec city (the metropolitan area) has now 271,236 people, compared with 224,756 in 1941. Montreal's population has increased from 1,145,282 to 1,370,044. It is in the population of smaller places that the great increase in the total provincial population is forecast. Chicoutimi, on the Saguenay, has a population of 23,058, as against 16,040 when the last census was taken. Shawinigan Falls has increased from 20,325 to 26,744.

Among remarkable increases in the towns are the following (the 1941 figure is shown in brackets): Jonquieres 21,566 (13,769), Rimouski 11,489 (7,009), Gaspe 1,676 (924), Mont-Joli 4,899 (3,533), Pont-Viau 5,093 (1,342). Every village, almost without exception—and there are 120 of them reported—shows an increase in population, some of them, suburbs of industrial towns, very large increases, like Shawinigan-Sud, from 2,282 to 6,610.

The population figures on Quebec are the statistical indication that the face of that province is changing rapidly. Almost all the large increases are due to industrial expansion or new developments.

Commendable Scientific Caution

Three Toronto research physicians, Drs. W. J. McGanity, E. W. McHenry and J. R. Beaton, have developed a technique of blood-testing which may prove to be a way of diagnosing cancer in its early stages. Tests which have already been made have been accurate in 91 per cent. of cases, but Dr. McHenry has been most anxious that the public should not jump to conclusions on the basis of a promising beginning; only exhaustive tests which prove that the method works in many hundreds of cases will give it the authority which science demands. Nobody can be sure that the method will fulfil all the conditions required.

The reserve shown by the Toronto physicians is in the best tradition of research science. We can recall two cases in which methods of treatment for cancer which were thought to be promising collapsed under searching tests; many people were disappointed, for they had reposed hopes of recovery in the unsatisfactory treatments. Only indisputable proof that a method of treating or diagnosing cancer or any other disease is valid can be accepted by the medical world or by the laymen who are equally concerned.

If the Toronto physicians are correct, and if their method proves valid, they will have made a great step forward in the fight against a terrible and, at present, almost invincible disease. Early diagnosis of cancer would undoubtedly reduce mortality from the disease in those cases in which effective treatment is possible. And once the wall has been breached in this way, further important discoveries are made possible.

Is Hallowe'en Simply A Nuisance?

Since Hallowe'en we have been surprised by the number of newspapers which have published letters from subscribers, and editorial comment of their own, describing Hallowe'en as a nuisance and wishing that its observance might be dropped. We would be sorry to see the celebration of Hallowe'en disappear, for it is an interesting survival of pre-Christian belief and a curious link with the past. But we do not like wanton mischief, nor can we see much that is good in the custom of asking for apples, nuts and sweets, for which no return is made. We think that it would be better, and more truly in the spirit of Hallowe'en if each child who received a gift were to recite, or sing, or do a tumbling trick in return.

We have another suggestion, which we do not suppose will meet with approval from the young. Hallowe'en is the Eve of All Hallows, or All Saints Day; the day following All Saints is All Souls, when the spirits of all the dead are remembered with reverence. If children are going to pretend that they are devils and witches on Hallowe'en, why do they not make up for it by pretending to be saints on All Saints' and denizens of paradise on All Souls'? Such an assumption of virtue would be welcomed by their parents and by the community as a whole.

A Job In Tokyo Or London

We remind our readers, in case they have forgotten, that Provincial elections are being held on the 22nd of this month less than three weeks hence. The machine to make the ballot available to all who are qualified to vote is being wound up by the chief electoral officer.

As in war-time years, for instance, before the Ontario Elections of June, 1945, service men outside Canada are not being forgotten—or at least their votes are not being overlooked. Five areas are being set up to bring in the Ontario servicemen's vote from outside the province, and each area will have a staff. The five external voting territories are to be in Korea, Japan, England and Europe, the Maritimes and Newfoundland, and Quebec. In addition, special arrangements are being made to get the vote of the servicemen in Ontario itself and in Western Canada. Army authorities will establish the headquarters for the Korean territory in the field and for Japan, but the civilian director of public prosecutions for the Attorney-General's Department, Mr. W. B. Common and Mr. Wesley Corner, head of the Ontario government's press clipping service, will be sent to supervise the voting in the Far East. London will be the focal point for Ontario voters in the British Isles and Europe. Less far-flung posts for the voting are Halifax and Edmonton.

We have a faint twinge of regret at this moment that we are not in the government's press-clipping service or the office of the director of public prosecutions. It would be rather nice at this time to be sent—as assistant in the line of duty, of course—on a month's junket to Tokyo or to London. We remember these civilian vote-takers in Europe in 1945, and they seemed to have had a very good time.

When the British Parliament opens this week, the Speech from the Throne will be read by a "Royal Commission of Peers," so an overseas despatch tells us. We hope that the Peers are in good voice and wonder whether they will read the Speech in unison or in harmony. Perhaps the Master of the King's Music is preparing an arrangement for solo and chorus.

Strange Mission In Gandhi's Steps

By RAWLE KNOX
(In New Delhi)

"THIS is the real revolution", said the man beside me, swinging his hurricane lantern and stepping out at a spanking pace on the road from Agra to Mathura in Uttar Pradesh.

It was four o'clock of a chilly morning. There were perhaps fifteen of us slapping along the road in the starry darkness. It was the day after the festival of Diwali, and the little oil lamps with which all Hindus adorn their houses to welcome in the Goddess Lakshmi still twinkled in the village of Renkuta behind us.

In the van, wrapped ghostily in headcloth and grey blanket, marched Acharya Vinoba Bhave, pre-eminent disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, who is walking the country to persuade landlords to give a portion of their possessions to the landless. Aged fifty-seven, with a duodenal ulcer that restricts his diet to a bowl of curds taken thrice daily, this knobbly, frail little scholar has so far walked over six hundred miles — averaging about fifteen miles a day—from Gandhi's settlement at Wardha on his way to Delhi. Before this he did a protracted tour of Hyderabad to convince the people of the futility of Communist violence.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT was barely five o'clock when we reached the first village of the day. An arch of green leaves had been erected over the roadway and a huddled group of men, women and children were singing a Gandhian hymn. An embarrassed, rather foolish-looking fellow was pushed forward to announce that he would part with two acres.

Vinoba Bhave curled himself up for a moment on the step of a shop near by and, talking into his beard—apparently more to himself than to the villagers—mentioned that he intended to get three hundred thousand acres from the Agra district in which he then was, and that two acres from this village wasn't nearly enough. He'd hardly finished speaking before he was on the road again.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN cold figures it would hardly appear that Bhave is achieving much. He estimates that there are 250 to 300 million acres under cultivation in India and he intends to get fifty million of these presented to the landless as free gifts. So far on his present tour he has collected something under fourteen thousand acres.

"The figures mean nothing", says Bhave's secretary, Damodar Das, a stocky Hyderabadi with round shaven head and round eyes gleaming through horn-rimmed glasses. "We are only drawing a thin line through the great mass of India. Everywhere we leave behind workers to search the provinces for land gifts. And the idea is new to the people. Look at the spirit we are creating".

✧ ✧ ✧

CERTAINLY some surprising things happen. The evening before at Renkuta I had talked to a lawyer whom one would expect to succumb to sudden emotional folly. They had given up five hundred acres on the Bhave principle that every landed family should imagine a hypothetical extra brother and donate his share to the landless.

In the morning when Bhave reaches a village it is pretty clear in most cases that the landed peasantry have hoped to get away with a gesture of putting up one or two of their number to make small gifts. By evening, when Bhave has explained the virtues of sacrifice and added subdued threats of his own, the genuine offers begin to come in.

"Those of you who are Zemindars (landowners)—listen! The Government is going to take away most of your land by law, and offer you compensation which you grumble is not enough. Well, then! Gain merit by giving your land free. The land belongs to God, like air and water, and it is foolish to suppose it can belong for ever to one class of people alone. The Communists want to divide it by force, but if you divide it my way you will all live at peace with one another. If you do not choose my way you will certainly suffer from the Communists".

✧ ✧ ✧

IN the first start of dawn a group of camels resting in a nearby field appear as black rocks in a smooth gray sea. The light quickens and we can see the unending brownness of the fields and across them children running towards us from the mud-walled fortress of a village. An obese Brahmin doubles out from a roadside hut and offers brilliant flower petals cradled in a green palm-leaf. Bhave brushes them aside. "I can be garlanded anywhere. If you have land to give I will accept it".

At six-thirty we stopped for breakfast. Bhave's followers, mostly young, sat side by side in a line and waited for the handful of burnt gram, the banana and grapes and the earthenware cupful of hot sweet milk which local Gandhian workers provided. Bhave squatted apart spooning up his little pot of curds.

Within twenty minutes we were off again. Bhave, who before breakfast had given those near him an erudite lesson in Arabic, was singing a long Tamil song. Again beside him, matching him pace for pace, were Mrudula, fourteen-year-old daughter of Damodar Das and Mithu, seven years older, and the daughter of another well-known Gandhian worker, who double the parts of secretaries and female choir in the hymn-singing.

✧ ✧ ✧

SCUFFLING happily along in the rear came Baba Ragaodas, a grizzled teacher of this province who has been trying to tell a somewhat rigid Education Ministry that Gandhi's methods are best. "They wouldn't take any notice of me until I showed that pupils and parents together in a single district had voluntarily repaired eight hundred schools and built sixty miles of road without costing the Government an anna. Then they were really interested".

This little band marching on Delhi, whither Jawaharlal Nehru has invited Vinoba Bhave to discuss the National Planning Commission's Five Year Plan for India, provides startling relief to the election campaign in which every party claims it wants to get back to Gandhian principles. He claims that by organizing India's villages on the lines of Gandhi's settlement at Wardha, whose achievements are there for all to see, the rural population can be entirely self-sufficient within five years. The Wardha results, in intensive agriculture and in cottage industry, are most impressive, though they may rely overmuch on Indians being a race of supermen.

"I work about sixteen hours a day for Vinobaji", said Damodar Das when I expressed some doubts. "And my wife works six hours a day teaching in the settlement. She does all the cooking and looks after the five children, and we seldom have fewer than two guests in the house. In our household we weave a hundred yards of cloth a year as well as doing our work in the fields".

Vinoba Bhave walked into the dust of Berarie village fourteen miles from Renkuta just after eight o'clock. The two girls bathed his feet and then he sat on the edge of a bedstead under a tree and once again talked to the villagers about the sacrifice of land-giving. Again one or two of his audience, almost surprised at themselves, rose and offered a few acres. Bhave, shy and ungracious as ever, turned away into the dank little stonewalled room provided for him and sat down to read the Gita (the chief Buddhist scripture).

"What motive do you honestly believe these land-loving people have in giving up their land?" I asked him. "I think", he answered in the slow English he dislikes to speak, "that I inspire them". I think so too, but only Heavens know how.

Love That Hootchy-Kootch!

It Can Push Your Car In The River

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

WHILE hearing a case brought against the Crown by a company claiming the loss of scrap metal valued at $20,000 (judgement in the case was reserved), Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, President of the Exchequer Court, made some remarks regarding the general state of the law affecting the right of legal action by a citizen.

It will be recalled that during the last session the Petition of Right Act was amended, removing the requirement that a fiat, or permission, must be first obtained before suit could be brought against the Crown in its federal jurisdiction. But, as was brought out in the debates at that time, this was a limited concession. The individual was given the right to proceed without a fiat, but only in those spheres where he already had the right to take action after a fiat was granted.

The Crown can be sued (previously with a fiat, now without) in cases where negligence is alleged. It can also be sued for breach of contract. There the citizen's recourse stops. A wide field is left untouched. Deliberate damage of property, as distinct from negligence, leaves the Crown in the clear. Mr. Justice Thorson illustrated:

If the Crown so wishes, it has the right to push a subject's automobile in the river, and there is no conceivable way that the subject can get any recovery from the Crown.

One may object that such behaviour is incredible. Mr. Garson, the minister of justice, evidently thought so when, in the House of Commons last May 28, he replied to Mr. John Diefenbaker of Lake Centre. The Western member had urged a widening of the causes of action against the Crown, noting that in the United Kingdom, all torts or alleged wrongdoing by the Crown are now covered except cases involving the negligence of a military officer or failure of the Post Office to transmit. Otherwise there is complete liability on the part of the Crown.

Mr. Garson acknowledged that the Canadian law did not go so far. It did not cover such torts as trespass, assault, false arrest, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, and libel slander. "It is not likely," said the minister by way of excuse, "that the average servant of the Crown in the course of his duties would ever commit these torts."

The fact remains, however, that Britain has gone far beyond Canada in the matter of giving the individual the same rights of action against the servants of the King as he has against another subject. That was done in 1947. Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the wiping away of "this archaic survival of the doctrine of the supremacy of the King and his position above the law." Canada, it seems, although it boasts itself to be a young, vigorous and progressive country, is content to cling to archaic survivals.

A Woman Unafraid

(The Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Men frequently lose their way in the woods, but it is not often that a search party has to be organized for the purpose of finding a missing woman hunter. Mrs. James Jessop, 62, of Edmundston, is one of those uncommon women in this generation who not only go a-hunting with their husbands, but is not afraid to strike out on her own. She did just that the other day, lost her way and had to spend a night in the open.

What many other women would have done under the circumstances is a matter of pure conjecture; but when Mrs. Jessop was faced with gathering darkness, far from any settlement in the remote and most northerly forested region of New Brunswick, midway between Edmundston and Matapedia, she didn't climb a tree.

Instead, with the practised common sense of the experienced hunter, she built a fire and stayed by it through the cold October night. She fired some shots in the hope of attracting help, but had to wait until the following afternoon before she was found.

Mrs. Jessop, incidentally, is the mother of eight grown-up children. Although in pioneer days many a mother in outlying districts may have been used to handling a gun and to hunting game in Canadian forests, not many would have relished being lost at night far from home or help. Mrs. Jessop probably didn't relish the idea either, but she knew how to fend for herself and showed that she could take her chances as well as any man.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. (Gen. 2: 21, 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?....And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat....

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself. And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat....And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life....And Adam called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living. (Gen. 3: 1, 6, 9-13, 17, 20.)

Unconsidered Trifles

They had just been introduced. "Really," she said, timidly, "your face seems so familiar to me, I think we must have met before."

"Impossible!" he sighed. "If we had met before I should have been engaged to you, married to you, or dead of a broken heart ere this!"

✧ ✧ ✧

"Tom, I gave you a very liberal allowance when I sent you to college; nevertheless, I hear that you have had some trouble in meeting your creditors."

"Not the slightest in the world, father, I assure you. It has been all I could do to keep out of their way."

✧ ✧ ✧

The parachutist was dangling rather forlornly from a big oak tree.

"I was trying to make a record," he shouted to the farmer below.

"Reckon yuh did it, stranger," observed the farmer. "You'll be the fust man in these parts to climb down a tree withouten he clumb up fust."

✧ ✧ ✧

"Your methods of cultivation are hopelessly out of date," said the youthful agricultural college graduate to the old farmer. "Why, I'd be astonished if you got even ten pounds of apples from that tree."

"So would I," replied the farmer. "It's a pear tree."

✧ ✧ ✧

The pretty school teacher was trying to tell her pupils about the advent of spring.

"As I stood on the station platform one sunny April morning waiting for my train I felt something lightly caressing my cheek. Can anyone tell me what it was?" she asked.

"The station-master's moustache?" suggested the small bad boy of the class.

A man had a 'cello with one string, and used to play on it for hours on end, always holding his finger in the same place. For months and months his wife had to listen to his excruciating noises. Finally, in desperation, she said: "You know, I've noticed that other 'cellos have four strings, and the players move their fingers about all the time."

The man stopped his playing for a moment and said, impatiently: "Of course the others have four strings and move their fingers about all the time. They are looking for the place. I've found it!"

"That ought to round the week off nicely — they forecast heavy snow."

Doesn't Think Price Controls Curb Inflation George Fulford Tells House Of Commons

OTTAWA, Nov. 6 (CP)—George Fulford (L-Leeds) said in Commons Monday no man could avoid the results of inflation, but price controls did not offer the answer. This was evident in Britain where they had controls.

Mr. Fulford said in the resumed throne-speech debate that as much as many would like to see a reduction in prices, he doubted if that would be a good thing for the general good of the country.

The periods of inflation, employment and income were high. In periods of depression there was unemployment. The purchasing power of the people dropped.

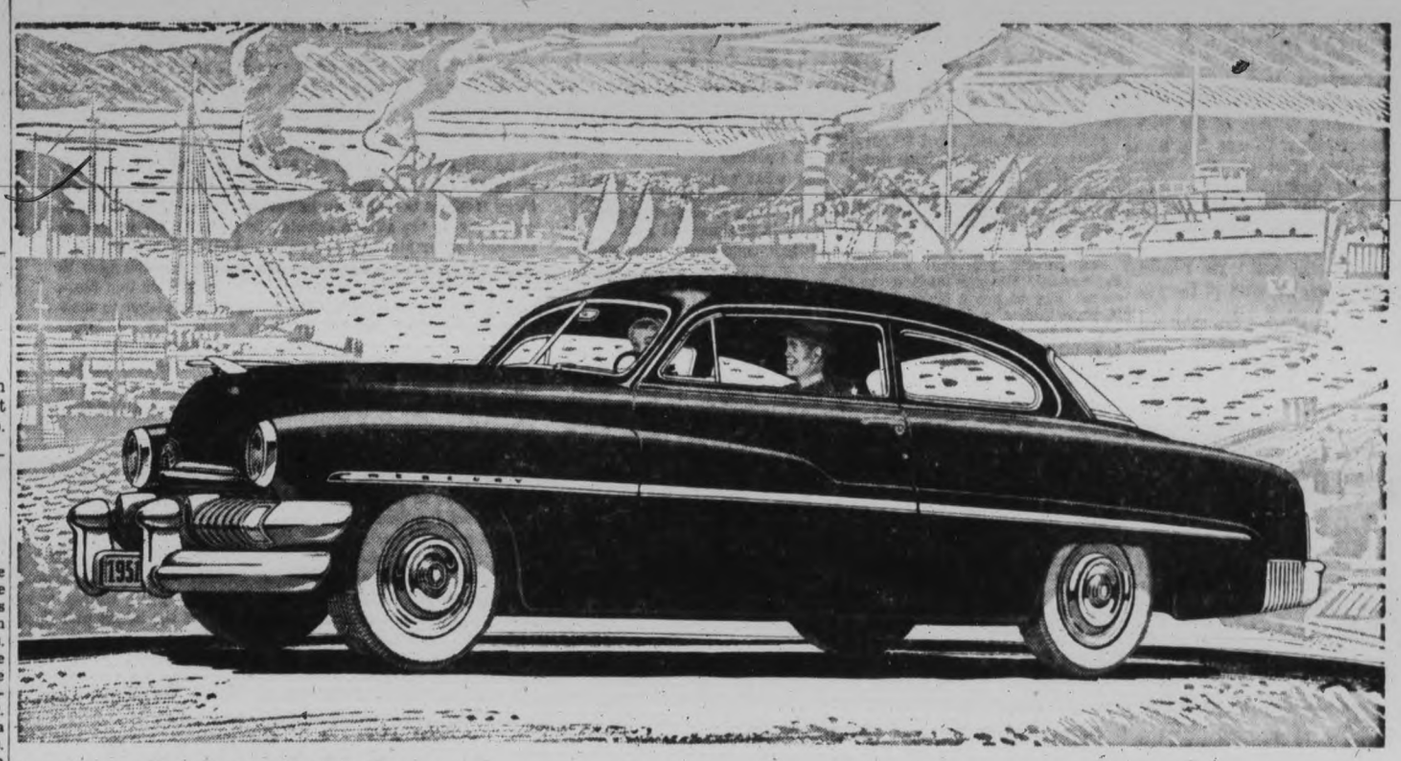
Mr. Fulford said he sympathized with the white-collar workers and others whose incomes had remained stationary while the cost of living climbed.

He noted that some newspapers were criticizing the government for compiling a surplus of $500,000,000. The same newspapers would complain if the government had a deficit.

Pay Off Debt

The national debt could be paid off in about 20 years through the use of large surpluses. Interest charges of $300,000,000 a year—enough to pay annual family allowances—could be saved by eliminating the debt.

He expressed his support of the St. Lawrence navigation and power projects and was glad Canada was prepared to go ahead alone.



As living costs continued to dominate the debate, H. O. White (PC-Middlesex East) proposed that the pensions of veterans and others be linked to the official cost-of-living index so that they would rise as living costs went up. This would ensure that their value was retained.

He said the government is not facing the problem of inflation. The government watched prices climb and while they climbed so did the size of the government's surplus, partly as a result from larger yields from the 10-per-cent sales tax.

Mr. White said immigrants were coming to Canada under false pretences at the expense of the farmer and the Canadian taxpayer.

Company Drops Gas Application

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Tennessee Gas Transmission Company of Houston, Tex., Monday withdrew an application to the Federal Power Commission for authority to increase its capacity to serve markets in the Province of Ontario.

The company said it is not prepared to submit the detailed information required under commission rules. It asked to withdraw the application without prejudice to a possible later application for authority to export natural gas to Canada.

The company had proposed a $47,403,000 project to increase its pipeline capacity by 115,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day to be delivered to Niagara Gas Transmission, Ltd., a newly-formed Ontario corporation controlled by Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto. The gas would have been resold for distribution in Toronto and other markets in Ontario.

The project would have involved construction of a pipeline from Buffalo, NY, to the US-Canadian border near Niagara Falls.

The notice of withdrawal will become effective after 30 days unless otherwise ordered by the commission.

Charges Ottawa Subsidizing Liberal Leader Thomson

OTTAWA, Nov. 6. (CP)—J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton West) said Monday in the Commons the Federal Government is "subsidizing" Walter Thomson, Liberal leader in Ontario. Mr. Thomson had received $250,000 from the Federal Government in legal fees during a period of 15 months. Mr. Murphy indicated that Mr. Thomson, former Liberal member of the Commons for Ontario constituency, had retained his office in the Parliament buildings, although he resigned his seat a few weeks ago.

Mr. Murphy said a sign on an office door next to his own still bears the name "W. C. Thomson". As long as that sign was there he felt he could comment in the Commons on Mr. Thomson and on the Ontario election, to be held Nov. 22.

(At Sault Ste. Marie, where Mr. Thomson was on a campaign tour, he said Monday night he had no comment immediately on Mr. Murphy's statements.)

Mr. Murphy added:

"It is about time the people of this country realized that this government cannot get away with everything.

"We have come to a fine state of affairs when the federal government at Ottawa, this Liberal government, will subsidize a provincial leader by providing him with office space in the House of Commons when, God only knows, lots of us would like to get better accommodation.

Costs Taxpayers Money

"Not only that, but he gets secretarial service and a typewriter pounds from next door, night and day, on my ear. He is doing a grand job in that office, at the taxpayers' expense."

Mr. Murphy said returns tabled in the Commons had shown that Mr. Thomson had received $232,135 in legal fees from the federal government for work in connection with the Veterans Land Act.

"It seems clear," said Mr. Murphy, "that even a backbencher in the Liberal party is able to get a quarter of a million dollars in 15 months.

"No wonder he can go down to the dairy country in Oxford and tell the farmers that he, too, is a grand farmer. Who in the world in this country could not be a grand farmer if he could get from this or any other government a quarter of a million dollars in 15 months?"

Not Using Office

An official of the Commons said later that as far as he knows Mr. Thompson has not been using the office. When a member resigns his privileges as a member are not automatically cut off. He is given a few days to clear up his correspondence and his files.

The official said he understood that Mr. Thomson's stenographer, assigned to two other members following his departure, continued to use the Ontario Liberal leader's office. This was because of the shortage of space in the stenographic pool.

It was true that Mr. Thomson's name was still over the office door. Customarily such signs remained until the space was allocated to another member. At the moment the office is still vacant—officially.

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—The first unit of an automatic system to control train movements entirely by signals instead of by schedules and train orders went into operation Monday on 40 miles of the Canadian National Railways transcontinental line. SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

This being a most respectable community naturally no one in this borough would bet on horse races. So, an item out of Buffalo may not be appropriate, but it amused us. Seems the Federal Government across the line requested all those connected with bookie operations to register, stating occupations—such as marker of odds boards, etc.—and pay a 10 per cent tax on their take. The Feds want the info for tax purposes. Seems as far as Washington is concerned, bookmaking is legal. It is in some states, too, but not in New York. So now the bookies there are on the w.k. spot. They dare not disobey a Federal order, but they fear that New York authorities will learn of their occupation and take a dim view.

That Forgotten Trophy

Dust and cobwebs cover a fine trophy which was never awarded to anyone. We refer to the Charlie Kearns Memorial Trophy, put up 10 years ago, shortly after the popular gridder and senior ball player here was drowned in Rice Lake. Several names were submitted that first year but the war intervened and nothing was done. Interest apparently died off then and the cup was shelved from that day to this. A darned shame. We bring up the subject again after reading an item of 10 years ago this month in the column of the late Fred (Josh) Craig. He wrote:

* * * * * *

"The Charlie Kearns Memorial Trophy is on exhibition in Ed Riley's window and the beautiful cup has been admired by all who have seen it. The Kearns Cup is one of the finest trophies to be put up in Peterborough. It will be held each year by the athlete selected by a committee of five as the oustanding player of the year, and all sporting organizations are asked to make their nominations for this year to Secretary Jim Dorris. It is one of the conditions that clubs in various lines of sport should nominate the player in their own organization regarded as their outstanding performer in 1941, and the committee will make its selection at the end of the year from the list of nominees. Performers in any line of sport are eligible for the Kearns Trophy so long as they cary the nomination of the organization for which they played."

Karpuk Confused 'Em

They'll have to write a new grid rule since Pete Karpuk of Ottawa came off the bench in Toronto Saturday to stop Curtis on a touchdown run. It was all very confusing to officials, who finally gave Argos half the remaining yardage ot the goal and penalized Karpuk three minutes for being an extra man on the field. Karpuk said later: "I've been taught where a free field for a runner may mean a touchdown and winning score to go off the bench and stop him. It's a good play." And Coach Clem Crowe of Ottawa said: "Sure, it was a good play. Even if they did score later, it showed that Karpuk had his whole heart in the game even sitting there on the bench. He's my boy for that play." Don Crowe was used briefly by Riders to qualify him for possible later action.

OHA senior "B" schedule starts Friday with Petes at Belleville, and Queen's playing the Eagles here. Next Monday, Petes meet Queen's in the Harty Arena, Kingston, while Kingston (formerly Nylons) come to Peterborough the following Wednesday to mix with the Eagles. Neither local club has announced starting lineups yet, the coaches apparently still experimenting in workouts with various lines and defence pairs. Nor has anything been definitely decided upon as to goalies for the opening jousts. Time's a-flittin' and they'll have to make up their minds within the next few days. Our OHA junior "B" grouping hasn't been arranged so far, nor a schedule drawn up.

Upper Canada Beats Trinity College 5-0

TORONTO, Nov. 6 — Upper Canada College soccer Firsts shut out Trinity College of the Varsity Intramural League, 5-0, in an exhibition game at the UCC grounds Monday.

Bill Webb led Upper Canada with three goals, while Ken Baxter and Edgar Bracht scored one each. Goaler Bill De Lisser's shutout was his fifth of the season.

The win allowed the UCC soccerists to complete their season unbeaten. Although they have no prep school league, they played seven exhibition games, won six and tied one.

NZ Life-Savers Like Water Skis

AUCKLAND, NZ (CP)—Safety patrols on surf-beaches throughout New Zealand have adopted water skis as a major life-saving device and their use is rapidly increasing. They are a development of the large Hawaiian surfboards.

New Zealand surf skis are hollow and about 13 feet long with a beam ranging from 30 inches to two feet. Most are several inches deep and made of plywood bound with resin.

They were introduced to this country from Australia. Life-saving here is done entirely by voluntary patrols. Most large beaches have surf clubs, members of which are rostered throughout the summer months for spells of duty.

Until the introduction of surf skis, most clubs used belts with line and reel for all surf rescue work. The guard swam out to the surfer in difficulties and the two were hauled in by the line.

This method is still favored for heavy surf, but in normal conditions guards paddling out by surf skis are able to effect a rescue much faster. The guard picks up the patient, places him across the skis and brings him ashore for resuscitation if necessary. Large numbers of swimmers are rescued by this method each season.

Fear Pro-Golf Becoming Anaemic PGA Suggests Links World Series

By WILL GRIMSLEY.

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 6 (AP) —Most men associated with professional golf seem to fear the multi million dollar sport is becoming anaemic through lack of new ideas. Everybody is looking for a stimulant.

Joe Novak, president of the Professional Golfers' Association, would like to see a links world series bringing together the winners of the 40-odd weekly tournaments on the PGA circuit.

Ken Murray, president of the Canadian PGA was here during the weekend trying to talk the United States PGA into a series of matches between the two countries patterned after the Ryder Cup.

There also is the suggestion — advanced by Gene Sarazen and supported by others except Britain—that Britain make its Ryder Cup team of empire scope, bringing in such stars as Bobby Locke of South Africa, Norman Von Nida and Peter Thompson of Australia and Stan Leonard of Vancouver.

Things Cooking

Just what can be done about these ideas remains to be seen, but this much is sure—things are cooking in professional golf.

Murray conferred with PGA officials about a Canadian-US golf series on off-Ryder Cup years. He didn't get too much encouragement but there's thought something may be arranged in connection with the Canadian open.

As for Britain's Ryder Cup team, Sarazen says the boys from across the Atlantic will never win the trophy from the US until it reaches out and encompasses the rest of the empire on the team. "They call these men to help fight wars for them," he said. "They should open their sports programs to them as well."

Britain draws her cup players from the island's 50,000,000 population, compared with the US 150,000,000.

CITY CARPETBALL

Next week's schedule: Fire Hall 15 vs. St. George's 12, Moose 9 vs. Legion 8, SOE 5 vs. Red Patch 10, LOL 14 vs. Legion 11, Legion 4 vs. Quaker 7, Orphans 16 vs. Glens 1, Legion 2 vs. Fire Hall 13, 2nd Armour 3 vs. Legion 6.

Last week's results: SOE beat Moose twice 19-4 and 13-9; Fire Hall 13 lost four points from Glens by 12-7 and 12-8; Quaker won a pair from Legion Oilburners 23-1 and 11-10; Legion 4 won 11-10 but Orphans took the next 19-9. Legion 2 won two from the Orangemen 19-2 and 16-12; Fire Hall 15 won 21-3 and 11-7 over Scouts; teams 6 and 10 have not reported, and Legion 6 seems quite slow in playing scheduled games; two late cards for them show they lost twice to Legion 2 by 17-3 and 16-2; they tied one game 11-all and won one 11-10 from Legion 4. They are still a game behind.

A recent meeting threw out the first three games scheduled with Legion 16 to allow Orphans 16 a chance to play those games, if played within four weeks. Games are: St. George's 12 vs. Orphans 16, No. 16 vs. Red Patch 10, and No. 16 vs. Legion 2, skips to arrange the games. And defaulted games from early season will be scored four points on the standing and only two points toward the average of the team receiving a game by default. Press sale of tickets and turn in books and money. All teams must have their final five men listed with the secretary by Dec. 1, any later changes coming before the executive.

New Zealand Aims To Be Centre Of Winter Sports

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ —(CP)—Ski facilities in New Zealand are improving so rapidly that New Zealand seems likely to make a bid to become the main winter sport centre of the southern hemisphere.

Hitherto sportsmen visiting New Zealand have come chiefly for trout and big game fishing, but in the last few years there has been a growing influx of tourists to the ski resorts in winter, which here corresponds to the summer months in North America.

Already large numbers of Australian enthusiasts make regular air trips to New Zealand each winter and there are increasing numbers of visitors from other Pacific countries. There have been some North American skiers at the resorts this season.

Although facilities for skiers in New Zealand are still a long way below those in Canada, the development since the war has been remarkable. Facilities are now much greater than those in Australia and further big improvements are likely in the near future.

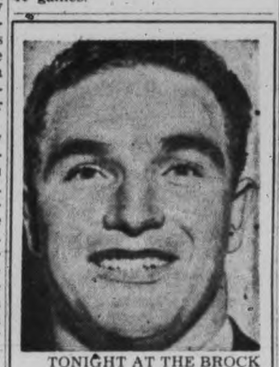
New Zealand resorts are mostly well away from centres of population and development has been very different from in Canada. Large areas of New Zealand's almost illimitable ski terrain have been opened up by ski clubs. Members have built huts far beyond the ends of the roads by voluntary labor, manhandling the materials up difficult mountain slopes and doing the construction work themselves. A very low nightly hut fee is charged, usually about 50 cents.

Big Centres

The two largest ski centres are operated by the government in the north island and by a private company in the south. The latter development is the nearest New Zealand approach to the normal ski resort abroad. Skiers live at Queenston, a popular resort with numerous hotels, set at the edge of a beautiful lake amid spectacular mountain scenery. A private firm has undertaken the development of ski facilities at Coronet Peak (5,400 ft.) not far away. Skiers travel by a hair-raising road to the foot of the first tow at 3,880 feet. From there a system of three tows takes skiers to the summit.

The beautiful condition of the snow and the long spells of unbroken fine weather in the winter have amazed visitors. George Savage, ski instructor from Sun Valley, Idaho, who has been instructing at Coronet Peak this season, declared: "I have never seen anything like it in my life."

3 Volcanoes



The north island's main ski resort at National Park, in the centre of the island, contains a group of three periodically active volcanoes. On the slopes of 9,175-foot Mount Ruapehu is the Chateau Tongariro, one of New Zealand's largest and most luxurious hotels. No fewer than 14 ski clubs have also built huts higher up the mountain, but the government, which owns and operates the hotel, has also taken responsibility for the development of the ski fields.

Mount Ruapehu offers fine ski slopes almost to its summit. As a result there are thousands of feet of continuous downhill running in winter and a season which extends into the summer. In a normal season skiers who are prepared to climb can get ski-ing from June through December.

Jack Chesbro, one of baseball's most famous spitball pitchers, died at Conway, Mass., 20 years ago today. With Pittsburgh, he led National League pitchers in 1901 and 1902, and with the New York Yankees in 1904 he won 41 games.

The main bout brings together in a rematch Lord Athol Layton and Zorra, the French Tarzan. Two referees have been appointed to handle this event, which should be a sizzler. The opener is between Dan O'Connor and Sonny Kurgis.

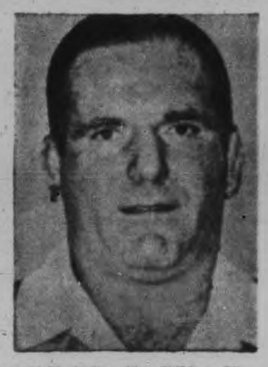
RICHARD'S TWO—Above Rocket Richard hits the 300-goal mark, as his backhander beats the desperate dive of Red Wings' Terry Sawchuk. In the lower picture the Rocket gets No. 301, as he beats Sawchuk with a shot to the far corner. Action took place on the Canadiens home ice in the Montreal Forum, last Saturday night. Richard's two goals still failed to hold the Red Wings as they downed the Canadiens 3-2.

England Has Chance To Save Test Match

NEW DELHI, Nov. 6—(Reuters) — An unfinished fourth wicket partnership of 86 between Alan Watkins and Donald Carr today left England with a fighting chance of saving the first cricket test match against India.

Needing 215 runs to avoid an innings defeat, England scored 202 for three wickets and finished the day 13 runs behind. The match ends tomorrow.



Before play began today India declared at their Sunday total of 418 for six wickets, made in reply to England's first innings score of 203.

England were up against it when Jack Robertson was out at 61 and Don Kentyon went at 78, but Frank Lowson, batting determinedly for 68 in three hours, helped to retrieve the position.

Then Watkins (53 not out) and Carr (44 not out) stepped into the breach with their stubborn stand. They replied mainly on defensive cricket, waiting for the right ball to hit, but both enjoyed some luck.

2 Canadien Players Tied At Top Of NHL Scoring Race

MONTREAL, Nov. 6. (CP)—Montreal Canadiens may have won but four of their 12 National Hockey League games to date but two of the Habs pace the League in the individual scoring department. Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach are tied for the League leadership with 12 points apiece. Seeking to better this season the lifetime record of 324 goals set by Nels Stewart, a centreman with the old Montreal Maroons, Richard passed the 300 mark last week.

Richard scored Montreal's two goals—No. 300 and 301—on home ice Nov. 3 when the Habs lost 3-2 to Detroit Red Wings.

For the season, the Rocket has amassed nine goals, highest number so far and three assists. Lach a veteran Canadien, has two goals and 10 assists, another current mark.

Tied for third place with nine points apiece are Boston's Adam Brown, Toronto's Sid Smith and another Habitant, Bert Olmstead. Their respective totals are 6-3, 4-5 and 1-8.

Next, with eight points, are Johnny Peirson of Boston and Ted Kennedy of Toronto, while nine players follow with seven points each.

Holds Second Record

Richard holds another record—the dubious honor of being most penalized player this season. The Rocket has spent 30 minutes in the penalty box, 22 of them during the last week when he took part in brawls, knocking out one player. Close behind are Gus Kyle of Boston with 26 minutes and Fern Flaman of Toronto with 25.

Most penalized team with 150 minutes is Canadiens; Toronto follows with 122. Chicago has the lowest total—68 minutes.

Two net-minders entered the shutouts competition last week with Boston's Jim Henry and Toronto's Al Rollins picking up one each.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit continues to lead the way with two gooseeggs to his credit and the lowest average of goals scored against his club.

In 10 games, Sawchuk let only 15 pucks past him for a 1.50 average. Henry has a 1.78 average, while Rollins, last year's Vezina Trophy winner for the lowest goals-against average, has a 1.90 mark.

Detroit Red Wings remain securely in first place of league standings with seven victories, two defeats and one deadlock for 15 points. For five victories and a tie in nine starts, Boston Bruins hold second place with 11 points.

Next are Toronto Maple Leafs with 10 points for four victories, four losses and two ties, while following at one-point intervals are Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers.

Canadiens have played the most games this season—12—winning only four and tying one.

Tom Burlington Leads Senior Scorers In OHA

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP). — Tommy Burlington, crafty veteran centre of Owen Sound Mercurys, leads all Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League scorers.

In four games played to date, Burlington, one of the sparkplugs that helped the Mercurys win the Allan Cup last season, has scored four goals and assisted on five others, according to official statistics released Monday.

Stratford's Jack White holds down second place with three goals and five assists for a total of eight points, one less than Burlington. Four players are tied for third place.

Bob Gilson of Owen Sound and Stratford's Bruce Dale top the regular netminders, each boasting a 3.25 average in four games played. Gilson posted the league's lone shutout.

Torrid Pace

Ken Laufman, in his second season in the OHA Junior A series, is setting a torrid pace. The smooth Guelph Biltmore pivot has counted 31 points, including 22 assists which top the circuit in that department in 11 games.

Three other Guelph speedsters are included in the top five. Winger Ron Murphy leads in goals, 15, and 12 assists give him second place while teammate Chuck Henderson is tied with Marlboros Eric Nesterenko for third place, each with 23 points.

Marlboros' Don Head has the best goaltender's average, 2.55 while Chuck Hagen of the Bilts, is second with 2.60. Les Binkley of Galt Black Hawks holds the most shutouts, two.

Believe Snead Man To Beat

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 6 (AP) —While defending champion Sam Snead and 100 or more other invitees marked time today, some 120 golfers battled it out for 20 remaining places in Wednesday's $7,500 north and south open tournament.

The low 20 in today's qualifying round will join those already in the fold for the beginning of hostilities Wednesday. Eighteen-hole rounds will also be played Thursday, Friday and Sunday, with Saturday left open.

Snead, as usual, is the man to beat. Sammy has run off with the last two stagings of the event. His play in the recent Ryder Cup matches here indicated that the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., slugger is in top form.

His winning score last year was 275, in 1949 it was 274.

Max Faulkner and his British Ryder Cup teammates will be out in full strength to salvage something out of this trip after their recent disaster. Aside from Snead, who captained the American cup team, Ed Oliver, Skip Alexander, Henry Ransom and possibly Clayton Heafner are expected to stay on. Hogan, Jackie Burke, Dutch Harrison, Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret have already left for other parts.

Re-Elect Executive

LINDSAY, Nov. 6.—President Roy Scott and the Tri-County Baseball League executive were returned for a third term at the sixth annual banquet. Acclaimed for another term were: vice-presidents Irving Boyd of Port Perry and Pete Hicks, Valfiina; treasurer, Hudson Pillsworth, Lindsay and secretary, Bill Fitzell, Lindsay.

Lewicki Gets Reprieve When Sloan Injured

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP). — Danny Lewicki, Toronto Maple Leafs' left winger sent down to Pittsburgh Hornets, got an unexpected but temporary reprieve on Monday.

Leaf Tod Sloane injured an ankle. Lewicki was told to stay in Toronto in case Sloan can't play against Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night.

Lewicki balked when Leaf manager Conn Smythe first announced he was being sent to Pittsburgh to make room for two rookies.

Smythe threatened to suspend him if he didn't do as he was told. Lewicki called for a conference with Smythe for Monday. When it was over, Smythe announced Lewicki has agreed to go. Then came the reprieve.

Here and There In Sport

Chuck Dressen was rehired on Monday to manage the Brooklyn Dodgers who blew a 13½ game lead and the National League pennant in the 1951 season.

The new term will be for one year, like the first with the official papers to be signed when Dressen comes east from his Los Angeles home. Salary is reported around $30,000.

Walter O'Malley, Dodger president, told a press conference at Brooklyn Dressen will be back.

Fan indignation at seeing a world series snatched from their grasp by Bobby Thomson's home run in the final playoff game with New York brought a stream of letters to Dodger offices. Now that the situation has cooled off somewhat, the announcement was made.

At Pinehurst, NC, Gene Sarazen who has played in more Ryder Cup matches and won more points than any man, said Monday the British would never retrieve the international golf trophy until they became realistic and field an empire team.

"They call men up from their dominions to fight and die in their wars," said the square-rigged Germantown, NY, country squire. "It seems foolish that they should bar them from their sports teams.

"I feel sure a Ryder Cup squad picked from Australia, South Africa and Canada, as well as Britain, could give the United States quite a go of it."

The Americans retained the trophy here Sunday by humbling the British team, 9½ points to 2½. Britain which restricts its team membership to natives of the isles, has won only twice since 1927 and has not beaten the United States since 1933.

Solly Cantor, Toronto's threat to the Canadian lightweight title held by Montreal's Armand Savoie is out for a crack at the British Empire title.

That's his announced aim when he goes into the ring for 12 rounds and the Canadian title with the Montrealer tonight in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Cantor is confident he can earn the right for a shot at the title now held by L'il Arthur King by taking the Canadian crown from Savoie.

Gene (Silent) Hairston of New York Monday night scored a unanimous decision over Laurent Dauthuille of France in a 10-round middleweight boxing bout in Montreal. Dauthuille was saved by the bell in the 10th round after a punishing attack by the New Yorker who lost a split decision to Dauthuille last summer.

His mouthpiece gone, bleeding from the mouth and cut over the right eye, Dauthuille was rubber-legged and glassy-eyed at the finish. Hairston weighed 157¾ and Dauthuille 160½.

Doug Bentley, 35-year-old scoring star for Chicago Black Hawks has been ordered to take a complete rest by team physician Myron J. Tremaine. Bentley, suffering the recurrence of a groin injury, may be out for at least two weeks, Hawk coach Ebbie Goodfellow said at Chicago.

Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League Monday night acquired Sam Lavitt, 29-year-old Winnipeg defenceman, from the league champion Cleveland Barons.

Counterpoint, a cinch to clinch horse of the year honors, suffered a slight separation of his left front hoof Saturday and will be shipped to the farm for treatment and rest. Trainer Syl Veitch said Monday at New York the fine three-year-old, owned by C. V. Whitney has been withdrawn from Saturday's $50,000 Butler Handicap at Jamaica and from the Pimlico Special Nov. 16.

Counterpoint suffered the injury and sewed up three-year-old and horse of the year honors at the same time Saturday when he won the $50,000 Empire City Handicap at Jamaica.

Lindsay Kinsmen Subdue Unionville 7-6

LINDSAY, Nov. 6.—Rallying for three goals in 140 seconds, Lindsay Kinsmen squared their pre-season exhibition series with Unionville Jets by nipping the Big Six junior B club 7-6.

Norm Dysart, who sparked the third-period comeback, scored two and assisted on two others. Defenceman Dave Lucas and centreman Al Smith each sniped a pair while rookie Bill Burns added a singleton. Centreman Don Courier and leftwinger Herb White split the Jets' goals evenly, each turning the hat trick. Sixteen penalties were handed out in the rugged going.

Mexican Horse Wins Fifth Event At Show

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP). — "Arete," said Col. Humberto Mariles of Mexico, "is priceless."

Mariles was talking about his 13-year-old mount Monday night after he won his fifth international event—the first time in the history of the National Horse Show a horse has achieved such a feat.

"Arete is blind in one eye now," said Col. Mariles "but the horse still is good for perhaps four more years of international competition."

That's bad news for the other nations which will send teams to the Olympics next year. Col. Mariles rode Arete to the individual championship in 1948 and judging by his performance here, there's no reason to believe that the result will be any different next year.

Spanish Said Best

"I hear the Spanish have the best all-round team in the Olympics. They are followed by France, England and Italy. After them, we all are grouped in a bunch."

As for the United States, Col. John W. (Gyp) Wofford, retired cavalry officer and former rider, who heads the team, is worried about a lack of practice.

Maj. Eloi Massey de Oliveria Menezes, head of the Brazilian team, also said he didn't know how his team would do.

Ireland and Canada, the other two countries with teams here will not go to the Olympics. Ireland's non-riding captain, Lt.-Col. Frederick A. Aherne, said sending the team to the Olympics would interfere with Ireland's "plans" for the coming year. The Canadian team is made up completely of business men who are taking time off from work.

Wochy Takes Lead In AHL Scoring Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP). — Steve Wochy, slender right wing of the Cleveland Barons, has taken over the lead in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Wochy has nine goals and seven assists for 16 points. Pat Lundy of St. Louis is second with 15 points and four men are tied for third at 14 points apiece.

The Baron star's nine tallies lead the goal-getting department.

Centre Buddy O'Connor of Cincinnati and defenceman Frank Mathers of Pittsburgh are tied for play-making honors with 11 assists each.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh is the league's top goaltender. Mayer has allowed 19 goals in 10 games for a 1.90 average. Emil (The Cat) Francis of Cincinnati has posted the most shutouts—two. Pete Durham of Indianapolis is the loop's most-penalized player with 56 minutes in the box.

Vatican City Maintains Relations With 44 Nations

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Diplomatic activities at this tiny Vatican state are greater today than at any time in its history.

Vatican sources say they reflect another facet of the energy of Pope Pius XII, noted in international diplomacy before he became pontiff.

The Roman Catholic church's fight against atheistic Communism has drawn the attention of non-catholic countries towards the Vatican as an international listening post.

Beyond the Iron Curtain Communist regimes one by one have cut diplomatic ties once established with the Vatican. The last Vatican representative in an Iron Curtain country was Archbishop Gerald P. O'Hara of Savanah, Georgia, who was for three years papal nuncio at Bucharest, Romania, until his explusion in July, 1950.

Others Opened

But as the Vatican's nunciatures and legations were closed in Iron Curtain countries, others were being opened elsewhere. Most recently, diplomatic relations have been established with Pakistan, the world's biggest Moslem nation.

Today, with the area of Vatican state limited to 108 acres, diplomatic relations are maintained with 44 nations. That is far more than were maintained when the Vatican held the papal states—an area of 16,000 square miles with a population, in the 19th century, of more than 3,000,000 people. Today, citizens of Vatican state are about 1,000.

Neutral Position

In modern history, war has underlined the neutral position of the Vatican and its possible influence in efforts for peace.

This led to the establishment—in one case at least temporarily—of diplomatic relations between the Vatican and Great Britain and the United States, two nations with strong Protestant majorities.

It was thus that Great Britain, whose state church has at times expressed some of the sharpest criticism against the Vatican, began diplomatic relations in 1914.

The late President Franklin D. Rossevelt reopened diplomatic relations with the Vatican during the last war in an unusual fashion by appointing as his personal representative Myron C. Taylor. He served until January, 1950, when he resigned "for personal considerations of a compelling nature."

"President Action"

Recent announcement that President Truman had decided against giving General Mark Clark a recess appointment as ambassador to the Vatican pleased Italy's Communist press. But—for another reason—it also found favor in Vatican circles, where it was described as a "prudent action."

These sources said the Vatican would prefer a "clear out" appointment of an official representative of the United States if and when diplomatic relations between it and the Vatican are established.

Great Britain sent a special mission to the Vatican in December, 1914, for the duration of the war. But when the war ended, the mission remained here. In 1920, Great Britain named its first minister to the Vatican. There have since been eight British ministers to the Vatican, nearly all of them Protestant. Usually, the first secretary at the British legation to the Vatican has been a Roman Catholic.

Since the end of the war, diplomatic relations have been established with Egypt, India, Indonesia and the Philippines. War-broken diplomatic relations between the Vatican and Germany and Japan are expected to be mended soon.

START THE DAY WITH A PRAYER—Factory workers at the Gerber Plumbing and Fixture Company, Plymouth, Ind., hold a 25-minute chapel service in the firm's shipping department before beginning their day's work. The religious service is a daily custom inaugurated by the boss for the plant's 100 employees. Services are usually conducted by the Rev. Ernest Armstrong, a Presbyterian pastor.

Leading Bass Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP). — Oscar Natzka, leading bass of the New York City Opera Company, who collapsed during a performance two weeks ago, died in hospital Monday. Natzka served in the Canadian Navy during the Second World War and appeared as a singer in the "Navy Show."

Test Tube Babies

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6 — (Reuters). — Unmarried women should have the right to have "test tube" babies, Denmark's Minister of Justice, Miss Helga Pedersen, said Monday. "An unmarried woman should have the right to have a child by artificial insemination if she wants to," Miss Pedersen said in an interview.

Berlin Anti-Red Groups Grow, Airlift Help

By EDO KOENIG

BERLIN—(Reuters)—Berlin today is a focal point in the east-west propaganda war.

Through a score of anti-communist organizations, radio stations and other propaganda groups, the west answers back across the iron curtain.

Anti-communist organizations have multiplied here, especially in the two years since the airlift successfully countered the Soviet blockade.

The first was the "fighting group against inhumanity." It was followed by such groups as "the victims of Stalinism," "the investigation committee of free jurists," "the bureau for cultural freedom," "advisory committees" for East German policemen, "freedom-loving teachers" and "liberal-minded refugees". Others still are youth organizations.

Other Movements

In addition, there are the "east offices" of the main political parties here and various movements of exiled East Europeans. They have contact with Allied government counter-intelligence agencies, with the major trade unions of the western world and with such private organizations as the American "crusade of freedom."

The Communists denounce their activities in East Germany and Eastern Europe as those of "spies and saboteurs" working under the direction of "Anglo-American imperialists."

Financial support comes from various secret sources, believed to include the West German and the West Berlin governments, western Allied governments and numerous private sources.

Strengthen Resistance

Their aim, they say, is to strengthen the resistance of East European peoples against their Communist rulers and at the same time "immunize" the people of the Western world against Communism by telling the "truth about Communist totalitarianism."

In West Berlin, in the heart of Communist-ruled territory, they can easily reach those East Europeans willing to ignore the threats of their rulers and listen to Western propaganda.

Leaders of these organizations declare that they do not intend to incite open sabotage—"at least not at the present stage."

For the moment they are waging mainly "psychological warfare," they say. But, they claim, they could "start trouble for the Kremlin at any moment when the time comes."

Main Target

This psychological warfare is one of the main targets of Communist counter action. East German government leaders have called repeatedly for an "increased fight against all Anglo-American agents, diversionist and enemies of our people."

But, Western propaganda consists not only of propaganda leaflets and miniature-sized newspapers. There are also printed jokes intended to ridicule Communism and its impact on the daily life of East Germans. There are copies of charges prepared by the West Berlin "committee of free jurists," indictments which may some day be the basis for thousands of court trials. There are faked instructions to cause disturbance and a feeling of uncertainty.

There are, too, relief packages with food and clothing for thousands of East Germans, whose general standard of living is lower than that of most Western Europeans.

Wood Jury Can't Agree

Russel suffered a fractured skull when he was caught by the front fender and left side of Wood's car and tossed onto the gravel driveway of the McNaughton & Sugden garage, 19 feet west of the paved surface.

Russel died in hospital 13 days later without having regained consciousness.

The third criminal case listed for the assizes is the murder trial of Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 35, charged with shooting her husband Roy in their Howden Ave. home on August 25.

Trial To Go On

Members of the petit jury, who had just finished bringing in a verdict in the Wood case, were told to be in court Wednesday at 10 am. Presumably the murder trial will go on at that time.

T. J. Carley, KC, will defend Mrs. Thompson. He was also defence counsel in the two motor manslaughter trials.

The jury retired at 3:50 pm after a 55-minute address by Mr. Carley, a 10-minute address by Crown Attorney Bradshaw, KC, and a 45-minute charge by Mr. Justice Spence. They returned at 4:07 for a recharge on points raised by Mr. Carley, and retired again at 4:14 pm.

Make Three Queries

The jury was then escorted downtown for supper that lasted an hour and a half. And at 9:35 pm they filed out of the jury room to make three queries:

1. Where in relation to the south boundary of the garage did Newson first see Russel.

2. At what point was Newson first aware that Wood's car was abreast of him.

3. An explanation of one of the photographs.

At 9:50 pm they filed out of the courtroom after their queries had been answered by Mr. Justice Spence and they remained in the jury room until 12:11 am.

Only eight spectators—one of them the 17-year-old widow of Russel—were present when the jury returned with their verdict.

Unable To Decide

W. Ross Payne, jury foreman, announced that they had been unable to decide whether Wood was guilty or not guilty of manslaughter. But all 12 men voted "guilty" on the dangerous driving count.

It will be left to the discretion of the Attorney General's department whether or not there will be a new trial on the manslaughter count.

Mr. Justice Spence complimented the jury before dismissing them till Wednesday morning.

"You have carried out properly and creditably the duties of your office," he said. Because of the lateness of the hour he thought it best not to ask them to retire and resolve their disagreement.

Highlight Of Trial

Members of the jury were Walter Payne, Dummer township; Robert Ross, Park St.; George H. Panter, Rogers St.; Wlifred I. Rogers, Douglas St.; Percy Davidson, Otonabee township; Gordon Minty, Hunter St.; Eldon Purvis, Smith township; Roy Wilson, Sherbrooke St.; Dave Gifford, Ennismore township; Melville R. McDougall, Park St. N.; W. Ross Payne, Aberdeen Ave.; and Harry M. Yudin, Gilmour St.

Highlight of Wood's two-day trial came shortly before noon Monday when he entered the witness box to testify on his own behalf. A dark-haired youth, wearing horn-rimmed glasses, he looked older than his 21 years. He was neatly dressed in a double-breasted blue suit and appeared slightly nervous as he was questioned.

He said that he speeded his car up to 35-40 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone to pass another northbound car, driven by Earl Newson, McCannan Ave.

"I turned out to the left to pass the car and I was just getting up nearly even with it when I heard a bang," Wood said. "It sounded like a blowout. The car was pulled to the left and then I turned sharply to the right as hard as I could. It guess it was part of the right fender and the door that hit Russel."

Not Positive

He was not positive whether or not Russel was walking on the pavement.

Measurements taken by OPP Constable J. G. Healey were entered by the Crown, along with photographs of the scene of the accident.

Constable Healey said he got to the McNaughton and Sugden garage about 7 p.m. He found Russel lying in a pool of blood southeast of the southern gas pump at the station, more than 19 feet west of the pavement.

Constable Healey said there were marks on the west shoulder of the highway, presumably made by a left front wheel, for 112 feet. Then, near the southern limit of the service station, the wheel marks angled 60 feet, six inches, across the highway onto the east shoulder.

Pole Snapped Off

A hydro pole, 21 feet, seven inches further north was snapped off where the car had sideswiped it. And the car came to rest at right angles to the road, against a hedge, some 34 feet further north.

Constable Healey said he did not talk to Wood until he met him in Dr. Herbert Young's office at 8:45 pm. Wood seemed nervous but, otherwise normal, stated Healey under cross-examination.

OPP Constable A. R. Pollard, who investigated the accident with Sgt. Lloyd McClure and Constable Pollard, thought Wood the worse for alcohol.

"Wood's eyes were glassy," said Constable Pollard. "He was smoking but I could still smell alcohol. He couldn't stand steady. His body was wobbly though his feet were not moving."

A blood test, taken by Dr. Young, showed 2.2 parts per 100 of alcohol in the blood. Dr. Josely Rogers, medico-legal consultant to the Attorney General's Department, said this would indicate that an average man of 150 pounds would have consumed the equivalent of 11 ounces of alcohol.

(He said the regulation-sized bottle of spirits is 40 per cent alcohol, 30 underproof. Beer is five per cent alcohol by volume instead of 40 per cent.)

Denies Heavy Drinking

Wood denied that he was drinking heavily. He said he went to the show that afternoon with his brother-in-law, Clayton Eason, who lives on Water Street North, immediately north of the McNaughton & Sudgen garage. At 5:30 pm they entered a beverage room and each had five glasses of beer, he said.

Eason corroborated this testimony. He was confronted with two statements written in a police notebook which bore his signature.

They said: "I have been drinking too, and I didn't know what happened," and "between 3-630 pm we had a few beers."

"I was excited then," was Eason's explanation.

Crown Witness

Mr. Newson, the driver Wood intended to pass, was one of the chief Crown witnesses. He said he saw Russel walking along the west side of the highway and passed him 15 feet south of the southern limits of the garage.

The front of his car was about even with the south gasoline pump when he heard a noise behind him.

"It was like the sound of car tires sliding on gravel."

Mr. Newson said the car passed him making a great deal of noise, and, when two or three car lengths ahead, suddenly altered direction and shot northeast across the highway where he heard a crash. Presumably this was when the vehicle clipped off the hydro pole.

Saw Car Hit Pole

Harold James, Lindsay, told the court he was sitting in his car on the west side of the gasoline pumps, talking to a service station attendant.

"I heard a bang," he said, "so I turned east and saw a 1937 Ford coupe moving north directly opposite me. And I saw the feet of a man on the east side of the pumps just north of the southerly pump."

The man was the fatally-injured Russell and the car was Wood's.

James watched the Wood car cut across in front of Newson's car and strike the hydro pole.

"It bounced off the pole and landed in a lot to the north, coming to rest in a clump of trees," he said.

James said he turned Russel slightly because he was hemorrhaging. He also stated that Wood's breath "reeked of alcohol."

Near Destinations

Ironically, both Wood and Russel were within a few hundred feet of their destinations when the fatal accident occurred.

Wood was some 200 feet away from the driveway of his brother-in-law's home, just north of the garage. And Russel was to join his wife at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lillian Collins, three lots north on the east side of the highway.

E. B. Jolliffe Challenges Leslie Frost

Offers To Debate On Any Platform On Record Of PCs

CCF Leader E. B. Jolliffe climaxed his address to a CCF rally in the Legion Hall Monday night with a challenge to Premier Leslie Frost to debate with him on any platform at Mr. Frost's convenience, the record of the Progressive Government since 1943 and the CCF's 12 point program for a better Ontario.

Mr. Jolliffe said that "if he has the courage to meet this challenge, I will give him the further privilege of opening and closing the debate."

"If he is worthy of being the Premier of the great province of Ontario, he should be willing to face me in that debate," he said.

Through Snowstorm.

Mr. Jolliffe motored 350 miles through a snowstorm from Espanola to speak at the meeting in support of Peterborough CCF candidate W. C. Grant. He was an hour and 35 minutes late in arriving.

Seventy people were in the hall.

"This is a fine time to be having a provincial election," declared Mr. Jolliffe. "Any man who calls an election in Ontario in November is no friend of democracy. If the weather is bad on November 22, tens of thousands will be deprived of their franchise to the advantage of the Progressive Conservatives and to get Leslie Frost out of a jam."

Premier Frost has stated he is standing on his record, "fair enough," said Mr. Jolliffe, "let him be judged on it."

The oppostion leader in the last legislature charged that the provincial government had not built a single house since 1943. "The municipalities to whom he solemnly promised to pay one half the cost of education received one one third last year," he continued. The Progressive Conservative record in hospital construction and on old age pensions also drew criticism from Mr. Jolliffe.

In 1945, Jolliffe said, Ontario had 4.12 hospital beds for each thousand of population. On December 31, 1950, the province had 4.28 beds per thousand according to the admission of the Minister of Health. Health authorities estimate that seven beds per thousand is required to provide adequate hospital accommodation.

A VETERAN LADY HUNTER, Mrs. Arthur Earnshaw, near Apsley, phoned a neighbour to report "no luck" on opening day; she is confident of getting a deer later. Any type of accommodation was acceptable to hunters, even a truck-mounted portable ice fishing shack as shown in the Right photo; "It keeps two men warm and out of the weather anyway," reported these hunters from Woodville. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Deer Score Small But Game Plentiful

The call to the wilds came faintly to huntsmen's ears as early as last mid-week. By Friday night, though muffled in wet snow, the call was loud and clear. And by Saturday afternoon vehicles from all directions in eastern Ontario converged on the Kawarthas. Some turned east from Highway 28 to the newly-opened hunting acres at the east end of Stony Lake but the majority streamed straight north. All side roads from Haultain to Whitney were filled with parked cars, cars with trailers and trucks. Smoke curled up from rusty stovepipe chimneys of damp musty camps and hounds were bedded down on fresh marsh hay in their old kennels.

Sunday was spent in calculated preparations. Rifles were resighted and fired off at targets and put back in camp racks while their owners went out to study game signs in the early snowfall. There were signs in abundance.

Clear, Cold, Still

Before daybreak on Monday—it was clear, cold and still—hunters tumbled from their bunks, wolfed hasty breakfasts and stumped through the woods to their appointed watches. They saw the dawn break. They waited for the deer to start moving. But very little happened. The sharp cracks of rifles sounded here and there and an occasional hound gave tongue, far off. Could the game have suddenly disappeared from the highly-touted Kawarthas? Why were the deer so invisible though their tracks indicated plenty of them?

Many hunters went back to camp in disgust. They couldn't understand why every two of them, at least, hadn't drawn a bead on a deer.

The hunters with hounds held the answer in their kennelled dogs. Their owners were not willing to loosen them to provide general hunting sport for the large army of first-day hunters. Nor were they willing to run the risk of losing friendly tired dogs to strangers to use for the duration of the hunt. Lack of dogs held the slaughter in check.

One party east of Stony Lake guided by Clarence and Goldie McIlmoyle reported nine deer taken on Monday. Included in the party were A. L. Brents of Harpster, O., Bill Stone of Plymouth, O., D. H. Morrison, Upper Sandusky, Jack Morgan, Hall's Glen, Walter Kiloran, Lakefield, Louis Yeotes, Peterborough, and three men from Weston.

Bag Two

Along the west rim of the Eel's Creek Crown Game Preserve four Peterborough hunters, Doug Clark, Jack Murray and Theo and Harold Manning, bagged two deer, bagged two deer.

Another Peterborough party of seven shot four deer; they were Harold and Gord Wiley, Vic and Max Doughty. Bob and Gord Todd and Roy MacInnes.

Jack Paris of Young's Point shot a doe while sitting out his watch on a canvas garden chair. His campmates, Wally Cruickshank and Art Dowden of Toronto, verified this.

Earl Tamblyn, Norm and Keith Jacobs and John McLean, all of Woodville, stood around open fires with long faces. Their score was zero. Another group at the Wagon Wheel Inn, 26 hunters, only had one deer to show up until late Monday afternoon.

The majority of hunters, except the very green ones, were not discouraged by the poor start of opening day. Many had several days at their disposal and an early kill would mean an end to their fun. No one reported having seen or shot at an elk.

On Patrol

Five conservation officers were on constant patrol, some in a jeep and others in cars. None of those questioned would say anything about law infractions nor when or where road blocks would be set up. That will be their little surprise party for license-less law breakers who will pay their fines or have their equipment confiscated.

American hunters who generally show a high degree of planning arrived in some parts of the Kawarthas with little or no preparation. One party were disappointed that they could not stay at one of the summer camps on Jack's Lake; they did not seem to realize that this area was within the boundaries of the Preserve. They voiced their disappointment to proprietor Ken Moffat of Wilson's Inn, Apsley.

The district's most famous woman hunter, Mrs. Arthur Earnshaw, stood out her watch southwest of Apsley with no results on Monday morning, she said she was quite confident of getting her deer later on as she has been in the habit of doing for the past four seasons.

Cliff Hartman of Peterborough summed up the result of opening day in a few words: "Why be in a hurry? There is plenty of game hereabouts. In fact, it is more heavily concentrated here than in any part of the province. And I have hunted in many places."

Girl, 12, Drowns In Canal In View Of Grandmother

BRIGHTON, Nov. 6. (Staff)—A 12-year-old girl drowned in Murray Canal Monday afternoon after falling from a railway bridge across which she was pushing her bicycle. She was Simone Jacqueline Simmons, of RR 4, Carrying Place, in Prince Edward County, where she lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Ida Barker.

Mrs. Barker saw the girl pushing her bicycle across the bridge from Murray township school. When Simone was only 500 feet from her home, she lost her balance and toppled from the bridge into the canal.

Her grandmother tried to reach neighbors to aid the child, but she was too late. The Barker home is at the south end of the bridge in Prince Edward county; the school is in Northumberland county, at the north end of the bridge.

Provincial police from Brighton recovered the girl's body at 6.30 p.m. Dr. F. M. Dure of Brighton said there would be no inquest into the drowning.

OPP Corporal L. G. Lyle investigated.

Chilly 3 Above Coldest Nov. 6 In Last 30 Years

This is the coldest November 6 in 30 years, if anyone doubted it. It was a nose-nipping 3 degrees above zero early this morning.

Weatherman James Harrison dug back into his old records today, and found that although there have been colder November nights, all were later in the month.

Second coldest November 6 since 1921 was that in 1941, when the temperature went down to 5 above.

Mr. Harrison, shivering reminiscently as he looked into past years, discovered a few other November nights that were downright cold.

Chilly Nights

Take, for instance, November 22, 1932, when it was an even zero, or November 15, 1931, when it was down to 2 above. Other nasty ones were: 1941—November 2, 6 above, November 11, 3 above; 1936—November 4, 8 above, November 8, 4 above; 1921—November 15, 3 above, November 16, 6 above.

This morning, by 9 o'clock, it was a heart-warming 12 above zero. For tomorrow, the weatherman in Toronto calls for continuing cold weather accompanied by snow.

Do you remember last August, three months ago, when it went all the way down to 46 at night? It wasn't very warm that day, either—just 71.

Will Revise Voters' List

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP) — A revision of the voters' list in Toronto Dovercourt will be made Saturday, the Attorney-General's department announced today.

Between now and Wednesday night, candidates in the riding may submit names of persons they believe eligible to go on the list.

The revision was ordered after Eamon Park, CCF candidate, asked the chief electoral officer for an investigation into preparation of voters' lists for the Nov. 22 election.

He said there were "several clear-cut violations" of the Voters' Lists Act, 1951.

Mr. Park, who held the seat in the last legislature, suggested that a new revision date be set so every person eligible to vote could get on the list.

15 Left Homeless In $100,000 Fire

OTTAWA, Nov. 6 (CP).—Fire raged through an apartment and business block at the corner of Queen and Booth streets early today, leaving 15 persons homeless and causing damage estimated at $100,000.

All occupants of the second-storey apartments escaped unhurt, but managed to get out of the blazing building only in their night clothes, losing their household possessions.

Heroism of firemen and neighbors was credited with saving one family of six from death.

Mr. and Mrs. Orphila Langlois and their four children were carried from the building by rescuers who had to break down doors and fight through blinding smoke to reach the trapped family.

Pedestrian Hit By Car Slightly Shaken Up

Joseph Moher, 512 O'Connell Rd., was slightly shaken up Monday evening when struck by a car on Park St., at O'Connell Rd.

Mr. Moher told police he had just stepped off a bus and was crossing Park St., when struck by a southbound car driven by Ross J. Kaye, RR 10 Peterborough.

After being attended by Dr. R. Young, Mr. Moher was X-rayed at St. Joseph's hospital and permitted to return home. Both Mr. Moher and Mr. Kaye reported the accident to the police station.

Two Lazy Trains Delay City Bus

If the law of averages applies to transportation, then one of these days a railway freight or shunter is going to hold up a fire truck while somebody's house burns.

A Byersville bus Monday afternoon encountered two delays, one by the CNR at Bethune St. and the other by the CPR at Park-Perry. Neither of these trains showed any sign of wishing to accommodate the bus people.

Finally, the bus was overtaken at Chamberlain St., passengers were transferred to the second which turned around and went back to the Simcoe transfer corner, and the second continued on the route by way of Romaine St.

If the bus management kept a log of such daily impedings, the record would convince the city council and its fire and light committee, and also Chief Smith, that sooner or later this railway blockade is bound to stall business-bound fire apparatus.

Disrupt Service

Incidentally these delays at railway crossings affect the timing of all the other buses in the local system. The schedule is temporarily disrupted, and just how many times a week that happens apparently nobody knows because these obstructions and delays are not reported to anybody.

So far, only common traffic is caught at these barriers, cars, trucks, buses, but it seems likely that eventually a fire truck or two will land in that line of delay, and then there'll be strictures in the air.

Two Injured As Truck, Train Crash

Passenger Train Collides With Truck West Of Cavan

Two men were hurt in a train-truck collision west of Cavan today shortly before noon.

They are: Art Howson, 19, RR 8, Peterborough, and George Lindsay, 49, of Cavan. Howson is believed to have a slight concussion, and Lindsay suffered chest and shoulder injuries.

Dr. Ralph Clark of Peterborough treated the two men, and a doctor from Millbrook was also on the scene. Both men were brought to St. Joseph's hospital.

The train was the CPR 11:40 passenger local from Toronto.

No other details were available at press time.

Heated Bullet Explodes Wounds Woman

HAVELOCK, Nov. 6 (ENS) — A .22 calibre bullet, put in the wrong place for safety's sake, rolled onto a hot stove lid and exploded Monday night, striking Mrs. Mae Adams, 55, in the right forearm.

Mrs. Adams was taken to Civic hospital, where her condition is reported as good.

Mrs. Adams was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Forbes, Jr., looking after the three Forbes children, when she picked up the bullet from the floor. She put it on a cool part of the stove out of the children's reach.

In the afternoon she was wiping the stove and knocked the forgotten bullet onto a hot stove lid. The bullet exploded, hitting an artery in her right forearm.

She was able to partly stop the flow of blood by applying pressure above the wound. Later, a neighbor gave her further first aid, and she was brought to hospital in Peterborough Monday evening.

2 Youths Remanded On Theft Charges

Two Peterborough youths charged with theft pleaded guilty in police court today and were remanded in custody until Thursday for sentence by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Allan Patton, 20 and Keith Wheeler, 21, both of 659 Hawley St., pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of tools and gasoline, belonging to Frank Coyle of Smith township.

The value of the articles which were stolen on October 31 is said to have been over $25.

Car Skids On Ice Hits Pole, Mailbox

As he was driving east on Parkhill Rd. at 8 p.m. Monday, Roy T. Bogle, 317 Caddy St., told police, he applied his brakes on the brow of the Monaghan Rd. hill.

Just as he applied his brakes, Mr. Bogle said, he struck a strip of icy pavement and his car went out of control, crashing into a telephone pole at the south side of Parhill Rd., and then swinging across the street, coming to rest against a mail box..

Extensive damage resulted to the front end of Mr. Bogle's car.

Trucks To Carry Millbrook Freight

A truck service to run three times a week has been started this week to handle CNR freight between Peterborough and Millbrook.

Since May 31 when passenger traffic between Peterborough and Millbrook was suspended and all service from Millbrook to Port Hope ended, automobiles have been handling small freight parcels.

But, said a CNR official, this had not proved satisfactory, to either the company nor the people of Millbrook.

As a result, the three-times a week truck service has been started. If the amount of business warrants it, the service will be made daily.

Carload traffic, such as carloads of coal, cement or lumber, will still be shipped to Millbrook by rail as before when the cars come through.

Stock Exchange Mysteries Made Clear To Rotary Club

The air of mystery and confusion usually associated with the Toronto stock exchange was cleared up Monday at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club.

The enlightener was W. L. Summerville, assistant general manager of the Toronto stock exchange, who was guest speaker at Monday's meeting. Mr. Summerville is a graduate of the University of Toronto in Political Science and Economics and also of Osgoode Hall. After practising law for several years in Toronto, he entered the stock exchange, where he rose to his present position of assistant general manager.

Mr. Summerville described the stock exchange as a meeting place which provides the facilities for trading in securities.

He cleared up a somewhat general fallacy that the stock exchange is something like a grocery store, where securities are purchased wholesale and sold retail. He compared it to an auction sale with the exception that more than two people are involved in transactions.

Security Trading

Security trading is increasing as industrial expansion develops, he said. He followed the development of security trading from the time when all selling and buying took place in the open air in the vicinity of Wall and Broad Sts. in New York city to the present highly intricate indoor stock exchange facilities. In 1921 the New York curb exchange came into being.

Toronto's exchange history dates back to 1852 with the first meeting of brokers to draw up a constitution.

Mr. Summerville said that at present there are high speed ticker tapes in approximately 750 centres in Canada. In addition, the exchange operates a dial ticker system on which there are as many as 40,000 calls per day. The Toronto exchange ranks second to New York in North America for the value of shares traded per day.

Laws Enforced

The exchange has by-laws which are enforced by a discipline committee.

He outlined the secondary functions of the exchange as (1) supplying a continuous measure of the worth of a security; and (2) supplying the investor with the means of withdrawing capital.

One of the differences of the Canadian exchanges as compared to those in the United States was explained by the speaker. He said that the American market is predominantly a secondary one because of the comparatively well established industrial development. Whereas in Canada new industries and the development of oil and mining distinguish our market as a primary as well as a secondary one.

"The stock exchange is a semi-public institution which is rapidly expanding as the country in step with the country's industrial and mining development," he concluded. "It is an institution by which the man on the street can become a part of big business."

Mr. Summerville was introduced by K. S. Wightman and thanked by Ken Dalrymple.

The following guests were introduced by Dr. R. A. Kelly: Bert Gill, Toronto; Bill Brodiker, Toronto; George Lockington, Nassau; Capt. Donald Sharp, Peterborough; Doug Warner, Peterborough; Dr. George Edge, Toronto.

Saskatchewan Test May Give Needed Soluble Silicate

REGINA—(CP)—A new industry, using 3 native Saskatchewan materials—sand, lignite coal and sodium sulphate—may be in the making for this province.

Scientists at the University of Saskatchewan are using these materials to produce soluble silicate, a material with a large number of commercial uses.

The research project, sponsored for two years by the Saskatchewan Research Council, is being carried out by Dr. S. D. Cavers, professor of chemical engineering.

Soluble silciates are used in soap manufacture, the impregnation of wood, weighting of silk, fabric dyes, as an adhesive in corrugated paper boxes, as a waterproofing treatment for bricks and cement and in many other ways. ing threatment for bricks and cement and in many other ways.

Series Of Tests

The scientists are seeking to produce soluble silicates by fusing sodium sulphate, available in large quantities in Saskatchewan, with silica and carbon. A series of small-scale tests has been made using temperatures from 900 to 1,200 degrees centigrated. In these first experiments, a commercial silica called Ottawa sand and commercial black were used with the Saskatchewan sodium sulphate.

Yields as high as 95 per cent soluble silicates have been obtained.

Now the researchers are seeking to use all Saskatchewan materials in the process. A pure sand, available in commercial quantities in the province, is being substituted for the Ottawa sand and lignite char, a material produced from Saskatchewan lignite coal, is replacing the commercial carbon black.

First tests indicate that these substitutions can be made without seriously affecting the yield of soluble silicates. However, further experiments are required before commercial production can become a reality.

These involve fusion on a larger scale to determine whether the production would be possible on a commercially feasible basis.

UE Workers Reject Strike

SCHENECTADY, NY, Nov. 6—(AP). — Members of the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) voted not to strike at the General Electric Company's main plant, it was announced Monday.

The executive board of Local 301 said the vote was No 7,221, Yes 6,496. The vote was taken Friday and Saturday.

The union members voted on whether to authorize a strike call if a wage increase demand is not settled by negotiation. The national union had directed all its locals at GE plants to complete strike votes by Monday.

The union is seeking a 15-cent-an-hour increase and other benefits. The union has rejected a company offer of a 2½ per cent increase and a cost-of-living escalator boost.

The company's offer was accepted recently by the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO). The IUE is bargaining agent for 70,000 workers in GE plants. UE claims to represent 50,000 GE employees.

Snowfall In Canada Found Radio-Active

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—(CP)—The first big snowfall to hit many parts of central Canada this week end was radio-active, scientists reported Monday.

The radio-activity, present in harmless but noticeable quantities, was discovered Saturday after a heavy snowfall Friday night. It is believed to stem from radio-active dust shot into the upper atmosphere by the United States atomic tests in Nevada.

The presence of the "hot" snow is of interest to meteorologists because it confirms their observations on the movement of upper air masses.

Woman With 800 Slain Bulls To Her Credit Marries Lion-Hunter Of Noble Lineage

LISBON, Nov. 6 — (AP). — A young woman bullfighter with 800 slain bulls to her credit was married today to a lion-hunter of noble lineage. Crowds of adoring aficionados turned out in the pouring rain to cheer the event.

The bride is 28-year-old Consuela Cintron Verrill—known to her fans as Conchita Cintron. The groom is Dom Francisco Daniara Decastelo Branco of the titled Pombeiro family.

Conchita drove her own American-made car to the chapel. With her was her hairdresser, who spent three hours doing her hair for the nuptials.

Conchita's admirers saw her in the frilly costume of a blushing bride instead of the colorful garb of the bullring. She wore a gown of white silk, a veil and orange blossoms. A long train was carried by eight young train-bearers clad in blue and wearing crowns of flowers.

Conchita is giving up bullfighting to become a housewife.

She was only 13 years old when she started fighting bulls in Lima, Peru, tutored by an exiled Portuguese. She has fought in every country where bullfighting is allowed, and has millions of fans who call her "Muy Senorita," the Spanish equivalent of "What a gal."

Will Protest Stores Closing On Holy Days

MONTREAL, Nov. 6—(CP)—A Protestant protest against civic legislation closing retail stores in Montreal on six Roman Catholic holidays each year loomed today.

The Rev. J. S. McBride moderator of Montreal Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said in a statement:

"City council had no business to make any such ruling; it is another case of linking the church and state but the fact is that there is no state church in Canada."

Montreal city council last Friday decreed that retail stores be closed on Epiphany, Ascension Day, All Saints Day, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, Christmas and New Year's Day.

The vote which carried the legislation was 61-29, one more than necessary for a two-thirds majority.

The Rev. Victor Rose, chairman of Montreal Presbytery of the United Church of Canada expressed support for any united Protestant mass meeting to discuss what he described as threats to civil and religious equality in the Province of Quebec.

He called the bylaw an "unwarranted imposition" of the religious views of the majority upon people who did not share those beliefs.

Clerics said the ruling will be considered by the executive of the United Church Presbytery and by the Baptist Ministerial Association this week. It will also come before the Presbyterian Presbytery next week.

Another discussion period dealt with the cruelty suffered by the bush horses in the lumber camps of Northern Ontario. Miss Lytle reported on the result of an investigation by Miss Roberta Doherty, Sault Ste. Marie, and told of the pictures presented and taken by Inspector H. Allard, Sault St. Marie society.

Peterborough's inspector, Bruce Menzies, reported to the Peterborough society that 30 cats were picked up, 25 dogs, three skunks, four rabbits, one fox and one duck. He added that 79 cats and 57 dogs were humanely destroyed.

The society also made an appeal to parents to see that their sons abide by the law in the carrying of firearms. Shooting on Sunday is prohibited and the carrying of firearms by boys under 16 not allowed.

E. B. Jolliffe

Knows Little About

Referring to Liberal Leader Walter Thomson's promise of a hospitalization plan, Mr. Jolliffe said, "It is very well for him to say at the 11th hour that his party favors a plan that he knows little about. We cannot overlook the fact that we have fallen a number of years behind in Ontario and we are paying a heavy price for years of delay which our government failed to give the necessary leadership and support to building hospitals.

"One of the reasons for the success of the Saskatchewan hospital plan is that the government succeeded in increasing the number of hospital beds by 65 per cent in four or five years."

The CCF leader blamed what he called the "failure" of the British Columbia hospital plan on lack of sufficient hospital beds and predicted a similar plan in Ontario at the present time would be just as "miserable a failure" because it would be motivated by "political expediency and not any real interest in the welfare of families which can suffer so much from hospital costs."

"I don't say it will be done overnight because it can't be done," said Mr. Jolliffe in promising that "a contributory and subsidized hospital plan with coverage for everyone will be introduced by the CCF as soon as enough hospitals could be built by more grants and loans".

Mr. Jolliffe said that "like many of our candidates, Bill Grant has had much experience in local government and that is very important. We firmly believe it is absolutely essential for us in Ontario to make an attempt to hold the municipal tax line against another increase in taxation."

Lashes Ottawa

Lashing out at what he termed "economic screwballs at Ottawa," Mr. Jolliffe criticized the federal government for claiming that increased production was the answer to inflation and at the same time, imposing credit restrictions which put people out of work and means tests for people 65 to 69 making it impossible for them to earn more than $20. a month, and still receive old age pensions.

Charging that Ontario was 15 years behind in the normal building of houses and that 16 per cent fewer houses were being built this year than in 1950, Mr. Jolliffe promised that a CCF government would set up an Ontario Housing Corporation to build houses.

Mr. Jolliffe said the charge that material shortages were to blame was not valid because the Ontario Hydro Commission is a public corporation and the biggest builder in the province. "They get the materials and a housing corporation could do the same thing if it were given the power to enforce priorities."

"How can you ask labor men to support the CCF when you have contributed to labor disunity in Peterborough?" asked a member of the audience following Mr. Jolliffe's address.

No Apologies

"I have no apologies to make for the efforts of the CCF to help the labor movement rid itself of Communism and agents of the Soviet Union," replied Mr. Jolliffe. His answer drew the strongest applause of the evening. "These representatives are not serving the interests of the workers, but the interests of a political party in the service of a foreign power," he added.

Mr. Jolliffe was introduced and thanked by Chairman Bill Beggs, president of Local 293 Packing House Workers (CIO-CCL). Howard Miles, CCF candidate for Peterborough in the last Federal election, Ed. Humphreys, chairman of the Political Action Committee of Peterborough and District Labor Council; CCF candidate in the coming provincial election, W. C. Grant; Maurice Ketcheson, Mr. Grant's agent, and Jack Morton, CCF candidate for Peterborough in the last provincial election, were also on the speakers' platform.

Say $25,000 Offered In '30s Reward For Killing Dewey

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—The underworld offered to pay $25,000 to anyone who would murder Governor Dewey during the 1930's when he was a prosecutor in New York city, it was revealed Monday by James C. Hagerty, the governor's executive secretary.

This statement was made by Hagerty as the result of a story in the current issue of Look Magazine which asserts that gangster Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flangenheimer was assassinated in 1935 because he persisted in plans to shoot Dewey after the idea had been vetoed by a gangster Kangaroo court. The authors of the article are Burton B. Turkus, assistant district attorney for Kings County, who prosecuted Murder Inc., and Sid Feder, his collaborator.

They state that Lepke Buchalter and Lucky Luciano, two gang leaders, had sought to dissuade Schultz from proceeding with the plan. When he announced to other thugs his intention of going through with the assassination, Lepke and Luciano ordered his murder, the authors contended.

Lepke was executed by the state in 1944 for his part in the murder of Joseph Rosen, a witness.

Luciano was deported several years ago after a prison pardon by Governor Dewey reportedly in payment for underworld services to the army during the war.

Family "busy" room:

Here's charming proof that a living room can be homey without being dowdy . . . practical as well as pretty! It's done with books, fresh bright colors, close attention to family hobbies. But its big secret is that — from the floor up — it's completely free from work-worry. Look at that Gold Seal Congoleum rug! One wipe of a damp cloth and it's clean as a whistle. Yet its hooked-rug pattern has all the charm and color of a rug straight from Grandmother's house! And you should see how it stands up under household traffic. For that long-lasting wear-layer of heat-toughened paint and baked enamel is equal in thickness to 8 coats of best floor paint applied by hand. But remember — without this familiar Gold Seal it isn't Congoleum . . . the only enamel surface floor covering sold with the famous money-back guarantee. In fact, to make sure you get Gold Seal Congoleum Rugs . . . always look for the Gold Seal before you buy!

BELL TELEPHONE'S RADIO-RELAY SYSTEM which will carry television programs from Montreal to Toronto in 1953 will travel along the above circuit. On towers ranging from 50 to 225 feet high, one each near Hastings and Bethany in Peterborough district, multiple phone call transmissions will also be carried. Towers are to be erected in the spring of '52.

Sites Of Towers Decided In TV Relay

Looking ahead to 1953 when a microwave radio-relay system will carry television service from Montreal to Toronto, the Bell Telephone Company have already plotted a tower path and tower sites.

One structure will be set up on high ground southwest of Hastings and another west of Bethany. Together with 10 more towers between Toronto and Montreal, via Ottawa, the chain will be completed.

In addition to television service the radio-relay system will also deliver multiple long distance calls over towers ranging from 50 to 225 feet in height.

Plans for the erection of towers was called to take place this fall and winter but they have been deferred until spring. Peterborough district manager of the Bell, E. G. Baker, said that this delay will still fit in with the erection plan and subsequent opening date of the circuit.

Judge Criticizes RCAF Methods

CALGARY, Nov. 6—(CP)—The RCAF was criticized Monday by Mr. Justice W. G. Egbert in Alberta Supreme Court chambers for delay in the court martial of an enlisted man accused of desertion.

Mr. Justice Egbert said he was not satisfied the air force had made a determined effort to bring to trial AC1 John Zerk, a former farmer at Balzac, Alta., who has been in custody since July 24.

Air force officers should pote they are not doing the force much good, particularly when they are attempting to get recruits, by laying themselves open to charge of not treating their men fairly, Mr. Justice Edbert said.

He was told that the court martial had been set for Nov. 12 and adjourned hearing of the matter in civil court until Nov. 17. He said that if the court martial were not held on the date set, he would likely "take a very serious view of the delay."

The air force was ordered last week to produce Zerk in civil court and to show cause why he had been held without court martial.

He was charged with desertion after his arrest in Los Angeles by United States immigration authorities. According to statements made during his court appearance Monday, he was handed over to Canadian authorities Sept. 19.

Temperance Group Requests Commission

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP). — The Ontario Temperance Federation today called for a non-partisan Government alcoholic beverage commission to administer all phases of the industry and for local municipal autonomy in the regulation of liquor and beer outlets.

In a nine-point pre-election manifesto, the board of directors asked temperance supporters to "scrutinize the character and attitudes of all candidates" in the Nov. 22 Ontario election.

The manifesto spoke of an "alarming increase in the size and complexity of problems resulting from alcoholic beverage consumption."

It said, "Education in its broadest sense is the principal answer to the alcoholic beverage problem."

Among the nine points were these recommendations: No major change in alcoholic beverage policy should be made without the approval of the electorate through a plebiscite; political parties should be required by law to make public the source of campaign funds; the Ontario Government should organize a program of public alcohol education directed to the home, school, sport and industry.

4 Cities Adopt Gov't Housing

At least four Ontario cities have adopted the new plan of government assisted housing.

Construction of 40 has been begun in St. Thomas, 500 have been allocated to Hamilton, 70 to Fort William, and it is understood that 325 in Windsor have been distributed among seven contractors.

Peterborough city council showed some interest in this new housing policy, here and there since Premier Frost's announcement in London, but nothing has developed beyond enquiry and suggestion.

The bulk of the money is provided by the federal government, and the rest by the provincial government and the interested municipalities.

Conversation here had got around to considering prospective areas, one of them the Dickson or Roberts farms in the city across Little Lake.

However the housing proposal is likely to be left as unfinished for 1952.

Miss Degnan will return to South America in March, where she is supported by the Central Baptist Church of London, Ontario. She is a graduate of the London Bible Institute as are also Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bigelow who are in charge of the Baptist mission here.

Historic Island In Georgian Bay Has House Boom

CHRISCTIAN ISLAND, Ont.—(CP)—This historic island in Georgian Bay is experiencing a housing boom.

It's a slow-moving boom because the 370 Chippewa Indians who live here aren't anxious to build a city overnight. They realize the need for new houses—some of them were built a century ago—and are building them themselves.

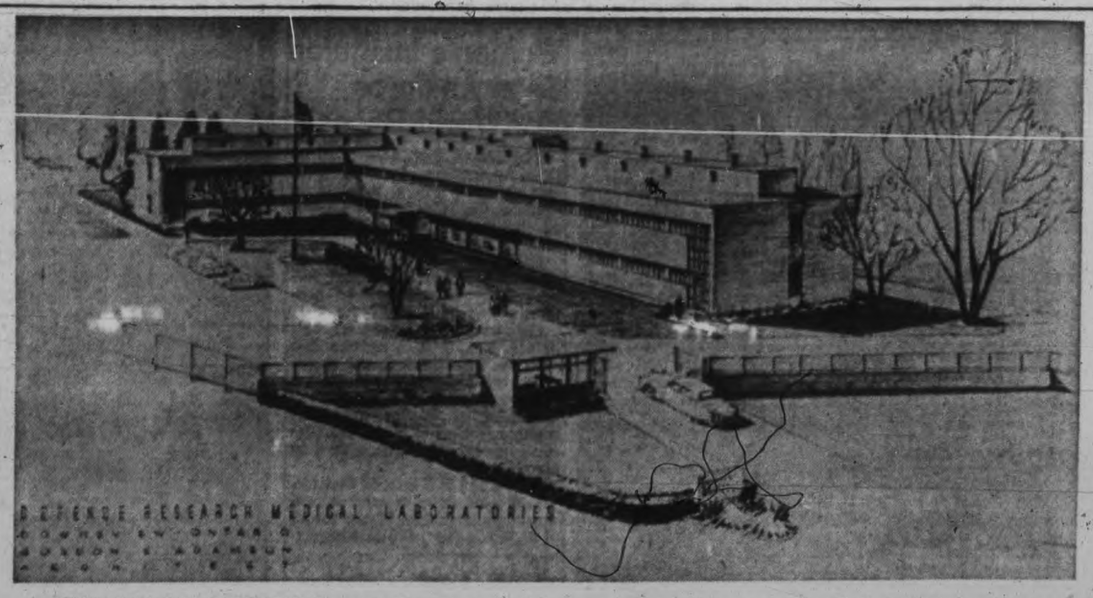
Henry Gauthier, agent on the island for the Department of Indian Affairs, persuaded the band to reopen a sawmill at the edge of the village in 1949, and work has gone ahead steadily.

The tribe has a credit of more than $200,000 in Ottawa from the sale of Beausoleil Island to the government. One thousand dollars of this is put toward the cost of each house built, and the rest is paid off in instalments.

$2,400 Each

Cost of the buildings is about $2,400 each. They would sell for $6,000 in the city. The Indians build the houses themselves and are paid for their work. Some veterans' families also applied Veteran Land Act credits to their new homes.

Chief Simpson King, elected in June, and his four councillors select the families in greatest need to occupy the new houses as they are completed.



Slowly the island village is becoming urbanized. Agent Gauthier isn't trying to hurry the process because he believes in allowing the Indians to do things in their own way.

Originally known as St. Joseph's Island, it was named Christian Island in 1649 when Jesuit missionaries sought its sanctuary along with the Huron followers who had survived the Iroquois massacres.

A fort was built on the east shore of the island, but in 1650 the Jesuits abandoned the island and with their Huron converts returned to the valley of the St. Lawrence.

A RESEARCH LABORATORY for the Department of Defence that will cost over $1,000,000 will be built just outside Toronto for scientists to work out methods of helping soldiers fighting in all sorts of climates and under every condition. This architect's sketch shows the modern lines of the two-storey building. It is expected to be completed in about 18 months.

Research Lab To Help Military Men

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—The Minister of National Defence today announced plans for the construction of a new research building in the Toronto area. The building, which will be located at Donsview, Ontario, will house the Defence Research Medical Laboratories and is expected to cost over one million dollars.

The plans have been prepared by Mr. Gordon S. Adamson, architect, of Toronto, and construction of the two-storey building is scheduled to start in January, 1952. It is estimated that it will take about 18 months to complete.

Laboratory facilities will be provided for research in a variety of fields, including clothing, food, physiology, applied experimental psychology, and biophysics. Special facilities including three climatic chambers, a textile conditioning room and food testing rooms set to operate at high and low temperatures will be incorporated.

Military Man

The function of the Defence Research Medical Laboratories can be stated in general terms as the study of man and his needs when in a military environment. Among the problems which have been or may be undertaken, are the prevention of motion sickness, the effects of cold and high altitudes, studies on the causes and prevention of fatigue, improvement of rations, and of clothing and textiles, of selection and training methods, investigation on work methods and tools used in important tasks and the study of the effects of certain types of noises on hearing and intelligibility. Due to the rapidly expanding frontiers of aviation, emphasis has been given to aviation problems, and a large proportion of the problems studies are related to aviation medicine.

There is a close working relationship with the RCAF Institute of Aviation Medicine, and the sharing of facilities, both in the new building and on the compound of RCAF Station Toronto is a feature of this arrangement. With its new facilities the Defence Research Medical Laboratories will be one of the most modern establishments of its kind in the world.

Farm Work Delayed Television Blamed

BLENHEIM, Ont., Nov. 6 (CP)—Television is being blamed in delaying fall work on farms along the north shore of Lake Erie between St. Thomas and Windsor.

All along Highways 3 and 98, a forest of TV antennae juts up among the chimneys and rooftop lightning rods.

So as baseball's World Series rolled around, then the Royal couple visited nearby Windsor, not much fall plowing was done. Tractors were left in the fields, and families watched their TV sets.

Even schools installed sets. Some were put in for the Royal visit. Others, like Tilbury High, have permanent sets.

Farm folk along Lake Erie enjoy the best reception in Canada. They get three channels from Detroit, three from Cleveland, one from Erie, and another from Buffalo.

Ontario Election Campaign Livens Up With Charges

By The Canadian Press

A challenge to Premier Frost to debate publicly his Ontario Government record and the CCF platform for the Nov. 22 Provincial election has been issued by CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe. Mr. Jolliffe told a campaign meeting in Peterborough riding Monday night he was ready to meet the Premier "on any platform in any constituency at any time between now and Nov. 22" in a no-holds-barred debate.

Mr. Frost, for his part, said at Windsor that neither the CCF nor Liberal parties has a chance of forming a strong government. He declared that "one party has not enough candidates to form a government and the other has so many token candidates they can't possibly win."

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Walter Thomson kept the political pot boiling briskly with comment at a Sault Ste. Marie meeting that a statement on gasoline tax reported made by Premier Frost in a campaign speech was a "shame."

Mr. Thomson said the Premier was reported to have declared publicly at Bracebridge Saturday that Ontario "should take the American tourists for every cent they have."

Just A Shame

"It is a shame that this should happen," said Mr. Thomson. "Why should the leader of this old and honored party make this statement?" The Ontario government, "with one department seeking to attract tourists across our borders, is scaring away tourists with the high gasoline tax."

Mr. Frost criticized Liberal governments as "the gang that chased 500 war veterans out of jobs in the parliament buildings in Toronto and gave them to ward heelers and others."

He said Mr. Joliffe had promised to pay 10 per cent of municipal budgets as a local tax-relief measure but "Mr. Joliffe apparently doesn't know we're paying much more than 10 per cent in municipal grants."

In another speech at Petrolia, the Premier said opposition members on the Legislature's Crime Committee were unable to find anything wrong with law enforcement in their six months' investigation.

No Reason For Complaint

He said Mr. Joliffe had no reason to complain when dissolution of the Legislature ended the committee. The opposition hadn't made one practical suggestion during its life.

Mr. Thomson said that if a Liberal government is returned to power three cents will be dropped from the gasoline tax.

"We can give you back $20,000,000 a year from gasoline tax surpluses and still have $2,100,000 surplus to do the job with." Northern Ontario would be given a "new deal." He promised the north a university of its own with facilities spread all over northern Ontario.

At Uxbridge, Health Minister Phillips called upon Ontario industries to set aside 10 per cent of their jobs for rehabilitation of handicapped persons. He criticized Mr. Thomson's proposed hospital plan and outlined his department's rehabilitation program for tuberculosis patients.

Anti-Labor Laws

J. B. Salsberg, Labor-Progressive party candidate in Tonroto-St. Andrew, declared in a radio address that anti-labor legislation had been prepared and will be introduced immediately if the Progressive Conservative party is returned to power. He said that was one reason why Mr. Frost "brought on this snap election."

Another Toronto meeting was told by Louis Herman, Progressive Conservative candidate in St. Andrew, that Communists have "threatened and smeared" him in the campaign.

He said he was warned that his name would be besmirched, received anonymous telephone calls, lost clients and was charged with having disgraced the memory of his brother who died fighting in Korea.

Referring to the Communist "underhand" methods, he said "we must give them such a licking that they will never dare raise their heads again in Ontario."

Work Week Stays

OTTAWA, Nov 6 (CP) — The government has told labor that it will not try to put into effect a minimum wage and a 40-hour work week on a national basis, the Commons was informed Monday. A reply tabled by the labor department for Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said Prime Minister St. Laurent had written the Canadian Congress of Labor that the two questions are under provincial jurisdiction. Labor Minister Gregg also had given the same reply to George Burt of Windsor, national director of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

Bake For Sale At St. Luke's Hall

Vapors like those from grandmother's kitchen have been emanating recently from the new kitchen of St. Luke's parish hall. The pudding recipe is one used for many years by the King's Daughters who made their organization quite famous on it. The committee was headed by Mrs. G. R. Langley, Mrs. James Miller and Miss Muriel Curtis. An old English recipe for mincemeat was again provided by Mrs. W. J. Gilling because of popular request by last year's buyers. Tea will be served on Wednesday by the Afternoon Branch WA with Mrs. Fraser Watson in charge.

Urges Action In Gov't Fields

TORONTO — "We talk about what needs to be done, when what we need is a little action," Dr. Aileen Noonan, educationalist, declared Sunday when addressing the luncheon session of the annual conference, Ontario Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Canadian women have assumed their rightful places everywhere but in the policy-making bodies of the country, she said. "Are we letting the provincial field go by default? And what about the next Federal election?"

Women were urged to overcome the apathy and hesitancy that keeps them from attacking the "core" of public life—the government—and were urged to support the recently organized Inter-Club Council for Women in Public Affairs.

Shining toys on the floor were all carefully chosen to instruct and train the child, while a colored asphalt playground had a sandpit, pool and climbing frame for the more adventurous types.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

Father's Night meeting of Central Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the Public Library. A record crowd attended with a large percentage of fathers, making use of a larger auditorium than the school classroom.

A committee of fathers under the convenership of Mr. W. Langan, arranged the program and Mr. Langan also acted as chairman for the evening.

Bobby Ritchie of King Edward School sang two solos, "Kerry Dances" and "Keep on Smiling." He was accompanied by his mother.

Mr. D. Crawford gave a short preview of a film "Family Circles" which was then presented to the audience with Mr. L. Bird operating the projector. This film illustrated the changes in family circles due to modern outside influences and provided much material for the discussion which followed under Mr. Langan's direction.

More music was then provided by a barber shop quartette, calling themselves "The Four Hoarsemen." They were Larry McGuire, Gerry Porter, Victor Farrant and Bob Baldwin. They sang three numbers, "After Dark," "Mr. Moon" and a medley arrangement of "Daisy" and "Little Annie Rooney," which were highly applauded.

Mrs. L. Horning, president, welcomed the guests and presided for business. Attendance prizes were won by the kindergarten and Mr. V. Cunningham's room.

Refreshments were served by a group of fathers with Mr. A. Barber in charge.

What's Right?

You are asked to do a definite job for an organization.

WRONG: Say something vague like: "Well, I'll do it if I possibly can."

RIGHT: Realize that the person in charge must have a definite answer—so make it "Yes I can" or "I'm sorry but I can't."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Your Budget Will Benefit If You Use Salmon Dishes

On rare occasions when I mention some widely advertised product in this column it has been interpreted as a paid plug.

With haste I insert here that because I am praising the fine flavor and low cost of salmon this does not mean that I am reimbursed by the salmon canners. I am not.

With that serious business over we can go on with the eating.

Right now with market prices as high as they are salmon is a recommended protein which compares favorably to most other proteins (with the exception of cheese) in lack of waste and excellence of flavor.

Every household file should contain a basic recipe for salmon loaf. The recipe I have chosen is the one I learned to make when I was in cooking school.

The Salmon Casserole has a mixture of pronounced flavors and is a one-dish hot meal. It serves from six to eight people.

Cooking-School Salmon Loaf

One 1-lb. can pink or red salmon flaked, 2 cups well-packed soft breadcrumbs, ½ cup milk, 1 well-beaten egg, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine (if salmon is used add 1 teaspoon paprika). Drain the salmon reserving the liquor. Remove bones and flake the fish. Combine with remaining ingredients, press into buttered loaf tin and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until firm at centre. Serve with White Sauce (see below).

White Sauce

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and stir into it 2 tablespoons flour, then 1 cup hot milk and ½ teaspoon salt, until thick. Additions to this when it is to be used on fish are chopped hard-cooked egg, or beaten raw egg or egg yolks or finely chopped parsley or red or green pepper or pimientoes. When it is to be used on a salmon loaf use the reserved salmon liquor in place of some of the milk in the sauce.

Salmon Casserole

Two 1-lb. cans salmon (or 4 cups) or use flaked cooked fresh salmon, 2 20-oz. tins green string beans (5 cups cooked fresh green beans), ¼ cup green pickle relish, 6 tablesspoons margarine, 6 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup liquid from canned or cooked green beans, 2 cups milk, 1 cup soft breadcrumbs. Flake the salmon and add it plus the liquid, to the string beans and relish in alternate layers in greased casserole. In top of double boiler melt the margarine, and stir the flour, salt and pepper into it until smooth. Pour over the salmon mixture and top with breadcrumbs to which you have added a little melted butter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr, about 30 or 35 minutes.

An appropriate accompaniment to the above supper dish is a tomato jelly salad served on generous bed of cupped lettuce leaves and garnished with celery hearts and carrot strips.

Special Services Held At Lakefield Church

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Special services were held morning and evening in Lakefield United Church on Sunday.

"Men and Missions Sunday" was observed at the morning worship service, when the Rev. H. G. Douglas, of Knox United Church, Peterborough, was in charge of the service. An address on "What the Christian Layman Can Do" was given by Thomas Taylor, also of Knox United Church. The choir sang an unthem, "Praise the Lord."

The Rev. Egerton Young, representing the Upper Canada Bible Society, was guest speaker for the evening service, and spoke of the great work of bringing God's word to all peoples.

"In spite of political developments, thousands of Bibles are now being distributed on both sides of the 'Iron Curtain' and the 'Bamboo Curtain'," said Mr. Young. "The Bible is the only book that has the capacity to meet all human needs. It provides comfort, courage, companionship and a guidance for life. It speaks with authority of truth. The distribution of the Bible is part of our missionary work."

Following the service a fellowship hour was enjoyed in the Sunday school rooms. Mr. Young showed a beautifully colored sound film, "The Frontiersmen," which dealt with the work done by the Bible Society in Canada. At this meeting there were guests present from all the Protestant churches of the village.

A business meeting was held at the conclusion of the film. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. T. W. Chaplin, read the minutes of the previous meeting and the financial report showed a total of $104.56 from last year's canvass.

The election of officers resulted as follows: past president, Mr. George Spencé; president, Mrs. T. W. Chaplin; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harry T. Hill.

DOROTHY DIX

Does Security or Love Make For Happier Marriage?

DEAR MISS DIX: For two years I have been going with a boy who is a hard worker, very considerate and very good to me. He has asked me to marry him but I hesitate because I want security.

Dorothy Dix

This summer I met a man who is my idea of the right one for me. He has security and is established in a career. I don't love him, but feel in time I could. He has also asked me to marry him; he is a lot older than my other boy friend. What should I do?

This summer I met a man who is my idea of the right one for me. He has security and is established in a career. I don't love him, but feel in time I could. He has also asked me to marry him; he is a lot older than my other boy friend. What should I do?

MARIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The great trouble with love is that it does not come or go at bidding. You cannot say, "This man is very nice, and in time I will love him." Things just don't work out that way, as a rule. It is possible that you might marry a man for his money, and through kindness and devotion he could ultimately win your heart. The situation, however, presents too many "ifs". Wooing should be done before marriage, not after.

You don't even say you do love the boy you went with for so long. Your feeling for him may be nothing but a complacent acceptance of his many kindnesses. If you really loved him, you would not even consider marriage to another.

You'd Better Wait

I think you're a long way from loving either man. Better hold off all momentous decision until the right one comes along—the one you'll love so much you can't even think of anyone else.

If this knight in shining armor isn't able to offer mink and limousines right away, remember those things can come through effort. You'll get far more satisfaction from luxuries you have earned with the man you love than from a secure existence with an unloved mate.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a young lady of fine character, jovial and full of life. She also is the owner of a successful business. I am of a quiet, studious and serious nature. Jokingly she asks me when I intend to marry—yet when I get serious she just laughs it off.

When I keep away from her she calls me up and is so sweet I can't help forgiving her. What do you think of her—and why does she act that way?

MAC.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your lady fair just hasn't made up her mind yet whether to be a career girl or the domestic type. You could be very firm and demand that she make up her mind forthwith — which will probably scare her off altogether; or you can exercise a little more patience. She very apparently is afraid of losing you, hence the phone calls when you ignore her. She is also afraid of losing the independence for which she has probably worked very hard. Try to pin her down to a serious discussion of your future together; if she continue to laugh the matter off, and you really care for her, wait a while.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: About six weeks ago I had a quarrel with my girl friend; we had gone steady for seven months. She is 17 and I am a year older. She said she didn't want to see me any more. At first I didn't care too much and began to go with other girls, but I soon found out she was the one and only for me. I have called her several times and apologized for everything I did but she still insists she doesn't want to go with me. I am certain she still loves me, and I love her.

C.R.L.

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer: Since your girl friend has given every evidence of not caring for you any more, what makes you think she still loves you? You are both too young to go steady anyway, and perhaps she realizes that. Also, the cause of the quarrel may have given her cause to doubt your compatibility. Better accept her decision.

Old Theatre El Capitan Now TV Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6 (AP)—Those inclined to wax sentimental about theatres could have a field day with the El Capitan in Hollywood. In its 25 years, it has just about run the gamut of show business.

I visited the old house this week. It evoked many memories of the past. But you'd hardly know the theatre now; it's full of booms and cameras and aprons and control booths. Having completed the cycle of entertainment, it now is a television studio for such comics as Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante, Danny Thomas and Martin and Lewis.

Jerry Lewis was in diapers when the El Capitan opened Jan. 24, 1927, with Bert Churchill playing his famous "Alias the Deacon." It was in the boom era of Los Angeles and the theatre, then named the Hollywood Playhouse, was promoted by a local financier at a cost of $600,000. The era passed and sho did the promoter, who was later imprisoned for embezzlement.

But the Playhouse kept operating a few steps from Hollywood and Vine. It had a steady stream of secondary attractions with such players as Frank Craven, Edmund Breese, E. E. Clive and Tom Moore.

Managed Comeback

Among the plays in the first few years: "If I Was Rich," "The Home Towners," "Meet the Wife," "Dear Me," "Salt Water," "It pays to Advertise," "M'Lord the Duke."

During the depression, the Playhouse was subjected to long periods of darkness. It looked as though the stage was dying, but somehow it managed to come back, as it always does.

In 1941, Sid Grauman, C. Toberman and others bought the Playhouse for $100,000. They named it the El Capitan, after another Hollywood legit house which had been made into a movie theatre.

The next year brought the theatre's greatest success.

Ken Murray opened a vaudeville review called "Blackouts of 1942," a wartime show full of corn and Marie Wilson. The show ran seven years. During that time the theatre's owners declared dividends of $420,000. "Blackouts" probably could be running still, except that Murray wanted to hit New York with it. "Blackouts" died on Broadway and Murray stayed on to be a TV star.

After the "Blackouts" tenancy, the El Cap had a few flops. TV networks became interested in the place. And so the El Cap was sold for $360,000 to the former Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles, which now rents it to NBC.

No one knows the bitter pain

There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not think of you.

God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.

People Getting Too Civilized, Have More Aches

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Some of your aches and pains may be due to getting civilized.

The civilizing may have shrunk your adrenal glands, the factories of potent hormones to fight off streets and fatigue, Dr. Curt P. Richter of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, said today.

The shrinkage may explain a medical mystery—why the wonder hormones cortisone and Acht work so strikingly against many human diseases, including arthritis, fevers, inflammations, some eye troubles, and other conditions. Cortisone comes from the adrenal gland. Acth stimulates the adrenal glands to put out cortisone and other hormones.

The injection of extra hormones may make up for lowered efficiency of the adrenal glands, Dr. Richter told the National Academy of Sciences.

He told of Norway rats which have been domesticated, calmed down to live more peacably, with more of the comforts of civilization.

Note Difference

There are differences in anatomy, behaviour, and psychology betwen these rats and Norway rats still living under wild conditions.

Their adrenal glands have shrunk. They are smaller, less active and efficient in producing hormones, and less able to "help the animal protect itself from the effects of stress and fatigue."

"Man may have undergone parallel changes during his transition from a wild to a controlled, protected environment. As he has become more civilized, his adrenal glands may have become less efficient."

This, Dr. Richter said, could account for the prevalence of diseases that get better so dramatically after injection of cortisone or Acth.

Otonabee Man Found Not Guilty Of Damage

A charge of damaging the door and windows of SS 2 Lang School on Hallowe'en night against Earl Cook, 26, of Otonabee township, was dismissed in police court today.

Assistant Crown Attorney Walter Howell said the crown would offer no evidence on the charge.

Cook pleaded not guilty to the charge on November 2 and was remanded on $200 bail. W. C. Grant appeared for Cook when the charge was dismissed today.

Break Learned Within Hour

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—Ontario officials said today their investigation of Sunday's Don jail break revealed that the break was discovered within an hour and that other prisoners acted as a screen for the three who escaped.

Investigating inspector Ralph Ayres of the Department of Reform Institutions has submitted a report to Chief Inspector Thomas Gourlay.

"We are satisfied that the jailbreak occurred between 7 pm and 8 pm," said Inspector Ayres, "and that the three jailbreakers had been gone only a few minutes when their escape was discovered."

Police said this leads them to believe that Leonard Jackson, Edwin Boyd and William Jackson had a car and driver parked outside the jail and were driven directly to a hideout.

Two hundred Toronto and suburban police have searched since 9 pm Sunday but have found no definite trace of the missing men.

A police sergeant said yesterday he thinks he spotted William Jackson near city hall but lost him in heavy noon-hour traffic.

Noted Air Chorus Returns To Networks For Winter

LONDON, Ont. (CP).—One of the most successful husband-and-wife teams in radio anywhere are Don and Lillian Wright of London, whose 14-voice mixed chorus has just started another winter season on the CBC network.

While Don Wright himself conducts the seven men and seven women of the chorus, his wife works on the control room to bring out the best in tone and volume.

Average age of this chorus, well-known in Canadian radio is about 25 years. The male section includes an oil company salesman, a surgeon, a shoe store manager and an advertising agency executive.

On the female side there are four housewives, an assistant librarian, a receptionist and an office worker. All 14 of the chorus are Londoners. Max Magee is the organist and Frank Monaghan the pianist.

Breaks Tradition

Wright broke musician tradition by using an equal number of male and female voices in his group. The usual choir of this kind is either male or female, seldom mixed. But Wright's belief is that mixed choral groups will be in demand for a long time providing they stay clear of orchestrations.

He says the most important aspect of the work is the interpretation of a song; a chorus should concentrate on natural use of the vocal chords instead of trying to imitate an orchestra. Some 75 numbers have been added for the new season, making a repertoire of 350 songs for the chorus.

Wright himself prepared about 40 new arrangements during the summer. He has previously written two books on the technique of treating the changing voice, now widely used in Canadian schools, and has also written a book designed to make it easier for youngsters to read music.

Winter Farm Forum

Another winter feature, the National Farm Radio Forum, started its 12th season on CBC networks on October 29 with a series of discussions on farm co-operatives. Keith Morrow, a native of Charlottetown, who knows agriculture both in theory and practice, has been appointed supervisor of farm broadcasts for the CBC in succession to A. R. Kemp, who has resigned from the corporation.

Morrow is a graduate of the Ontario Agricutural College at Guelph who worked as a dairy assistant and agriculturist at the Charlottetown Experimental Station. After service in the Canadian Navy in the Second World War he returned to the CBC as an assistant maritime farm broadcast commentator in 1945, and last year was appointed assistant to Kemp at Toronto.

Council Studies Factory Shutdown

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 6 (CP).—An orchid grower's legal restraint which caused a foundry to shut down was discussed in City Council Monday night.

W. W. Walker, a florist, obtained an injunction against McKinnon Industries because, he said, fumes from the foundry were affecting his blooms. Eight hundred production workers were laid off after the foundry closed.

Richard Courtney, international representative of the United Auto Workers (CCL), told Council that McKinnon officials assured him work would resume if Mr. Walker would agree in writing to an extension of the injunction to Dec. 1 or any other date.

Mr. Walker, an alderman, assured City Council his letter of consent for the foundry to operate until Dec. 1 will be forwarded to the company. His previous offer had been oral.

Eisenhower Says Army Build-up Not Too Rosy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (CP).—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said today the military build-up in Europe has not been a "rosy picture" of encouraging developments but the objectives can be achieved.

Gen. Eisenhower made this statement to reporters just before leaving Washington to return to his European command after conferences with President Truman and the US Defence Department.

He said Western Europe is vitally important to the security of the United States and it was his job in co-operation with the other nations to make Western Europe secure.

Gen. Eisenhower was questioned by reporters anxious to draw from him some indication that he would take part in the presidential elections next year.

The key statement in Eisenhower's exchange with reporters on politics appeared to be this one:

"If the time ever comes I feel that my duty compels me to say a word of any kind I will do so positively and definitely."

Big Investment

He said his job represents an American investment of billions of dollars and is vitally necessary if a drastic change in the American way of life is to be avoided.

Then he asked:

"Is there any person here who would expect me to express a partisan preference while I am on this job?"

Meanwhile, Truman said in an address that it was problems of European economic stability, growing out of the rearming effort, that brought Gen. Eisenhower to Washington.

"That is the reason — all the speculation to the contrary—that General Eisenhower came to see me," Truman told a meeting of the National Society of Cartoonists.

He did not go into details of the problems talked over with Eisenhower Monday.

Implicit in his remarks, however, was the question whether US allies in Europe can go through with the armament programs they have tackled without upsetting their economies.

Clergy, CBC Discuss Radio

Representatives from the Canadian Broadcasting corporation and Protestant clergy met for a radio institute in the CHEX offices, Peterborough, Monday.

Officials present included Dr. Kenneth Beaton, secretary for the radio committee of the United Church, W. J. Dunlop, director of religious broadcasting for the CBC and Reid Forsey, CBC producer.

The institute was attended by Protestant clergy from Peterborough and surrounding area.

What the CBC does in religious radio was explained. Radio as a medium for the church in this area — what has been done and what could be done — was also discussed.

Voice production in radio was another topic brought up at the institute for the benefit of clergy who use the radio in their work.

British Intelligence To Aid New Zealand

WELLINGTON, NZ, Nov. 6 (Reuters). — The resources of Britain's MI-5 (military intelligence) have been placed at the disposal of New Zealand to strengthen the country's security services, Prime Minister Sidney Holland said tonight.

Holland was commenting on a special report made to him by Sir Percy Sillitoe, chief of MI-5, who is on an advisory visit to New Zealand.

The prime minister said all Sir Percy's recommendations will be implemented, including one for increasing the existing special branch police force and integrating it with the armed services security activities.

New Zealand would also be linked with other Commonwealth countries for the exchange of information and training methods.

REV. DR. BASIL JONES welcomes Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to his Laurentian village church.

Lumberjacks, Students Take Over Royal Visitors

FREDERICTON, Nov. 6 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh mingled freely with New Brunswick students, lumberjacks, miners and farmers today. Their visit to this New Brunswick capital was one of the most homey and informal of their Canadian tour.

In clear, crisp weather they arrived in Fredericton to receive their first official Maritime greeting. Students at the University of New Brunswick, where the couple stopped first, found Royalty as friendly as themselves.

Red and black-clad students swarmed around the car and shouted their college cheer. The Royal couple smiled and waved happily as they walked through police lines and mingled with the students. Then they entered the library where they asked Dr. A. W. Trueman, president of the university, a number of questions about the various documents and manuscripts on display.

Dr. Trueman showed the Princess an autographed book from Queen Victoria, but the Duke was most interested in a letter which Lord Nelson had written Lady Hamilton. Philip studied the letter for a long time.

Stumps President

The Royal couple were also interested in Kipling's famous Atlas In Verse. The Princess stumped Dr. Trueman on one thing. "Have you got Winston Churchill's complete set of war memoirs?" she inquired.

Dr. Trueman looked furtively around, shrugged his shoulders and smiled. "We've got them all but I don't know where they are."

The Princess next turned her attention to the wrought-iron design around the balustrade of the library and was told that it embodied the famous New Brunswick Fiddleheads—an edible fern which New Brunswick residents eat in the manner of asparagus.

As they were leaving the Prince added to the informality when he spotted 19-year-old Reed Watson, of Montreal, who had a forestry crest on his jacket. Quipped the Duke: "I suppose you chop down trees."

Watson, after prompting, then explained to the Duke all about the forestry management course for which the university is famous.

Has Answer

The Duke next turned his attention to Jeanette Wilkins and asked if she went to the university. "No, I work in a bank," she said.

"Then what are you doing here?"

She replied she came to see him. He gave a broad smile, turned away, then turned suddenly back again to catch her in the act of pretending to swoon. They both laughed.

It was after this that they both walked freely among students and townsmen gathered on the campus and it was difficult for reporters to keep up to them because the crowd closed in behind them.

Elizabeth and Philip got separated and seemed to be enjoying themselves. They wound up the visit when Dr. Trueman suggested an unscheduled cup of tea.

After tea, they drove to the cathedral where they signed a typically New Brunswick family-size Bible presented to the church by King Edward VII when he was Prince of Wales. They affixed their signatures right under his.

On the spacious lawns of the Legislature there were more than 20,000 children and adults gathered to sing songs and cheer. It was here the official greeting was given.

Greater Understanding

The Princess replied that each step across Canada had brought new vistas and a greater understanding of Canada to herself and her husband. She was looking forward to seeing the Maritimes and she took the occasion to thank the organizers of the tour for the various arrangements which had gone so smoothly.

Before leaving Fredericton she was to pose with the 81 members of the staff of the Royal train for an informal souvenir picture at the station.

Northern Priest Veteran Of Trail Now Pilots Plane

SUDBURY — (CP) — After 16 years of plodding through Northern Ontario's vast hinterland on snowshoes in winter, braving swift waters by canoe in summer or hitching rides on trains, the Rev. Gustave Lampron, parish priest at Foleyet, has taken to the air.

From his base at Foleyet, about 180 miles northwest of Sudbury, Father Lampron ranged out nearly 300 miles to visit his far-flung missions, administering to some 3,000 lumbermen, railway employees and trappers.

He obtained his private pilot's licence at Nickel Belt Airways here last winter. Recently he stopped off at Sudbury displaying a new four-seater plane equipped with both pontoons and skis for year-round travel.

The plane was a gift from sportsmen friends in Buffalo, NY. They started a campaign and in four months collected $12,000. Some of the funds were raised through the sales of a booklet, "From Snowshoes To Wings," outlining Father Lampron's stay in the north.

The trim red and silver plane will take him to his 32 missions—the farthest one at Minnipuka, 300 miles northwest of Foleyet on the CNR trans-continental line.

Tax Concession

The "Flying Priest" said he was permitted to bring the plane into Canada free of duty, through the efforts of L. J. Gauthier, Liberal member of parliament for Sudbury, and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

The plane, with 145 horsepower, is equipped with radio permitting him to follow a radio beam in poor weather.

The tall, red-haired native of Drummondville, Que., outlined plans he has made for a 24 by 40-foot winter hangar at Cherry Lake, near Foleyet.

He did the wiring, carpentry, plumbing and finishing on his church, he said, so there shouldn't be too much trouble in erecting a hangar.

He decided to take flying lessons last winter and qualified for a pilot's licence after four months of instructions.

Reds To Soon Open Biggest Hong Kong Bank Building

By WILLIAM PARROTT

HONG KONG—(Reuters)—This British colony's newest, tallest and costliest building will shortly be opened by its Chinese Communist owners.

It will be occupied largely by agencies of the Red Chinese government.

Workmen are putting the final touches to the building which has been erected for the Bank of China at a cost of approximately 20,000,000 Hong Kong dollars (about $3,500,000). It will be used as the Hong Kong branch of the bank which is a Peiping government organization.

The bank has 17 storeys. Thousands of tons of United States steel, obtained before export embargoes were imposed, have been used for structural work.

The architects, builders and most of the sub-contractors are United Kingdom or Hong Kong companies. Despite existing shortages and delivery difficulties the only hindrance to completion is a delay in the supply of ornamental bronze work from Britain.

Subject Of Curiosity

For various reasons, partly political, the new bank has been a subject of interest and curiosity ever since plans for its construction were announced by the Nationalists when they governed mainland China three years ago.

This interest has increased with the approach of the official opening day, believed to have been fixed for the early part of November. No announcement has been made by the Communist management but it is understood that, for the same political reasons, the opening will take place with a minimum of ceremony.

Might Be Embarrassing

Some speculation has been aroused as to what the official reply would be if the governor or some other high colony official were invited to attend the opening as is usual with the completion of important projects here.

Although Britain continues to recognize Peiping, some embarrassment might be caused if Hong Kong's leading representative were called upon to toast the Chinese Communist leader, Mao Tse-tung.

To attend such a ceremony and to acknowledge such a toast would be perfectly correct diplomatically, but the publicity it would receive might produce stormy repercussions.

It is not, however, thought likely here that the Hong Kong authorities — or the Communists, for that matter—will permit such a situation to arise.

Switch Allegiance

Although started by the Nationalists, the new building changed to Communist ownership when the staff of the Hong Kong branch of the Bank of China switched allegiance to Peiping about the same time that Britain recognized the new regime.

It is said that when the building was being planned, those responsible, for reasons of Chinese face, determined that it should be higher than that of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the largest British financial institution in the Far East.

Whether the story is true or not, the Communists made no alteration in the plans and the building went up to its full height and thus overlooks its financial rival.

Nor did the Communists apparently amend plans for the decoration, finishing and equipping of the new structure, which is on more lavish lines than that of any other large, modern building in Hong Kong.

Valuable Energy Wasted In Smoke

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)— Dr. J. Bronowski, fuel research expert, says that Britain's greatest store of energy is the energy she wastes.

In a speech before a society devoted to reducing smoke, Dr. Bronowski said he doubts whether Britain can hold her place as a world leader if she continues to blow 17 hundredweight of energy in every ton up the chimney.

One of the national characteristics, Dr. Bronowski said, was an inclination to treat any elderly piece of equipment with the reverence usually reserved for a pensioned gun-dog whom it would be disgraceful to grudge feed and house room.

"I hope we shall be able ta afford the dog, but I will not hear a word in favor of antediluvian machines; and least of all do they seem to me lovable because they smoke as fiercely as their owners."

Cruelty To Horses In North Brings Appeal To Dep't

Cruelty to horses working in the bush of Northern Ontario is described by Roberta Dougherty, of Sault Ste. Marie. Miss Dougherty, a member of the Algoma Humane Society, is backing an appeal to the Department of Lands and Forests to provide a plane for humane inspection purposes in Ontario's north country.

Let Miss Dougherty tell her own story of a 600-mile trip through the districts of Algoma, Sudbury and Nipissing:

"First I will describe a team of grey horses, aged ten, and weighing about 1,400—too old and too light for this life. They were trucked into the camp one wet day late in November without blankets. The operator had no barn, so they were tied out under the trees, with an old blanket over their backs, and anything in radius of their necks was their supper.

"In the morning, a 15-year-old boy, the teamster, threw them some hay, pulled off the half frozen covers, dropped an assortment of ill-fitting harness on them and drove them to work. They were started on heavy veneer logs, some weighing a thousand pounds, and in less than an hour they had broken through the thin layer of frost and churned the skid trails into twelve or 18 inches of mud. At dinner time they were driven to a creek for a drink, then a few oats and more hay was tossed on the wet ground. They ate their dinner with the snow falling on their backs. The afternoon was like the morning, and that night they were again treated to the de luxe accommodation of frozen blankets and tree boughs over their heads. That first day was the pattern for several weeks.

"By Christmas the owner had a barn; it was just big enough for them to stand in and water still dripped on their backs. They failed rapidly in strength and the willow switch was replaced with the whip, well reinforced with hay wire. When an inspector of the Humane Society found them, they were hitched to a 2,000 pound log, although they were hardly able to stand. They were some 200 pounds underweight, both with raw collar galls—one five inches across—their hips were cracked and bleeding, both were lame, one had fallen and was permanently crippled in the hind leg, one had a thrre-inch cut from a too tight chin strap and both had dozens of healed, half-healed and open wounds on their bodies. The operator said he could see little wrong with them. He paid $85 in court two weeks later.

A Typical Bush Horse

"Third horse was a young and energetic Belgian weighing about 1900 pounds, a good specimen of a bush horse. He too was trucked into camp in the winter without a cover, but this operator had a barn and feed. Like the greys he was put on heavy veneer, but being willing he escaped considerable abuse. The skid trails were rough and a snag tore his leg. This soon festered without attention and when the human inspector found him he was standing in the barn, the leg badly swollen and five holes all discharging. The operator refused to get a vet until he received a summons.

"A fourth horse was a chunky bay that had completed bush operations for the winter of 1949-50. His grateful owner turned him out to pasture, that is if marsh grass and roots could be classed as pasture. He spent several weeks of this delightful holiday always looking for food and plagued with hordes of mosquitoes, black flies, sand flies, bush flies and horse flies. In the summer the veneer camp reopened and he was rounded up again. Now skidding veneer in the summer is like taking the legs off a grand piano and dragging it over the floor. Tractors should be used but they cost $10 an hour to operate and a horse with a teamster about $1.25, so the horses do the work. Now his diet was augmented by the cuttings from the Department of Highways boulevards, chiefly weeds and dust. In the fall he was sold to another operator and after several weeks he began to fail even with good food and care. The inspector advised that he be destroyed and the mink breeder who bought his body told us that his kidneys had pockets of pus on them as big as a tea cup. Overwork, overheating, chilling, underfeeding and overfeeding had just caught up with him."

Toughen Up Missionaries

SALMON ARM, BC, (CP).—A "boot camp" for toughening missionaries for work in the jungles has been set up here by the New Tribes Mission.

Thirty-two members of the mission—24 Canadians and eight Americans—are preparing for work in Thailand jungles.

Under camp councillor Roy Larsen they are learning everything from carpentry to cooking. The 13 women in the party are learning to saw planks and pound a nail.

The group, non-denominational and representing 15 churches, takes its religious training from "Rusty" Walters, ex-furniture factory worker from Los Angeles.

The camp is on 117 acres of heavily forested land.

Founded by Paul Fleming, former missionary in Malaya, headquarters of the mission are in Chico, Calif.. Mr. Fleming and 23 members of the mission were killed in an airplane accident last year.

12-Month Season Growing Trend For Tourists AT US Resorts

By WAYNE OLIVER.

NEW YORK (AP).—The terms "winter resort" and "summer resort" soon may have little meaning for many famous vacation spots that once were strictly seasonal in operation.

There's a steady upswing in off-season business from vacationers taking advantage of lower rates and other inducements. Some United States resorts are becoming year-round vacation spots, and others are remaining open much longer than their former two or three-month seasons.

The American Hotel Association, happy about the trend, reports that it's a good deal all around.

Many a vacationer now enjoys a resort or hotel he ordinarily might not be able to afford by taking advaitage of off-season rates that are one-third or one-half regular rates.

Resort hotels that formerly had to make their income for the entire year during a short season now stay open longer—some all-year—and pick up welcome additional business.

Promoting Trend

Air lines, railroads and buses, co-operating in promoting the trend, are enjoying good business during periods when they formerly had few passengers on routes serving the resorts, and frequently lost money.

The Hotel Association says most vacations used to be taken in July or August. In many resorts the summer season began July 4 and ended Labor Day. The winter season in the south and in Arizona and California, ran from Jan. 15 to March 15.

October Vacations

But now, even in October, many of the New England, Great Lakes and other northern resorts have been continuing to operate practically at a mid-summer clip. And many will re-open at least a month before July 4.

In Southern California and Florida, where tourist business once was confined almost entirely to the winter, vacation business has been booming. The associations says that Miami Beach, for instance, had more visitors on July 4 this year than on Washington's birthday, the traditional peak of the winter season.

An unofficial survey of summer business this year gives a good indication of the trend. For the country as a whole, summer resorts had 10 per cent more business than in 1950. But in Florida, formerly regarded only as a winter resort, summer business was up 12½ to 15 per cent.

But what about the weather—wouldn't you roast by going to a winter resort in summer or freeze at a summer resort before or after the regular season?

Shows Figures.

The Association recently compiled the following list of average temperatures of resort areas for the month to six weeks immediately preceding and immediately following the regular season: New England, 65 degrees; the Great Lakes, 66; Pennsylvania, 59; the Gulf Coast, 72; Southern Arizona, 73 and Southern California, 80.

Cape Cod, for example, in early autumn has most of the vacation attractions it had in the summer. The climate at the Great Lakes resorts in late September and October often is at its very best, with the air clear, invigorating and pollen-free. Weather bureau records show Miami Beach's temperature averages only 10 degrees higher in summer than in winter.

And the off-season vacationer isn't merely an asset to the holiday resort. His business benefits the whole community.

Five Speakers Chosen To Go To Orono Finals

MILLBROOK, Nov. 6—(ENS)—At the public speaking semi-finals for Durham county held in Millbrook town hall Friday evening, five speakers were chosen to go on to the finals in Orono on November 9.

Those chosen were: Donald Sargent of Fairmount, whose subject was "Boys;" Sammy Cancilla of Port Hope, speaking on "The Common Housefly"; Eva Lawrence, SS number 8 Cavan, who spoke about "Tobacco Growing in Durham County"; Shirley McMillan, Dr. Powers' school, Port Hope, whose topic was "Laura Secord," and Dianne Scott, SS No. 11, Hope, who discussed "Citizenship in Our Schools."

Other speakers in the semi-finals and their subjects were: Joan Reid, SS No. 7, Clarke, "Alaska"; Milton Rainey, SS No. 22, Clarke, "Qu'Appelle"; Judy Hobbs, Millbrook, "My Experiences in Raising Chickens"; Donald Austin, SS No. 3, Hope, "The Wright Brothers"; Anne Best, Orono, "The Princess Charming Comes of Age"; and Marlene Laking, Newcastle, "John Muir."

W. H. Jordan, principal of Port Hope public schools, was chairman. During the evening Roberta Mumby and Marjorie Monk of Port Hope gave a vocal duet, and there were two choruses by Millbrook public school.

Inspector Carleton praised the high calibre of the speaking. He spent a few moments on each speech individually telling what he liked about it, and where he thought it could be improved. In explaining the system of marking he told that five judges from different parts of the county were chosen. Each was asked to grade the eleven speakers in the standing from one to eleven which they thought the speakers merited. These were added from all the score sheets, and the one with the smallest number was first and so on. In this way it was hoped to make judging as impersonal as possible, he said.

He thanked the people for coming out to hear the speeches in spite of unpleasant weather.

Mrs. Maxwell G. Cameron has returned to her home in Ottawa, accompanied by her sisters, the Misses Mabel and Augusta Clarry.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Napier, Toronto, were recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Turner.

Marmora United Marks 77th Anniversary

MARMORA, Nov. 6—(ENS)—The Rev. Noble Hatton, of Trinity United Church, Napanee, chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, was guest preacher at the 77th anniversary service of St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday.

Assorted chrysanthemums formed decorations for the occasion. At the morning service the choir sang "Give Thanks Unto the Lord." The duet part was taken by A. W. Drew and Mrs. R. Long. Miss Margaret Hillis, of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, guest soloist, sang "The Lord Is Exalted."

Subject of the sermon was "Dynamic Protestantism." At the evening service the special anthem was "Sheep and Lamb." Miss Hillis sang "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

Mr. Hatton delivered a striking discourse on "Ridiculous and Impossible," choosing as his text "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, who are the called according to His purpose."

Man, he said, is the prroduct of his yesterdays. He is apt to work on the wrong interpretations of his experiences. The preacher pointed out that all benefactors not accepting Jesus Christ have undergone ill treatment yet in the end all things worked together for their good.

The Rev. G. D. Young, pastor of the church, was present at both services, offered prayer and gave the announcements.

Alex Sinclair Speaks To Club

The B'nai B'rith club was complimented by guest-speaker, Alex Sinclair, recreation director, at its regular meeting this week for its work on the Turner park playground.

At the same time Mr. Sinclair pointed out that although the club has spent "considerable money" in a building and other equipment the "job isn't even half done."

The recreation director said that he would like to see the building repainted in brighter colors inside and out, the floor refinished, tables and benches fastened, and the grounds resurfaced.

Mr. Sinclair suggested that club members help with the leadership on the playground.

Better Understanding

"While it is true the city provides two supervisors during the summer months, I believe it would create a better understanding between your group and the people using the playground if you become better acquainted."

Mr. Sinclair explained that the budget does not permit the recreation commission to operate longer than two summer months. He suggested that through voluntary help the playground time could be extended from May 24 until late in September.

"With the leadership that you men could give these boys and the example of sportsmanship that you could give them, I believe that you can assist greatly in developing the character of those who need it so much."

Mr. Sinclair was introduced by Lou Snow and thanked by Harry Yudin.

Takes Both Sides End Cold War—Canada

PARIS, Nov. 6—(CP)—External Affairs minister L. B. Pearson said Monday "Canada will support the initiative to end the cold war but it takes both sides to succeed."

The Canadian minister, leader of the Dominion's delegation at the United Nations General Assembly opening here Tuesday, spoke at a press conference after having talked with Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State.

Pearson said Acheson had informed him of the line the US is taking. He said the western powers will make proposals at the Assembly session with the aim of easing east-west tension.

On the question of UN membership, Pearson said, Canada is coming around to the view that all sovereign states should be admitted. But Canada would not vote for admission of Communist China while that country is committing aggression.

Lakefield Legion Holds Remembrance Service

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 6—(ENS)—The Lakefield Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion attended a special Remembrance Day service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning.

Taking his text from Isaiah, 2-4; 'And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not life up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more,' the Rev. H. Kaye delivered the address.

"War will be banished when mankind turns to God with mind and heart and strength; when the whole human race is a united brotherhood," said Mr. Kaye.

"This will not be achieved through science, education or commerce, or through world organizations such as the League of Nations or the United Nations. Nor will the horror of war banish war. Our only hope lies in the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace," concluded Mr. Kaye.

A solo, "O Valiant Hearts," by Miss Jean Clark, and the anthem "God of Our Fathers" were the choir's contribution to the service. Mrs. Harold Trude was at the organ.

Brewery Men Set Deadline To Begin Strike

WATERLOO, Nov. 6—A strike deadline of midnight today has been set by the CIO International Brewery Workers Union at the Carling plant here and at the O'Keefe's and Brading breweries at Ottawa and Windsor.

The union said the breweries have been in dispute since April over the terms of a new agreement. Approimately 900 workers, including employees of Canadian Breweries transport division in the three cities, will be affected by a strike. The Toronto plants are not affected.

E. C Sims, international representative of the union, said the negotiations have been cluttered with nothing but delays since they began.

The union is asking for a 25-cent an hour wage increase to bring the base rate to $1.42 an hour. The men are now getting $1.17 base, plus a five-cent-an-hour cost-of-living bonus.

A conciliation board, which heard the dispute last August and handed down its report on Oct. 26, recommended 15 cents an hour across the board for brewery workers and 10 cents for drivers.

The same union has been on strike for a week and a half against brewries in Vancouver, Victoria and Westminster.

"Difficult Day?.. Take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Science Progresses

For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain-killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called 'DISPRIN' and is sold at druggists everywhere.

'DISPRIN' is available in Bottles of 26 tablets or Handy Pocket Folders of 8.

Police Seek Hunter Near Wilberforce After Boat Sinks

BANCROFT, Nov. 7. (Staff)—Provincial Police and hunters are searching the shoreline of Elephant Lake, 15 miles east of Wilberforce, for W. A. Pollock, believed to be a Toronto resident, who has been missing for two days. His companion on a deer-hunting trip, Bruce Swain, of Scarboro, was found nearly frozen on the shore of the lake Monday night. He told a tale of their boat striking a submerged object in the water that tore a board from the bottom, causing it to sink.

Miss Doris Swain, who works at the Medical Centre in Peterborough, is a sister of Bruce Swain.

The two of them reached a small island in the narrows between Elephant Lake and Baptiste Lake. Pollock was exhausted and Swain told him to remain there until help arrived.

Swain walked, waded and swam through the icy lake water to the shore where he was later found.

Swain is reported to be much better today and is scheduled to be released from hospital.

Pollock Gone

Following Swain's directions, police and a search party found the island where Pollock had been left, but Pollock was gone.

The search party is now plowing through the deep snow from hunting camp to hunting camp looking for Pollock. They believe he was found by a hunting party and taken from the island.

However, there are still the possibilities that he tried to wade ashore after Swain and drowned or that he succeeded in reaching the shore and is wandering somewhere through the bush.

Inspector J. A. Stringer, chief of OPP District 8, is expected to arrive anytime at the lake to direct the search personally.

Until now, Constable Gordon Langton, of the Haliburton detachment, has been directing the search. Unless rescued by a roaming hunting party, Pollock will have been exposed to near-zero weather for two days.

Spotted By Guide

Early Monday night Swain got ashore after leaving Pollock on an island. He badly cut his hands by breaking his way through ice. Despite near exhaustion he tried to get help and was first seen, not far from the lake, by Jack Woods, a hunting guide.

It was not till the early hours of Tuesday morning that Swain could be brought out of the bush. A fire was built by Woods to keep Swain—frostbitten, cut, and suffering from exposure—warm until other arrangements were made.

He was then taken to the cottage of Jack Ross. And Ross early Tuesday morning went to Wilberforce to notify provincial police.

A search was organized before dawn. Only clues were his wallet, found in the vicinity, and a series of rapid shots, usually a distress signal in the bush.

Millionaire Dies With Wife In Raging Storm

CASABLANCA, Nov. 7 (AP)—Millionaire sportsman Freddy McEvoy, former husband of two oil heiresses, died a hero's death Tuesday in a vain attempt to save his third wife from drowning.

McEvoy, his French wife, Claude, and four others perished when his yacht "Kangaroo" was driven on the rocks about 100 yards offshore in a violet storm 100 miles south of Casablanca.

Three members of the yacht crew swam to safety.

The 43-year-old international society figure was swimming through 30-foot high seas only six feet from shore, the survivors said, when he turned back to aid his wife some distance behind. As he neared her side, their strength failed and both sank.

They died after 18 hours of terror aboard the wrecked yacht, which had turned on its side and was breaking up. Two French sailors were swept overboard. A Spanish sailor threw himself into the sea and sank. Mrs. McEvoy's French maid, lashed to the mast, was torn loose by the wind and carried away.

Turned Over

The yacht, on a cruise from Cannes to the Bahamas, was trying to enter the port of Safi, but was kept out by blinding sand clouds. It ran aground Monday and turned on its side.

In mid-afternoon the storm lulled and battered survivors aboard the wreck, clinging desperately to ropes, could see the Moroccan coast 100 yards away. Two automobiles passed, but the survivors' screams were not heard.

As night approached McEvoy ordered an Austrian sailor to try to swim to shore. He reached it, exhausted. In the dark he could not make the lone Arab he met understand the need for help.

The next morning the two other sailors still alive swam to shore. Then McEvoy and his wife, both excellent swimmers, started their futile try.

Two More Reds Gaining Power

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Between-the-lines hints from Moscow today suggest that Joseph Stalin has relinquished at least some of the active control of his Soviet dictatorship.

The censored dispatches reporting the celebration of the revolution's 34th anniversary give an impression that new authority has fallen to two men—Georgi Maximilianovich Malenkov and Lavrenty Pavlovich Beria, the power twins of the Politburo.

The dispatches give no indication that either Stalin or his old Bolshevik deputy, Vyacheslav M. Molotov, was present at Tuesday night's revolution anniversary eve celebration at the Bolshoi Theatre, the most important gathering of the year for Soviet officialdom.

The dispatches did not say this directly. They said a "message of greeting" to Stalin was adopted They listed members of the Politburo who were present. Molotov's name was missing.

Stalin of late has gone to a Black Sea resort when Moscow's zero weather begins.

Malinovsky Says Forces Can Halt Aggressor

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Soviet Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, speaking in Red Square to massed thousands today, said that the Russian people can rely upon their armed forces against "any aggressor."

He told the throngs in a speech commemorating the Bolshevik revolution's 34th anniversary that the Soviet "does not contemplate attacking the United States of America or any other country."

The temperature was below zero as leading members of the Politburo, headed by Lavrenty P. Beria and Georgi M. Malenkov, reviewed a parade of Soviet armed might from the Politburo's traditional position atop Lenin's tomb.

Big bombers and jet fighters and bombers zoomed overhead in an aerial show led by Prime Minister Stalin's son, Lt.-Gen. Vassily Stalin.

Storm Lashes Ontario Hard More Coming

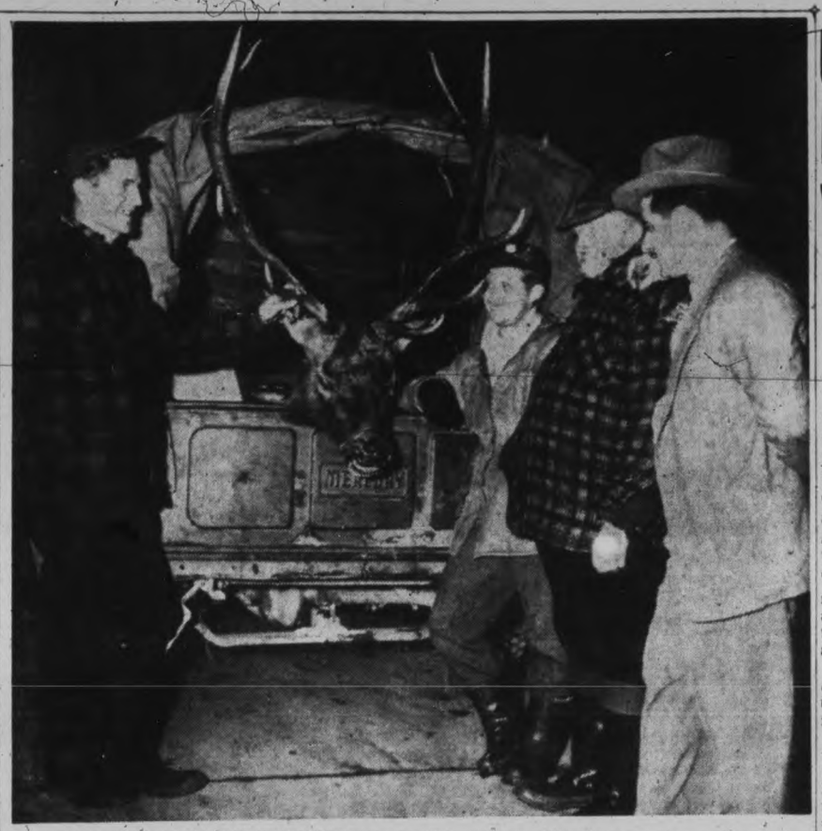
Belleville Power Fails, Factory Workers Sent Home

TORONTO, Nov. 7. (CP) — Snow, sleet and rain, borne by stiff winds, moved eastward across Ontario today. In the storm's wake were left slush-blocked highways, snarled communications and stalled motor traffic

No let-up was in sight immediately. The Dominion weather bureau, reporting "all kinds of weather on Ontario's weather map," forecast general snow in the southern and eastern areas of the province lasting until late Thursday at least. Another five inches of snow was predicted.

The storm moved in from Indiana Tuesday night. It was the second in four days and was worse than the first.

Some 2,400 children were sent home from Niagara Falls' schools when breaks in power lines, causing power failures at intervals of from one to three hours in extent, prevented school oil-heating systems from operating. Two hundred hydro workers at Queenston, where a big power station is being built, were laid off for the day. Foremen said it was too dangerous to work on the Niagara river cliffs.



Few Bad Accidents

Surprisingly, few serious traffic accidents were reported. Most motorists drove cautiously over roads deep in slush.

Trains and buses arriving in Toronto were more than an hour late in some cases. City traffic was snarled with police stations flooded with reports of minor accidents.

Some Trans-Canada Air Lines flights east and south were cancelled.

UK Will Prune Spending By $980,000,000 Year, Will Slash Dollar Imports

Meat, Fruit and Vegetables To Be Reduced To Stave Off Bankruptcy; Cut Amount of Money Taken Out of Country

OTTAWA, Nov. 7. (CP) — Canada's hope of building up bigger markets in Britain next year to offset a deficit in world trade faded away with the announcement of drastic new austerity measures in that dollar-short country. Both trade and agricultural officials were gloomy following decision by Britain's new Conservative government to cut spending in the dollar areas by almost $1,000,000,000 a year. The officials said the cut may result in sharp reductions in Canada's exports to Britain, which this year began perking up after a downward plunge in 1950.

Exports to Britain this year are expected to reach about $600,000,000, compared with $407,000,000 in 1950 and $700,000,000 in 1949.

A trade department official said the outlook was "very bad." His immediate concern, however, was how the plan to slash purchases would affect an Anglo-Canadian apple deal, concluded on a private-enterprise basis.

The agreement was understood to cover between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 worth of Nova Scotia and British Columbia apples, part of which was to be delivered for the Christmas trade in Britain and part early next year.

It was possible that Britain's new austerity measures might affect it.

Half Dollar Drain

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Conservative government announced today it has decided to cut Britain's spending abroad by $980,000,000 a year to halt a startling drain on its gold-dollar reserves.

R. A. Butler, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, outlined the plan in a speech to the House of Commons disclosing that the vital reserves plummeted $320,000,000 last month.

Butler said the nearly billion-dollar import cut will not affect trade between Britain and its partners in the sterling bloc, but will be limited to the United States and other non-sterling countries.

The decision to slash spending abroad followed Tuesday's statement by Prime Minister Churchill that Britain must adopt exceptional measures to avoid national bankruptcy.

Among the imports which will be hit Butler said, are food and strategic materials for stockpiling. The ration of some foods may have to be cut as well as the amount of edibles now on the unrationed list.

Russia Pressing UN Seat For Chinese Reds

PARIS, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia asked the United Nations Assembly today to take up the question of Chinese representation, a major unsolved issue, at the current session.

The Soviet delegate tossed in this request as new and important proposals for easing East-West tension were expected from the Western Big Three.

The American-British-French plans, believed to contain provisions for a count of the world's atomic weapons, are scheduled to be disclosed at midnight (6 pm EST). This will mark the major event thus far of the sixth assembly session which opened Tuesday with a call from France's President Vincent Auriol for a Truman-Stalin-Churchill meeting in Paris.

Vishinsky's request concerns the question whether China will continue being represented in the UN by Nationalist delegates or by delegates of the Peiping Communist regime, as the Soviet Union insists.

First Battle

The first battle on the issue is expected in the initial meeting of the 14-member Steering Committee, which recommends to the assembly items for its agenda.

The assembly itself got down to the work of electing officers to preside over meetings at which important questions will be discussed. Finn Moe of Norway was elected by acclamation as chairman of the Political Committee, which deals with the most important items.

Announcement of the Big-Three "peace" program, originally set for Tuesday night, was postponed presumably so it would more closely precede President Truman's broadcast tonight to the US.

The Big-Three plan is likely to be patterned closely on the general terms of the President's foreign-policy pronouncement.

There has been speculation for days on what the Big Three will offer. Reliable sources say the atom-bomb count — a sweeping concession by the US, which until now has objected to such a census—will certainly be the key point.

Three Children Burned In Village Shack

LASARRE, Que., Nov. 7—(CP)—Three children were burned to death early Tuesday in a shack fire in this village 50 miles north of Rouyn.

The dead are: Paul-Emile, 7, Raoul, 6 and Yvon 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Lemire.

Police at the mining town of Rouyn said the three children were sleeping on the ground floor of the two-storey shack and were trapped when the ceiling of their room collapsed. The parents and four other children escaped.

There is no fire brigade in this small community and no one was aware of the tragedy until the family walked to nearby Ste. Rose de Porarie and told residents of their plight.

Ask Buffer Zone Established Now

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 7 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators today proposed that the boundaries of a Korean buffer zone be established now, with both sides permitted to propose changes later.

United Nations' representatives turned it down.

The Allied objection appeared to be that either side could reject changes proposed later by the other.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, head of the UN sub-committee, indicated the hitch was that no adjustments could be made in the demarcation line as the Communists obviously would not agree.

"It would be a de facto cease-fire," he said. "It's the same thing they have brought up for three days."

Hodes indicated the Red proposal might be taken up again at Thursday's session, scheduled for 11 am (9 pm Wednesday EST.)

Hold Fire Till Reds Only 40 Yards From Foxholes

By BILL BOSS

WEST - CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 7 (CP)—Thirty-four dead Chinese were strung Tuesday along the wire of United Nations outpost positions in this sector and uncounted others—possibly hundreds—lie in enemy territory ahead.

The Communists Monday night resumed their determined assaults on United Nations ridge-top positions in this sector, braving artillery, mortar and machine-gun concentrations to close in on the defenders for close - quarters fighting.

They were levelled by rifle fire, grenades and mines once in UN lines.

Obeying orders to hold their fire until the enemy was within 40 yards, and also to stay in their foxholes to fight it out regardless, UN infantry plus artillery exacted a known toll of 20 to one, and possibly twice or three times that.

Two companies were assaulted but in support they had not only the entire divisional artillery, which several times fired concentrations of all guns onto the attackers, but US air force heavy bombers—B-29s—flying for the first time in close support of ground troops at night.

The battle lasted more than seven hours.

A battalion commander whose troops had played a ceremonial retreat at rear headquarters the afternoon before, addressed this message to his superiors at the battle's height:

"We sound retreat only at B echelon (rear headquarters)."

He had this to say on the bombing, which hit objectives within 500 yards of his troops: "This is another morale booster — the troops now can depend on air support by night."

The enemy attacked determinedly three times but each time found the defenders as solid as rocks. A few Communists managed to reach the inner perimeter of the defences, but were eliminated.

The attack was estimated to be at least in battalion strength, supported by tanks, self-propelled artillery and heavy mortar and machine-gun fire.

British Troops Raid Village Seeking Arms

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP)—British troops raided a village near Ismailia in the disputed Canal Zone at dawn today, searching for arms among Egyptian civilians.

British officials said their raid on the village of Abu Ghamous was against terrorist groups who might make further trouble in the canal area which Egypt now claims as sovereign territory. Britain stands on a 1936 treaty giving her troops the right to guard the canal.

Similar raids have been made by British troops to root out Moslem Brotherhood of Liberation battalions in other hamlets, but British officers would not say whether today's raid was against such battalions.

Checked Thoroughly

Each house was painstakingly gone over. Mine detectors were used. Men were removed from their homes and placed inside barbed wire enclosures for interrogation and screening later.

In Suez the British captain of an Egyptian ship was jailed without bail by Egyptian authorities, charged with insulting a "high Egyptian personality." A Cairo newspaper reported Capt. William Travers made "slighting remarks" while talking to Egyptian officers aboard a ship owned by the Khedivial Line. The line petitioned the Egyptian police to arrest Travers.

The internationally-owned Suez Canal Company said it had made a satisfactory reply to week-old ultimatum presented by Egyptian workers Oct. 29 and a strike had been avoided. All employees were reported on the job today.

Expect King To Make Christmas Broadcast

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Buckingham Palace announced Tuesday that the King is expected to be sufficiently recovered from his lung operation to permit him to broadcast his annual Christmas Day message next month. On Monday a medical bulletin from the Palace said the King's health has steadily improved and he is up the greater part of the day.

Racing Storm To Save 25 After Blast, Fire On Ship

SEATTLE, Nov. 7. (AP)—A Japanese merchant ship early today pulled 12 survivors of the ill-fated American freighter George Walton from the storm-swept North Pacific, then moved on to rescue 25 others riding bobbing lifeboats upwind from their burning, sinking ship.

An explosion and fire aboard the freighter late Tuesday killed three members of its crew and drove the others to lifeboats to await rescue by commercial and Coast Guard vessels.

The Japanese freighter Kenon Maru, the first to reach the stricken ship, battled rough water and a strong wind through most of the night to rescue 12 seamen in a lifeboat nearest the Walton. Seven were taken aboard shortly before midnight and the others rescued about four hours later.

All were weakened by cold and exposure.

Four other vessels were speeding toward the scene, 390 miles west of the Washington coast, where the American freighter George Walton was slowly succumbing in a funeral pyre fed by 9,500 tons of grain.

But, coast guard officials at Seattle said, rescue of the remainder would not be easy. In confirmation came the terse message from the Japanese freighter Kenkon Maru which reached the scene at 10:30 pm PST (1:30 am, EST) Tuesday night:

"I steer very hard in rough sea so still not pick up men. Still trying." A short while later, it reported seven of the 37 men were rescued.

Allied Troops Recapture Hill

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 7 (AP)—Allied troops attacking through the mud today recaptured one of three hills lost to Chinese assaults since Sunday.

The Communists did not put up much of a fight to keep the peak northwest of Yonchon. Two battalions of Chinese had overrun it Tuesday.

The Reds drove United Nations' infantrymen out of advanced positions northwest of Korangpo, near the 38th parallel on the western front. The allies promptly counter-attacked and ran the reds back to their own lines.

Elsewhere along the western sector rain dampened the savage infantry fighting of the last three days. Artillery duels thundered along the sector as the UN tried to soften up Chinese still holding two peaks they seized Sunday.

Red gunners knocked out five allied tanks on the east-central front.

UN command artillery has been pounding Communist positions continuously. Communist guns have been almost as active.

Arena Roof Collapses

MINDEN, Nov. 7. (CP)—The roof of Minden's community arena, built two years ago at a cost of $40,000 collapsed today under the weight of snow brought by a storm that swept eastward across Ontario. Loss was estimated at $15,000.

Leave 12 Seats Alone—Churchill

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Britain's new Conservative government has decided against trying at the present time for restoration of the 12 controversial university seats to the present House of Commons.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House Tuesday he is determined to restore the seats, but by a bill which will become operative only when this Commons is dissolved.

The term of the present House is five years from the date of the national election on Oct. 25. However, Churchill may ask for its dissolution at any time if defeated on a major issue, or if he decides he does not wish to carry on.

The university seats were spread through the United Kingdom, with Oxford and Cambridge entitled to two each. Only graduates of the universities could vote in their own House of Commons district, thus casting two ballots.

Republicans Win 4 Elections Lose Grip On Philadelphia

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Republicans picked up one seat in the United States House of Representatives by capturing all four special elections held Tuesday, but they lost their 68-year-old grip on the country's third-largest city, Philadelphia.

The off-year balloting, generally regarded as having no great national political significance, also brought victory in New York City to Rudolph Halley of Senate crime and television fame, and the defeat of James Michael Curley in an attempt to come back as mayor of Boston.

Surprising few observers, Democrats appeared to have retained the Kentucky governorship, returning to the State House Gov. Lawrence Wetherby and his slate of eight state candidates.

The city hall at Little Rock, Ark., fell to the Republicans for the first time in 64 years, and they also took the mayoralty in Indianapolis, home of the new Democratic National Committee chairman, Frank E. McKinney.

"Clean government" campaigns were waged by the New York and Philadelphia winners. Halley won New York's city council presidency, second-highest position in the metropolis, over Democrat Joseph T. Sharkey and two others. Halley, running on the Independent, Fusion and Liberal party tickets, rolled up a plurality of 163,000 votes.

In Philadelphia, City Controller Joseph S. Clark, Jr., won the mayoralty for the Democrats to end a Republican regime which stood since 1883. Promising to clean up corruption he laid at the door of the Republicans, he defeated Dr. Daniel A. Poling.

Some Republicans claimed a trend toward their side in the outcome of the four special house elections, but three of the vacancies were in traditionally-Republican districts.

The Republican gain was registered in Ohio, where Paul F. Schneck won a House seat from the district around Dayton, defeating Jesse Yoder.

New Jersey's ninth district stayed Republican, as well as two seats in Pennsylvania.

2 Stirling Men Dead In Car

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 7 (CP)—Two Stirling district men—Carman Green, 26, of Huntingdon township, and Charles F. Wright, 55, of RR 2, Stirling—were found dead Tuesday in their automobile two miles east of St. Ola.

Death was said to have been due to carbon monoxide fumes. The men had been hunting and stopped their car at the side of the township road, leaving the motor running.

They were found by Wilfred Phillips, St. Ola, as he drove by in his car.

Royal Pair Begin Nova Scotia Tour

AMHERST, NS, Nov. 7 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip began their tour of Nova Scotia with a 10-minute stop at this industrial town today.

Hon. Wishart Robertson, leader of the government in the Senate, presented Mayor F. C. Wightman and other prominent citizens during the short stopover.

The train then left for Truro.

Princess Gets Biggest Laugh Out Of Seagull

SAINT JOHN, NB, Nov. 7 (CP) —The Royal visitors opened the Maritime leg of their tour with Princess Elizabeth getting her heartiest laugh. And, as it should be in this nautical area, the story concerned a seagull—by the name of Sebastian.

Royal progress was under sunny skies Tuesday and it touched the provincial capital at Fredericton and continued at this oldest incorporated city in Canada. Saint John was established by the New England Loyalists in 1783.

And the Loyalists' descendants provided a warm and dignified reception that saw the Royal couple walk into the crowd and do some other things that weren't on the schedule.

One of the biggest demonstrations of the tour occurred when the Princess and Duke of Edinburgh returned to the railway station at the end of their visit.

About 10,000 people jammed the area, halting traffic, and the Royal visitors appeared three times from their train before calling it a night.

Makes Her Laugh

But to get back to Sebastian. Reporters covering the tour noticed that Lieutenant-Governor Laurence MacLaren of New Brunswick made Elizabeth laugh harder than she has on the whole trip.

They asked him what he had said. He replied that he had merely pointed out that down in this Loyalist country even the seagulls were patriotic and he told the story of Sebastian.

It seems that Sebastian used to visit daily at the top of the flagstaff at the Hon. Marguerite Shaughnessy's nearby St. Andrews estate. He always sat just above the rippling Union Jack where he waited until the household put food on the lawn for him.

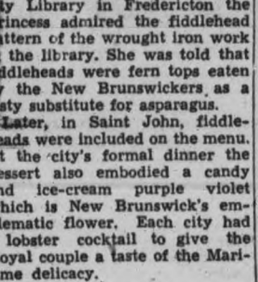
But two summers ago Governor-General Alexander used the place for a summer holiday and during that period the vice-regal standard substituted for the Union Jack. Sebastian flew over, circled the flagpole and then flew off to the nearby hotel staff which flew a Union Jack.

"I told her he just stayed away until the Governor-General moved and the Union Jack was restored," he said.

Lost In Crowd

In Fredericton the couple stopped at the Bonar-Law-Bennett Library where they walked through police lines and temporarily got lost in the crowd, questioning students and having a great time. Then they had an unscheduled tea while their chauffeur took the "bugs" out of their transparent-topped car.

There was a New Brunswick flavor to the day. At the University Library in Fredericton the Princess admired the fiddlehead pattern of the wrought iron work in the library. She was told that fiddleheads were fern tops eaten by the New Brunswickers as a tasty substitute for asparagus.



Later, in Saint John, fiddleheads were included on the menu. At the city's formal dinner the dessert also embodied a candy and ice-cream purple violet which is New Brunswick's emblematic flower. Each city had a lobster cocktail to give the Royal couple a taste of the Maritime delicacy.

Off-Season Deer Costs Lakefield Man $52.50

Charged with killing a deer during closed season, James McCauley, 39, of Lakefield, entered a written plea of guilty in police court today. He was fined $50 and $2.50 costs.

His brother, S. R. McCauley, 37, of Apsley, entered a written plea of guilty on a charge of having possession of a deer in closed season and was also fined $50 and $2.50 costs.

Anstruther township Conservation Officer Robert H. Trotter, who laid the charges, also seized a three-ton truck belonging to S. R. McCauley and a .32 special rifle owned by James McCauley as a result of the charges. The carcass was confiscated.

Truman Has Delayed Rail Strike In US

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—The firemen's and enginemen's union Tuesday called a strike for Thursday against big four railroad operators but President Truman stepped in immediately with action requiring a 60-day delay.

Truman created an emergency board under the Railway Labor Act to look into the long dispute over pay and working conditions. By law that move calls for a wait of 30 days while the board investigates and recommends a solution, and 30 days after that to try for settlement.

President David B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen announced the strike call. Immediately threatened were the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the Chicago and Northwestern, the Louisville and Nashville, and the Terminal Railway Association of St. Louis, which is one of the country's principal interchange points.

Truman, in announcing creation of the board, said the dispute threatened to disrupt interstate commerce so seriously as to deprive certain portions of the country of essential transportation and to interfere with operation of the railroads by the army.

Prices Turn Sharply On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP). — Prices turned sharply lower today as stock market support weakened abruptly after a firm opening. Early afternoon losses ranged from fractions to more than a point.

Banks formed the only industrial section to draw solid support. Constructions and refining oils held firm on early gains but utilities, agricultures steels, foods and manufacturing companies turned mixed. Papers, liquors and retail stores weakened while miscellaneous industrials dipped sharply.

Western oils eased from early advances.

Base metals traded irregularly. Barvue, East Sullivan, Estella, Hudson Bay, Silanco and Steep Rock strengthened while Fenimore Iron, Noranda and United Asbestos weakened.

Senior golds were mixed. Kerr Addison and McIntyre pushed upward while Giant Yellowknife Lake Shore and Tack Hughes slipped. Secondary issues weakened.

Van Doo Toll Lightest—Claxton

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP).—Defence Minister Claxton said on Tuesday that there is "not a word of truth" in charges that French-Canadian troops in Korea are singled out for exposed duty.

The charges were made in the Commons Monday by P. E. Gagnon (Ind., Chicoutimi). Tuesday Mr. Gagnon listened closely to the Minister's rebuke, but made no reply.

Mr. Claxton said:

"I cannot deprecate too strongly unsupported statements of this kind, which if they have any effect at all can only have the effect of creating racial blood and racial disunity."

Mr. Claxton made his statement after M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, asked if he would investigate in view of the seriousness of the charges.

The Minister said any one who has served in action knows that the fortunes of battle may find one battalion suffering more casualties than another.

Mr. Claxton said it so happened that of the three infantry battalions in Korea—the Princess Patricias, the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment—the Royal 22nd has suffered lighter casualties than the other two. The Royal 22nd, the famed Van Doos, is predominantly a French-Canadian regiment.

Board Cuts Units In Apt. Building

City planning board would reduce from six to four units a proposed apartment building at the northeast corner of McDonnel and Waterford streets.

Don Ephgrave has been ready to begin at once the construction of the larger apartment building, but City Engineer Chalmers has advised that the property does not provide sufficient space to comply with the density regulation of the zoning bylaw. This bylaw has not yet been passed by the council.

Planning board Tuesday afternoon accepted the recommendation of Mr. Chalmers. In effect that would approve a four-unit building instead of six.

A conservative estimate of the cost of the original project is $25,000, Mr. Ephgrave said today. He told the Examiner that he had not received word from the board, and he had not given any thought yet to undertaking a four-unit building.

Brewery Staffs Out On Strike

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Breweries were closed early today in three Ontario cities—Ottawa, Windsor and Waterloo—when negotiations between Brading's and O'Keefe's plants and members of the International Union of Distilery Workers (CIO) broke down.

About 750 brewery employees are affected. A strike vote was taken Sunday and union officials said at the time that 85 per cent of the union members had voted in favor of strike action. Nevertheless a number of pickets were out at Ottawa and Windsor.

Negotiations on the wage demands were continued even after the midnight deadline and after the strike for higher pay was officially started.

The union is asking a 25-cent hourly pay increase, an additional increase of one cent an hour for each one-point rise in the cost-of-living index and other benefits. The previous contract ended in April.

Ontario Labor Minister Daly Tuesday appealed to the brewery employees to delay strike action until Thursday. None of the three locals accepted the proposal but all struck on schedule after midnight.

Racing Storm

A coast guard flier returned from the scene with word that the entire mid-section of the Walton was afire.

He said three lifeboats were in the water and all the boats showed signs of life.

New Threat

Meanwhile, a new storm moving in from the western Pacific threatened rescue operations with added hazards. The weather bureau raised storm warnings at 3 am for winds up to 40 miles an hour.

The George Walton radioed for aid Tuesday afternoon, reporting its engine room and crew quarters swept by flames which followed an explosion.

"Three men are dead and one seriously burned," came the frantic message from a radio operator who was driven from his quarters every few minutes by the smoke and fumes. He finally had to follow the crew oversides, carrying a portable radio which sputtered out its last appeal for help shortly after 5 pm.

Meanwhile, the Kenkon Maru, a slow ship, turned from its course 60 miles away after picking up the SOS. It steamed directly to the George Walton.

There, a coast guard rescue plane dropped flares to guide it to the flaming ship.

From other directions came the Greek steamer Katherine and the American Johnny Murray Forbes.

Two coast guard cutters, the Wachusetts and North Wind, were dispatched from Seattle with medical crews.

Two life boats and a life raft were carrying the survivors. It was not known at coast guard headquarters whether the men had time to bring their dead off the blazing ship.

Storm Lashes

"We expect snow, sleet or rain until Thursday morning," said a weather forecaster here. "You can decide which by flipping a coin.

"If we get snow, there will be more than five inches by night.

"But the temperature will stay about 33 degrees. We could get sleet or rain instead of snow."

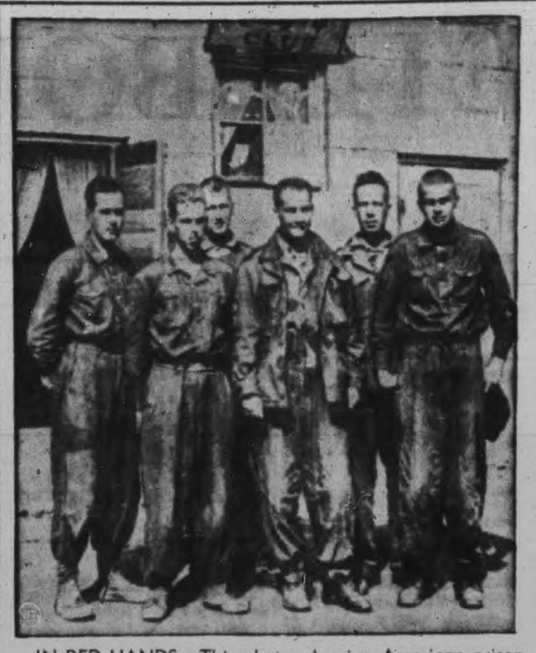
Toronto got snow Tuesday evening, then sleet and rain. This morning it was snowing again and the streets were covered by an inch or so of slush.

Farther north the overnight fall was all snow. There was freezing rain and snow in the London-Windsor area.

Ghost City

Belleville was a ghost city as the storm knocked out the electricity supply. Factory workers were sent home early today as their machines moaned to a stop. Four or five inches of slush kept traffic at a snail's pace. Three cars were damaged by trees broken by ice on branches. The snow started at midnight and continued until daybreak. At 9:30 am it was thawing a little.

Western Ontario bore the brunt of the storm. Five inches of snow fell in four hours at Windsor. Driving snow and, later, freezing rain made travel hazardous on London district highways and caused the death of Sheldon Davidson, 48, of Forest, whose automobile spun into the path of another car near Camp Ipperwash.



Visibility dropped to 10 yards on No. 6 Highway near Guelph, where drifting was heavy.

In Cornwall most of the town's fleet of 20 trolley buses were stalled by ice formation on their twin trolley lines and had to be towed from various parts of town.

Telephone service was disrupted into many rural communities including Prescott, Kemptville, Kingston and Luskville, Que. About 100 poles were reported down in the Cornwall area.

In Ottawa a freezing rain stalled many cars, buses and street cars. The civic engineering department sent out 225 men with storm-fighting equipment including nine graders. There were a number of temporary power failures in various communities.

At one suburban Ottawa crossing a Canadian National Railways train had to be flagged down after a city bus stalled on the tracks.

IN RED HANDS—This photo, showing American prisoners of war in a Red camp near Pyongyang, North Korea, was made by Tibor Merai, a Hungarian Communist correspondent. UK Will Prune

Tight Quotas

New licensing controls will be imposed on a wide range of imports, including those from the US and Canada, and importers will be held to tight quotas.

A wide list of imports will be slashed or banned outright immediately. They include canned ham, meat, fruit and vegetables, sugar products and fresh fruit.

Butler said the national housing drive — Churchill promised voters 30,000 houses a year—and rearmament are two expenditures which cannot stand pruning. "We must pay them, cost what it may."

He said the ultimate solution of Britain's money problems will be to increase production. "We are determined to get output up," he said.

In a further step to save spending outside of Britain, the amount of money Britons may take out of the country is cut immediately from £100 to £50. The restriction will continue at least until the end of next October.

In addition to the gold-dollar drain in October, Butler said, Britain spent £89,000,000 more in Europe than she earned in the Continent in that month.

Raise Bank Rate

Butler said the state-owned Bank of England is raising the bank rate from the present 2 per cent to 2½ per cent immediately. This means the interest rate on bank loans in Britain will rise, making money dearer to borrow and thus, it is hoped, have a deflationary effect.

Butler said Britain's prospects of earning its own way in international trade in 1952 are "even worse than had been previously forecast" by the outgoing Labor Government.

Part of the trouble, he added, is caused by a "weakening in confidence in sterling throughout the world."

Taking into account the gold-dollar drain in October, these reserves now are down to slightly more than $3,000,000,000. This is the entire capital of the pound sterling bloc of nations for trade with countries which insist on payment in dollars. Previous chancellors have regarded $2,000,000,000 as the minimum reserve for safety.

Won't Close Gap

Butler said even the billion-dollar cut in imports would not close Britain's balance of payments gap in 1952.

"If we do not find a means to correct the disparity between what we earn and what we buy we shall find we cannot buy what we want—the materials to maintain employment and the food to keep the rations even at their present level," he warned.

"We shall in fact be bankrupt, idle and hungry, and in the government's view the only ultimate solution must be one of expansion.

"We are determined to get output up and encourage the country to produce more."

Woman Pedestrian Struck By Bicycle

Struck by a bicycle on Hunter St., at Mark St., Tuesday morning, Mrs. Margaret Murphy, 180 Dufferin St., was knocked unconscious and had her glasses broken. Later, Mrs. Murphy complained of a sore back.

Mrs. Murphy told police she had stepped off a bus at Mark and Hunter Sts., and after looking for approaching traffic, she started across Hunter St.

As she approached the centre of the street, Mrs. Murphy said she saw an eastbound truck and started to return to the north curb when she was struck by a bicycle.

Victor McFadden of Apsley, the driver of the truck which Mrs. Murphy turned back to avoid told police Mrs. Murphy appeared to become confused when she started back across the street. John Glennie, 11, of Juliet Rd., was riding the bicycle.

Young Crocodile Good Bank Guard

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP).—One Australian bank employs a lively baby crocodile to guard its premises.

The croc, named Nicodemus, a pet of the staff, is tied up each night outside the room where the bank's safe is kept.

Nicodemus at present is only 18 inches long, but since the staff began feeding and petting him he has learned to bark when strangers enter the staff quarters of the bank at Darwin.

"He has needle-sharp teeth," explained the manager, Kelvin Stanley. "He moves like lightning when disturbed or roughly handled. If Nick ever tangled with a thief there would be enough noise to wake the staff."

Crocodiles are common in certain rivers of Australia and the sport of hunting crocodiles has become one of the leading tourist industries. Cattlemen in the area 400 miles south of Darwin were delighted when a professional hunter recently shot a huge old crocodile in the Wickham River. This predator, more than 24 feet long, had been killing horses that drank on the river bank. Its hide was sold for £16.

MOSTLY SAND

It is estimated that 90 per cent of the world's coastlines are fringed with sandy beaches.

Accused Skips, Trips Over Radio Act

Charged with not having a radio licence, John P. Young, 550 Hamilton St., defended himself so skillfully in police court today, that it looked for a time as though he had found a loophole in the Radio Licence Act that would result in the charge being dismissed.

Mr. Young contended that Department of Transport Inspector Fred Ternaway of 1 Front St., Toronto had violated the rights of a private citizen as laid down in the Magna Carta by demanding his wife to produce a radio licence.

Mr. Young backed up his argument that he was not guilty of the charge by producing a radio licence dated September 18, 1951. Mr. Young submitted that a regulation issued to vendors of radio licences stated that a licence bought during the year covered the period from April 1 to March 31 the following year.

Period Covered

Therefore contended Mr. Young he could not be guilty of not having a radio licence during the period covered by the charge—April 1 to September 13.

"I don't think the government or anyone else can tell me where I should keep this (referring to the licence). It is a personal document and no person has the right to demand it unless he produces a writ of search," declared Mr. Young.

Quoting from an extract of the regulations governing the sale of radio licences, Mr. Young said it states that "any regulations governing the issue of radio licences is just as lawful as the act itself. We should assume it means what it says. It gives the term of validity for a full year and it doesn't matter when you buy it. It is valid for the whole period from April 1 of the year in which it is purchased to March 31 of the following year."

Fred Ternaway, the radio licence inspector who laid the charge, submitted that according to section 5 of the Radio License Act it is unlawful to own, set up or operate a radio set without a licence after April 1 of any year and therefore, Mr. Young was guilty of the charge.

Magna Carta

"Your argument can't be reconciled with Section 5 of the act," said Magistrate W. R. Philp in finding Mr. Young guilty of the charge. "On your further point that the government or any department has no right to make such demands on a private citizen," said Magistrate Philp, "we have many statutes in this country that are a long way from the Magna Carta as far as presumptions are concerned. The act provides that the inspector has the right to demand the production of a radio licence providing he produces his authority."

Mr. Ternaway produced his credentials identifying himself as a radio licence inspector which he said he had shown Mrs. Young on the day he laid the charge.

Magistrate Philp fined Mr. Young $3 and $2.50 costs.

M. E. Leslie, another radio licence inspector also from Toronto assisted Mr. Ternaway in the prosecution of the case.

Omemee Driver Lost License

LINDSAY, Nov. 7 — Gerald Nelson, 47, Omemee, was convicted of dangerous driving in Lindsay police court Monday.

Magistrate E. A. Gee imposed a fine of $25 and costs of $37. The accused's license was suspended for three months.

The first witness, a Peterborough man, told the court that he and another car had followed the accused along the highway between Lindsay and Omemee for about four miles. He said that the car ahead of him pulled out to pass the accused and the accused then crossed to the left side of the road and took a zig-zag path for the next mile.

The accused's car then crashed head-on into an oncoming car while still on the wrong side of the road.

Mr. Garland, a salesman from Toronto and driver of the oncoming car said that he did not see the accused's car until it was about 200 feet away. He said that he jammed on the brakes, but couldn't avert the accident. He reported total damage to his car as $860.

Car Total Wreck

Constable William Warne of the Lindsay detachment OPP said that the accused's 1933 model car was a total wreck and that the accused had been taken to Lindsay hospital for treatment.

Nelson, testified that he had not driven on the wrong side of the road and that he met Garland's car on his own side. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of dangerous driving.

Magistrate Gee found Nelson guilty of dangerous driving and imposed the fine and costs.

Africans Oppose Malan Gov't Apartheid Scheme

By L. M. WHID.

JOHANNESBURG (CP).—Dr. Daniel Malan's Nationalist government is about to launch its most ambitious scheme to date for the territorial separation of white and native peoples.

With the support of the city council, the government has decided to remove a group of African townships from Johannesburg to a site well away from the city's white residential suburbs. Villages will be built to accommodate the Africans and transportation to and from work will be provided.

African opinion is hostile and suspicious. It regards the scheme as an attack on the restricted right of Africans to own freehold property.

Situated a few miles west of Johannesburg, the townships are estimated to be capable of housing more than 50,000 families.

The plan was an important plank in the Nationalist party's program at the general election which brought it to power three years ago. At that election the Nationalist party specifically asked the voters of Johannesburg for a mandate to remove the "black spots" within the city's boundaries.

Must Shoulder Cost

The city council's support for the project is conditional. The chief conditions are that the government must shoulder the cost, provide alternative accommodation before the townships are removed, provide cheap money for sewerage and other services, and provide transport for the Africans from their new, more distant homes to their jobs in the city.

Originally the townships were clear of the city. But as booming Johannesburg expanded, white residential suburbs executed a pincer movement around them until today, grossly overcrowded and slummy, they are tightly enclosed by thousands of white homes.

Race friction mounted with the years, exploding into the world's headlines last year with ugly riots, when Africans clashed with the police.

Ready For First Stage

The Minister of Native Affairs, Dr. Hermanus Verwoerd, has notified the city council that the government will make $5,000,000 available for the first stage of the plan, and has already set aside $500,000 as a first instalment.

Property-owning Africans have formed the "anti-expropriation committee" which will fight the removal plan.

The chairman of the committee, Dr. A. B. Xuma, who was at one time president of the all-African National Congress, said that they would fight the scheme with every means at their disposal.

African residents of these townships, he said, had not been consulted. "It is their feeling that this scheme is not in the public interest, nor in the interests of social welfare but is a plan to destroy freehold ownership by Africans. Instead of removing the few freehold townships available to us, it should be the policy to extend such facilities."

Partial Move

Dr. Xuma thought it was significant that only freehold townships were to be moved. Western Native Township, which was the property of the Johannesburg City Council, did not fall under the scheme, he said.

The scheme is also condemned by an Anglican missionary, the Rev. Trevor Huddleston, who often acts as a spokesman for the Africans in Johannesburg's townships.

"The moral issue involved is such that the churches cannot let this go in default," he said. "If in the eyes of the African people, the churches are not prepared to make some sort of stand, they will lose the Africans' confidence entirely.

"The proposal to move the people en bloc from these areas will increase the present feeling of insecurity. Some of them have the right of freehold tenure which they will get again, and it is equally clear that wherever they have to go will be farther from their work, with resulting transport and other problems."

Indian Curse Figures In Trial

GORE BAY, Nov. 7 — (CP) — For the second time in six years, the bearwalk curse of the Ojibway Indians figured Tuesday in a Manitoulin Island murder trial.

Cpl. Lewis Needham of the Ontario Provincial Police testified at the trial of Frank Debassige, charged with the pistol slaying last June 21 of Levi Bob, that the spell was mentioned in a statement Debassige game him after his arrest.

Cpl. Needham said Debassige told him Bob was killed during a scuffle in which Bob asserted Debassige's mother was a witch. Bob had claimed his brother, Peter, died by poison as a result of the bearwalk.

The Indians believe the bearwalk is a spell cast upon a person by a witch. Thereafter, the person is supposed to be visited by the bearwalk demon, which can appear in the form of a bird, a bear, a mouse, or any other wild or domestic animal. The Indians think the result of the bearwalk spell eventually is lingering illness, insanity and death.

In 1945, James Nahwegizik was sentenced here to life imprisonment for the murder of his father who, he claimed, put the curse on him.

The trial of Debassige is continuing.

Compensation Bill

TOKYO, Nov. 7 (Reuters) — A bill to compensate allied nationals for property loss and damage suffered in Japan during the Pacific war was passed Tuesday by the house of representatives of the Japanese Diet. The upper house has yet to approve the measure, which would go into effect after ratification of the peace treaty. Government sources estimated total payment under the bill would amount to nearly $84,000,000.

Cost Differential Shown Higher

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Tuesday in the Commons that the differential between living costs in Canada and the United States is even higher than official indices indicate.

He based the suggestion on a comparison of prices in Winnipeg and Minneapolis and on the fact that the average income in Canada is "substantially less" than it is in the United States.

He quoted a comparison of prices in Winnipeg and Minneapolis published Nov. 3 in The Winnipeg Tribune. The comparison follows, with Minneapolis prices in brackets:

Washing machines, $229 ($189.95); refrigerators, $414.75 $(244); electric irons, $16.50 ($12.95); Plymouth cars, $2,522 ($1,828); cigarets, .42 (.20); chewing gum, six cents (three packages for 10 cents) chocolate bars, seven cents (six for 25 cents); sirloin steak, 96 cents a pound ($1.04); pork chops 68 cents a pound (.51); coffee, $1.10 a pound (.93); sugar, five pounds for 75 cents (.52); eggs A-large, 68 cents a dozen, (.76); soup, two cans for 25 cents (three cans for .29).

Australian Tour Plan Ready For Elizabeth

LONDON, Nov. 7 (CP)—Plans for the Australian tour will be ready for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh when they return from Canada and the United States.

Preparations are already going ahead at Clarence House. The Princess has requested a complete draft program for the itinerary of her Australian-New Zealand tour next spring, to be ready for her return.

Already she has sent substitutions and cancellations that she wishes incorporated in her itinerary and more are expected. The Canadian tour has also given Prince Philip some ideas on how things may be tightened up to lessen strain on the Royal couple and yet give more people a chance of seeing them.

3 Inches Snow Falls In Cobourg District

County and township roads are open, but negotiable with difficulty.

Communist Plan Backfires

Ming Sung Ships Lie Useless At Canton

Written for The Canadian Press by F. K. WU.

HONG KONG, Nov. 7 — (CP)— The seven Ming Sung ships which have stirred prolonged controversy in Canada now are lying idle and useless on China's Pearl river, behind the Iron Curtain at Canton.

Reliable reports reaching here indicate that the Communist authorities have found the ships cannot be of use to them and the vessels, built in Canada with a federally-backed bank loan, are simply rusting away.

They were seized by their crews after their owners, the Ming Sung Industrial Co., Ltd., failed to meet an instalment on the martgage held by a Canadian bank. The payment was made good by the Canadian government which guaranteed a $12,000,00 loan to the Chinese firm, which has a subsidiary company in Canada.

The explanation given here for the seizures was that the crews thought the ships would be seized for Canada in Hong Kong for payment of the debt. Shipping circles her now believe the Communists may have ordered the Ming Sung firm —it operates on both sides of the Iron Curtain—to take the ships to Canton and hold them there to avoid further payments to Canada on the $12,000,000 debt.

Seizure Backfires.

The ships flew the Canadian flag because they were registered in Canada by the Ming Sung subsidiary in that country.

Regardless of the motive for their seizure, it apparently has back-fired.

There is no modern shipyard in Southern China to overhaul or alter them and they don't dare venture out into the open sea again for fear of intercepiton by Canadian or other warships.

(Canada's three warships off Korea have come to Hong Kong for repairs from time to time.

Though built for Yangtse River service, the seven vessels have a draught of at least 10 feet and it has been found impossible to operate them between Canton and points up the Pearl and West Rivers even at flood tide. Consequently, as they lie in the Pearl River near Canton, they are of no further use either to the Ming Sung firm or to the Reds.

But they are beyond Canada's control.

Same Situation

Canadian officials familiar with the Ming Sung ship story said today the fact that the river boats were proving of little use to the Communists continued a situation that prevailed to a large degree when they were based in Hong Kong.

At that time, an official said, there was so little business for them that the owners used them to relieve the pressure on Hong Kong hotels.

A number of the ships, he said, were used as floating hotels. There was no information here as to whether the Communist custodians were putting them to the same purpose in Canton waters.

The Election Could Be Exciting

A few days ago we said that we did not expect much excitement from the Ontario election; we still see little prospect of a lively contest, but we may have to revise our opinion before voting day. An analysis of the character of the present House will make clear why Mr. Frost's government is not as firmly entrenched as it might at first appear.

* * *

There are ninety seats in the Legislature: the Progressive Conservatives have 53 of these, the C.C.F. have 21, the Liberals have 14 and the L.P.P. have 2. But there are five of these seats which were won by majorities of less than 150 votes. Two of these are Conservative seats; two are Liberal; one is a C.C.F. seat. There are thirteen seats in which the majority was between 150 and 500. Of these nine are Conservative; two are Liberal; and two are C.C.F. There are sixteen seats in which the majority was between 500 and 1,000. Seven of these are Conservative; three are Liberal; six are C.C.F. In short, there are 34 seats in Ontario which were won by majorities of 1,000 or less; a change of 500 votes would alter the complexion of any of them.

* * *

Five hundred votes is not a big turnover. It is hardly to be expected that the L.P.P. will gain, but the C.C.F. may well do so and the Liberals are virtually certain to increase their holding. A larger and stronger Opposition would certainly be a good thing in the Legislature, and a change of government, though unlikely, is by no means impossible.

Is It Twilight?

In an editorial headed Twilight of Socialism the New York Times says that the socialist movement in Western politics has passed its noon. The defeat of the Labour Government in Britain, following defeats for Labour governments in Australia and New Zealand, leaves only the governments of Norway and Sweden to represent socialism in power. The revolutionary impetus of socialism has so far weakened, says the Times, that we may expect to see it expire altogether.

In this argument we do not think that the Times shows it usual political acuity. We think, on the contrary, that no government which hopes to appeal to a Western nation today (and we include the government of the U.S.A.) can do so without proposing measures which are socialist in nature. Certain socialist doctrines have lost their power, it is true. The old claptrap about "class war" and the "dictatorship of the proletariat" has lost its force in an age when most industry is directed, not by capitalists, but by a caste of trained managers. Anger against industry has waned in an era when the profits of industry are very heavily taxed to provide such socialist benefits as pensions for the old, bonuses for the young, and unemployment insurance. But the egalitarian trend of socialism, in income and consequently in modes of living, is stronger than ever. The socialist demand for security for everybody is now as common among conservative parties as it is among radical ones. The socialist belief that certain services are better run by the state than by private enterprise is widely acknowledged.

The old fighting socialism may have passed away; it was given its shrewest blows by those who benefit most from the welfare state. But we do not call that a twilight of socialism. We call it a considerable triumph for socialism, which has found its way into most modern political thinking.

Letting The Government Pay

Taxes on business are very high at present, and there is no sign that they will go down. Every business which makes a profit of $10,000 a year, for instance, must pay $5,200 to the Dominion and Ontario governments. Mr. Abbott in a recent speech in the Commons, said: "I have made no secret of my concern over a system of taxation under which more than half of company profits are taken away by governments; the effects on incentive and efficiency can be extremely dangerous at a time when maximum output and economy in operations is so important as it is today." In other words, when governments take too much out of profits, business men become indifferent to profits and run up expenses instead.

During the war it was not uncommon among business men to hear the phrase: "Oh, Ilsley will pay for that." Some luxury or needless expense was shrugged off because it would appear as an expense on company books; if that money had been saved the government would have taken it in taxes. Keenness to operate a business economically dwindled under such confiscatory treatment.

Governments must recognize that businesses are not conducted for fun, but to make money. When the government cuts itself in as a non-working partner, grabbing more than half the profit, the people who do the real work quickly weary of it, and the non-working partner's loot diminishes.

February 25th D-Day In The Sudan

Already reconnoitring has begun in the Sudan, and Britain, the United States, France, Italy, Holland, Egypt and even peaceful Switzerland are planning expeditions. The United States Air Force will send C.47's and a specially equipped Flying Fortress. Canada is preparing her own task force and getting their equipment in order. These forces will converge on the Sudan in February next and go into action on the 25th. The reason for all this activity, the expeditions to the Sudan and the agglomeration of countries taking part is a total eclipse of the sun.

On the morning of February 25th, 1952, across a line running through El Obeid in the western Sudan, Khartoum on the Nile and Jebel Bawati in the Red Sea Hills the sun will be in total eclipse. The Sudan is an ideal spot for eclipse-watching, and February an excellent month. The air has a high transparency, the sky almost permanently cloudless. The only impediment to good astronomical observation would be dust storms, and there are usually three of them in February in the Sudan. A foreseeable other impediment might be the dust of battle, but it is to be hoped that the present Egyptian-Sudanese crises will have passed peacefully by February 25th.

The last time there were such excellent conditions for observing a total eclipse was in India in 1868. No wonder present-day astronomers are titillated by the prospect of February 25th in the Sudan and are making elaborate preparations. Their instruments are vastly better than they were 83 years ago. Their terms of scientific reference are more extensive; for instance, then they did not know even that sunspots affected radio—for there was no radio. And they did not have in 1868 a Flying Fortress equipped to observe the eclipse at high altitudes. All eyes will be focussed on the Sudanese sun next February 25th.

Isolating Millbrook

Millbrook is an honourable village with a goodly heritage. But honour and inheritance are set at naught when there is no profit in it. The railway which served the village and district—in a half-hearted way of late years because it was losing money—has had official permission to discontinue its long association with Millbrook.

Rail connection between it and the lake shore was entirely cut off at the end of May. Passenger traffic between Millbrook and Peterborough has been discontinued. The sole rail link which the village has now with the outside world is through intermittent freight trains which deign to carry bulky loads like cement and coal to it once in a while. Smaller bundles of freight and express have been finding their way to Millbrook in the back seats of passenger cars. This makeshift 'service' could hardly be called express. After months of villagers' dissatisfaction the C.N.R. has decided that, really, perhaps a regular truck schedule should be used. So the company is magnanimously providing a truck to run three times a week. It is to be hoped that Christmas Eve falls on one of the three scheduled days, or Santa Claus will miss the —— truck.
